DEMO CONVENTION ELECTS PARTY MEETING DELEGATES, URGES MOFFETT AMENDMENT

In a quiet session the Eastland County Democratic convention met Saturday afternoon at Eastland for the election of delegates to three party meetings and the passage of two resolutions.

Oscar Lyerla of Flatwood, elected July 25 as chairman of the Eastland County Democratic Executive Committee, was selected as permanent chairman of the convention, and Ben A. Butler of Cisco was named secretary. The group by resolution indorsed the adoption of the so-called Moffett Amendment which committee members stated would limit one county to not more than seven members in the House of Representatives. It was recommended that the newspapers of the county urge their readers to vote in November for the adoption of the amendment and call attention to the claim that 30 states have adopted "a similar balance in the legislative machinery of their state."

Lyerla, President Roosevelt and Governor James V. Allred received the indorsement of the convention in its second resolution. The credentials committee was composed of Will St. John of Cisco, Rufus Cox of Okra and J. W. Cockrill of Gorman. 11TH OLYMPIAD IS OPENED BY ADOLF HITLER

OLYMPIC STADIUM, BERLIN — With a simple sentence of 16 words, Adolf Hitler today opened the 11th Olympic games. From his balcony in this high stadium Hitler climaxed the colorful ceremony when he said: "I proclaim open the Olympic games of Berlin, celebrating the 11th Olympiad of the modern era."

As his last words echoed across the stadium, filled with 110,000 spectators and 4,844 athletes from 52 nations, a mighty roar went up. Next to last in the official march was the delegation from the United States. The Americans, tremendously popular in Berlin, drew one of the largest ovations when they marched in eight abreast.

The United States flag was not dipped like those of other nations when Hitler's box was reached. A United States Army Regulation, which was explained to German officials, prevents dipping the flag to anyone except the President.

STATE PENITENTIARY, SAL. EM, Ore. — Screaming, cursing, convicts quieted today after orders went down to line that there would be no food as punishment for a riot Friday in which one died and two were wounded.

Nearly 1000 prisoners went hungry. They were given no dinner Friday, no breakfast Saturday. "Who's running this state, the courts or the prisoners?" demanded Gov. C. H. Martin. "Lock them up without feeding them."

The convicts rebelled Friday against a court decision refusing freedom on an abbreviated sentence due to good behavior.

Boost Clyde But Don't Cuss Tom Garrettitites Say

"... We can't win by cussing Tom Blanton—we can win by boosting Clyde Garrett."

That was one of the conclusions reached Friday night when 150 Garrett boosters met at Eastland to discuss the Eastland County judge's runoff campaign against Representative Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene.

Confident of victory for the man who gave Representative Blanton the biggest jolt of his 20 years in congress, 150 of the Garrett boosters lauded the candidate and launched committee organizations in sections unorganized at the Community clubhouse in the Eastland meeting.

L. R. Pearson of Ranger was elected chairman of the meeting and E. E. Layton of Eastland named secretary.

Erath County will give Garrett a majority, Mayor Henry Clark of Stephenville indicated.

Personal vote solicitation was indorsed as one of the best methods to win the majority of votes by Buster Gordon, Hamilton attorney. Gordon said he supported Fred O. Jaye, defeated Townsend candidate who has aligned with Blanton, before the primary.

Literature and selection of speakers was discussed by W. E. Lowe of DeLeon, who was preceded in a brief talk by Tad Carter of the same city.

Frank S. Roberts of Breckenridge spoke several times. Other speakers included Robert Farmer, Stephenville; Jones County Judge Omar T. Burleson, Anson; Ben Lindley, Anson; Monroe Sweeney, Mineral Wells; Cleve Callaway, Cross Plains; Will Townsend of Moran, and J. W. Cochran, Gorman.

Garrett Declines OARP Invitation

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett announced Saturday that he will not attend the executive meeting of the Townsend movement at Cisco Monday when Fred O. Jaye, who trailed in the July 25 congressional vote, and Representative Thomas L. Blanton are reported due to speak.

"I had received an invitation from J. T. Newson, assistant manager of the Old Age Revolving Pension organization, to attend the meeting. But the same that I received the invitation I noticed in a Cisco paper that O. H. Moore, who was Mr. Jaye's campaign manager, had secured the city hall at Cisco for the same hour at which time Mr. Blanton will speak."

"Therefore I took it that Mr. Blanton and Mr. Jaye plan to make it a Blanton-Jaye meeting and in view of this information and the further fact that Mr. Newson advised me at the same time he extended the invitation that he had written Mr. Moore to desist from representing the Townsend meeting until after the Monday meeting."

(Moore is secretary of the Townsend movement in this district.)

"My position concerning the Townsend plan has been made clear to the people of this district by me during the campaign and likewise has Mr. Blanton's attitude toward the OARP been made clear through many issues of the congressional record."

"I feel sure that neither myself nor Mr. Blanton would consider making any change at this late an hour in the campaign in the hope we might secure additional votes."

JUDGE CLYDE L. GARRETT ANSWERS DEBATE CHALLENGE OF REPRESENTATIVE BLANTON

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett Saturday made public a reply to Representative Thomas L. Blanton's challenge to debates in the 12 county seats of the 17th Congressional district.

The signed statement of Judge Garrett was as follows: Hon. Thos. L. Blanton, Candidate for Congress, Abilene, Texas, Dear Judge:

I received in Tuesday's mail your challenge to a series of joint debates in this district, to be presided over by the democratic county chairman in each case, the final arbiter in all cases to be the district chairman of the 17th congressional district, who is none other than your "Blanton for Congress" chairman in Taylor county. I realize you sent me this challenge, mailing copies to all newspapers, because you knew I would not accept it under rules and conditions laid down by you, and because you had no other issue on which to make your race against me.

I want to call your attention to the fact that in making your campaign in the first primary you told the voters you were running on your record. You said you mentioned no opponent's name. You said that if you could not be re-elected on your record, without mud-slinging, you did not want the office. If you now have concluded that these were the wrong

FRENCH URGE EMBARGO ON SPANISH ARMS

PARIS, France, Aug. 1.—The French government announced tonight that it has invited Great Britain and Italy to join an agreement among Mediterranean powers not to export arms to the Spanish government or the fascist rebels.

Copies of the invitation were telegraphed to London and Rome. It was understood Britain previously refused to participate in an international neutrality agreement on the grounds that it might be interpreted as implying interference in the internal problems of Spain.

International complications that have arisen in the Spanish revolt were given as reasons for the invitation.

The crash of two airplanes of the Italian bomber type, on the French-Moroccan frontier, allegedly destined for use of rebels in Morocco, caused fear the Spanish civil war might develop into an international conflict. Eight Italian aviators were being held by French authorities in Morocco.

Government Rescue Work

Civil works, works progress, work relief, public works, emergency conservation works, all are specific names of job-creating government activities comprised in the emergency program of the past three and a half years.

The work idea has been stressed throughout, even while the government was spending $80,000,000 in Texas on relief, to considerable part of it in direct dole.

Civil works gave temporary jobs, on work of very slight permanent benefit to 4,000,000 persons. Sewing rooms, canning plants and other agencies simply employed those otherwise on relief to prepare materials to be furnished those on relief in lieu of money.

Then works progress, the big boy of the emergency job-creating program, employed another 4,000,000 people at a later stage, when projects of more permanent worth were developed.

The public works administration, gradually getting an increasing number of persons to work, deals altogether with permanent improvements, and creating the demand for materials, and in contrast with others, its money has gone to projects designed to pay out in part, first with a 30 per cent, and now with a 45 per cent outright grant accompanying the loan of money to be repaid.

The work idea must be popular with the nation, because the republican party this year went to the voters on a platform proposing that it would foster government-created employment on public projects of value. In fact, the republican platform in some ways proposed to go beyond the achievements of past months; and, offering more and better employment, could not, obviously condemn what it was copying.

This year the two parties will compete, not on the basis of the old federalist condemnation of internal improvements at government expense, nor yet on the proposal to cut expenses to the bone, and keep government out of the way of the people, but rather on the scope range and extent of what each proposes to have the government do, if successful, for the greatest number of people.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

St. Peter's Chains: Herod Agrippa, King of the Jews, having put to death St. James the Great in the year 44, in order to gain the affection and applause of his people, caused St. Peter, the prince of the sacred college, to be cast into prison. It was his intention to put him publicly to death after Easter. The whole Church at Jerusalem sent up its prayers to God for the deliverance of the chief pastor of His whole flock, and God favorably heard them. The king had taken all precaution possible to prevent the escape of his prisoner. St. Peter lay fast asleep, on the very night before the day intended for his execution, when it pleased God to deliver him out of the hands of his enemies. He was guarded by sixteen soldiers, four of whom always kept watch in their turns: two in the same dungeon with him, and two at the gate. He was fastened to the ground by two chains, and slept between two soldiers. In the middle of the night, a bright light shone in the prison, and an angel appeared before him, and bade him instantly arise, gird his coat about him, put on his sandals and his cloak, and follow him. The apostle did so, for the chains had dropped off from his hands. Following the angel, he passed after him through the first and second wards of watches, and through the iron gate which led into the city, which opened to them of its accord. The angel conducted him through one street, then, suddenly disappearing, left him to seek some asylum. The apostle went directly to the house of Mary, the mother of John, surnamed Mark, where several disciples were met together, and were praying to God for his deliverance. As he stood knocking without, a young woman, knowing Peter's voice, ran in and informed the company that he was at the door; they concluded that it must be his guardian angel sent by God upon some extraordinary account, until being let in, he related to them the whole manner of his miraculous escape; and having enjoined them to give notice to St. James and the rest of the brethren, he withdrew to a place of more retirement and security, carrying, wherever he went, the word of God.

Morning service, 11 a. m. Wednesday testimonial meeting, 8 p. m. Public cordially invited. "Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, August 2. The Golden Text is: "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love" (I John 4:8). Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee; but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me. And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them" (John 17:25, 26). The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "'God is Love.' More than this we cannot ask, higher we cannot look, farther we cannot go."

RESORT HOTEL Deck Morgan

BEGIN HERE TODAY ANN HAMILTON, pretty young secretary in a large business office, goes to a travel agency to make plans for her two-week vacation. BILL WARE, travel bureau employe, tries to persuade her to go to Lake Racine. Because Ann is rushed for time, Bill offers to come to her home and finish planning the trip. He comes that evening. Ann notices for the first time that he is a good-looking young man. She finally decides to go to Lake Racine. Bill tells her he is going there, too, but their vacations do not come at the same time. Impulsively Bill asks her to go to a movie. Ann goes.

Ann said pertly, and the boy laughed. "Women are a case!" he said. "But my girl works up here, too—in the dining room. We have a good time, just ourselves." Ann said pleasantly, "I'll be you do!" but her thoughts were far from complacent. When they drove up in front of the little mountain inn, the porter took her bags in. Ann registered, and then took a quick turn about the lobby and game room, scanning the faces eagerly. With a feeling close to panic again, she recognized none of the pretty girls. And not a single man was to be seen! It was some comfort when the hostess at the lodge came to greet her. Aimee was the same pleasant person Ann had known three years before, and talking to her was like greeting an old friend. There was an air of camaraderie about Aimee as she introduced Ann to some of the other girls. AFTER dinner Ann wandered, alone, down to the boathouse, where she had spent many romantic moments three years before. The moon was shining down on the water. It was a night filled with enchantment, as are all first nights in the mountains after a year spent in the teeming city. There were faint rippling waves on the lake. Everything was so glamorous and still and beautiful, so different from the noise and heat and dirt of the city. It was fantastic, unreal. It sent Ann's spirits soaring again, though at her heart was the gnawing sensation of loneliness. Out there on the water were young couples in canoes. A guitar strummed. "The worst thing about the wide open spaces," Ann mused, "is that there are not enough people in them." She was looking at the starlit heavens when, almost in front of her, she saw a man's body launch through the air in a straight dive to the lake. His head bobbed up, and he swam back to the dock at her feet with a powerful stroke. He lifted himself up on the boards, dripping water on her feet. Then he saw her standing there in the dark. "Oh, I'm sorry!" he said. "The cold water on her stockings had made her cry out, but now she was laughing. "Oh, that's all right." He towered above her with his broad shoulders and trim figure of a crew man. "Are you a guest at the hotel?" he asked. When she nodded, he said lazily, "I'm the head boatman, Ralph. Did you want a boat?" "I'm afraid I can't paddle my own canoe," she said. Then she was glad it was dark, because she knew she was blushing. Her remark seemed audacious. "Oh, I'll take you out a while," he said. "I don't mind. I haven't got anything else to do anyway." Ann laughed softly in the dark. What an extraordinary young man! (To Be Continued)

ON the way to Lake Racine Ann felt that adventure was in the air. What was to happen next? She was alone, and the sight of pleasant woods and broad fields made her forget the broiling streets of the city she had left behind. A record heat wave was in progress, but already, only a few hours out, she could feel cooling breezes. Rather she sensed the cool mountain air of Lake Racine, which lay ahead of her, like a glistening blue jewel in the midst of soaring green mountains. She thought of the vacation presents, snugly wrapped, in her luggage. She thought of the smiling faces that had seen her off at the station; of her roommate, Alice, who was at the seashore; of the girls in the office who were awaiting their turns at taking vacations. There was Bill Ware who, at the last minute, had turned up at the station to say goodbye. The business details of the trip Bill and she had had two dates with him. Once they had gone up the river on the bus with the other heat-ridden people, looking for some cool air. Another time they had taken the excursion boat on the river. Bill was a good sort, she thought idly. But then she thought of her new nile green bathing suit, of the evening dress—a cardinal's red—which she had picked up at a Tuesday morning sale for almost nothing. She thought of the amiable hostess at the Glenwood Inn where she was to stay, of young men like knights in shining armor, of tennis balls poised in a hand, or guava jelly (one of her going-away gifts), of the cow-horn on a long, low-slung roadster she had watched racing the train part of the morning, of electric fans, of speedboats on water, and of the travel book Alice had given her. BUT when she changed trains at River Junction, and found herself once more on the dinky little mountain train which poked its way up among the high mountains on the narrow-gauge, Ann merely Everything was glamorous and still and beautiful. It sent Ann's spirit soaring, though at her heart was a sensation of loneliness. Any human being who would relieve her of this awful fear that gripped her. The specter of loneliness suddenly beset her. The others seemed to have brought their friends with them. They called out familiarly from one end of the car to the other. "What are you doing tonight?" a boy called, quite unabashed, the length of the car. A pretty, slim girl seated with her mother at the opposite end, called back, "Walk around the lake?" "Sure. See you when," the boy answered impudently. In the seat opposite sat a boy and a girl completely engrossed in themselves. Ann wanted them to be honeymooners, so aloof they seemed, but once the girl pointed excitedly out the window, and said, "There's our cabin, John, darling, look! It hasn't changed a bit since last year." A cabin in the woods that belonged to them. A setting for their romance. "Come on over to our camp." "Let me know when you want to play tennis." "Cock-tails at 6, and bring everybody we know." Invitations flew all about her. Suddenly Ann felt a vast uneasiness. She was a little alarmed. Suppose she shouldn't meet even one man she liked. The mere repetition of such thoughts made her feel forlorn and lonely—afraid. In panic she wished she had gone to the seashore with Alice. She began to wish fervently that even Bill Ware had come along.

Sincerely, Clyde S. Karkalits.

TO THE VOTERS Of Eastland County I wish to take this opportunity to thank the voters of Eastland County for the wonderful vote of confidence as evidenced by the unofficial returns of the first primary election on July 25th. Jeanette McDonald
And Clark Gable
At Arcadia Feature

'San Francisco' brings Clark Gable and Jeanette McDonald together as a co-starring team for the first time.

The musical romance gives Miss McDonald her widest scope in numbers in her screen career—total of nine presentations ranging from a solemn hymn to the most beautiful operatic arias.

Clark Gable returns to the vigorous type of role that first elected him to stardom as a blustering Barbary Coast gambling baron with no faith in anything but his own power and his charm over women.

Co-starring with Miss McDonald and Gable is Spencer Tracy in most unusual role, that of a test; a distinguished supporting cast includes Jack Holt, Jessie Ralph, Ted Healy, Shirley Ross, Margaret Irving, Harold Huber, Alan Dean, William Ricciardi and Kenneth Harlan.

Fliers Burn Castor Oil to Light Targets

MUROC, Cal.—Army aviation experts have just found another use for castor oil in winning their battles.

During night bombardment maneuvers on Murco Lake bombardment range the latter was lighted up by million-candlepower flares. The technique consisted in having an observation plane fly over the field before the bombardment. It dropped flares composed of aluminum powder, barium nitrate, and castor oil, which gave a adequate intensity for a period of two minutes during which the bombs were dropped.

Letters From Our Readers

Ex-congressman Blanton is having much to say about how he is regarded in congress—how he is regarded by his colleagues. Also, he is making the charge that the Hearst newspapers are fighting him with a $25,000 slush fund. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Scripps-Howard newspapers are in keen competition with the Hearst papers. Usually the Hearst papers and the Scripps-Howard papers graze in different pastures politically. It is interesting to note that Heywood Broun has to say in regard to how Mr. Blanton is regarded by his colleagues. Next to Arthur Brisbane, probably Heywood Broun's articles are read more than any other column writer. The following is an excerpt from Heywood Broun's column in the Scripps-Howard newspapers, including the Fort Worth Press, under date of July 31, which is an index as to how Mr. Blanton is regarded generally.

"And still I must admit that my partisanship seems less than that of certain citizens. If Governor Landon is elected I have no intention of moving to Canada or Tahiti. On the contrary, I'll stay right here and be awfully sore about it.

"To be sure, I would consider spending a large part of the year in Texas. Fort Worth, in particular, seems an up-and-coming city. For the first time in 20 years, Representative Blanton has been forced into a runoff campaign, and it looks as if his chief rival has a good chance of capturing his seat in the house. I know nothing about Judge Clyde Garrett, Mr. Blanton's opponent, but, sight unseen, I'm for him.

"Blanton blames his indifferent showing in the first primary on "agitators." This is pretty vague. Representative Blanton has one of the largest collections of agitators in the United States. He still professes to take "the red network" seriously and on occasion reads portions of it into the Congressional Record. Stacked up against Blanton, even Ham Fisher is redder than the rose.

"But it isn't merely the economic and political views of Tom Blanton which make him such a fit candidate for retirement. He is a member who seriously impedes the House in its functions as a deliberative body. While the economy drive is on it certainly ought to include words as well as dollars. As a matter of fact, representatives who make long, rambling speeches for the benefit of the Congressional Record literally are wasting the people's money.

"Blanton is the sort of orator who cannot shorten his pitching motion even when he has a runner on first base. He is unable to make a simple motion without taking a full windup. Texas can't go wrong in selecting a successor to Blanton."

Again, Genevieve Herrick's article in the August issue of the Country Gentleman gives a very good slant on how Mr. Blanton is regarded by his colleagues. The article follows:

"This past session of Congress was notable, too, for other feminine victories. The one everybody talks most about is the one Representative Mary T. Norton won over a fellow Democrat, Representative Tom Blanton, the Texan.

"As chairman of the District of Columbia committee, Mrs. Norton was fighting for certain appropriations for welfare institutions in the District. Many a congressman is indifferent to the District because it is voteless and therefore, they reckon, of no political value.

"Mr. Blanton opposed everything Mrs. Norton suggested; had the appropriations sliced; made many a mean speech against her, saying 'you just can't take it'; and accusing her of working on the "soft spots" of her colleagues in order to get their support.

"Next day Mrs. Norton got up on the floor of the House and she gave Mr. Blanton such a verbal spanking as has been rarely administered in the halls of Congress and never before by a woman.

"After rebuking him for his boast that he had no "soft spots," Mrs. Norton said: 'I frankly admit having many soft spots—for crippled children, for tuberculosis victims, for overworked hospital wards, for overworked nurses, for juvenile offenders, for first offenders thrown into crowded jails indiscriminately with hardened criminals, and so on down a long list.

"As the House cheered, Mrs. Norton continued:

"You mention a lot of things you can think of. Well, the only thing I can think of about you is that you have caused a lot of embarrassment to your constituents, as well as the membership of the House. You have cost thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of the country for hundreds of pages in the Congressional Record without a single constructive achievement. I can think of many representatives from your state who are a credit to the state; but I can think of you only with sorrow.

"And again her colleagues applauded."

These two articles, by eminent writers, show very clearly how Mr. Blanton is regarded in Congress. L. R. PEARSON.

I have lived for 50 years and who have elected me to public office, gave me a majority of 2,200 votes over both you and my other opponent, while your own county—gave you only about 500 majority. I know that the good people of the 17th congressional district will regard that fact as a conclusive answer to any slanderous charges or attacks, which you will doubtless make against me in this campaign. Furthermore, being a red blooded American, I could not stand by and have my character maligned and assassinated although it will probably be attempted by a whispering campaign.

In view of the reasons stated above, I must respectfully decline to accept your challenge.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) CLYDE L. GARRETT.

New Vocational Instructor For Schools Arrives O. L. McGahey, coordinator for diversified occupations in Ranger High School has arrived in the city and will begin organizing for this work in a few days. McGahey is a graduate of Daniel Baker college, where he was trained for the teaching profession. While working for his degree and since receiving it he has taught in the public schools of Texas. In addition to this training he spent several years in the railroad shops of Brownwood and a few years with other industrial concerns which, with his graduate work in Texas A&M college this year, have qualified him for the Smith-Hughes industrial certificate.

The diversified occupational program has been organized as a means of extending the benefits of trade and industrial education to communities of from 5000 to 25,000. Since it is not practical many times for these school systems to establish vocational schools with expensive equipment and machinery, the plan contemplates a cooperative arrangement between the school and employers of skilled workers in the community.

Under this plan high school junior and senior students work in their chosen occupation for one-half day and attend school one-half day, over a period of two years. During the employment the student is under the supervision of the school and the employer, and both agencies contribute to his training.

Two full periods of the school terms are devoted to technical information which is directly related to the work the student is engaged in. Regular high school subjects may be pursued during the remainder of the school time. Boys and girls to be eligible for diversified occupations training should be at least sixteen years of age and should have completed the first two years of high school.
