Long, Constant Work Gains Its Rewards

It is easy enough to do a great deal of hard, uphill work if the populace keeps standing around telling you what a great man you are while you are doing it. It is ever so much harder to keep plugging away without recognition, stocking on a thankless job whose importance hardly anyone but yourself ever realizes.

But some of the most important work in the world is done in precisely that way. And once in a while the chap who is doing it does come through, at last, to the recognition and the broadened opportunity which he deserves.

First there is the case of Hugh Hammond Bennett. Mr. Bennett has been in the U. S. Department of Agriculture since 1905, or thereabouts. Away back in the early years of the present century he awoke to the menace of soil erosion and discovered that we were using our soil so carelessly that we would ultimately ruin the rich farm areas which have helped to make us a great and powerful nation.

So Mr. Bennett undertook a campaign to remedy matters. For many long years he toiled unheeded in the Department of Agriculture, striving to bring about a saner any recognition, that he must have felt sometimes as if his work were utterly useless.

But finally the government and the nation awoke and installed a soil erosion service with 21,000 employes and ample funds and publicity to carry the fight to victory. And the man who was put in charge of this vast job was Hugh Hammond Bennett.

Another case. Dr. William Hallock Park has been head of the laboratories of the New York City Health Department for something like 40 years. During that time he has saved heaven only knows how many human lives, kept epidemics from striking down children, and done more than a thousand ordinary men to extend the sum total of human happiness.

He has had the fearlessness characteristic of medical scientists; when a new infantile paralysis vaccine was devised, for instance, he boldly tested it on himself, to make sure that it had no ill effects.

All this time Dr. Park went practically unheard-of by the public at large. But the other day recognition came at last, with the award to him of the Roosevelt Medal for Service, tributes from distinguished citizens, and columns of eulogy in the newspapers. He had to wait until he was 72, but he finally got it.

The GOLDEN FEATHER by Robert Bruce

BEGIN HERE TODAY JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him. At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS, whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to a MIK and MISS LEWIS. Bobby sells some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car. LARRY GLENN, federal agent in trailing WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. Larry believes the car Lewis bought is armored. Bobby undertakes to find out. Jean agrees to a secret engagement with Sandy. The bank of which her father is president is robbed and she starts a search for the robbers. Jean goes to see Sandy who has been injured. He and the Lewises are staying at a farmhouse. She soon finds herself a prisoner. Larry learns the robbers were the Jackson gang. His men reach the farmhouse to enter the search for the robbers. Bobby tells Larry that Jean is missing.

Now on with the story CHAPTER XXXVIII "I CAN'T help it," said Bobby WALLACE's voice in the receiver. "Mr. Dunn is here and he went up to her office this morning and she's gone out of town without saying a word to anybody, or leaving any message, or—" Larry Glenn's eyes dropped to the blotter full of fingerprint enlargements. As he glanced at the set which, according to Tony LaRocco, had been made by a woman, a sudden thought struck him. "Listen, Bobby," he said. "Do you remember the night you and I had dinner in Jean's apartment? Remember I took her fingerprints, to show her how it was done, and you kept the slip of paper I used? Have you still got it?" "Yes," said Bobby, surprised. "Then get it and bring it down here just as fast as you can travel. Hurry. It may be important!" Larry hung up, replaced the telephone, and stared off into space for a moment. Then he gave his head a jerky little shake, as if to jar his wandering thoughts back into place, and turned again to Tony. "I may be able to get an identification for those prints in half an hour," he said. "Meanwhile, we've got to get after this thing. That Jackson gang left that farm house some time this morning—I'm convinced of it. Call up the airport and tell 'em to have a plane ready for you and Al Peters and me. We can be back at Midlothian before mid-afternoon, and we'll just raid that place and see what's in it."

Tony departed, leaving Larry to stare abstractedly at the prints while his mind raced on furiously. He waited in rising impatience until, at last, the girl at the outer switchboard announced the arrival of Bobby Wallace. Larry asked her to send him in at once, and when the young man arrived Larry barely paused to shake hands with him before saying, "Let's see it, Bob—quick!" Bobby handed him the sheet of note paper on which, for after-dinner jest, Larry had made an impression of Jean Dunn's fingerprints. Larry laid it on the desk beside the unidentified prints Tony had copied from the table knife. As he bent over them, comparing them with cold exactness, his face became gray and hard; when, at last, he stood erect and looked at Bobby his eyes were very tired. "What's it all about?" asked Bobby. "Just this," said Larry. "Jean Dunn is—or was six hours ago—in the company of Red Jackson and his gangsters!" "THE hired sedan from the county seat sped swiftly over the road to Midlothian, bearing Larry Glenn, Tony LaRocco, and Al Peters; behind it came another car with the county sheriff and three of his deputies, their aid hastily enlisted by Larry on the theory that local co-operation never comes amiss. The two cars covered the 10 miles to the Engles farm in just over 11 minutes, and spun into the driveway with a crunching of tires on gravel and a whining of brakes. Mrs. Engle was standing in the back yard. She let out one yell—a frightened squawk for her husband—and then froze into immobility as a bulky deputy sheriff swaggered over and told her that, since she was under arrest, she would do well to keep quiet. Engle came out the back door just in time to encounter the federal men. Larry thrust a search warrant under his nose; the farmer blinked at it, read it, and then looked up sourly. "Yeah!" he said bitterly. "Askin' questions for the triple-A. I ought to've known—" He, too, subsided as a deputy took him in tow, and the raiders went into the house. The dishes on the kitchen table had been washed, since morning, and as they went upstairs they discovered that the bedrooms had all been aired and straightened and the beds remade with fresh linen. Having been cleaned and straightened, the bedrooms contained little trace of their occupants of the night before. After half an hour's careful peering and prying, Larry came down the stairs despondently, convinced that the house would offer no clew as to the gangster's destination. "THE telephone in the hall tinkled. Engle involuntarily started to rise, only to be jerked back to his seat by the heavy hand of a deputy. Larry went to the phone, took the receiver from the hook, and said, "Hello." The operator's voice said, "Portsmouth is calling Mr. Fred Engle." "This is Engle," said Larry. He heard the prisoner in the parlor give a muffled gasp; then the operator's voice, far off, said, "All right, Portsmouth—ready with Mr. Engle; and a moment later a man's voice came on the line. "Hello—Engle," the man said. "Listen, Jack Floyd may show there this afternoon or tonight. If he does, tell him we're at French Pete's. Got it?" Larry tried to give his voice the sullen, despondent tone that Engle always seemed to use. "If Jack Floyd comes, you're at French Pete's," he said. Then, on a venture, he said, "How does he get there, from here?" "What the hell's it to you how he gets here?" snarled the voice suspiciously. "You give'm the message and keep your lips buttoned, y' hear?" "All right," said Larry. There was a click as the man hung up. (To Be Continued)

Both Teams
1929—Ranger 14, Cisco 12.
1930—Cisco 3, Ranger 0.
1931—Cisco 13, Ranger 13.
1932—No game.
1933—Ranger 7, Cisco 6.
1934—Ranger 42, Cisco 0.

The 1935 season has probably been strengthened somewhat by the rest earned through the postponement of the Armistice Day game, as several of the players injured in the Eastland game of Friday, Nov. 1, have had a chance to get back into the lineup, with Rylee, speedy backfield star, and Ivie recovering from leg injuries so that they will be ready to go the full route, if necessary, against the Bulldogs.

The game is important to both teams, not only because of the rivalry between the two schools, but because a loss by either will definitely place that team in the last position in the ratings of the two teams at the end of the season as Cisco has only the strong Abilene team to play and the Bulldogs have only the Brownwood Lions and the district leading Buckaroos to play. Should Ranger lose to Cisco there is small possibility that they will be able to conquer either Brownwood or Breckenridge.

A larger turnout for the game is anticipated by school officials of both towns, especially if the weather is agreeable, because there are no other games in this section of the state and fans from many towns are expected to be present.

ON TEXAS FARMS

In Randall county, 22,235 quarts of canned foods valued at $4,740 have been added to the pantries of 120 home demonstration club women during the last canning season. $2,072.69 worth of dried or cured products, cheese and lard have been added.

Mrs. W. T. Spire, a Kleberg county home demonstration club member, finds that asparagus is a practical vegetable to grow in the South Texas home garden. It produces with little attention, and is a valuable green vegetable at seasons when there is not much else in the garden. Mrs. Spire's plans came from seed and are now four years old; she cuts sprouts in the fall after rains as well as in the spring.

Showing the trench silo demonstration arranged and given by A. R. Bateman and E. R. Eudaly, there is an unusual interest among the farmers of Parmer county. Ten silos have been dug and filled. That many more are now under construction.

One hundred and forty-three rural yards have been sodded to Bermuda grass in Hill county this year as a result of the extension landscaping program.

A production of 60 bushels of corn per acre and 200 bushels of potatoes per acre is the result of crop rotation in which cowpeas and alfalfa have played an important part on the farm of L. G. Gossett, who lives in the Burr community in Wharton county. In discussing his farm operations with the county agricultural agent, Mr. Gossett stated that he had never raised any cotton and that he had not known that there was a depression on.

SIERRA BLANCA—More than 100 No. 2 cans of string beans have been canned by Mrs. Gordon McAdoo, who is food supply demonstrator for the Allamore home demonstration club of Hudspeth county which was started in May, according to Miss Gladys Young, home demonstration agent.

Mr. and Mrs. McAdoo have worked together and have irrigated a small garden spot from their stock tank, and have had fresh beans, squash, corn, pepper, onions, turnip greens, and spinach. They also canned a few each day for their winter pantry. There are four children in the McAdoo family.

GEORGETOWN—From surplus milk, Mrs. R. S. Caskey, farm food supply demonstrator for the Center Point Home Demonstration Club in Williamson county, and her daughter, Merle Caskey, have made more than 100 pounds of American cheese, according to Miss Bessie L. Vogt, home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Caskey says that the homemade cheese helps out with the protein requirements in her food budget, as cheese takes the place of meat and can be easily prepared at home. She has her own cheese press and prepares a good product. Gallons of whole sweet milk make about four and one-fourth pounds of American cheese, she Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

GAINESVILLE—The hotbed made last February by Pauline Landman, garden demonstrator of the Callisburg girls' 4-H club in Cooke county, for growing tomato plants is being used now to grow winter salad greens for the family, according to Miss Nette Shultz, home demonstration agent.

Pauline is planting lettuce and parsley now. She plans to re-plant lettuce as fast as it matures and is used. The parsley bed will supply a sufficient amount without re-planting.

Approximately 600 tomato plants were set out from the bed in the spring.
CANYON—Silage in a "ditch" is cheap cow feed according to R. O. Allison, a dairy farmer who lives west of Canyon in Randall county.

Mr. Allison has just finished filling a 100-ton ditch with grain sorghum at a total cost of $2 per ton. This included 40 cents a ton paid for the operation of a cutter. He estimates the cost of filling the silo at about the same as the cost of cutting, shocking and stacking the same acreage of food in the dry state.

Last winter, Allison paid $17 a ton for poor quality roughage to feed his cows. He says this silage will be better as well as cheaper.
AMHERST—Crooked rows have nettled Bill Langford, Amherst farmer in Lamb county, $5.12 more per acre. Cotton planted on his contoured land has yielded 50 pounds more lint per acre than cotton planted on uncountoured rows. "My entire farm will be contoured next year," states Langford.

OVER ON THE KINGSTON BENCH...THE COACH AND HIS ASSISTANT

I DIDN'T KNOW SHADYSIDE HAD A QUARTERBACK AS SLIPPERY AS THAT GUY!!

YOU KNOW IT, NOW!!

New Era Club Offers Appropriate November Program
The New Era Club offered an appropriate program and quite in keeping with the holiday just passed, when members met in the Colonial Room of the Gholson Hotel Wednesday afternoon and heard topics given from the subject, "Peace," led by Mrs. R. J. Norman.

Mrs. O. B. Denney substituted for Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, who was absent, and discussed in her fluent manner in the proper usage of every-day words. Mrs. Norman followed with a talk stressing the importance of "Movements of Peace." "Cross of Peace" was beautifully given in a reading by Mrs. Clyde H. Davis, with piano accompaniment played by Mrs. Felton Brashier.

Meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. W. B. Crossley.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.
If you often trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.
Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS
