Six-Year-Old Program for Joint Child Welfare Committee

Friends of child welfare and the rehabilitation of child life in Texas are on the march. Dr. Thomas J. McElhenney is chairman of the joint welfare committee and the American Legion and auxiliary of the Texas department.

The state meeting of the joint organization outlined the work for the year (or the coming six years) of the program showing benefits from sources outside the organization. Speakers were represented by J. J. Brown, director of vocational rehabilitation in the state department of education. He defined a crippled child as any person of normal mentality, under 21 years of age, whose physical function or movements are impaired by reason of a joint, muscle or bone defect or deformity, to the extent that the child is or may be expected to be totally or partially incapacitated for education or remunerative occupation.

To be eligible for service, he said, the child's disability should be such that it would be reasonable to expect that such child could be improved through hospitalization, surgical or medical care, or artificial appliances or through a combination of these services. Mrs. Violet Greenhill is the chief of the division of child welfare. Among other points brought out by Mrs. Greenhill in a report was that the child labor laws of Texas "are very poor." M. J. McGarrity, who served as statistician for the Texas relief commission during the statewide child welfare survey, told of the American Legion, auxiliary, the division of child welfare, state health department and rehabilitation section of the state department of education (or Texas Crippled Children's association) joining in a child welfare survey after having agreed upon a single schedule or blank form that would secure the information desired by each of these participating agencies.

Mrs. Frank Spiller, member of the American Legion auxiliary department legislative committee, gave an analysis of the status of measures voted out of the department convention as legislative objectives. She said the division of child welfare received a small increase in appropriation from the state legislature of about $1,300 instead of the $38,000 requested. Also, the health department received an increase in appropriation from the legislature of between 10 and 15 per cent which included a $5000 increase for the public health nursing service; and that the committee did not secure any benefits for education of war orphans from the legislature. Speaking of the federal amendment to the constitution, she said: "The federal child labor amendment was again voted down in our legislature. The opposition was better organized and sprung the measure at the very beginning of the session, thereby taking those in favor of the measure somewhat by surprise. If the opposition continues to fight the federal amendment they may pass instead adequate state child labor laws and it may be our best move now to concentrate on better state laws. At the present time our laws are very poor and very poorly enforced for child protection against commercialized labor."

It is said a special session of the legislature is coming late in the fall. Then the child labor amendment will bob up again, as the organizations affiliated with the joint child welfare committee are said to be strong for the amendment and its ratification.

Advocates of Soil Erosion Furnished the Evidence

Advocates of soil erosion have been furnished the evidence for their argument for quick erosion action by American lawmakers. After spending its fury in the valleys of Texas, the Colorado river deposited its water as well as a millions of tons of soil in the Gulf of Mexico.

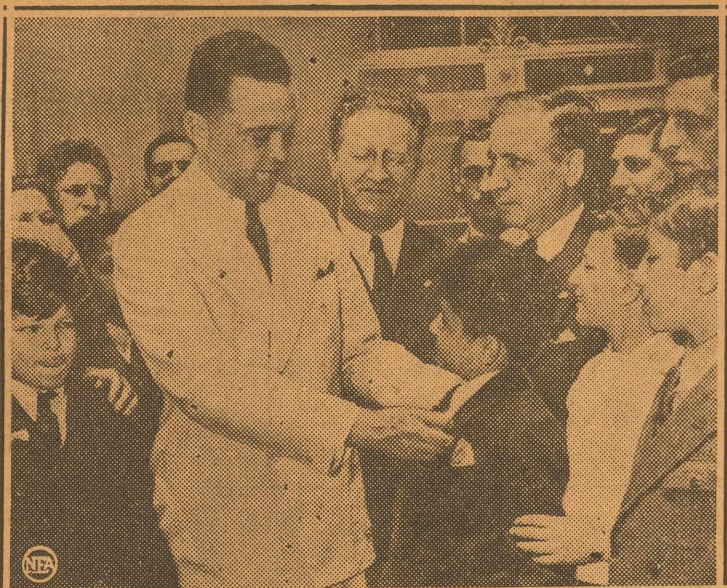

Four states contributed to the soil losses and the millions of dollars in property losses swept away in the wild rampage of the floods which were let loose by the watersheds of the river. There have been huge losses to the taxpayers everywhere. Bridges have been destroyed. Miles of roadway have been washed out. Damage to growing crops has been appalling. Thousands of river valley dwellers lost their places of shelter and their household goods.

Thousands have been placed on the relief rolls of the state and the nation. For years and years soil erosion has taken place whenever the flood waters sent the river out of its banks and devastated the living conditions of man, ruined his growing crops, robbed him of his personal belongings and inflicted incalculable damage to the soil of the commonwealth.

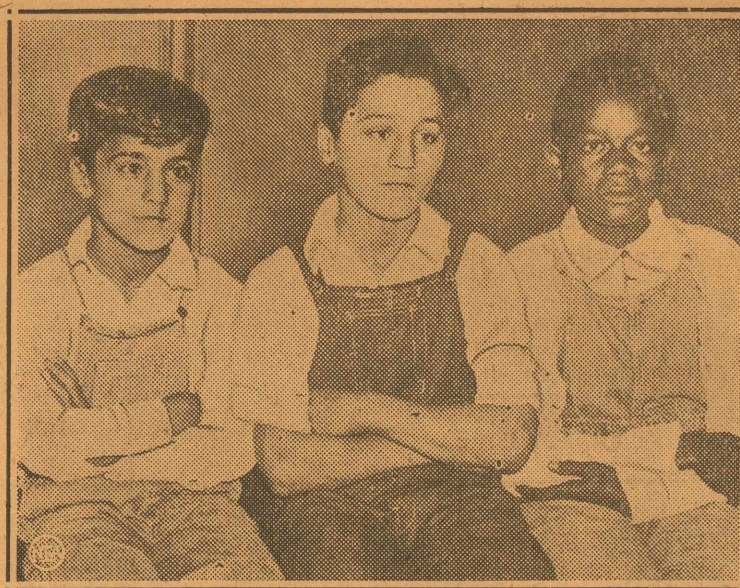

Why shouldn't the rivers and creeks of the commonwealth and country be harnessed and the flood waters conserved for the needs of man? Why talk of our superior civilization, the onward march of science and the mighty inventions of the men of genius in the face of disasters that have swept over in the world in the years of 1934 and 1935. This is a scientific age. This is the period of laboratory achievement. Why should man be left to grope in the darkness as he did in the days of the tallow-dip candle and the oxcart of ancient history.

Mussolini must envy Japan. He can't just tell the Ethiopians to scram.

TWO WAYS TO LEARN THAT CRIME DOESN'T PAY

These boys know that crime doesn't pay. They're graduates of a course of study offered by the Boys' Anti-Crime Council of New York's lower east side, and 25 of them were sent to Washington to receive medals from the boss of the G-Men himself. Some of them are shown here being decorated by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

These boys know—now—that crime doesn't pay. They killed a man in an attempted robbery, and are held on homicide charges in New York. The weapon was a pistol they had stolen from a police station. Frankie Damato, 13, (center) is believed to have been the "trigger man" for the trio, which included his 11-year-old brother, Julius (left), and Libson Lawrence, 13.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON—Secretary Ickes is suffering from another attack of Burlew trouble.

Fantastic stories trickle out of the interior-FWA department as to the activities of Ebert K. Burlew, Ickes' administrative assistant, budget and personnel officer, and grand vizier.

Inability of other officials and Burlew to work together leaves the Ickes domain operating only semi-efficiently. But the view seems to be that the only way to avoid complete demoralization of the machinery is to prevent writers from publishing stories about Mr. Burlew. Perhaps there ought to be a law.

Work almost stopped some time ago when newspapers told how the White House sought a curb on Grand Vizier Burlew's immense powers, while Ickes and Burlew excitedly investigated. Now much the same thing has happened again.

Paul W. Ward, writing in The Nation, asserted that Ickes had completely surrendered the job of running his department to Burlew—a holdover from the Hoover-Work-West-Wilbur regimes—described Burlew's reported part in an alleged attempt to "besmirch" the late Senator Tom Walsh; declared that Burlew had built up a bureaucratic machine which impeded, if it didn't block, traffic; and demanded to know: "What is the fascination Burlew holds for Ickes?"

SO there was another attack of jitters and an inquiry into Mr. Ward and his possible contacts with numerous high interior and FWA officials who would like to hamstring Mr. Burlew. Chief Investigator Louis Glavis was suddenly snatched back from a mission in New York, presumably to help investigate. The comic opera nature of all this, aside from its demoralization of a buzzing government department, is indicated by the fact that you can hear such stories about Ickes and Burlew versus New Dealers almost anywhere in Washington.

Ickes recently issued a secret order, so one story runs, that all applications for work-relief projects must clear through Burlew. Later he summoned his chief subordinates and lectured them like the master of a reform school.

He had learned that some were trying to edge around Burlew in efforts to get people of their own choosing on their staffs.

In future, if he heard of such instances, he would suspend the offending division head "with prejudice and without pay."

The secretary was talking to a group which included several men with more distinguished careers than either Ickes' or Burlew's, many of whom feel they must become subservient to Burlew and his wishes to do their jobs successfully.

ONE official who recently collided with Burlew over an important appointment in his section is Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker, who had to threaten to quit before he could block a Burlew candidate whose appointment he felt would be a surrender to political influences.

Ickes may yet decide to curb Burlew's power, in an attempt to put his house in order. Turmoil in his own backyard during his many fights with Harry Hopkins, Henry Wallace, Jim Farley, and others tends to weaken his position and to influence Roosevelt in favor of high officials who would like to push "Honest Harold" into a minor position in administration councils. "Prior to the stock market crash of 1929," Swapp said, "America had purchased $50,000,000 worth of diamonds. A low of $9,000,000 was reached in 1932. Since then imports have gradually increased each year."

Sitting in her room, a Massachusetts woman was knocked out by a golf ball that came through the window. If we know our golfers, the culprit probably entered and drove off from a precarious lie back of her ear.

WITH OR WITHOUT DELUXE EQUIPMENT

A FORD is always a FORD V-8

EVERY FORD CAR HAS:

- the same, economical, 85 horsepower V-8 engine.
- the same, new, Comfort-engineered Chassis.
- 6.00 x 16" air-balloon tires and Safety Glass all 'round at no extra cost.

IMPORTANT FORD FEATURES COMMON TO ALL BODY-TYPES

- 85 horsepower, V-type, 8 cylinder engine with aluminum cylinder heads and dual, downdraft carburetor.
- 123-inch springbase for riding ease on a 112-inch chassis for handling ease.
- Torque-tube Drive.
- Front seat 50 1/2" wide... Ample luggage space in all models at no extra cost.
- Welded steel-spoke wheels, 4" rim.
- All-steel body welded into one piece.
- Big, positive brakes with 12" drums and more braking surface per pound of car weight than any other car under $1095.
- 4 double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers.
- 17 plate battery.
- 6.00x16" air-balloon tires.
- Safety Glass all 'round.

IT is common practice, nowadays, to find two quite different automobiles sold under the same name. This difference will run all the way from a difference in horsepower, chassis and body design to a difference in the number of cylinders in the engine.

No such difference exists between one Ford V-8 and another. Ford builds only one size of automobile with the same V-8 engine on the same 112-inch chassis. The springbase of all Ford cars is 123 inches and all passengers ride centerpoised—between the springs in the "Comfort Zone."

The only difference between a Ford V-8 and a Deluxe Ford V-8 is in equipment—not in engineering... And even here, two major items—Safety Glass all 'round and 6.00x16" air-balloon tires—are standard equipment on all Ford cars at no extra cost.

Therefore, when you are choosing your 1935 car, good judgment demands you check the list of features shown above. All of them are found on every Ford car built and without them no automobile can be considered a true 1935 value.

Candid Camera Reveals Only Woman U. S. Senator

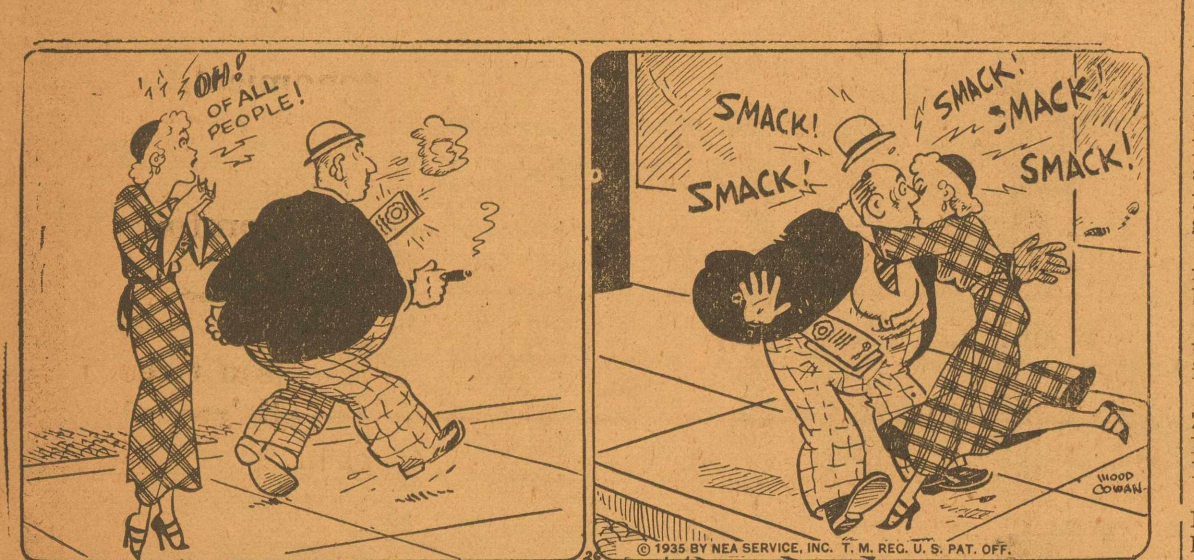

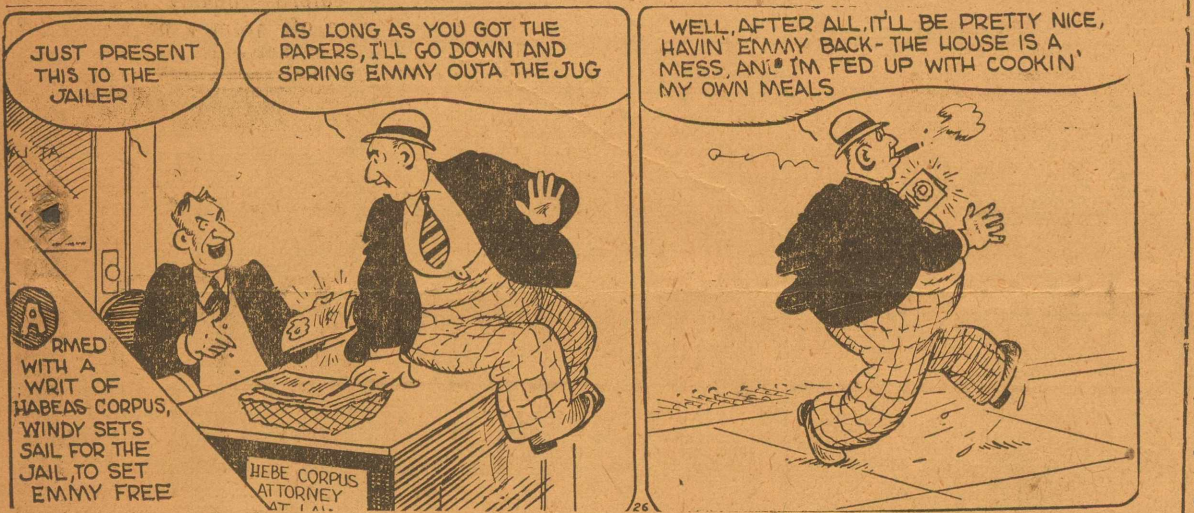

Intent on the testimony at a recent hearing, Mrs. Hattie Wyatt Caraway, the only woman United States senator, was oblivious of the presence of the candid camera. But the lens recorded these three intimate glimpses of the widow of the late Senator Thaddeus Caraway. Mrs. Caraway was appointed to her husband's seat and later re-won it on her own merits. Devoted to the senator's memory; mother of three fine sons, conscientious worker at her job, charming hostess of a historic colonial home, Mrs. Caraway is one of the best-loved figures on the Washington scene.

easily. "I thought to myself," he said, "that 'fore I go back to Hartford I better take this to Miss Zoe. She'll know what to do with it. Seems like I tried to do the best I could when that Miss Moon was lookin' ever'where."

Zoe interrupted. "You say you found it - when?" She had an official-looking paper in her hand. "Found it after Mist' Michael done took sick. Thought he wouldn't want to see it. She was tearin' the place up, tearin' the whole self-same house to pieces."

Zoe, shaken by the revelation, concealed her amazement. "Thank you for bringing it to me, Clarence. You did right."

"Well, I didn't get back 'fore Mist' Michael left. I was a-goin' to write him, but seems like I never got 'round to it. So I knew you was Miss Katharine's friend. Many's the time when I worked for Mis' Willetts I give both of you a ride on the pony. Seems like you'd now want to do, now I'm goin' back to my sister's to stay."

"Thanks you, Clarence," Zoe reached for her purse and folded a bill into his hand.

"Now there ain't no need for that." But his fingers closed over it. He went shambling away.

So that was Katharine's secret! Zoe glanced at the date on the Katharine had married Michael Heatherole!

And Sally Moon, to whom Michael had been engaged, was leaving for Paris on the morrow. Zoe, who knew a few of the people to whom Sally had sent invitations to the wedding, also had heard of their hasty cancellation. The bridegroom had been ill... wedding unavoidably postponed. That was the way the story went. And all the time, Zoe mused, this paper had been safely reposing in old Clarence's pocket.

Was Michael Heatherole the villain these circumstances painted him? Zoe trembled for Katharine. No wonder the girl had drooped, turned pale and wan. This was her secret.

Zoe went back into the house, unaccountably depressed. If Katharine had not managed her affairs better than this, what could one expect of the world at large?

"What a muddle!" Zoe sighed, leaning her head pensively on her hand.

She had seen John Kaye that morning. He had come out for a Saturday morning of golf. She had asked him to tea this afternoon, and he was coming. Zoe had felt a little flutter of pleasure at the thought, in spite of the fact that she had sworn never to let any man trouble the surface of her mind again - since her summer madness. She looked back on that time feeling older and wiser; it was a bad time to have got through. There were other things in life besides love. She was going to do social service work this winter. Her mother, who had hitherto opposed this aim, was now perfectly willing to concur with any plans Zoe might make. So the Parkers would take a city apartment, and Zoe would have classes at a settlement or some such place, she told herself.

She was reading on the terrace at 4 when Gerda announced Dr. Kaye. He looked browner, more vital in his country tweeds. "Read the book I sent?"

"I started it," Zoe smiled. "It's grand. Some of it's hard going, but feel so noble getting through it."

"Do you good." He grinned at her. There was something boyishly attractive about him today. Gerda brought tea. "Let's have it on the terrace, Doctor. Shall we?"

"Great. This sun won't last forever."

She poured the thin amber stream into the delicate cups. "Glad you don't think tea is sissy."

"I? No, I like it. Had a year in London, you know, and learned to there. In Germany, of course, coffee was the thing..."

It was a pleasantly domestic interval. The yellow leaves drifting around them; the warm cobalt in the distance; the warmth of afternoon sun on their backs.

Zoe, burdened with Katharine's secret, longed to share it with someone wiser than herself, but did not quite dare. Besides the simplest, the most intelligent course would simply be to slip the certificate into an envelope and send it to Katharine with a brief note explaining how it got into Zoe's possession.

"I had a letter today," said the man, doubling a thin slice of bread and butter and eating it with evident relish. "Katharine's liking the place."

"I know it. She dropped me a note the third day she'd been there. It sounds marvelous."

"I was worried about her," John Kaye confessed, holding out his cup to be refilled. "She's lost weight - wasn't her usual energetic self."

Zoe's heart began to beat faster. This man was extraordinarily keen. Would she be able to keep silent - she who had always been such a babblers?

She began to chatter about nothing at all. The tennis finals, and the last dance of the season at Wissmackon, and whether Denny Raeburn's yacht would win the race. John listened, watching lazily the play of sunlight and shadow on the animated face. Zoe had taken on a new prettiness since her wild outburst of despair, ending in her tussle with death. She was, John Kaye reflected, a delightful companion. Pity she'd fastened her affections on that rotter. Almost any man might consider himself lucky to have the love of a girl like Zoe. She was lovely to look at, intelligent, womanly (in the old-fashioned sense, in spite of her modern setting). Any man but himself, that it. His affections were placed elsewhere...

"You're not listening," the girl pouted. "I can tell."

"But I am," he protested, smiling. "You said Gracia McVaine wore green and was asking for me."

"Smart boy!" Zoe applauded. "You think your own thoughts and listen at the same time. It's like patting your head and rubbing your tummy - the trick we used to try when we were children."

"Something like that!" He laughed with deep enjoyment. Zoe could feel the paper Clarence had given her crackling in the pocket of her sweater. She wished she had got rid of the incriminating evidence at once.

Her little Scottish terrier, Jock, came wandering in from the garden and sniffed in friendly fashion at the table holding the tea tray. Dr. Kaye rubbed the dog's ears, and Zoe told Jock sternly to keep away from the cakes.

"I met a friend of yours at lunch the other day," the man said lazily, in the silence. "Young Corliss. Said he'd come back on the boat with you in June."

Zoe said, "We had fun. Mother liked him."

"He's a very handsome chap."

"Very," Zoe said with polite interest. The Princeton youth with his perfect clothes and his big motor cars might have meant a thrilling interlude to her a year ago. Now - well, she just didn't seem to care.

Jock, rising on his hind legs rather in the manner of an offended tabby, and growling deep in his throat.

A shepherd dog was bounding over Mrs. Parker's delphinium beds, casually planting his enormous feet all over the carefully-tended plant roots. Zoe said disapprovingly, "That's Gracia's. She must be somewhere about. Now Jock's in it. Come back, come back, boy, do you hear me?"

She made a flying leap for him, Dr. Kaye at her heels.

"He'll kill him - Prince will kill Jock!" Zoe went on. "He nearly tore him to bits last year. I told Gracia not to let him come in here, except on leash."

Practically they sought to part the two dogs. Gracia, very elegant in a walking costume of gray, giving an impersonation of the sports-woman at her most brilliant moment, strolled into sight.

Zoe had a willow switch which was proving quite ineffectual. Finally Dr. Kaye managed to grip Jock's collar and drag him away. Zoe, almost sobbing, received the battered little terrier into her arms.

"You naughty puppy! You deserve to be whipped. Why don't you obey me!"

John Kaye, following her, picked up the folder paper she had dropped.

Church of Christ Revival to Close At Service Tonight

One of the most successful meetings in the history of the Church of Christ will close with the evening service today.

Every service of the meeting has been well attended, the interest manifested by the public in general has expressed the appreciation of the lessons brought by the Evenangelist Cleo E. Wallace. The church has been greatly strengthened and edified, spiritually and numerically.

The meeting is closing one day earlier than was expected; this by reason of a pressing call for Mr. Wallace for some special work elsewhere.

The public is cordially invited to be present for the last service at 8:15 this evening.

Care and Culture Of Bees Subject of Rotary Meeting

Announcement was made in Ranger to day by Rotarians that they were looking forward to a very interesting program on next Wednesday, July 3, when John Erwin of the Standline Pipe Line company, authority on the care and culture of bees would be the speaker on the program.

Erwin is a practical bee man and has been at several meetings on bees at College Station, at which place he is recognized as one of the men in this part of the state that knows bees.

Officers of the club said it was through the cooperation of Ben Rigby of the Illinois Pipe Line that contact was made with Erwin. Rigby will introduce the speaker on the next Wednesday's program.

Anyone interested in the culture and care of bees is invited to attend Rotary next week.

Rotarians Tell of Trip to Meeting In Mexico City

H. C. "Andy" Anderson and Ray Newnham had charge of the Rotary Club program today and gave reports on their trips to Mexico City to attend the International convention.

Anderson said that he went to Brownsville and from there took a plane to Mexico City. He described some of the sights he saw and spoke about the courtesy the Mexican people showed toward the American delegates.

He said the most beautiful building he saw while on the trip was the Palace of Fine Arts, where he heard a concert by a band of 200 artists.

He said that one of the most noticeable traits of the Mexicans was that they took out two hours at noon for a siesta.

He said that he took dinner in the home of a wealthy Mexican doctor, who was so anxious to please his guests that he had all the food imported from the United States. He said that the dining room furniture was guided and the entire home was beautifully decorated.

He mentioned that the police

Y. W. A. Hour To Bring Discussion of Leaders Encampment

Y. W. A. of Central Baptist church is to meet at the church Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members are asked to be present since plans for going to Leaders encampment are to be discussed during the hour.

Gay Party Hour

In celebration of his sixth birthday, Master Harvey Earp played host to a group of his little friends on Monday afternoon at his home, Eastland Hill.

A shaded grassy lawn provided an ideal spot for many games in which the children took a happy active part. The opening of an attractive and varied lot of gifts and blowing out of the lights of the decorated cake preceded the serving of ice cream, cake and iced punch. Favors of assorted balloons were given the guests.

Those attending were: H. G. Adams, Jackie Littlefield, Dorothy and Morris George, Tom Yenker, Jr., Catherine and Bobby Blair, Dorothy Mae McKinney, Eugenia Leah and Betty Ernestine Johnson, Betty Ann and Dick Harrigan, and host Harvey Earp.

Mrs. Earp was assisted in entertaining by Misses Rose and Anne McEver.

Luncheon and Shower Well Planned Entertainment For Thursday Hour

Martha Dorcas class of the Methodist church will be entertained with a covered dish luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Thursday at the home of Mrs. E. H. Mills, 2101 Oddie street.

Each member is asked to bring their gift for the shower, a feature of the afternoon hour.

Sunrise Party Enjoyed

Mrs. Frank Hicklin, with her class of the Central Baptist church, the Fidelis group of young ladies, gathered at the Willows pool this morning for a sunrise swim and breakfast party.

Those present for the enjoyable hour were Misses Jessie Judd of Fort Worth, former members of the class, Billie Boler, Jessie and Effie Mae Williams, Velma Brown, Ora Mae McGee, Anita Fae Huffman, Juanita Smith, and Mmes. J. C. Hamilton, Laura Smith, and teacher, Mrs. Kitty Hicklin.

Rev. Stephens Called to Bedside of Sister

Rev. H. H. Stephens, pastor of the Central Baptist church, was called to Oklahoma Monday to be at the bedside of his sister who was taken suddenly ill.

Bits of News

Joe L. Woody is home after a trip to Weatherford, where he visited friends. He was graduated from Weatherford college with the class of '35. Charles York of the city visited, accompanied him home for a visit to cover the remainder of the week. Mr. Woody is the son of Mrs. Florence Woody, employee of the local Singer Sewing Machine company.

Mrs. F. D. Hicks, accompanied by Mrs. Alice D. True, is spending the day visiting at the Hicks country home at Bluffdale.

Gene Shankle, who underwent an appendix operation last week, is doing nicely. His many friends are wishing for him a rapid recovery.

The local Eastern Star chapter has been extended an invitation to visit the DeLeon chapter Saturday night of this week. Those desiring to make the trip are asked to meet at the Masonic temple at 6:30 o'clock.

Business Visitor

John Gorman of Brownwood was a business visitor in Ranger today.

Story Hour at Library Tomorrow

Every boy and girl who enjoys listening to stories is invited to be at the library in the high school at 4 o'clock tomorrow, Thursday afternoon.

One person will be prepared to tell stories to the preschool children while another tells stories older boys and girls enjoy. Mrs. W. W. Jarvis is to be one of the story tellers.

The other has not been announced. The story hour will be a weekly event at the library each Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Local Juvenile Camp Members Among Prize Winners

Four juvenile members of Camp No. 9059, Royal Neighbors of America, of Ranger, are among the prize winners in the membership campaign activities of the fraternal benefit society, according to an announcement from the supreme offices of the order, located in Rock Island, Ill.

The prize winners are: Misses Gene Elizabeth and Exa Arabel Henry and Johnnie B. Henry, Box 551, Ranger, and Miss Mary Jane Todd, 456 Melvin street, Ranger. Each obtained three new members for the society and each was awarded a white gold emblematic ring.

The juvenile Forget-Me-Not membership campaign of Royal Neighbors of America is now being conducted and prizes will be awarded throughout the drive. The campaign opened on June 1 and closes Aug. 31.

Interest Grows In Amateur Contests

Interest and enthusiasm in the Chevrolet "amateur radio contest" sponsored locally by the Anderson-Pruet, Inc., Chevrolet dealers has been growing by leaps and bounds and already there are some 15 persons who have signed up or agreed to enter the competition for the coveted prizes.

The contest has as grand prize a trip to California, through movie studios, radio studios and a tour of the points of interest including a stop-over in San Diego for the exposition in full swing there. All that in addition to a paid radio engagement.

Other prizes are well worth working for and include three strictly local prizes to be given by Anderson-Pruet, Inc., which are: First, a $75 credit to apply on a new Chevrolet; second, a three months pass to the Arcadia Theatre; third, choice of a month's free pass to the Willows swimming pool or $5 in service at Anderson-Pruet.

Boris Belovsky has been selected to act as master of ceremonies for the presentation of the acts. The best five acts of Monday night, July 1, and the best five from Tuesday night, July 2, will be pitted against each other in the Ranger finals on Saturday night, July 6, and the five winning acts will go to Abilene the following Monday night, July 8, for the district finals.

Entries so far are: "Rhythmettes," Merle Stewart, Gladys Daniels, Marjorie Clark; "The Two Guitars," featuring Homer Wright and Lyle Mace; "Jack and Merle," featuring Jack Davenport and Merle Stewart; Joe Don Meroney and Jimmie Smith. The individuals are J. C. Smith, Jess Searcy, B. S. Lemma, Juanita Smith, Anice Locke, Effie May Gordon, Truman Head, Gaston Dixon, Margaret Jo McCleskey, Marvin Pritchett, Homer Wiesson, Reba Calloway, and Fern Allen Meroney.

Just a Bit Personal

Mrs. D. O. Ringold, D. O. Jr., and Miss Elizabeth of Shaw, Miss, and Miss Frances of Water Valley, Miss., are guests in the home of E.

A. and Miss Sallie Ringold this week.

Ralph Dunkle, son of Mrs. Homer Hedges and brother of Miss Winnifred Dunkle, is now a patient at the West Texas Clinic and Hospital, having been brought to Ranger last night from Fort Worth, where he has been a patient in a Fort Worth hospital. Even though his general condition remains much the same, he is permitted visits from friends.

Drive far—drive fast —without a worry!

With Conoco Germ Processed Oil in your crankcase, you KNOW the strain won't hurt your motor!

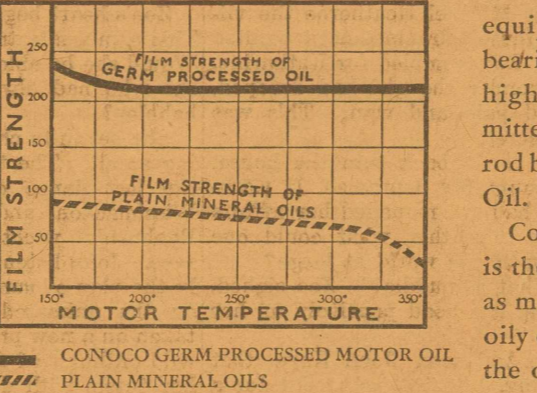

Tests prove this new alloyed oil has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than plain mineral oils and resists heat better!

On July 4th or week-end and vacation trips, you'll want to drive far and get there in a hurry. And you don't want that nagging worry of "I wonder if this speed and heat will hurt anything in my motor."

You can't always be sure when you use plain mineral oils, for they have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing processes have even less. Moreover, as motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength. Film strength is the load-carrying ability of an oil, the quality that keeps bearings and cylinders from wearing out. Lack of film strength results in costly damage.

You can drive without a worry when you use Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! It has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil. Heat does not lessen this advantage.

Supervised road tests—over good and bad roads, at low and high speeds, in all kinds of weather—give practical proof that Germ Processed Oil protects motors better.

*HERE'S THE PROOF

Note that as heat increases, the plain mineral oils continue to lose film strength, but that above 225° (Minimum Summer crankcase temperature) Germ Processed oil's film strength is not affected by heat. Tests made with Timken machine.

In every test, gravimetric measurement of motor bearings showed that Germ Processed Oil prevented wear far better than plain mineral oils. Tested in a fleet of cars equipped with the new alloy-metal bearings used in many 1935 cars, a high-quality plain mineral oil permitted 45% more wear on connecting rod bearings than did Germ Processed Oil.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is the first alloyed oil—alloyed, such as metals are, by adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil. It is the only oil made by the Germ Process. It is the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away!

Say "O. K.—Drain"—fill with Germ Processed Oil. Drive far—drive fast—without a worry!
