Buried, But Very Live, Is Neutrality Issue

The things that are getting most of Congress' attention these days are such up-to-the-minute measures as the holding company bill, the Wagner bill, the bonus, and the banking bill.

Buried 'way down underneath, however, is a proposal which might ultimately be of greater importance to the country than any of these.

This is the movement—led chiefly by Senators Gerald Nye and Bennett Clark—to recast American neutrality policies in such a way as to keep us from being drawn into the whirlpool of another European war.

These senators have introduced three resolutions to attain that end. Their resolutions would bar any kind of loans, public or private, to any foreign nation at war or any firm within that nation; would prohibit granting of passports to American citizens wishing to travel in war zones; and would provide that any shipment of munitions or contraband from these shores would be made strictly at the buyer's risk.

The idea back of all this, of course, is the eminently sensible one that the way to stay out of a fight is to stay entirely away from it. The innocent bystander might not get beamed with a brick so often, if he had the sense to refrain from standing on the sidelines and yelling encouragement to one of the combatants.

So far, this program has remained buried beneath the press of measures of more immediate concern. But European peace today is in a precarious state, and no one knows just when it may dissolve.

Once a European war breaks out, it would be infinitely more difficult to put such a program through than it is now. We ought to have action on the matter before this session of Congress ends.

To get such action, it may be necessary to squelch some of our high naval officials. Rodney Dutcher reported recently that the navy bigwigs are heartily against these proposals.

It is their notion that the navy can protect American commerce under any and all conditions, and they are lobbying earnestly to preserve the status quo—under which, in 1917, we got into a war we might well have stayed out of.

Someone should remind these gold-braided gentlemen that the function of military men in a republic is to obey orders and not to make policy. It is up to Congress and the president to decide what is to be done; for the army or navy to try to interfere with such decisions is militarism of the worst kind.

That aside, there seems to be no very good reason why this program should not be adopted. There is no question that the American people want to stay out of war. The Nye-Clark resolutions ought to do much to help them attain their wish.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Mr. Roosevelt will run as a progressive candidate in 1936 and most liberals, including the bulk of the Senate progressives, will support him. Party lines will mean less than ever before.

That, at least until further notice, is the lineup following a secret White House conference on a recent evening, at which the president and the simon-pure progressive senators reached a much better understanding than they had had since about a year ago, when Roosevelt began trying to conciliate "big business."

The session was informal, but it signaled what insiders regard as another turning point in the New Deal. Roosevelt invited the senators in and asked them for support and suggestions.

The group included those two outstanding independents, Norris of Nebraska and LaFollette of Wisconsin, as well as such Democratic progressive leaders as Costigan of Colorado, Wheeler of Montana, and Bone of Washington.

THE boys spoke right out in meeting. They agreed that the Roosevelt "must" program, along with the Wagner labor board bill, made a strong progressive program—if Roosevelt would go through with it.

They vigorously urged him to assert an aggressive leadership, reminding him how Theodore Roosevelt had kept his grip on the American people by a fighting policy—even when he was only fighting with Congress.

They assured him the only way to overcome such popular apathy as had developed toward the New Deal was to hammer hard at the forces which had stalled his legislative program and which were now subjecting his policies to incessant drum-fire. No doubt was left that the progressives were ready to go down the line for Roosevelt from now on if he would adopt a consistently liberal attitude.

THE fact is that Roosevelt didn't need to be sold on what the progressives told him. He had it pretty well figured out for himself. Ever since the U. S. Chamber of Commerce delivered its anti-New Deal broadside and was followed by the sharpshooters of Secretary Roper's Business Advisory Council, liberals have been emerging from the White House to whisper that Roosevelt—who thinks he has done more to preserve the capitalist system than anyone else ever did—was disgusted and convinced that it was impossible to placate those "high and mighty" forces.

Labor leaders who have seen of F. D. lately are more convinced of his friendliness than ever before.

LIBERALS, emerging from the dumps into which Roosevelt's "swing to the right" had cast them, are happy over the big business attack, which they feel gave him a strong push in their direction.

One of their leaders describes that attack as "a gift from the gods."

Roosevelt has been disturbed by the falling off of his popular support and by the threat of a radical third party. Recent developments greatly reduce the seriousness of the third party threat, since a third party without either the Senate progressives and their following or strong labor support can't be much of a third party. But a third ticket headed by Huey Long is still a real possibility.

Read these reports from star athletes approving Camels

PETE DESJARDINS, winner of many U. S. and Olympic diving titles, says: "I prefer Camels—they never get my wind or jangle my nerves."

When athletes agree upon one cigarette, its mildness is placed beyond question. For they must be sure about mildness! Pete Desjardins says: "Camels are so mild that I can smoke as many as I like and still keep my wind in perfect condition."

Pepper Martin, fleet-footed St. Louis Cardinal, says: "Camels are mild—don't cut down on my speed or wind."

And Pepper is backed by Leo Sexton, Olympic shot-put record holder; Craig

Wood, the golf star; Reggie McNamara, the "bike" racer; and Susan Vilas, of swimming fame—all outstanding athletes who say they smoke Camels all they please, without disturbing their wind or nerves.

More enjoyment for you in this mild cigarette! You'll find you can smoke Camels all you want! And athletes say that Camel's costlier tobaccos don't tire their taste—don't upset their nerves or get their "wind."

IT'S JUST AS IMPORTANT TO YOU to keep "in condition" as it is to any champion. Smoke Camels all you wish. Athletes say Camels never upset the nerves, never get the wind.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

A life-sized cardboard figure of a blond girl ornamented the left-hand corner. Issuing from her mouth was a balloon explaining that daily use of some sort of patented product gave her that rose and gold complexion. Two or three shabbily-dressed men loafed in the shade of the bank building. A child on roller skates came coasting dizzily down the incline and took the corner on high, both arms spreadeagled for balance. Katharine, nodding

"Dusting the Covers of Texas History" For the Texas Centennial Celebrations of 1936

It was the old, old question being argued by the two men. No one honestly knew whether Houston or Austin would be the better place for the seat of government of Texas. If one person said that corn was 30 cents cheaper in Austin, someone else discovered that corn was 75 cents at both cities. Since the capitol was located at Austin, it might just as well remain there without constant quarreling.

When the first rumblings of the Revolution were beginning to be heard in Texas in 1835, San Felipe de Austin was the meeting place for the government officials. Governor Smith called for a discussion of the possibility of Washington-on-the-Brazos, or other towns as a better meeting place. Matagorda and Velasco were suggested, but voted down at once.

"By some it is contended that the location should be at Washington-on-the-Brazos, this place is said to be in a thickly populated country, and most central to the inhabited parts of Texas," one of the spokesmen said. "It is known that the town is of very recent origin, having few, if any, suitable buildings or rooms for public business, and no printing establishment."

"Brazoria," said another, "has a good press and a suitable council house. It is located on the navigable waters of the Brazos... but the badness of the roads this time of year," he continued slowly, "are said to be a great disadvantage."

A vote was taken. "Ayes" far surpassed the "noes." "Then, gentlemen," said a Mr. Barrett, "I resolve that an express be sent immediately to Washington to inform the citizens of the removal of the provisional government to that place; and also that the fact of its removal be communicated to the army and to all parts of Texas."

Governor Smith read the resolution and vetoed it. Washington had no printing press! There had been no legislative action defining the duties of agents abroad, and there were several other important reasons, Governor Smith said. An effort to pass the bill over his veto of four to eight. San Felipe de Austin would, therefore, remain the seat of government until 1836.

Centennial visitors from other states in 1936 will not know of the tribulations of the first government to locate the seat of government. They will see only our huge capitol, overlooking the Colorado and the hills to the west, as Lamar wanted it to be. The story of the location is fascinating, and an important link in the chain of events which have made our state what it is today.

Cotton Farmers Receiving First 1935 Payments

WASHINGTON.—First rental payment checks to farmers taking part in the 1935 cotton production adjustment program are moving out much faster than in 1934, the agricultural adjustment administration announced today.

The cotton checks are dated three days in advance of the day they are normally mailed from Washington. Through May 20, $19,999 checks representing payments totaling $10,925,495 had been prepared for mailing. As of the comparable date a year ago, only 117,109 checks totaling $4,739,857 had been prepared for mailing.

"Our experience in conducting the cotton program is paying dividends in the form of smoother and faster operations and better results generally," Cully A. Cobb, director of the division of cotton, said. "Cotton farmers are better acquainted with the provisions of the contract and other details. Consequently we are able to save much time in the field and in Washington."

The rental payment on each of the acres rented under the program is 3 1/2 cents per pound on the average yield of lint cotton per acre, with a maximum rental of $18 an acre. In 1934, with the rental payment at the same rate, the average rental payment per acre under contract was $6.12 an acre. The rental payment is made in two installments, one of which is going out now. The second installment will be paid in the fall after compliance with the contract is proven. A parity payment of 1 1/2 cents a pound will be made on the farm allotment for each farm under contract. The farm allotment is approximately 40 per cent of the adjusted average production. The rental and parity payments for the entire 1935 cotton program are expected to total approximately $125,000,000.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

"GOING to play golf this afternoon," sings your husband over the telephone—and you're both glad and sorry—glad for him to have fun—sorry because you know from now on until fall dinner will have to be at all kinds of odd hours.

Take a tip from a golf-widow and try casserole-cooked foods and oven dishes as well as chilled and molded foods on the family in this emergency. Soups, either hot or cold, too—hot ones can be kept in the double boiler over hot water and jellied ones in the ice-box. Molded salads and desserts, in fact any refrigerator concoctions are easy to serve at a minute's notice and keep indefinitely.

Method Preserves Flavor

Certain vegetables may be cooked in various ways without danger of losing their flavor on long standing. For instance, delicately flavored vegetables are good baked.

Casserole combinations are best baked in a slow oven and then kept hot in a pan of hot water. This preserves all the moisture and heat without over-cooking and drying. Part of the dish may be served whenever wanted and the remainder returned to the hot water bath without harm.

Meal That'll Keep

Speaking of delayed meals the other night I had a good one: crown of lamb with potatoes roasted in the same casserole, baked asparagus and strawberry mousse. While the lamb is roasting, place cubes of bread and cubes of salt pork on alternate bones and cover the center of the crown with heavy oiled paper. Put in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for thirty minutes. Reduce heat to moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and allow an hour longer.

Add pared and salted potatoes when heat is reduced.

Wash and scale asparagus and arrange in a covered baking dish. For one pound of asparagus use 4 tablespoons butter and 4 tablespoons water. Add butter and water to asparagus, season with salt and pepper, cover closely and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Keep dish covered and place in a pan of hot water to keep hot.

Strawberry Mousse

Two cups whipping cream, 1 quart strawberries, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 2 teaspoons granulated gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 4 tablespoons boiling water, few grains salt.

Wash and hull berries. Crush and sprinkle with sugar. Let stand one hour and rub through a fine sieve. Soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add to berries. Chill until syrupy. Beat with a rotary beater until light and fold in cream whipped until firm. Fill individual molds with mixture and place in freezing trays of mechanical refrigerator. Freeze until firm. Garnish with whole berries to serve.

There were two white flashes on the lawn that she assumed to be Sibyl and Diana, but Katharine dared not take her eyes off the road even to wave. Any moment the men would be turning out of Innicoek's main street to find the winding roads that ran back of the hills to the riding school. Any minute...

A low-slung, black car passed like a streak and for a moment Katharine's heart plunged again in fear. But the driver was only a slip of a girl in checked red gingham, with her wild curls flying in the breeze.

Katharine turned into the lane; there were already one or two cars parked there. Tips come out of the stable, with a look of surprise for her.

"Mr. Heatheroe about?"

"I think so. If you'll wait just a minute, miss..."

Her relief was so great that her knees began to tremble. If he had been out on the bridge path however would she have got the news to him?

Tips disappeared. Katharine got out of the car, her ears straining nervously for the sound of a following motor on the lane. The postoffice might be busy—oh, dear God, make the clerks very busy!

"Hello, there."

His gay voice, his easy voice. And the well remembered laughter lines about his eyes.

"Michael, can we talk some place? Away from here, I mean. Quickly."

"The house?" His cool eyes would have abashed her if she had not been so terribly tired.

"No, not the house," she almost shrieked. "Clear away, look, it's frightfully important. You're in danger."

"What's wrong?" He did not have the air of a guilty man—but then you never could tell.

"Get into my car." She threw a hurried look over her shoulder. "I can tell you there. They'll be coming any minute."

He opened the door for her and she flung herself in. She had the engine running, triumphantly.

"Come along," she cried. "Hurry."

He was in the seat beside her. She was one of the lane and away, winding up the road away from the town.

Rehearsal Begins for Dance Pupils of Mary Belle Downtain
Judging from the rehearsal held at the Arcadia theatre this morning by dance pupils of Mary Belle Downtain, the dance revue to be staged by the dance personnel next Tuesday night, June 11, will be a most brilliant occasion, one of the most delightful of any to have been presented in Ranger for several seasons.

The costumes are colorful and smartly designed and the dances the latest word in tap, ballet and acrobatic.

The performance will be given at the Arcadia theatre Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock.

ling program tonight.

A return, what might be termed a grudge match, will be staged between Doug Henderson of Fort Worth and Red Rodgers of Dallas. Rodgers defeated Henderson in their match here last Monday night with unnecessary roughing. The referee was going to disqualify Rodgers and give the match to Henderson, but Henderson would not accept the match that way but asked for a return bout.

The club management has made arrangements for these two boys to appear here tonight and settle their dispute.

Tiger Billy McEuin, the crowd pleaser, will appear again tonight in the final match. His opponent will be Sailor Moran of the Pacific Coast. Moran comes recommended as a real roughster and plenty capable to take care of himself against any his weight.

A large attendance is expected tonight as many reservations have already been made for ringside seats.

Texas Allowable 40 Per Cent of the Total For Nation

BY ELMER H. JOHNSON, Regional Economist University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Oil Administrator Harold L. Ickes, has authorized to Texas for the month of June an allowable of nearly 40 per cent of the total oil production authorized for the United States. This allowable is a little more than the combined amount allowed to California and Oklahoma. However, the total allowable for the states of the Gulf Southwest, including Kansas, amounts to 73 per cent of the total for the United States.

In March, the last month for which data are available from the Bureau of Mines, crude runs to stills in the Gulf Southwest, including Kansas, amounted to 45 per cent of the total for this country. Of crude runs to stills Texas led by far with California next in rank. Crude runs to stills in Oklahoma, which is second in production, were sixth in rank among the states, being exceeded not only by Texas and California but also by Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Indiana.

By groups of states the Gulf Southwest leads in refining. California comes second—California refines a larger percentage of its production than does any other large oil producing state. The third group in rank is held by the Middle Atlantic States with Pennsylvania leading, followed by New Jersey, and with New York and Maryland refining smaller quantities. Fourth in rank is the Middle Western group, with Indiana leading, followed by Illinois and Ohio. Massachusetts refines only a small quantity, but even that small amount is larger than the whole of the Northwestern or of the South-eastern states.

During March 52.7 per cent of the receipts of crude oil at refineries was derived from within the state in which the plants are located; 44 per cent came from domestic sources outside the state; and 3.3 per cent came from foreign sources. The refineries using large quantities of oil derived from within the state concerned are those of Texas and California; but of oil sent outside the state to be refined, Texas was first with Oklahoma a near second. Texas refineries in March received about 60 per cent of the state's production, and Oklahoma refineries less than a third of the production of that state. The bulk of Oklahoma's out-of-state shipments of crude oil went went to the eastern seaboard; a fair percentage, about 17 per cent, however, went to Louisiana, and a small amount to Arkansas; about 6 per cent of Texas' out-of-state shipments went to refineries in the middle west. Of foreign oils 31 per cent went to the middle Atlantic seaboard, 11 per cent to Massachusetts, and 35 per cent to Texas and Louisiana combined.

Ford V-8 Brings Fine-Car Performance Within Your Reach

THE FORD V-8—one of the most important forward steps in the history of the automobile—brings to all the people what was formerly within reach of the few. The V-8 engine had always been known for its outstanding performance, but it was used only in expensive cars. People wanted it—knew it was better. But, few motorists could afford to pay $2000 or more for an automobile.

The principle of the engine was right but the price was prohibitive. Ford decided to get that price down to where more people could have a V-8 car.

That was the new idea. The V-8 was a new kind of car to fit new times, but the thought behind it was the same... the tested Ford idea of service. The Ford Motor Company simply continued to do the pioneering work that has been its specialty for 30 years and set a new standard of value.

The significance of the Ford V-8 is that now it becomes possible for every one to have a really fine automobile at low cost. Price is not a barrier. Even those who can afford high prices for an automobile are driving the Ford V-8. It is the car of fashion as well as utility.

Today's Ford V-8 gives everything you would like to have in performance, beauty, comfort and safety. As for dependability and economy—the Ford has always been known for that. Today it stands also for the newest, latest developments in automobile building.
