Nero Knew

The famous fiddler was a high liver. He had studied the subject.

That's why slaves had to bring ice and snow to Nero's castle, where the "ice-card" was always out.

Think what a jump from those days of basket haulage to the modern ice delivery of today! Think what a customer Nero would have been if he—like you—could have gotten prompt delivery of sparkling pure ice by the mere ringing of a phone.

THESE are the happiest, healthiest days.

MRS. EASON DIES SUDDENLY

The people of Nacogdoches were inexpressibly shocked and dismayed when it became known that Mrs. Geo. W. Eason had fallen dead at her home on North Church street about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Her death was so entirely unexpected that the report of her passing could hardly be credited, and a pall of profound grief overspread the town when it became known that the sad news was only too true.

Mrs. Eason had been unusually busy for a number of days packing the household equipment preparatory to the removal of the family to their ranch at Nursery, in Victoria county. A moment before she had been talking to her son, Fister Eason, who was assisting her in burning some trash in the yard. She was then in apparently as good health as ever in her life, but, in turning to go elsewhere about the premises, she was seen to stagger and fall, and when members of the family reached her she was dead. The alarm was sounded and anxious neighbors hurried to the scene to offer what assistance they might, but nothing could be done—their friend had left them.

Deceased was a little past 64 years old. She was, previous to her marriage, Miss Mary E. Onderdonk. In 1882 she was married to Mr. George W. Eason and to this union three sons and one daughter were born, B. F. ("Fister"), of this city, David, who resides near Beaumont, and Claud, a traveling man, and Mrs. William M. Jacobs, whose home is in Dallas. All came as soon as they could reach the city after notice of their bereavement.

The Eason family moved to Nacogdoches 16 years ago from Tyler, where Mr. Eason was in the federal service for a long term, and it was not long till Mrs. Eason's lovable character became generally known. Especially did she endear herself to the young men whom she had as roomers. To these her great mother-heart went out, and she hovered over them with a mother's tender care, looking after their comfort and welfare as only a good, Christian woman would. To these young men, many of them now grown and having families of their own, her death came as a keen personal loss, and there were tears in their eyes as they recounted the many kindnesses bestowed upon them by their dead friend. Gentle, courteous, gracious, she was an exemplification of the highest type of noble womanhood. In her passing the needy are bereft of a generous helper, the neighbors of a valued friend and the family a devoted wife and matchless mother.

"God bless her," they say. "We know she's gone home." The remains were prepared for burial by Cason, Monk & Company's undertaking department and Sunday night the funeral party left on the southbound E. & W. train for Victoria, where the beloved dead will be laid to rest in the family lot beside her father, mother, sister and brother, the members of the immediate family accompanying the body.

The following well-known citizens acted as pallbearers: R. C. Monk, Frank Goldsberry, Arch Millard, J. W. Kennedy, Clyde Stegall and Moss Adams. They escorted the ambulance to the station, where a large party of sorrowing citizens assembled to pay their last tribute to their departed friend. Many beautiful floral tributes were presented by friends here and many were ordered sent from Houston gardens to Victoria to be placed upon the grave of the woman they had so loved during her blameless life.

The Sentinel joins the entire population of the town in sincere, heartfelt sympathy for the irreparable loss the family have sustained. Words are futile in such a time as this, but our hearts ache for the sorrowing ones whose lives have been darkened by this grievous tragedy.

Mr. George B. Wells, representing H. P. Chandee Sons Company, importers of china and earthen ware, Baltimore, was calling on his trade here Tuesday. Mr. Wells has been "making" Nacogdoches since 1913. He succeeded W. O. N. Hammond, who had been calling on the dealers for 20 years. Mr. Hammond died in 1913 and Mr. Wells took his territory. H. P. Chandee Sons Company have been importing and selling china and earthen ware for 50 years. The present business is under the management of the third generation of the Chandees. Mr. Wells is a typical representative of that great group of traveling salesmen who know the world and its problems from the contact rather than from the theoretical viewpoint. He is a very pleasant and agreeable gentleman. His customers are always glad to have him call.

County Clerk J. F. Perritte returned Sunday night from Shreveport, where he had been on a business mission.

Mr. Henry Schmidt returned Sunday afternoon from the Northern and Eastern markets, where he selected a line of merchandise for the coming fall and winter season which will be pretty sure to meet the wants of the numerous customers of the big firm. While in New York Mr. Schmidt made side trips to the famous watering places along the Atlantic coast and reports a fine time. He stated the heat there was not nearly so severe as in this section.

Some Lufkin merchants, not many of them, however, have quit advertising because advertising rates are higher than they were ten or 15 years ago. They should be consistent and quit buying calico, gingham and other lines of dry goods that have advanced in price. One is about as reasonable as the other—Lufkin News.

Garrison lost one of its good citizens Monday at 6 a. m. when Mr. Ben Caldwell passed away. Deceased was 78 years old and leaves a widow, one daughter and three sons. Funeral services, conducted by Rev. M. C. Johnson, were held at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and interment made in the Garrison cemetery.
