Plans Made to Stabilize Hog and Corn Prices

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Those of the Oil Belt who are football-minded at this time, and who isn't, should have enough football this week-end.

Friday afternoon the Ranger Junior College will play the Decatur College Indians at Lillard field and the following afternoon the Ranger Bulldogs will play the Eastland Mavericks at Maverick field in Eastland. Either game should be packed with enough football to give even the most serene of the fans a run for their money and more thrills than a spooky movie.

The Mavericks, in defeat, proved that they could throw a man-sized scare into the Breckenridge Buckaroos, and had the game won until it was thrown away in the last few minutes of play, when a punt would have put the ball back out of danger and would have meant that Eastland would be leading the district today instead of trailing, along with Cisco.

But the Mavericks have learned. They will not be throwing away any of their chances next Saturday. No doubt Coach Petty, who is reputed to be one of the crafty mentors of this section, or any other, will have worked out any defects that arose in the Breckenridge game and a vastly improved team should be seen on the field next Saturday.

Writing this stuff, like we do, early in the morning, or at least early for us, we often get about a day late, which is pretty good for us at that.

For instance we write a column one day. Then, later in the day we hear something that might be worth while, or might not. The next morning we put it in and before the paper comes out in the afternoon the situation has changed somewhat. Monday we heard that Dick Murray of the Texas Rangers had a broken hand. Tuesday we said something about it. Tuesday at noon we saw Dick and he said it was hurt a little and at first it was thought he had a broken bone in his hand, but that it proved to be only a slight hurt and was getting along fine. In the meantime the linotype operator had set our column and we had to let it ride.

Then, we heard that Cleo "Speedy" Gray had his tonsils removed, or something, was the reason we did not see him out at Practice Monday. Late yesterday we saw him down town, or at least thought we did, so we presume that he is getting along in fine shape. We hope so.

Both teams, the Rangers and Bulldogs, are working out daily, each getting in readiness for the week-end encounter in which they will appear.

Coach Tricky Ward is more than pleased with the way his boys are working out and getting into condition, though he admits he will miss Elmer, or is it Delmer, Brown, who has a broken arm.

Coach Eck Curtis has been putting his squad through practices that are intended to improve both their defense and condition. He has everyone on the squad working hard and they are getting in better condition all the time. Joe Briley has a sore finger that bothers him some, but not much. About the only way it seems to be a hindrance is when he knocks down a pass and it hits the sore finger.

We have seen Joe and Cleo in action this year and have been impressed with their ball-carrying ability, though neither has stood out like we thought they could, and think they will. It has so happened that almost invariably when they got the ball, the blocking somewhere along the line was not as best and some of the opponents were right back beside them before the play got started. With a little more and better help, if that is what is needed, both should go places and do things at almost any time—inconvenient times for the opposing team.

Briley is about the best defensive half we have seen in some time. He is the hardest tackler for his size we have seen for years and the way he outran and stopped the speedy Lawrence of Mineral Wells was one of the outstanding defensive plays of the game. Cole, at breaking up passes, makes another excellent man in the secondary and we like the way they work together most of the time.

In fact, whenever our wife sees us talking to someone she says, "I'll bet Bill is telling someone how hard Joe Briley tackles and how he ran down that man from Mineral Wells last week." And she is usually right.

"Did I Hear You Calling Me?"

A big, boisterous ray of sunshine chased away the clouds of gloom when H. C. Hopson chuckled his way to the stand in the Senate banking and currency probe. The little matter of a subpoena to produce his company's records and the scowls of Chief Counsel Pecora failed to put even a dent in the smile of the vice president of Associated Gas & Electric Co., shown above at the hearing, after he was sought for weeks.

VIOLATORS TO GET FINES AND TERMS IN JAIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Fines and jail terms faced violators of recovery codes and agreements today.

President Roosevelt invoked the penal section of the national industrial recovery act last night in a sweeping executive order and delegated full powers to Hugh Johnson, administrator, to prevent violations of the law and force compliance with codes and agreements.

Johnson immediately supplemented the president's order with regulations placing those who display the Blue Eagle under the president's re-employment agreement on an equal footing with those for whom codes have been formed. His regulation also requires surrender of the Blue Eagle on demand.

GERMANY TO TAKE NO PART IN THE LEAGUE

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Germany will "attend no conferences, join no alliances, adhere to no conventions, sign nothing" until she is granted equality with other nations, Chancellor Adolf Hitler said in a speech, published today, to a group of his followers.

The speech was made to storm troopers and sub-leaders of Nazi party propaganda headquarters. "The mistake of previous German governments," Hitler said, "was that they were over-optimistic regarding the League of Nations and its institutions."

"I also am optimistic—but with regard to the future of the German people, while I am extremely pessimistic about Geneva. "The government's decision on Saturday" to withdraw from the League of Nations and the world disarmament conference, ushered in a phase of our fight for equality."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The question of Russian recognition and strong trade relations has reached the advanced stage of covenant discussion, the United Press learned today.

Rotarians Hear F. D. Hicks Talk On Advertising

F. D. Hicks had charge of the Rotary program today, presenting a classification talk on advertising. He began his talk by displaying some of the sizes and kinds of type used in advertising and mats used in reproducing pictures. He pointed out that some of the machinery used in a newspaper plant was delicate and that prices on some of the equipment ran as high as $6,000 and $7,000.

He told of the progress of printing from the Protestant reformation when it was originated, up to the present time. He stated that advertising was the art of making people want what they had never wanted before. He stated that the man who does not advertise is the one who really pays for it.

He pointed out that in 1929 $2,000,000,000 was paid for advertising, that half of this amount was spent in newspapers, one fourth in magazines and one fourth in other channels. He stated that without advertising a newspaper would be unable to operate and furnish the people with news, mentioning that in a big 84-page metropolitan paper the cost of the blank paper alone would be about 13 cents.

Mrs. Clyde Davis announced the little theatre play, which is to be presented in Ranger next week and urged everyone to attend.

Rev. C. Q. Smith of Cisco and Earl Bender of Eastland were visitors at the meeting.

Sales Tax Death Puzzle to House

AUSTIN, Oct. 17.—The strange death of the sales tax movement has been a feature of the special session.

Rep. Harold Kayton of San Antonio, author of the proposed measure, has been ill but why his illness should abruptly end a movement that was started with a state organization and an executive committee has bewildered many. The chain store tax also failed to materialize, although a bill levying the same scale of fees as proposed at the preceding session had been drawn.

Floyd Readhimer, the defendant's brother, testified for the defense after the state rested its case. On last April 6, Lloyd testified, Grace told Vert she expected a child and said Campbell seduced her on two occasions in 1932.

According to the brother's testimony, Vert and the father, J. R. Readhimer, jointly accused in the murder, went to Floydada to arrange a wedding, which was to have taken place in Clovis, N. M.

"The $1,000 reward posted by the state is still up for Floyd," Murray declared. "His friends have recently approached me with a proposition that I guarantee he will not get the electric chair and he will surrender. I told them nothing doing, that we would get him anyway some of these days. I wouldn't guarantee him anything."

Officers Seek Motive of Murder And Suicide Plot

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18.—Officers today wove a story of retributive murder and suicide from evidence found in a hotel room here.

The body of a man near that of a young woman, a pistol, the hotel register and a note left by the man provided clues which they sought to clear up a mystery which had its beginnings in Kansas City eight years ago in the disappearance of Attorney Sam Cleeton.

The bodies, found yesterday, were in a room which had been assigned to a man who registered as Cleeton. The girl, subsequently identified as Miss Lillian Wells, 26, a San Antonio bank employe, had been shot in the left breast, the man through the head.

This program follows an emergency hog purchasing program carried on at a cost of $35,000,000. Under the new program 20 per cent of the corn acreage is to be taken out of production for three years and the hog crop reduced by 25 per cent in two years.

Hog raisers who cooperate will be paid $5 a head in installments over a two year period on 75 per cent of their average production.

RELIEF MUST COME, INFLATION OR NO

There is precious little sense in worrying about the demand for inflation unless we also are willing to worry about the things that caused the demand.

Stick a pin through your newspaper at random and you are likely to impale an interview with some economist or other full of dark prophecies and dire forebodings.

It is precisely that which has happened to millions of Americans in the last few years. Debt has turned into a self-increasing snowball, and it has become a load which is just about too heavy to be carried any farther.

Inflation may be the height of folly. But an even loftier peak would be to fight against inflation without offering any remedy for the wrongs which have made inflation look desirable.

If we are not going to have inflation we must have something that will whittle our debts down to the size they were when we contracted them.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, comes to Memphis in connection with a real-estate company. Bob and JOAN, WASHINGTON, fall in love. Bob and her BARBARA COURTNEY, society girl, schemes to take him away from Joan.

Through Barbara, Joan is invited to a house party at which Bob is also a guest. Misunderstandings pile up between Joan and Bob. Finally, sure that he no longer cares for her, she returns to Memphis with JIM WARFIELD, also at the party.

AT WARFIELD, Joan's younger sister, is intrusted with JERRY ROBE FORRESTER, son of her employer. Joan learns from her mother that Pat has been going to parties where there is a good deal of drinking.

Pat is becoming uneasy over Jerry's interest in CLARE WILLIAMS, a married woman. Jerry calls for Pat one night and they drive to a road house. The same evening Joan goes to the exclusive "Night Cap Club" with Jim and Barbara are there. Joan drinks heavily, neglecting Joan.

Pat and Jerry, speeding home from the road house in Jerry's car, collide with another automobile.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII

ON a small white card in a hospital cabinet appeared the name "Waring, Patricia, Automobile accident." Other facts were recorded briefly.

The new accident case was lying in a small, darkened room, eyes closed, listening vaguely to an unfamiliar voice.

"You needn't worry at all," the voice said. "She's coming out nicely. We gave her other when the gas was sewed up in her head because she was so nervous. Except for that and some bad bruises, she's perfectly all right. She was certainly lucky."

The last words brought back horror, blackness, and the memory of other voices, "She was certainly lucky . . . the whole thing is in splinters and hardly a scratch on her . . . but that poor fellow . . ."

The smell of burning wood, merging into a stinging medicinal odor. "Just a little more ether . . . there . . ." Then the buzzing grating sound. Voices roared above her. Then darkness.

Pat's lashes fluttered, her eyes opened wonderingly.

"Pat, darling!"

It was Joan bending above her, stooping to kiss her. And Mrs. Waring. "My own little girl, my poor little girl!" Mother, tired lines about her reddened eyes, kissed her, too.

And there was Bill. "Well, old girl, you're coming along fine!" Bill gratefully kind, his voice queer and unnatural.

"We had an accident, Jerry and I," came Pat's voice, groping. She tried to concentrate. "Jerry would drive fast. I told him—"

"Yes, darling. You mustn't talk now. The doctor wants you to be quiet. Try to sleep."

Pat closed her eyes wearily. She felt too tired to talk, too tired to think. When she awakened again the room was brighter. This strange room with its neat white dresser, white walls and white table with bottles of medicine and a roll of gauze. Joan was sitting near a window looking out. Pat thought her sister looked very weary and sad.

PAT closed her eyes and then suddenly memory came flooding back. Tears streamed from under her lashes and rolled down her white cheeks.

"Oh, Pat, dearest, don't!"

"He's dead, Joan. I remember

now. They said 'the girl sure is lucky, but that poor fellow!' Jerry's dead, Joan, and I'm living. And it was all my fault!" Pat's hysterical voice rose.

Joan's arms were around the shaken figure, holding Pat close. "Don't, darling. You must be quiet. It wasn't your fault. You couldn't have prevented it."

"Then he is dead," Pat began brokenly. "Oh, my God!" Convulsive emotion swept her again while she clung to Joan.

"It was all my fault, Joan. He stayed—"

"It might have happened anyway, Pat. You must believe that."

But Pat couldn't believe it. Her bright head, a mass of tangled hair, moved from side to side on the white pillow. Now and then a moan escaped her parched lips.

"Oh, Joan, I want to die! Why didn't they let me die? I can't bear to live, knowing I killed Jerry."

"Hush, dear. You weren't to blame. Jerry was driving like a madman, they said. It was a miracle you both weren't killed."

Over and over the pitiful, broken voice, "Oh, Joan, if I had died too, I can't bear to live now!"

A nurse in a crisp white uniform came quietly into the room, lifted Pat's head and placed a glass against her lips. "Drink this," she said kindly.

Joan wiping the tears from her own face, saw the stricken eyes closing, and watched peace slipping like a calm mask over Pat's tortured face.

BOB could not sleep. He had flung himself into bed around two o'clock, feeling that he was definitely through. Any girl who could continue to play around with a weak idiot like Jim Warfield wasn't worth worrying about. That was all. Now that everything was settled, he would go to sleep and forget her.

But, despite his resolutions, sleep refused to come and he tossed from side to side, staring at the ceiling or wall. It was only after he had decided that it would be more sensible to have it out with Joan, to tell her precisely what he thought of her behavior, that the nervous tension relaxed. And then sleep was out of the question. He waited impatiently for daylight and an hour when he could properly call Joan.

Once this decision was made, he felt better. Light-hearted. He was whistling softly when he turned on his bath. He should have talked to Joan before. Laid the cards on the table.

"Good morning, Bob," his father said as Bob entered the living room of the suite. "You seem pretty sorry for a young man who hasn't had much sleep." The elder Weston laid the morning newspaper on his lap as he spoke.

Bob grinned. Wouldn't the old chap be surprised to know he hadn't slept at all!

"Attractive-looking girl you were talking to yesterday afternoon. Is she the one you wrote me about?"

Bob reddened. Sly old fox! Dad was clever.

"Yes, that was Joan Waring." "I was wondering if she might be related to the girl in this automobile accident?"

"What accident?" The hand he stretched out for the paper was unsteady. He had let Joan go home with Jim, knowing Jim was drunk. If Joan was hurt—!

But it was not Joan. The laughing, merry face of Pat leaped out at him from the printed page. Pat was pictured, dressed in a fluffy white frock. Probably a commencement frock.

"Ghastly accident," Bob said after a moment. "I'm glad the poor kid was not seriously hurt."

HIS father, noting the betraying signs, said: "You thought it was the sister?"

"Yes," Bob answered. "The fellow she was with last night had been drinking."

"Bob, you didn't let me know how much you cared for this girl. You are pretty far gone, aren't you?"

"I'm afraid so."

"Why afraid?" his father persisted.

"You see, Dad, I was pretty sure about her. I thought she was the loveliest, the dearest—"

"But now you aren't so sure? What's wrong, son?"

"It's hard to explain. Sometimes she does unexpected things that hurt. And sometimes she's so darned sweet! The first time I saw her I wanted to run off with her. Sometimes I wish I had."

His father shook his head. "No good settling things that way. They don't stay settled."

Bob did not reply. It had been difficult trying to describe Joan's charm and her exasperating qualities at the same time.

His father said slowly, "She goes around with wild young men and the sister's been going around with another hard drinker. The newspaper says they were returning from a road house."

"I know," Bob protested. "But Joan isn't a wild sort—just a foolish kid."

"What about the parents?" Feeling that he was damning Joan with every word, Bob answered, "The mother is fine, Dad. Sweet and charming. I've heard some gossip about the father. He killed himself over financial worries. He was a hard drinker."

"Bob, you've good, strong ancestry back of you."

"I know."

"It's been a matter of pride with the Westons. They've kept the record clear."

"I don't forget that."

"The women the Westons have married have been fine women," Bob's father said slowly. "Remember, the wrong wife can be fatal. I don't like to interfere with your affairs but this worries me. If I should ask you not to see this girl—what then?"

Bob did not answer at once. When he did his voice was quiet but firm. "I should probably refuse. I should feel that not even you, Dad, had the right to interfere. It's something I must decide for myself."

"You're right, son," his father replied. "It's your own affair."

Bob thought he had never seen his father look more weary. Mr. Weston walked to the window and stood looking out silently.

"If it is any comfort to you to know it," Bob said, "I shall probably never see her again."

GARNER AND FARLEY TO PAY VISIT TO TEXAS

ANACACHO STABLES, the home of the famed Morrison Saddle Horses

JAMES A. FARLEY

DALLAS, Oct. 18.—The eyes of the nation turn once again to Texas for a week as the Lone Star state becomes the political nerve center of the country.

The visit, here of Postmaster General James A. Farley, the No. 1 political genius of the Roosevelt administration and the man who dealt the cards of the New Deal to the American people, has aroused the intense curiosity of every political observer in every state of the union. Apparently the democratic national chairman can make no move today or speak a word that is not immediately given the greatest political significance by the millions who have their eyes fastened on this human dynamo, the ever smiling, ever genial Jim.

The Texas tour of the postmaster general is his first personal compliment to the state which he frequently has dubbed the banner democratic state of the nation. It returned the largest majority for Franklin D. Roosevelt and it contributed, proportionately, the largest amount of the campaign fund.

Likewise it is a personal tribute to Vice President John N. Garner, Texas' most distinguished native son whose personality, wisdom and advice are an integral part of the new administration. The vice president will accompany the postmaster general and his party of distinguished guests on their four-day tour of the state.

Why Uncle George needs MORE LIGHT than Billy . . .

Notice how much smaller the pupil of Uncle George's eye is than Billy's. But then, Uncle is sixty-two years old, while Billy just turned twelve.

It only goes to prove that as people get older the pupils of their eyes shrink in size . . . and so they need better light than they did before. But Billy's eyes shouldn't be neglected either, because he's in the growing stage and studying and playing in poor light now may mean poor sight later.

Why not give the whole family the kind of light that's good for them? We will be glad to consult with you on this all-important problem.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT even the worst of us have some good points.

It is best to find the good things about our neighbors and our city and boost them all the while.

A boosting spirit means helping the home city.

Many cities are held back because they fail to let the outside world know about their city and its resources and opportunities.

They have lacked putting the boosting spirit into practical operation.

The time is past when they should withhold this information from the world.

All citizens should inculcate a boosting spirit into their systems.

If you will think of the city in which you live and of the time, money and hard work your neighbors have spent in making it what it is and then you can't become a booster, it is time you moved so a live one can take your place—YOU WON'T BE MISSED!

If you are not a booster, stop and think and do it now!

You should stop and think what kind of a city would your city be if every citizen were just like you? Would it be a live, growing city or would it be a living cemetery?

Easy IRONING

It's been quite a while since we said much about automatic electric irons but these new ones are so good we just can't keep it to ourselves. We want to tell you they're better than ever, prices are lower than usual and we think you need one. Come in and look them over.

STARTED BY JUPITER
ALENCON, France.—Overtaken by a thunderstorm, Jean Laperie and his brother, of Les Pas-St-Lomer, stopped their auto under a tree. Lightning struck the tree, a falling branch knocked down a cow, and started the motor of the auto. The cow got up and walked away, the car and its occupants escaped injury.

Don't make a mistake. Look once at old-fashioned ranges. Look again at Hotpoint, the electric range which is ahead of the times today and will be modern for years to come.

Perfect Time Electrically

Here's the answer to the "I wonder if that's the right time?" question—electric clocks are the last word in timekeepers and when they say it's 10 o'clock, it's 10 o'clock . . . New styles are more attractive than ever—and there never was a finer gift. Let us show you these we've just received.

Canada Fears Rum Running Will Start

By United Press
GREAT FALLS, Mont.—Revival of rum-running into Canada—a practice which 60 years ago directly led to organization of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—is feared by border authorities when repeal is effective in the United States.

An excise tax of anything less than $5 a gallon on liquor in the United States would make bootlegging into Canada a very profitable business, authorities say.

In Vancouver a picturesque fleet of rum runners' boats has been built up by bootleggers, who found prohibition in the United States a strong aid to "business" with the end of the 18th Amendment believed in sight many rum runners now are considering the possibility of bringing cheap United States liquors into Canada.

Sixty years ago similar "traders" built up a tremendous traffic in "firewater" across the border from Montana into Alberta and British Columbia. The liquor went chiefly to Indians. To offset this trade Canadian forces decided to send a strong military force into the area.

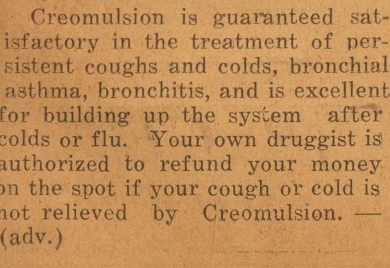

The Mounted Police force was organized with an initial corps of 300 officers and men. They marched directly across country to Whoop-Up. Whoop-Up was the main stockade and gathering place of the whiskey traders. In a single raid the place was wiped out, and

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.—(adv.)

Ranger Club Women Attend Reception for Federation President
Representatives from Ranger literary and civic clubs were guests of the City Federation and Abilene Women's club yesterday in Abilene, honoring Mrs. Grace Morrison Pool, general federation president.

Mmes. Barney Carter, G. A. Armstrong, R. F. Holloway, R. M. Davenport, C. E. May, and M. H. Hagan extended greetings from the 1920 club, and Mmes. Lewis Pitcock, E. O. Samms, C. O. Denny, Clyde Davis, and C. A. Smith represented the New Era club.

The morning was devoted to brief addresses by state officers, Mrs. Greenleaf Fisk, presiding. The executive group included Mmes. J. W. Fincher, president; J. E. King of San Antonio, personal representative of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson; Volney Taylor, first vice president; Ellis Adams, president of fifth district; Carrie Reeves, president of sixth district; Joseph M. Perkins, of Eastland, president-elect of sixth district; W. S. Douglas of San Angelo, fine arts department; Frank Friend of San Angelo, history department; J. E. Fields of Haskell, former president of the state, and Edgar Witt, chairman of the legislative department.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Pool, honoree, was introduced by Mrs. Morgan Jones of Abilene at the lunch hour. She extended greetings to club women who had traveled long distances and would find it necessary to return to their homes before the afternoon session.

In her afternoon address, following an introduction by Mrs. J. W. Fincher, state president, Mrs. Pool spoke on "The General Functions of the General Federation." She enumerated instances of organizations scattered over the globe, emphasizing the fact that the sun never sets on the workings of the federation.

Mrs. Pool told of her recent trip to Europe, at which time she conducted a good will tour throughout foreign countries. She discussed the political and economic conditions across the waters.

It would be unwise, according to the speaker, to make the statement that there will be a war. It would be equally unwise to say that there will not be. There would be no war, however, she said, were there cool and tactful heads of governments in Europe rather than the present radical ruling ones.

Mrs. Pool pleaded that club women throughout America co-operate with the president to lead the nation out of the present state of affairs. She showed woman's opportunity to assist through the new buying program.

The speaker made the statement that if women uphold the president in his attempts to pull America out of her present condition, it will be possible to make the nation what the small foreign boy meant when he said he wanted to "go to America because that is where all things are done right."

Representatives from the fifth, sixth, and seventh districts were present at the reception. The program of the day was conducted in the Wooten hotel.

"In other words," she added, "when she's good, she's very, very good, but when she's bad, she's better!"

"I'm No Angel," coming to the Arcadia Sunday, was written by Miss West herself. It was directed by Wesley Ruggles, and Cary Grant is her leading man.

Boler Grocery Explains Mistake In Bread Prices
The Boler Grocery and Market ad in today's Times calls attention to error in their bread price as run in yesterday's issue.

In calling attention to the error Mr. Boler said, "The copy for that ad was prepared for the circular advertising the carnival. The fact that this was to be run in the paper also was overlooked. The copy was prepared before bread prices were raised one cent over the Oil Belt territory, and should have been changed in the ad in Tuesday's Times."
