TEXAS AGED GET $16.00 AS AVERAGE AID

By United Press
AUSTIN, July 17.—Old people of Texas who received checks from the Old Age Assistance commission for July, received an average of $16.00 each during the first month, a report revealed today.

The 40,099 checks mailed out totaled $641,645.

The Dallas-North Texas district led in the number of checks with 6,312 persons receiving $100,304. The smallest number of checks went to the San Angelo district office. Only 255 checks totalling $4,714 were mailed there.

Other reports by district headquarters included Fort Worth 2,701 checks, $45,247; Abilene 942 checks, $13,523; Big Spring 572 checks, $10,610.

Members of the commission said applications are being investigated as quickly as possible and more names are being added daily. All applications on hand before July 1 will receive checks for July after the applications are investigated.

McDonald Fires Fusilade Against His One Opponent

ARLINGTON, July 16.—The charge that the State Land Office had taken a slice of rich oil land away from a farmer even after he had complied with Land Office instructions, was hurled here today by William H. McDonald of Eastland County, candidate for State Land Commissioner.

"Let my opponent, the Land Office chief clerk, defend that deal if he wishes to do so," McDonald challenged.

"I want to tell you about an old farmer who had a little place in East Texas. He cleared the fields and built a little cabin surrounded by the tall pines. There he and his family lived happily for years. The boys and girls grew up and moved away, and then oil was found not far off. The old man learned that there was some question about the title to approximately 10 acres of the little farm that he had improved and lived on for all these years.

"So the Land Office was consulted and he was advised to file one application to buy the tract in question and file another application to lease. He did so. Not long after that, some individuals took charge of the tract and began to build derricks. When he made inquiry, the comforting news was given him that, when he carried out instructions, his application to buy was cancelled by his application to lease and that some other parties had made a better lease offer than he did.

"A fortune was made from the oil under that land but the old farmer did not share in it. Understand, too, that the school fund would have received its royalty just the same if he had obtained the tract as it did under the new possessors."

TOWNSENDITES BOO MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT

By United Press
CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—Scattered "boos" sounded in the Townsend national convention hall today when a telegram from the White House advised the $200 a month pension planners that President Roosevelt would not be able to accept an invitation to address them.

The booing faded as convention chairman Frank Arbutckle sounded his gavel in sharp protest.

Gov. Alf Landon, also invited to speak here, had previously declined by telegram. There was some protest against his decision.

The White House telegram signed by Secretary Stephen Early, explained that Mr. Roosevelt was out of the city and would not return until next month, so it would be impossible for him to address the Townsendites. Gov. Landon said he could not speak prior to his acceptance address next week.

Reading of the White House telegram brought the fifth convention session near recess, after strenuous efforts among leaders to settle disputes among Dr. Francis Townsend's circle of advisors.

As the second annual Townsend convention got under way in Cleveland's Public Hall, OARP notables playing prominent roles were snapped in these characteristic poses. Central figure, above, and also at the convention is Dr. Francis E. Townsend, who early expressed doubt that Townsend strength would be thrown to the third party. Frank A. Arbutckle, left above, of Los Angeles, helped direct convention arrangements. Representative Martin E. Smith (Dem., Wash.), above right, was slated for permanent chairmanship; while Otto Case, bottom left, was keynoter. Sergeant-at-arms was Russell R. Hand, bottom right.

It was announced, too, that the all-star team which would play Hanlon tonight might not be the team which would be called the all-stars throughout the second half of the season, as the tabulation of the ballots had to be made in time to select a team to play Friday night, and balloting on the permanent all-star team would continue for several days.

Former Eastland Writer Supports Houston 'Rip' Tale

(From Houston Post)
Boyce House, the man who wrote in 1928 the first newspaper story on Eastland's famed horned frog, believes it possible the terrapin found beneath a Houston building recently might have hibernated for 17 years.

"Many people doubted the Eastland horned frog was actually in the cornerstone of the courthouse for 31 years," House said, "but the fact remains he was the only frog ever to call officially on the president of the United States. The frog was viewed by President Calvin Coolidge at the white house."

"House, Fort Worth newspaperman and publicity director in the campaign of W. H. (Bill) McDonald, Eastland candidate for land commissioner, was in Houston Monday night. He was editor of a newspaper at Eastland when the famed frog was pulled from the cornerstone of the Eastland courthouse.

"When the frog was taken from the courthouse cornerstone he was pressed almost flat. Then he took up a breath of air and puffed up," House said.

House said he had found many West Texans who believed a horned frog could live 100 years without food or water, during hibernation.

CONSTABLE IS HERO OF THE BRITISH TODAY

LONDON, July 17.—Special Constable Anthony Gordon Dick, 36, traveling salesman and former navy stoker, became a national hero today, officially affirmed as the man to whom King Edward owes his life.

It was Dick who first saw George Andrew McMahon, 34, eccentric journalist, aim a pistol at King Edward as the young monarch led a parade in Hyde Park.

Dick sprang unhesitatingly on McMahon, knocked the pistol from his hand, grappled with him, facing the muzzle of the assassin's weapon.

McMahon was charged today only with illegal possession of firearms.

HOT WEEK END PROMISED IN DROUTH AREA

By United Press
CHICAGO, July 17.—Another hot week-end was forecast today for the parched middle west.

Only a few scattered showers in the extreme northern fringe of the drouth district will relieve the blistering heat that has taken at least 4,200 lives and caused more than $600,000,000 damage to crops, forecaster J. R. Lloyd, of the Chicago weather bureau reported.

It was the start of the third week of intense heat in the Dakotas, where government relief programs have put thousands of drouth stricken farmers to work.

It was hot again today in the lower Missouri Valley, the middle and upper Mississippi valley and the upper Ohio valley.

Light rains softened the ground in Central and Southern Illinois.

Forest fires in several states were believed under control, but in Northern Ontario some 300 fires were burning along a 700-mile front.

Rangers sought an escaped reformatory convict, apparently crazed by heat and smoke, who they believe is setting a new brush fire in the district.

Highway Employees Eased By Speech of Gov. James Allred

By United Press
AUSTIN, July 17.—State highway department workers breathed more easily today as a result of Gov. James V. Allred's campaign speech here last night.

"The highway department personnel need have no worries," Allred said. "I hope that is clear enough."

He mentioned no names and did not say if the statement included the personnel of the highway commission.

Allred's campaign announcement at Corpus Christi that the route to the Lower Rio Grande valley through Kenedy county would be speeded up had been taken as an indication that he will not re-appoint Commissioner D. K. Martin of San Antonio. A majority of the three-man commission would be Allred-appointed if Martin is removed. The commission names the highway engineer and department personnel.

Previous hints of a special session of the state legislature to provide permanent support for old age pensions were added to last night, by a reminder to a large audience that none of his opponents could call the legislature into session before next January.

Allred chided all his opponents for not "courting Miss Old Age Assistance" until he had "nursed her from a doorstep founding to a pink-cheeked damsel."

Central West Texas Oil Field

NEW DE LAFOSSE TEST WELL BEING STARTED

BRECKENRIDGE.—After hard luck in one test and failure in another, Pitzer & West of Breckenridge still have faith that a new producing area can be opened in the Ellenberger line on the George DeLafosse ranch, and today are preparing to start their third test in that section, just over the Shackelford county line west of here.

Paul Pitzer said Monday the site is being cleared and derrick being moved on. The third test is to be located 600 feet southeast of the original well. The test, if a producer, will open for development a new oil section near Breckenridge.

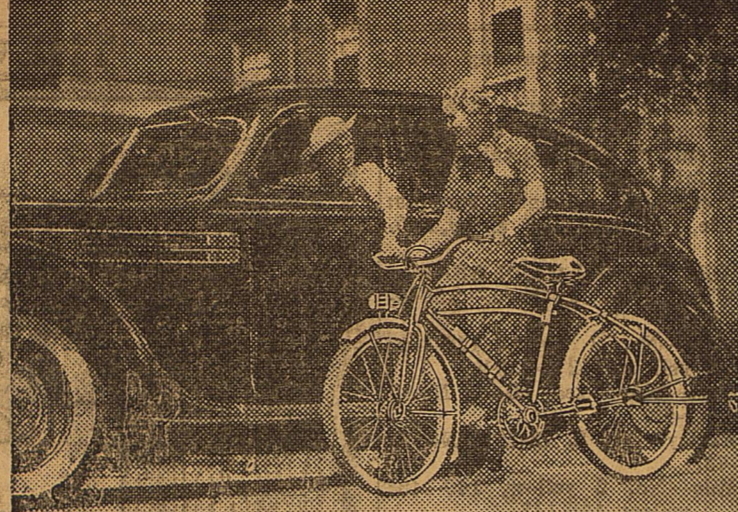

It will be in the center of the west line of the north half of T. E. & L. survey No. 1,550, and 650 feet southeast of the No. 1 DeLafosse drilled by Pitzer & West about a year ago.

The first test showed an initial production of 300 barrels of high gravity oil in the Ellenberger line before shooting off the casing necessitated junking the hole last July. The line saturation was found at 4,453 feet, making an initial flow of 53 gravity crude, light green.

The second test on the same well was drilled a half-mile to the north last winter. It encountered hot sulphur water in the Ellenberger and was plugged. Pitzer & West originally blocked 5,400 acres in eastern Shackelford, centering around the 2,500-acre DeLafosse ranch.

After the original hole was junked, Humble bought a half-interest in the block. Magnolia Petroleum company and O. H. Chapman of Waxahachie are the only acreage holders inside the block.

NOW IT'S AN AIR-FLOW BIKE

Now that the Air-Flow motor cars have proved their worth, designers have developed an Air-Flow bike embodying the same stream lines (note the similarity of the sloping line at rear of auto and bike) and the easy riding features as well. The bike, introduced by Montgomery Ward, has a new spring action provided by the shape of the frame itself and a special three leaf spring at its base. Speedometer and combination horn and headlight are built into the light but strong duralium frame.

ing," said Gene Snyder, assistant to Russell Markert, the director. Gene gives us the works and Russell comes in to put on the finishing touches. Beula has been playing the piano for them for 8 1/2 years.

We did some preliminary patterns, including Kicks, Knee Circles and Arm Swings. We worked at five steps from 9 a. m. until 12:30 p. m. when we got an hour off for lunch.

I had lunch with some of the girls in the cafeteria and was shocked at the quantity of food they ate.

"Diet!" they gasped in response to my query as to how they kept themselves in shape. "We eat four times a day—and you will too after you've been through this routine for a few days. You work it off faster than you put it on."

While we were waiting upstairs, after the performance, to start another round of practice, I made a list of the rules and regulations the chorines are required to fulfill. Here they are:

Height: five feet, four to six inches.

(some exceptions at 105). Waistline: slender and curving out to practically no hips. Age: 16 to 25 (this is not definite because some start very early and stay as long as they keep their figures—or until they get married).

Education: high school. They would take a girl without this much if her intelligence and figure stood the tests.

Angles, calf and thighs: The leg from toe to hip must be long and taper gracefully. Actual inch measurements do not matter.

No jewelry allowed on stage. No drinking under any circumstances. Smoking and chewing gum are permitted.

Must be on hand one half hour before schedule begins. Two latenesses and your salary is docked for a week.

Proving that the last shall be first—in the matter of war debts, you always find the Finnish up in front.

Birth of Child On Isle of Corsica Started Centennial

By GORDON W. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN.—When Jose Navarro was born on the Isle of Corsica, the Texas Centennial, including Fort Worth's frontier celebration, was really started. Jose was the father of Jose Antonio Navarro, participant in the Texas Revolution. Navarro county was named for him. Corsicana, its county seat, was named for Corsica because Navarro's father had been born there.

Texas advertising clubs met in Corsicana in 1923. The town's name brought up the topic of Texas history. That brought up the question of how its centennial should be observed. A committee was named with Lowry Martin, Corsicana publisher, at its head. The committee called on Gov. Pat M. Neff. He called a statewide mass meeting. It created the original "Texas Centennial Governing Board of One Hundred."

The committee kept the idea alive. As centennial year approached it was decided more than a committee was needed. The committee sought state aid. The constitution prohibited private grants. The committee launched a campaign to change the constitution. The amendment authorized a state grant for centennial observances. No amount was specified. Generally $5,000,000 was suggested as the proper sum.

Then began a fight before the legislature—so bitter at times that the whole project seemed doomed. Most dangerous obstacle was rivalry of communities for the celebration. Unable to agree themselves, legislators passed a remarkable act.

The Democratic conceals was called Farley's show. This must not be confused with the Ziegfeld Farleys. We note that renomination was extended to a John N. Garner. That man is here again.

This Seems To Be A Poor Time For Political Alarms

If the rival politicians of this land are as wise as they are supposed to be, they will call off all forensic fencing for a month or so and take in a few of the assorted expositions, fairs, and exhibits with which the native sons are beguiling the heat of the summer.

They will do that because such things, rather than political fights, seem to be what are chiefly interesting the American people just now.

The politician who tries to save the nation when the American people are thinking about something else is likely to be greeted with nothing but a large dose of public apathy.

The exposition business is doing right well this summer. Texas has a big, double-barreled affair that apparently offers a great deal of entertainment for the money and seems to be drawing customers from everywhere. San Diego has another one, and Cleveland a third, and they are doing all right, too.

That these things should come to flower in the summer of 1936 is a neat little symptom which politicians and others could profitably examine.

They would seem to mean that the people of America have—for the moment, at least—given up their perennial worry about whether their country is going to pot, and have set out to get a little recreation for themselves.

And if they are doing that, it is a pretty fair sign that a few years of life left in them, after all.

This exposition business does not flourish when things are going downhill. People don't pick up and trundle off to look at automotive exhibits, fan dancers, Bavarian villages, and horticultural displays when they are worried about the state of the Union, the flatness of their pocket-books, or the amount of red ink on the ledgers down at the office.

And when they are not worrying about such things, they do not have a great deal of time for the politician who arises to beat his breast, thump the tub, and announce that he has come down from the mountains to save them from a fate worse than death.

The people of this country have been keyed up for three or four years. In those years they have examined their past and studied the future; they have listened to innumerable harangues about the state of the nation, the precepts of the founding fathers, the perils of the present and the condition of their immortal and collective soul. Right now, they seem to be in a mood to relax and stop worrying.

That is going to make it pretty tough for the campaigners. The earth-shaking crisis which they are eternally discovering just over the next hill may be as real as next Saturday night's bath; but how are you going to make the voters view it with the proper amount of alarm when they are thinking what a swell country this has turned out to be, after all?

The millions Haile Selassie took with him, after abdication, were just a little something he had put aside in case the rainy day didn't show up in time.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

ANCIENT EGYPTIANS RECOGNIZED THE WORTH OF VULTURES AS AGENTS OF SANITATION, AND GAVE THEM THE RANK OF DEITIES!

"PETRIFIED WOOD" IS NOT WOOD, AND NEVER WAS WOOD! THE SO-CALLED "TURNING TO STONE" IS CAUSED BY THE GRADUAL WASTING AWAY OF THE VEGETABLE MATTER IN BURIED TREE TRUNKS, WITH MINERAL MATTER SEEPING IN TO TAKE ITS PLACE!

"SOMBRERO" COMES FROM THE SPANISH WORD, "SOMBRE," MEANING SHADE.

THERE is no way of knowing how many lives have been saved by the scavenging vulture tribe. Disease pestilence would have taken a far greater toll of the human inhabitants of the globe were it not for these repulsive creatures. High in the air, the vulture soars noiselessly, scanning the earth below for carrion.

U.S. Authority Extended Over Migrant Birds

WASHINGTON.—A bill passed by congress during the last session and approved by President Roosevelt on June 20 will reinforce and extend federal authority over migratory birds, the Biological Survey announces. The new law is designed to make effective in this country a convention between the United States and Mexico for protection of migratory birds and animals. Ratification of the new law by Mexico is yet to follow, and it will take effect upon proclamation of the exchange of ratifications. Federal authority over migratory birds heretofore had depended on the Migratory Bird Treaty with Great Britain. The new treaty reinforces this authority by providing for a dual basis for the federal regulations conserving ducks, geese, and other migrants.

Q. When the people of Texas know what they were voting for?

A. It is a legal presumption (somewhat strained, it is true) that all wisdom vests in the people, but it is difficult for the electorate to foresee what construction will be placed upon its actions.

Q. Are any of the original buildings at old Camp Verde still standing?

A. The camel corral was destroyed not long after the War Between the States, and the stone headquarters house burned in 1910, but an exact replica of the latter has been built on the old site, the old walls being used. The location is about 60 miles northwest of San Antonio, 12 miles north of the town of Bandera, and three miles from the historic Bandera Pass.

Q. Why did Stephen F. Austin threaten to imprison protestant ministers who preached in his colonies?

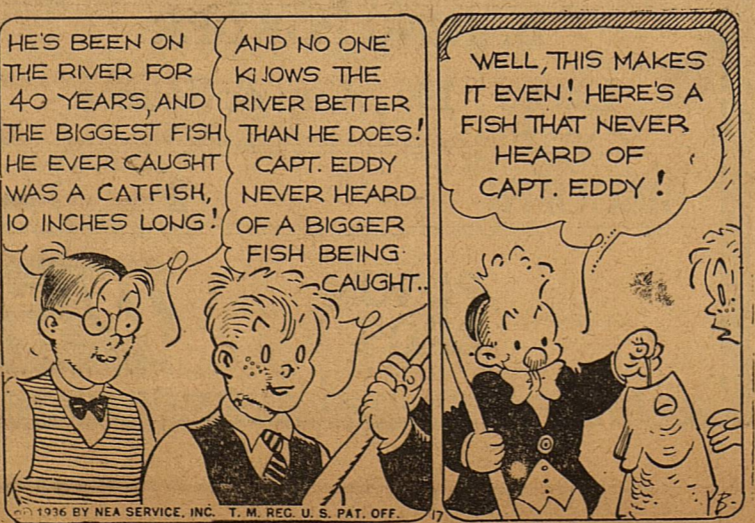

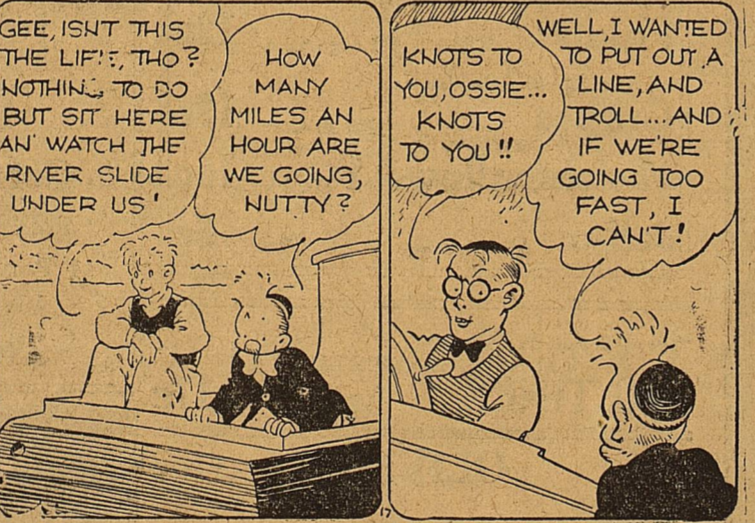

A. One of the conditions of his grant was that his colonists should be Catholics. His imprisonment threat was regarded only as an effort to show that he was trying to observe that condition.

So Much for Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HELENA DERRIK, young and ambitious, has recently been promoted from the selling force to take charge of the women's sportswear department of Helvig's store.

One of her best customers, SANDRA LEIGH, invites Helena to join a week-end party at Crest Mountain Lodge. Although others in the party are strangers to Helena, she soon feels at ease and enjoys herself. She is particularly attracted by handsome PETER HENDERSON who lives in a nearby town.

Awake before the others, Helena goes for an early morning swim. Peter joins her on the beach. Almost immediately he tells her he is in love with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

"YOU mustn't, Peter," Helena protested, withdrawing from his arms. "Someone might be watching from the lodge."

He laughed. "That's encouraging," he told her. "If that's your only reason for not letting me kiss you, then I'm a cinch!" Then his tone grew suddenly serious. "Look here, Helena. I haven't been able to sleep for 10 minutes straight since we left each other last night. I'd heard of that happening to a fellow when he met the right girl—but I'd never really believed it. Last night I told you I was in love with you. And it still goes in a chilly and unromantic dawn."

"It's an awfully short time in which to decide that," Helena smiled, wondering if he could detect the pounding of her heart beneath the thin white swim suit.

"But I'm not afraid of the decision," Peter answered quickly. "Not even if it was a little quick on the trigger. I've met lots of girls, Helena, but I've never had one like this. Not even near it."

"That's nice of you. I—I'll admit I feel the same way, Peter. But..." she broke off with a whimsical, helpless smile.

"That settles it!" he said. "If you feel just as I do, then there's only one answer."

"What's that?" asked Helena breathlessly.

"That's the good old-fashioned institution of marriage, darling. I'd heard of that happening to a fellow when he met the right girl—but I'd never really believed it. Last night I told you I was in love with you. And it still goes in a chilly and unromantic dawn."

"Then you think it's all right?" Helena faltered.

morning, Sandy. You aren't denying that a sunrise is no novelty to you?"

Sandra smiled. "I've seen them in evening clothes, Peter. That is, I was in evening clothes; not the sunrises. But that's different. Have you two hardy persons been in the lake already?" She turned her eyes knowingly toward Helena, and the latter thought, "I wonder if she believes I'm taking advantage of her invitation and trying to capture Peter?"

Aloud Helena said, "I've been in, and Mr. Henderson's just trying it. Why don't you join him? It's grand."

Peter faced her humorously. "Darling, if we're to be married you mustn't refer to me as Mr. Henderson. It's Peter. And after we've been married a while you can call me Pete."

The Leigh girl came down from the veranda, searching Peter's face. "You're serious, Peter?" Then she turned to Helena. "And why shouldn't he be? You know, last night at dinner I had a fleeting thought that it would be no surprise if you two hit it off in a serious way. I'm psychic about those things."

"Then you think it's all right?" Helena faltered.

"All right?" repeated Sandra. "What difference would it make what I thought? But, since you've asked me, I'll tell you I think it's even better than all right. And I'm excited about being the first to congratulate Peter and wish you happiness. I am the first!"

THE Leigh girl's enthusiasm warmed Helena's heart. Somehow she had feared that Sandra might not quite approve.

"When does it happen?" Sandra wanted to know.

Peter grinned and reached for

Helena's hand. "Right away, doesn't it?"

"Why, I haven't thought—" She looked at Sandra helplessly. "Peter," said the other girl, "I want to make a suggestion. It's that you very literally go and jump into the lake. I'll help Helena make her plans."

"Very well, Miss Leigh..." He bowed low, dropped his beach robe, and sped down toward the lake. At its edge he leaped an amazing distance and struck the water neatly.

"And that," said Sandra smiling, "is the way he does everything. I'm not surprised he's going into matrimony the same way."

"What have you to say for me?" asked Helena.

Sandra put her arm around Helena Derrik's shoulders. "A woman's different, darling. Nobody should be surprised when a woman jumps into marriage at five minutes' notice. I think every girl carries around subconsciously the image of the kind of man she'd fall for. Of course it's an image that's changed a little, maybe, as one grows older—or perhaps forgotten altogether. But..." She stopped suddenly.

"You're really in love with him, aren't you?"

"I wouldn't be marrying him if I weren't," Sandra smiled.

"I thought so," Sandra smiled. "That sticks out all over you, Helena. Do you want me to help you with the wedding? I'd love it."

"I—I don't know. The whole idea of a wedding sort of frightens me."

SANDRA thought a moment. "Peter seems all set. What would you say to doing it now? The gang would pitch in and give

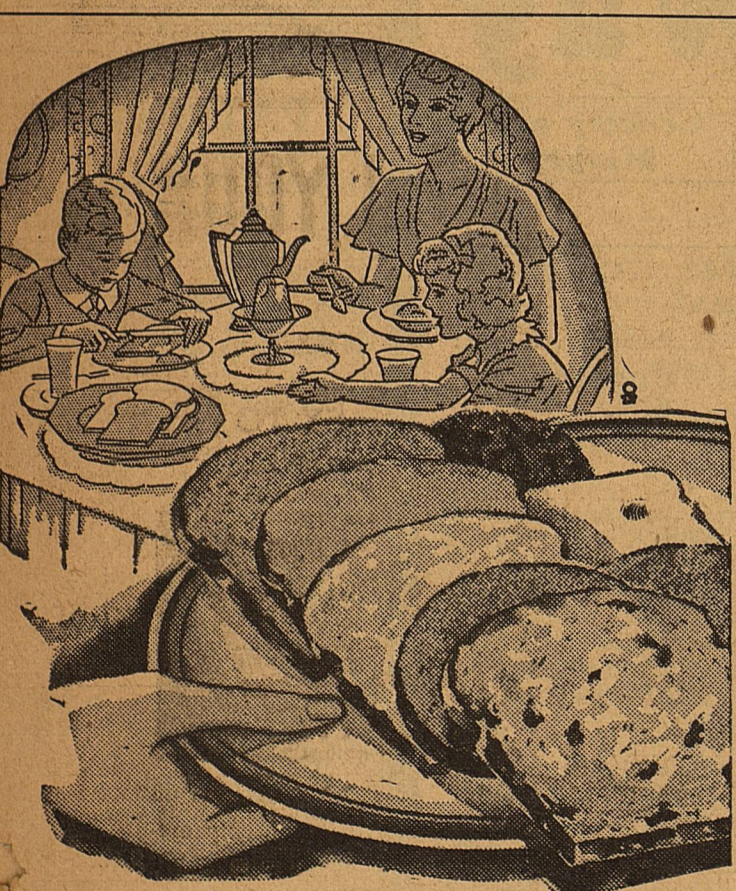

"What have you to say for me?" asked Helena.

"Oh, Peter!" Helena laughed while her eyes filled suspiciously. "You—you're really a sweet person. And aren't we both insane?"

THEN, beyond Peter's shoulder, she saw Sandra Leigh slowly emerging from the lodge. Over her flaming pajamas she had thrown a robe, and her bobbed hair was in attractive disarray.

"I thought I'd get a load of sunrise," she called to them. "But it looks as if I'm a little late."

Peter turned, hiding his annoyance at the interruption. "Good
