Tornadoes Do Considerable Damage In Texas

BLANTON WILL DELIVER TALK ON WEDNESDAY

Preparations have been completed for a speaking engagement for Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, candidate for re-election as representative from the 17th congressional district, to be conducted in Ranger Wednesday evening at 8:30.

Congressman Blanton will be making a tour of all the principal voting precincts in Eastland county, spending three days in the county, with evening engagements at Cisco, Eastland and Ranger. He will speak in Eastland tonight at the courthouse.

Plans have been completed by Blanton supporters in Ranger to have the block in front of the Liberty theatre building roped off and a large number of seats installed so that there will be room for everyone to obtain a good seat. A loud speaking system is also to be provided so that those who wish to sit in their cars can hear. In case of inclement weather, the speaking will be held in the recreation building, those in charge of the arrangements have announced.

Congressman Blanton was detained in Washington after the close of the recent session of congress, because of the accumulation of business that had piled up during the last rush before adjournment, and was not able to start his speaking tour of the district until long after his opponents started campaigning, but now that he has been able to begin his campaign he is making an average of four speeches a day.

Prior to coming to Ranger Congressman Blanton will speak at Olden at 4 o'clock.

Ely Fills Threat to "Take a Walk"

HEAT WAVE IS BROKEN TODAY BY COOL WIND

KANSAS CITY, July 21.—The searing heat fled away before a cool wind and rain in the southwest today. As relief from the heat came, steadily mounting damage was counted where the wind reached gale proportions.

The wind that rose in the north and cut a path across the middle of the nation struck Texas last night. The blast came into Texas and Oklahoma after reducing temperatures in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, and Illinois.

The weather bureau forecast cooler weather after a long heat wave which caused 4,500 deaths.

Everywhere in the southwest, temperatures dropped from 15 to 25 degrees. The farmers were jubilant as the wind blew away grasshoppers.

A serious water shortage remained in many sections, with Nebraska fearing municipal shortages. Kansas was in most serious condition.

On Style Range

For roughing it in the country or on a dude ranch, nothing equals sturdy denim—but it must be feminine in cut and style-conscious to a degree as is this overall outfit worn with a neat red plaid blouse.

It won't lose a nit of its easy fitting style in tabbing, for this is the modern sanforized-shrunk variety.

Former Eastland Resident is Dead

Mrs. Mary E. Kendall, formerly of Eastland county but for the past two years of Shawnee, Okla., died suddenly in that city Monday evening.

Mrs. Kendall was about 65 years old. For many years she lived on a farm two miles north of Eastland. Two years ago the Kendalls left for Shawnee where they engaged in the furniture business. She is survived by her husband, J. A. Kendall. Interment will be at Shawnee and funeral services held today.

W. H. McDonald is Injured in Wreck

WILLS POINT, Texas, July 21. E. D. Thurmon was injured seriously and W. H. McDonald of Eastland, candidate for state land commissioner, was hurt today in an automobile collision a mile west of Wills Point.

Thurmon, a rural mail carrier, suffered a crushed chest and head injuries. Both were taken to a hospital at Terrell.

Governor's Race Near Home Stretch With Allred Ahead

AUSTIN, (Spl.)—Candidates for governor pounded down the stretch this week with Governor James V. Allred apparently increasing the lead he has held over his four opponents almost since he began his campaign, after spotting them to a two-months' advance.

Biggest question to be decided Saturday is not who will lead the ticket but whether or not Allred will poll enough votes to win without a run-off campaign. Second biggest question is which of his four opponents will read the other three into second place position.

Allred leaders are making no secret of their conviction that the governor will be renominated in the first primary.

"We are not, however, growing over confident," State Campaign Manager Marvin Hall said. Governor Allred has announced that he is leaving no stone unturned and has urged his friends to leave no stone unturned, and we are taking his advice. The fight will be waged right up to the primary eve."

The subject of old age pensions remain the outstanding issue of the campaign. To crowds aggregating more than 40,000 last week Governor Allred has discussed the question of assistance payments to the needy versus pension payments to all, including the wealthy.

"I recommended old age pensions to the legislature and the legislature submitted the subject of old age assistance to the people," the governor explained. "By a vote of four to one the people endorsed old age assistance and directed the setting up of a system under such limitations and restrictions and regulations as may be deemed by the legislature expedient."

"The limitations, restrictions and regulations" that the legislature deemed expedient—after consultation with officials of the National Social Security Board—are the basis of our present old age assistance law.

"It isn't a perfect law, as I said when I signed it and on numerous occasions since, but it is the best law that we could get from two special sessions of the legislature.

"If we had waited for the 'perfect law'—the law that would have satisfied everyone—we would have been waiting yet. As it is, more than 50,000 aged needy citizens of Texas already are receiving checks and others are being added to the rolls daily."

The rising tide of Allred sentiment, apparent all over the state, is influenced by a number of significant factors.

First, the crowds that have turned out to hear the governor speak are far larger than those that are being attracted by other opponents. Second, since he first took the stump early this month there has been an almost constant parade of recruits to the Allred banner from the camps of one-time political enemies. Third, a majority of 85 per cent of the state's approximately 700 weekly newspapers, as revealed in an independent survey completed last week for an industrial concern, is strongly pro-Allred.

CLIMAX NEARS IN SPANISH REVOLT TODAY

Spain's rebellion approached a climax today. Rebels and government forces massed for decisive battles that seemed certain to result in much bloodshed and death.

Developments were:

Madrid—government airplanes bombard rebels, advancing on Madrid, inflicting numerous casualties. Strong columns of loyal troops, civil guards and workers' militia were ordered to advance against rebels at Valladolid, Burgos, Caragoza and Toledo.

Government columns were expected to move against Seville and Jaen in the south. Major engagements were expected north of Madrid.

Gibraltar—Rebels appealed for mobilization of fascists and all right wing men under arms at 11 a. m. today for the supreme test against the government.

Geneva—Reputable travelers told of a bloody two-day battle at Barcelona. Casualties were estimated at 2,000 to 3,000 with the government in control.

Lisbon—Rebels claimed sweeping gains, asserted armies are moving from north to south to attack Madrid.

PARIS.—French border police today reported that rebel troops in Northern Spain had captured San Sebastian.

The city is the summer capital of Spain on the north coast and is a popular resort with Americans and other foreigners. Claude Ballard, U. S. Ambassador, is believed to be there.

TERPIGNAN, French-Spanish Frontier.—Spanish government authorities have ordered all bridges dynamited between Barcelona and Tarragona, it was reported today.

LONDON.—The crack Gordon Highlanders are embarking at Alexandria for Gibraltar, the Admiralty announced today. Warships are stationed at key Spanish cities to evacuate residents.

30 INJURED AS HIGH WIND STRIKES STATE

Dallas and Ft. Worth Areas Bear Brunt of Storms Early Today

Rain, hail and wind of tornadoic force left a wreckage strewn path in North Texas Monday night and early Tuesday, injuring 30 persons and causing most damage in the Dallas and Fort Worth areas.

Damage in Dallas alone was estimated in excess of $1,000,000. Much havoc was caused on the grounds of the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, where thousands of persons were congregated.

Cutting villages near Dallas also were damaged heavily. The town water tower at Lancaster crumpled, lowering the city without a water supply.

Dallas streets were strewn with debris. Five men were overcome by ammonia fumes, but were revived, after lightning struck an ice plant. A lumber yard was demolished. Part of one wall of a downtown building collapsed, flattening automobiles parked beside it. A concrete building in Oak Cliff also collapsed.

Thousands marooned downtown or on the grounds of the Centennial Exposition were unable to return home until early morning. Two dozen were treated for injuries.

The stage setting for Cavalcade of Texas, historical pageant, was wrecked by the wind and a bolt of lightning struck the men's dressing room.

Nearly two inches of rain fell in less than an hour in Dallas and .75 of an inch in Fort Worth in half an hour.

Fort Worth found expensive relief from the heat wave as merchants and farmers counted their damage toll in thousands of dollars from the 54-mile gale that ripped through the city at 11 p. m.

Warning at Fort Worth prevented serious damage to the Frontier Centennial Exposition. The Magnolia Petroleum Company reported $20,000 damage in a fire which resulted when lightning struck a 55,000-barrel storage tank.

Greenville and McKinney reported minor damage.

The government weather bureau at Dallas said the storm area centered at Dallas and Fort Worth. The 65-mile wind recorded in Dallas was the highest since the weather bureau was established.

CANDIDATES IN LAST LAPS OF THE CAMPAIGN

Gov. James V. Allred, candidate for reelection, moved on to Galveston Tuesday for another speech after he charged in San Antonio, last night, that his opponents were "political bubble blowers."

Reminding his listeners that his opponents have said that everyone past 60 or 65 would get $15 a month from the federal government and $15 a month from the state, Allred said, "Think a minute and you'll see the resemblance between their promises and the carnival man ballyhoo."

One of Allred's opponents, State Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton, proposed abolishment of the state liquor control board in an address at Breckenridge.

"I propose to abolish this political liquor board entirely," Sanderford said, "and put the administration of the tax feature under direction of the state comptroller and the regulation under local authorities."

F. W. Fisher, Tyler candidate, announced he will be in East Texas for the remainder of the week.

Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the railroad commission, will speak tonight in Wichita Falls and close his campaign at Amarillo at an all-Panhandle home-coming rally.

"It is no time for the state land office to award the Galveston Bay leases and menace the oil industry with another huge field," declared W. H. McDonald of Eastland, candidate for state land commissioner in an address at Mineola.

Lowdown on Bees Gives Interesting Habits of Insects

DALLAS, Texas, July 21.—You get the lowdown on bees at the Texas Bookkeepers Association exhibit at the Hall of Agriculture at the Texas Centennial Exposition.

A queen is never selected after being born. Her Majesty is chosen while she is still an egg. When the bees elect a queen they pick out an egg and surround it with the sweetest of sweets to appease the royal baby's appetite.

A queen bee only mates once in a lifetime. She spends the remainder of her days laying eggs.

The honeymoon is over when the queen quits the embrace of her drone mate. He dies instantly.

Ladies in waiting push food into Her Majesty's mouth while her Queenship deposits eggs.

The digestive machinery of a queen is so highly geared that food is almost instantly converted into eggs.

Bees have a keen sense of selecting the choicest of sweets for the queen's menu. The workers are content with coarser stuff.

A queen has a crop of servants as extensive as a dowager.

A queen's daily egg production is bigger in size than the queen herself.

She will produce between 2,000 and 3,000 eggs every twenty-four hours.

In Texas a queen spends ten months laying eggs and takes her vacation during the two coldest months.

A working bee always commits suicide, works herself to death. Her normal span of life is eight weeks.

There are more than 200 practical uses for bee products.

Two Licenses For One Couple Puzzle

BUCYRUS, O.—Two marriage licenses were issued to one couple here, but officials were a little uncertain why, although the couple explained the licenses were to be used in two different counties.

The following notation was made in probate Judge J. W. Schwenck's marriage record: "The object of this demand is somewhat hazy to report. We are assuming no responsibility for the legality of these licenses."

Tower Holdup Nets 50 Cents

TOLEDO.—A bandit climbed up a railroad tower to hold up John R. Morton, towerman. His troubles were worth 50 cents.

Vagatables Grown On Arctic Fringe

WINNIPEG, Man.—Great Slave Lake settlers, living in mining villages on the fringe of the frigid Arctic, grow their own vegetables, Austin Cumming, government mining inspector, revealed during a visit here.

Cumming said the settlers managed to grow enough fresh vegetables in the few fertile areas around the lake to meet their own requirements, and sometimes even to export some to settlements further north. The "farming season" begins in June and extends into August.

Mask Permits You to Go on Gassing

The old-fashioned gas mask was a grand silencer, but it looks as though science has deprived us of this meagre boon of war, for here's a new mask developed in France, that permits you to use the telephone. For those who must talk to be happy, it ends one of the horrors of war.

Relief Offices to Open to Register Men for WPA Jobs

AUSTIN, July 21.—Texas Relief Commission will be open in the various counties by August 1 to receive applications of persons desiring to be considered for Works Progress Administration jobs, Adam R. Johnson, director of the Texas Relief Commission, has announced.

Upon the request of Works Progress Administration officials, the Texas Relief Commission has agreed to undertake the task of determining the need of persons who apply for WPA employment, Johnson said. Expense of this service will be paid from federal funds.

In addition to performing this service for PWA, the Texas Relief Commission will continue to sponsor surplus commodity distribution contingent upon the continued cooperation of counties in employing approved case workers, it was explained. Applications for WPA employment or for surplus commodities will be filed and cleared through the same office.

Eligibility for WPA employment or for receipt of surplus commodities is determined upon a basis of need, Johnson explained. Although it is no longer required that a job applicant be a former relief client, present need must be definitely established.

Responsibility and authority of the Texas Relief Commission extends only to the acceptance of clients' applications, and does not encompass assignment of individuals to jobs. Texas relief commission employees examine eligibility status of applicants and refer those persons found eligible to WPA.

Johnson pointed out that certification to WPA does not necessarily mean a job is awaiting the person certified as the quota assigned to Texas will permit the absorption of only a portion of those referred to WPA offices. Unless this surplus is absorbed by private industry in the various localities of the state, these persons must remain jobless, he declared.

"For the Texas Relief Commission to perform the service of intake referral for WPA, and to continue sponsoring the distribution of surplus commodities, we must continue to receive the co-operation of the various counties and cities," Johnson stated. "We anticipate this co-operation, however, as our work consists of making surplus commodities available to the needy and of making WPA jobs a possibility for many of the unemployed workers."

Attack On Social Workers Does Not Solve Relief

There seems to be something about the relief problem that makes it hard for people to think straight. How else explain the fact that an attack on any local relief administration almost always degenerates, ultimately, into an attack on social workers and a denunciation of chiselers?

About a year ago the state of Illinois had such an experience; today, Ohio is having one. The cases are enlightening.

In Ohio, for instance, the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce issued a long blast against the way relief was being handled. It asserted that far too many social workers were being given jobs in the relief administration, and declared that there were altogether too many chiselers on the relief rolls.

These accusations—because they are heard almost every time a relief administration comes under fire—are worth looking at in detail.

The most obvious thing about them is that they simply don't mesh.

The social worker, whatever his faults, is at least experienced in dealing with people who have to ask for charity. He has spent his adult life in such work.

If anyone on earth should be qualified to tell whether a given applicant for relief is a "deserving case" or a shiftless moocher it should be the social worker.

The very best insurance against having chiselers on the relief rolls then, would logically be an administrative staff loaded to the guards with trained social workers. But do the critics ever see it that way? They do not.

Instead, they demand—for some obscure reason—that the social workers be fired, to be replaced presumably by gifted amateurs, and, in the same breath, demand that the rolls be purged of moochers.

Just how the amateurs are going to be more skilled than the social workers in telling a deadbeat from an honest man is something that the critics never take time to explain.

The relief problem of course is one of the meanest and most pressing problems facing America today. We cannot possibly go on indefinitely as we have been going in the last three years. Uncle Sam's pocketbook is not bottomless, and his credit is not without limits.

But to base one's attack on the problem on the social worker and the chiseler—to talk as if most of our relief troubles would vanish overnight if the deadbeats could be removed from the rolls and the trained workers from the administrative staffs—is to talk pure and unadulterated nonsense of the most vicious kind.

It is vicious because it tends to make people forget the real nature of the problem. The primary trouble is, has been, and always will be the lack of jobs in private industry.

Until that trouble is remedied, the other relief headaches are secondary.

The skeleton found on Florida sands marks a new low in beach regulations. It apparently is okay now to lie around in your bones.

Air Conditioning Of Western Trains Changes Fashions

CHICAGO, July 21.—"Something old, something dark," used to be the standard prescription for travel clothes—and it always induced "something blue" in the traveler's mood.

Today, she leaves the old dark things behind, and when she boards the train she looks like a holiday and not like a funeral. While this fashion business may mean nothing to the engineering fraternity, they are the fathers of the new travel style, since they developed air-conditioning.

Clean, washed air and sealed windows that keep out dust and soot mean that a white glove can stay white from Chicago to California. Regulated temperature means that crisp cottons and summery fabrics won't curl up and wilt. The result? A revolution in travel fashions.

The vacation crowds now rolling to mountains, woods and lakes on the western railroads give the impression of a summer resort on wheels. Bright flower prints, cool dark chiffons, summer suits in the new fabrics which combine enough linen for body and enough "synthetics" to keep them from wrinkling, are especially popular. The smartest summer suits in all-white, maize or pale pastels are frequent.

Squirrel Stirs Up Commotion In Horn

By United Press BROOKLINE, Mass.—It took more than pusing the first and second valves down to get "Fuzzy," the pet squirrel of Martin and John Gannon, to come out of a bass horn.

Fuzzy, curious, decided to explore the interior. The Gannons tried in vain to coax the squirrel out, and finally called on the Animal Rescue League. After conceiving many schemes they hit upon a solution by placing gasoline in the mouth of the horn and blowing the fumes into the instrument. Fuzzy soon retired.

Q. Why has all the fuss been made about placing the Buffalo Bill statue on the Centennial grounds at Dallas? A. G., Columbia, Mo.

A. Claiming he was a Union spy during the Civil war and never identified with Texas in a way to receive such an honor, a citizen of Austin sought an injunction to prevent erection of the statue, which was presented to the Centennial by the sculptress. The injunction was refused and the statue erected.

Q. Did Stephen F. Austin ever advertise for Texas colonists? S. G., Austin.

A. He advertised extensively in newspapers throughout the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys, setting forth fully the terms and conditions.

Q. What were the "Turtle Bayou resolutions?" M. P., Groesbeck.

A. Following the actions of Col. John D. Bradburn in enforcing certain customs regulations and in imprisoning W. B. Travis and Patrick C. Jack, about 160 Texans organized for resisting Bradburn. Fearing their action might be regarded as revolutionary, they passed resolutions at Turtle Bayou declaring they were not rebelling against Mexico, but cooperating with Santa Anna in his revolt against Bustamante.

Q. Where is Llano Estacado and why is it so called? E. R., Llano.

A. It is an area about 150 miles wide and extending about 250 miles from the Canadian river south to the breaks of the Colorado, so named because Coronado staked his passage across the plain with white flags in order to be able to find his way back.

So Much for Love

by NARD JONES
© 1936
NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HELENA DERRING, youthful head of the women's sportswear department at Helvig's store, accepts an invitation from one of her customers, SANDRA LEIGH, to join a week-end party at Crest Mountain Lodge.

Helena goes. A member of the party is handsome PETER HENDERSON from a nearby town. It is a case of love at first sight between Helena and Peter. Almost immediately he asks her to marry him. Helena hesitates. Finally agrees. It is decided that the marriage shall take place that very day and a justice of peace is summoned to perform the ceremony.

There are several hours before the train on which Peter and Helena plan to depart leaves, and the whole crowd decides to go swimming. Peter dives recklessly and is seriously injured.

While they are waiting for the doctor Peter asks Helena to telephone his lawyer, JOHN COURTNEY, asking him to come and bring LEAH.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER V

COURTNEY'S explosive explanation at the news of a "Mrs. Peter Henderson" startled Helena. She brought her lips closer to the mouthpiece of the telephone. "You'll be here, then? And you understand Peter's message about bringing Leah?"

"Of course I'll be there," the lawyer said. "But if you're really his wife I'll be damned if I understand Peter's message about bringing Leah. But I'll bring her though, if that's what he wants. And if she'll come."

Helena replaced the instrument in its cradle and dropped her bewildered head into her hands. John Courtney's tone had been unmistakable. So had the implication of his words. "Yes, I'm Peter Henderson's attorney. What's up now?" Apparently Peter had more than once been in trouble of some sort. And who was this Leah? Why had Courtney said that if Peter was really married he was "damned" if he understood Peter's message about bringing Leah? Helena's whole body grew cold. Was—was Leah really John Courtney's friend . . . or was she Peter's?

Returning to the larger room, Helena found that Fain had been right. Sandra was leading the doctor across the room. Helena hurried toward the physician. "I—I'm his wife. Would you like to have me help you?"

The doctor smiled down at her young, troubled face. "Thank you. Perhaps I'd better have a look at him first, and then . . ." He broke off, patting her shoulder with a reassuring calm. He glanced at the others, all standing off discreetly.

Helena had believed that the more than an hour preceding the doctor's arrival had been long. But it was nothing in the span of time compared with the few minutes the physician spent alone in the room with Peter.

But finally she looked up to see the doctor coming into the main room of the lodge. His face was inscrutable, his manner still calm. Helena flew from Sandra's comforting presence to learn Peter's condition.

"How is he, doctor?"

The serious-faced little man met her gaze. "Your husband is in rather a serious state, Mrs. Henderson. Concussion, of course. He lowered his voice. "His condition complicates matters."

Sandra rushed toward them, her eyes blazing in her excitement. "Doctor, if you're bluffing—if you're stalling and don't know the answer to this—you'd better call a specialist from the city."

The little doctor faced her calmly. "My dear young woman, this is a very simple case. Even simple enough for a poor country doctor like myself. A young man has been overdoing himself for months, possibly years. Under the influence of alcohol he dives against a submerged stump, incurring a concussion of the brain. Even a specialist from the city could do only what I am going to do."

"And what is that?" demanded Sandra.

"Wait," smiled the doctor. "Make the patient comfortable and . . . wait. I hope it will be possible for me to stay here tonight?"

Under his steady gaze Sandra was quickly reasonable, and contrite. "Please forgive me, doctor. I—we're all so wrought up. Of course you may stay here."

"Thank you," the doctor turned to Helena. "I want to suggest that you get some sleep, Mrs. Henderson."

Helena nodded. She let Sandra guide her to the door of her room, but she felt certain she would be unable to sleep. Nevertheless, she lay fully dressed on the bed, and soon had drifted into a troubled doze from sheer weariness.

WHEN she awoke, the first streaks of dawn painted the sky beyond her window. Helena lay there a moment, thinking: "It's been a horrible dream. Peter wasn't hurt. There—there wasn't even a wedding."

She clamped her damp palms to her head and sat upright. How could she have slept? Somehow she dreamed going into that other room, facing Sandra and the rest.

But nobody was in the big room except the Leigh girl who stood by the fireplace in the same clothes she had worn the night before.

"How is he?" Helena asked fearfully.

The other tried to smile. "About the same, I think. Mr. Courtney and the doctor are there now."

"Oh. . . . Then he—then the lawyer arrived last night?"

Sandra nodded. "On the midnight plane. Someone drove them over from the town." She hesitated, then went on. "You knew that Leah Frazier came, too?"

Helena did not answer at once, and Sandra added another question. "Peter told you about Leah?"

A cold fear took hold of Helena's heart, but she said, "Yes. He asked me to tell Mr. Courtney to bring her along."

Sandra looked relieved. "It's natural that he should ask that. You see, he's known Leah all his life—and I suppose that in his home town everyone expected them to marry. You know how it is in places like that."

THE door opened behind Helena. Without turning she somehow knew that it was the doctor and Courtney who were coming into the room. And suddenly, horribly, she knew something else. Unaccountably, she knew. With a choking sob, she flung herself into Sandra's arms. "Sandra! Oh, Sandra . . . he's dead. Peter's dead."

Hours later she sat facing John Courtney, her eyes red with constant weeping, her lips pale and sagging. He had been talking for several minutes, but Helena had not heard him. Since that first awful moment she had neither heard nor seen anything. And then suddenly something that Courtney said struck into her consciousness, brought her back into the semblance of a living person.

" . . . so you will be well provided for, Mrs. Henderson, if you exercise reasonable care in the management of the Henderson Department Store. It is a profitable business—quite the largest of its kind in our town. And as Peter's sole heir, you are naturally its owner."

"I won't do it," Helena said, getting to her feet unsteadily. "There must be someone else who deserves it."

Australia Aids Auto Industry

CAMBERRA.—Australia is adopting a definite policy of making itself self-sufficient in the production of all the automobiles it may need. Government subsidies on the manufacture of parts will be the principal means adopted.

According to Sir Henry Gullett, who is in charge of the government's trade treaties, Australia is already manufacturing 80 per cent of the many types of complete cars now sold on the Australian market.

Sir Henry expressed his conviction in the Australian House of Representatives that not only the engine and the chassis, but all accessories, such as radiator cores, gear boxes, and gasoline tanks that are now imported can be produced in the Commonwealth efficiently and economically.

To provide funds for subsidizing local motor industries, Sir Henry announced that the government proposes to impose an additional duty of about $25 on each imported chassis that will be used in building up a local industry of the same thing.

The government proposes to pay a bounty on each local unit produced as follows: $150 for 1933; $30 for 1934; $40 for 1935 and $18 for 1941.

It is believed that after the industry will become not only self-supporting but profitable.

It is also expected that the production will begin with 5,000 chassis in 1933; 15,000 in 1934; 30,000 in 1940 and 40,000 in 1941.

In this manner, Sir Henry announces, Australia hopes to free itself entirely from the necessity of importing automobiles and thus reduce its unfavorable trade balance immensely.

Social Insurance Becomes Reality

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 21.—For the first time in America a governmental system of old age retirement annuities (for other than governmental employees) began to function July 13 in the payment of annuities, when the United States Treasury, on certification of the railroad retirement

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WHERE is there a cook without a soul so dead she hasn't sighed for new culinary worlds to conquer? I do it, too. And yet none of us begin to make the most of all the foods available. Which suggests that the thing to do is to combine the old, tried and true dishes into new concoctions.

I'll never forget the family's surprise the first time my spirit of adventure prompted me to serve raw carrots cut in narrow strips. From there it was just a step to add luster to a salad with grated raw beets.

Even such old food affinities as toast and egg become different when served as an egg nest, which is merely the stiffly beaten egg white piled on buttered toast with a bit of butter and the unbroken egg yolk dropped in the center. Salt and pepper are sprinkled over the top and the combination is put in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until the egg is set. It will take about ten minutes. It's a splendid idea for breakfast.

To Make "Egg Nests"
Cold meat platters, too, gain appeal if you provide contrast in color and are careful to arrange the pieces attractively. There will be the dull rosy-tan of cold sliced roast beef, the brighter pink of baked ham, the creamy tones of cold roast pork, the pure white of breast of chicken and the speckled pink of tongue. Garnish with pickle fans and pond lilies made of thin slices of cucumber and radishes with the skins left on, and a half ripe olive for the center. Slices and thin slices of dill pickle make stems and leaves if you want to trace a border around the edge of the platter. The old family friend, rice pudding, wears an alluring disguise when it appears as cream rice meringue. The same sugar and workers represent the first of a series of monthly payments to which, under the railroad retirement act, the recipients will be entitled as long as they live. Some 4,000 railroad workers are immediately eligible for such annuities; more than 20,000 other railroad workers have made application for these annuities. The railroad retirement board, according to Mr. Powell, is proceeding at top speed to secure the data necessary to certify to the United States Treasury annuity payments for all railroad workers who are eligible.

Of the first 18 annuities certified to the United States Treasury by the railroad retirement board, Mr. Latimer said the largest was $91.04 per month, and the smallest was $13.55—the others ranging from $40 to $70 per month. The largest, $91.04, goes to Thomas Biddle Strain, 510 West Locust street, Johnson City, Tennessee. Mr. Strain, who recently celebrated his 73rd birthday, has worked on the railroads of America for 54 years. He was retired from employment on the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina railroad on May 31 of this year. One of the 18 was Mrs. Cora Miranda Jones, who retired in April of this year from her position as station agent of the Wichita Northwestern railway at Iuka, Kansas.

Mr. Powell said Mr. Latimer pointed out that "The payments which are being made today have great historical significance, not only to railroad workers but to workers of all sorts in America, because they represent what is in store for 26,000,000 to 30,000,000 American working men and women for whom similar annuities begin to accrue on January 1, 1937, under the Social Security Act."

"At that time," said Mr. Powell, "all employees in Texas, Louisiana, and New Mexico, as well as those in all other states, Alaska and Hawaii, except those groups in service excluded from terms of the Social Security Act, will begin to accrue annuities which will be paid to them each month as long as they live after they reach the age of 65."

Mr. Powell, who left San Antonio on July 14, will return to his headquarters here by way of New Orleans and Houston, following adjournment of the regional directors conference.

Repairs have been completed on the Odd Fellows' building, E 11m street, with four braces being added to the front wall of the building and cracks between the concrete blocks being filled with cement.

The ground at the side of the building was graded in order that the water would drain away from the building instead of standing near the walls.

Elks and Star Gas Teams Are Winners

Two slugging contests were staged at Municipal field Monday night when the Elks team defeated Killingsworth-Cox by a score of 22 to 16 in the American League game and Lone Star Gas defeated Magnolia by a score of 13 to 8 in the National League game.

Home runs, doubles and triples were almost as numerous as singles, due chiefly to inability of fielders to judge fly balls because of high wind.

Tonight Caddo plays Colony in the National League game and Lone Star Gasoline plays Texaco in the American League contest.
