Veterans Will Hold Picnic-Meeting On Thursday Night

A meeting of special significance to every veteran will be held by the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion in an outdoor joint meeting with the ladies of the Legion auxiliary on next Thursday evening, August 6th, beginning at 8 P. M. at the country club grounds. According to Commander B. H. Peacock of the local post, every veteran, together with his family, is cordially invited to be present. At this meeting the officers for the coming year will be nominated, and it is trusted that every one who has the good interest of the organization at heart will be present in order to throw his influence for a bigger and better legion.

"The majority of the most outstanding and highest type of men in our community are veterans of the World War," stated Peacock, "and it is the desire of the present membership of the Post that one of these be elected to head organization for the coming year. The program of the Legion now lies ahead of us, such as child welfare, care of disabled veterans and their widows and children, community, state and national safety, and the great program of 'Americanism.' Our local post now has plans under way whereby each year, the leading ranking students of the graduating class of each of our ward schools will be given public recognition of their leadership. This recognition will cover not only their scholarship attainments, but also their attainments in courtesy, good behavior, athletics, general sportsmanship, and other qualifications as well."

Entertainment to be concluded by an iced watermelon party, which will follow a short meeting of the post and the auxiliary. Prizes will be given for the youngest and oldest World War veteran present, and also for the youngest and oldest son or daughter of a World War veteran who may be present.

Baptist Revival Is Closed After Two Fine Weeks

The First Baptist church successfully closed a two weeks revival meeting Sunday night. Nine were baptized at the close of the service. Four others await baptism and four were received by letter, making seventeen additions in all. There were two other professions of faith and a number of rededications.

Evangelist Bauman and Singer Roy Camp endorsed themselves, to a great host of Ranger people. Brother Brannon delivered a series of most helpful sermons to the scores of Christian men and women who heard him as well as to many who were bid to give serious and prayerful thought to the matter of their spiritual welfare.

Attendance upon all the services was gratifying in view of the many outside attractions. Representatives of various Ranger congregations found their place daily in the services and added to the delightfulness of the wonderful fellowship. Through the cooperation of pastors who, together with many of their own people, were present, a large congregation greeted the evangelist in the closing service Sunday night. Thus upholding the well established record of unexcelled fellowship obtained among the churches of Ranger.

The membership of the church will meet tomorrow night, Wednesday, for a regular monthly business meeting.

EX-MEMBER OF SECRET SIX IS BEING HELD

DALLAS—A former member of Chicago's "secret six," and a bodyguard for the late Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was charged today after the fatal shooting of A. B. Farrow, night club operator and former Dallas policeman.

George Redston, 34, former special investigator in Chicago, was arrested two hours after the shooting. He told officers that he and Farrow had a brief argument and Farrow ejected him from the night club.

Patrons of the club fled through the doors, screaming as a shot rang out. Redston left in a taxicab. He was employed Monday as a special guard for a concession at the Texas Centennial exposition.

Redston was treated for a broken hand and a cut on the head. Farrow is survived by six brothers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—George Redston, one-time "stool pigeon" for the "secret six" was freed in Chicago in 1933 when a coroner's jury ruled he was justified in killing James Spencer, a tavern owner.

TOWNSENDITES AGREE NOT TO ENDORSE ANY CANDIDATE IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RUNOFF

CISCO, Aug. 4.—Townsend plan supporters voted in executive session here Monday to refrain from endorsing any candidate for congress from the seventeenth congressional district.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton, the incumbent, will be opposed in the run-off primary this month by Judge Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland, who led Blanton by almost 5,000 votes in the recent primary.

The Townsendites disclaimed any connection with the endorsement of Blanton's candidacy by Fred O. Jaye, the defeated Townsend candidate.

Secretary O. H. Moore of the district OARP organization told the executive meeting the Abilene Morning News had misstated facts concerning him in its statement that both he and Judge Jaye declared they "would support Mr. Blanton." This statement brought a barrage of questions upon Moore but he was given a vote of confidence following the quiz and asked to continue as secretary.

Area Police Seek Clyde Hijackers

ABILENE, Tex., Aug. 4.—Following a hijacking at Clyde in which $10 was taken from a filling station operator, two men were being sought by West Texas peace officers Monday night.

Fred Kniffen, who runs a station three miles west of Clyde on the Bankhead highway, told Deputy Sheriff Bill Ray two men in a 1929 Chevrolet coupe drove into his place about 9:30 o'clock. One of the pair drew a gun on Kniffen and forced him to stand still, while Mrs. Kniffen, in the station, was ordered to bring out all money in the cash box. The two men drove west down the highway, and Abilene officers were quickly notified to watch roads leading into the city from the east. However, the pair failed to show up here.

They were driving a 1929 Chevrolet coupe, with an Oklahoma license plate, No. 135-958. Both were about 35 years old, one wore khaki suit and the other black trousers and checkered shirt, it was reported.

Deputy Sheriff Ray came here later in the evening to confer with Abilene police on the case.

WELL MAKING 600 BARRELS IS ESTIMATE

Chastain No. 1 Brashear Creates Interest In Ranger Area

The Chastain No. 1 H. Brashear, which has been termed a "duplicate of the McCleskey" discovery well in the Ranger field, came in about daylight Tuesday morning for an estimated 500 to 600 barrels daily production. The oil was described by some as 41 gravity.

Frank Champion was the one who called the well a duplicate of the McCleskey, and Champion should know, for he was not only driller of the discovery well, but was also driller of the Brashear well which came in Tuesday. Scott Stephenson of Strawn is the drilling contractor.

The well is located in the William Van Norman survey, 330 feet north and 700 feet west of the farm lines. It is a mile west of a McAlister well, which obtained a good gas production and some oil in 1919 during the boom days.

Several other wells were drilled in the same section during 1919 but were not considered successful.

Champion stated today that the Brashear well and the McCleskey No. 1 were as identical as two wells could be, and that he believed the new test could be drilled a few feet deeper and mor production brought in, as was the case in the McCleskey.

Casing has been set in shale and due to the gas pressure, a control head cannot be set now, it was stated this morning. The well is flowing in a steady stream of gas and oil about 80 to 100 feet high, and the oil is being caught in an earthen tank. Since the well was brought in earlier than was expected, no preparations had been completed for controlling the well.

Oil men were flocking to the scene early Tuesday morning and a steady stream of traffic along the Merriman road, near which the well is located, continued all through the morning. Every oil man who saw the well pronounced it one of the best wells brought in in this section in several years, and much interest was being shown in the well, as it was expected that it might stimulate drilling again.

G. D. Chastain, owner of the new well, has between 800 and 900 acres in the section under lease, it was stated today by H. Brashear, owner of the land on which the well is located.

Machines Man Builds May Turn Against Him

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's speech on aviation in Berlin was a sobering reminder of the fact that the race acquires tremendous new responsibilities every time it makes a conquest over the realm of inanimate matter.

It invents the airplane and frees itself from the old limitations of time and space in a way that people of an earlier generation could not have dreamed of.

"As I travel over Europe," said Colonel Lindbergh, "I am more than ever impressed with the seriousness of the situation which confronts us."

All of which is to say that a new advance in the mechanical arts, a device like the airplane for instance, is a double-edged tool.

And unless we get so that we can display as much wisdom in using new tools of this kind as we did in devising them, we are apt to rue the day that we ever heard of them.

Colonel Lindbergh's own career is a case in point. When he flew alone from New York to Paris he gave us one of the most spiritually uplifting experiences of the century.

There was something about that exploit which made eternally visible the triumph of the dauntless spirit of man over a hostile environment.

But you need only turn that flight of his inside out to get a clear picture of the sort of thing he was talking about in Berlin the other day.

Suppose there is a war. Over the sea come other planes—whole flights and squadrons of them, this time, with swollen egg sacs of bombs in their bellies.

Instead, they rain down death and destruction. As Colonel Lindbergh says, in a few moments they destroy things that can never be replaced.

Both of these flights come out of the same egg. The Wright brothers bequeathed them to us when they took their silk-and-bamboo crate into the air at Kitty Hawk.

Unless we can bring to the use of airplanes the same intelligence that went into the inventing and perfecting of them, we face a dark future.

A New York women's union recently stated a "sit down" strike. No unpleasantness resulted, however, until one of the members left the room.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON. — Progressive leaders, dominated by a delegation from the U. S. Senate, hope to get together one of these days and announce a progressive league which will support Roosevelt for re-election this year.

The meeting is somewhat overdue, however, and the best guess as to the reason for that has to do with the traditional inability of some progressive prima donnas to play on a team, complicated at the moment by certain long range dreams of presidential candidacy in 1940.

Senators Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, George W. Norris of Nebraska, Hiram Johnson of California, and Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota are the leading spirits in the movement. They expect to be joined by Gov. Floyd Olson and Senator Elmer Benson of Minnesota and, eventually, by Senators Gerald Nye and Lynn Frazier of North Dakota, from whose state springs the third party candidacy of Congressman Lemke.

Frank P. Walsh of New York will be very active in the movement. Whether Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York will tie up with it isn't yet known.

ASIDE from the re-election of Roosevelt, the chief matter in the minds of these men is the campaign of 1940. Four years from now, they believe, they will be campaigning for a farmer-labor ticket or a relatively radical Democratic candidate in case it is possible to nominate such a candidate.

Expecting Roosevelt to win again this year, they naturally are thinking secondarily about whom they'll want to succeed him.

Such contemplations are said to be afflicting Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, outstanding Democratic progressive in the Senate.

And the rumor is that he is unhappy over the fact that LaFollette, former independent Republican, who now carries the banner of his own Wisconsin Progressive Party, is to head the progressive league.

Whether or not Wheeler's attitude has held up the progressive gathering—as some reports say—it doesn't appear that the Montana senator has yet made plans for any heavy campaign activity.

Democratic leaders who are worrying over party prospects in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, and Nebraska on the basis of recent polls believe Wheeler can do as much as anyone toward carrying those states.

With Congress, the president, most department heads and both party chairmen all far away, organized labor has the field in Washington—which is still the nation's best sounding board, even in the hot old summer time. No one can say the big shot labor leaders aren't making the most of it.

For example, on a single day when there was no counter-attraction except the naval spy case, Washington correspondents covered a speech by John L. Lewis at a National Press Club luncheon, the explanation by Labor's Non-Partisan League of its campaign plans, and announcement by President Bill Green of the A. F. of L. that the 12 unions of the Committee for Industrial Organization would be brought up for trial Aug. 3.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people.

Organized Storage Space: "I always feel much neater and better dressed when I have my clothes arranged orderly in my clothes closet and my dresser drawer space so organized that I can find the garment needed without having to search for it," says Lavelle Craghead, wardrobe demonstrator of the Carbon Girls 4-H Club. "I have put a rod in my closet instead of hanging the hangers on nails. By the use of small pasteboard boxes I was able to make small compartments for my underclothing, toilet articles and dress accessories."

Winter Storage of Vegetables: La Rue Bohannon, garden demonstrator of the Carbon Girls' 4-H Club, has fresh tomatoes at Christmas time. "After I had canned a winter's supply of tomatoes, I still had a surplus which I could not sell," states La Rue Bohannon. "I gathered fifteen gallons of green tomatoes and stored them in rows on a shelf in the storm cellar. They kept nicely and through the months of November and December we were able to have ripe tomatoes."

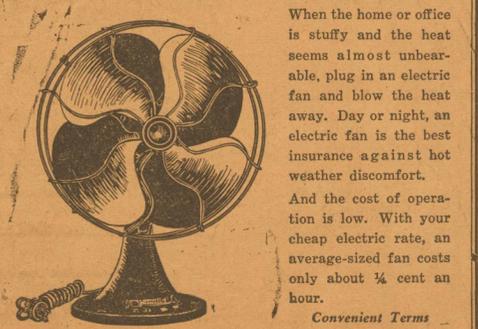

Clothes Closet Enlarged: "I am able to improve my clothes closet with little expense and with the help of my brothers," says Lola Bell Grisham, wardrobe demonstrator of the Okra Girls' 4-H Club. "My clothes closet is now two feet wide and three feet long. Due to the size, it is very crowded. My brothers are very anxious to help me enlarge it in order that they may share it with me. The closet will reach to the ceiling so that the upper part may be used for shelves in which articles not frequently used may be stored. There is to be a rod on either side of the closet, one for my brothers and one for me. There is a separate door for the upper part and one for the lower part. After the closet is completed, I will paper the inside and outside with same paper as used in the room."

Hay Fever Victims Find a Haven in Modern Coaches

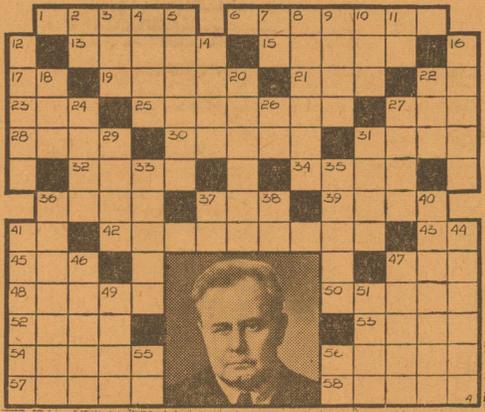

CHICAGO - A sneeze may mean just "gesundheit" to some people, but to about two and a half million citizens it signals the beginning of the dreaded hay fever season. According to an estimate based on a survey by the

New York State Health Department, from 3 to 5 per cent of the United States population is sensitive to dust, pollen, and similar substances, and at least half of these "sensitives" are acute hay fever sufferers. When the western railroads introduced their first air-conditioned trains, they did not think of sneezes and coughs, but since the development of the air-conditioning program, sneezes have become conspicuous by their absence. Every summer those sufferers who can get away from the pollen-infest regions trek to the north woods, to cool lakes, to the western mountains and the salty air of the Pacific coast for vacation relief. Before the advent of air-conditioning, a trip to some distant spot was something to suffer with chokes and spasms. Since the principal trains of all western lines have been air-conditioned, both in Pullman and day coach cars, nearly all sufferers report immediate relief when they board their train. closed windows of modern trains while the passengers inside inhale clean, washed air and relax in a temperate climate. The western railroads announce that they have 50 per cent more air-conditioned trains this year than in 1935, making it possible for travelers to wander to any vacation region of the west, north-west or southwest in complete comfort. Long, hot dusty journeys are now things of the past, and vacationists start their holiday as soon as they board their train, arriving at their destination rested, cool and ready to plunge into pleasant activities. A pool of air-conditioned cars has also been organized by the groups of western railroads to handle large tours, convention parties and similar groups. Travelers in the crack, high speed trains and in tourist Pullmans and day coaches may now enjoy travel comfort at low prices, comfort which was undreamed of by most deluxe passengers a decade ago. So important is this new travel comfort that many vacationists who plan to use their automobiles when they reach their destination are taking advantage of the new low rates for shipping cars. By this method they can travel the dusty or monotonous stretches on air-conditioned trains with their car waiting to meet them when they reach the chosen resort region. Passengers sensitive to pollen and dust, and those afflicted with asthma and respiratory troubles, experience the most dramatic relief under air-conditioned circumstances. While air-conditioning affords cool relief from sizzling temperatures, engineering developments, even in the past year, have so improved the systems that travelers do not feel the shock of too sudden a drop in temperature. Temperature is now so controlled that

RESORT HOTEL

BEGIN HERE TODAY ANN HAMILTON, pretty young secretary in a large business office, goes to a travel agency to make plans for her two-week vacation. BILL WARE, travel bureau employee, persuades her to go to Lake Racine. Bill is obviously attracted by Ann, but she gives him little thought. Ann goes to the mountain resort and at first is lonely. Then she meets RALPH SPRING, the head boatman, who tells her frankly he is not interested in girls. Ralph introduces Ann to JAIME LAIRD, wealthy playboy. Jaime asks her to go to a dance at the fashionable Majestic Hotel. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V WHILE Ann put on her new evening gown—the cardinal's red—the maid was in the room, giving finishing touches to the bed. She helped Ann with the fastenings, and suddenly the girl turned. "Do you know anything about a young man by the name of Jaime Laird?" she asked. The maid smiled. "Everybody knows him at Lake Racine. You'll find a lot of gossip in the village. He's quite a lady killer, they say. One of those playboys. He spends most of his afternoons at the track." "Track?" Ann begged. "The horse room—or whatever they call that dark little hole in the village where they bet on the races that take place all over the country. It's rigged up with loud speakers, and it's just like being at the races, they say." The maid smiled. "But it's not legal. You dive in, and dive out. They tell me it's the biggest racket since bootlegging."

Ann recalled some talk at her office in the city about the betting racket, controlled by gangster bosses. They had invaded the summer resorts because men and women on vacation are easy marks; they have time on their hands, and money to spend. Ann was sorry to learn this about Jaime. "Surely he rides or climbs or does something in the outdoors? If he goes to the betting room in the afternoon, what does he do in the morning?" The maid said wearily, "He watches the ticker tape in the stock office. He's a rich young man." Ann was thoughtful when she went down the stairs to meet Jaime. But these doubts vanished when she swept through the lobby in her evening gown, a cloak over her arm, the cynosure of all feminine eyes. Jaime was waiting for her at the door. ONCE she was seated at his side in the sleek roadster, she felt superbly confident and at ease. "You are a good-looking babe,"

Stephen, was instituted by the Church on the occasion of the discovery of his precious remains. His body lay long concealed, under the ruins of an old tomb, in a place twenty miles from Jerusalem, called Capharnagala, where stood a church which was served by a venerable priest named Lucian. In the year 415, on Friday, the third of December, about nine o'clock at night, Lucian was sleeping in his bed in the sacristy, where he commonly lay in order to be near the sanctuary. Being half awake, he saw a tall, comely old man of a venerable aspect, who approached him, and calling him thrice by his name, bid him go to Jerusalem, and tell Bishop John to come and open the tombs in which his remains and those of certain other servants of Christ lay, that through their mercy God might reopen to many the gates of His clemency. This vision was again repeated, and Lucian went to Jerusalem and laid the whole affair before Bishop John, who bade him go and search for the relics, which, the Bishop concluded, would be found under a heap of small stones, which lay in a field near his church. In digging up the earth there, three coffins were found. Lucian sent immediately to inform Bishop John of the news. He was then at the Council of Diospolis, and taking along with him Eutonius, Bishop of Sebaste, and Eleutherius, Bishop of Jerico, they hurried to the place. Upon the opening of St. Stephen's coffin the earth shook, and there came out of the coffin such an agreeable odor that no one remembered to have ever smelled anything like it. There was a vast multitude of people assembled in that place, among whom were many persons afflicted with divers distempers, of whom seventy-three recovered their health upon the spot. They kissed the holy relict, and then shut them up. The remains were carried in the coffin, clemency. This vision was again repeated, and Lucian went to Jerusalem and laid the whole affair before Bishop John, who bade

Man Who Saw Ann Parker Rescue Will Visit the Centennial

DALLAS — The last eye-witness to the rescue of Cynthia Ann Parker from the Indians on the Texas frontier in 1860 will attend the reunion of ex-Texas Rangers at the Texas Centennial exposition Aug. 20 to 22, inclusive.

He is John Gillespie, 94 years old, of Fort Worth. He was a member of the Ranger company of which Lawrence Sullivan Ross was captain. Ross later became Governor of Texas.

Mr. Gillespie, at the time but 18 years old, vividly recalls the incidents of the battle and the rescue of Cynthia Ann, whose son, Quannah Parker, later became a Texas celebrity.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Gillespie still is in possession of all his faculties and is unusually vigorous. He saw long service on the Texas frontier in the days when Indians and outlaws combined to make a busy life for the Texas Ranger of that period.

Major George Black, president of the association, anticipates a large attendance of these pioneer Rangers of the 1860 to 1880 period. They are to be guests of the exposition, "bedded" in the Ranger cabin, with meals provided.

A statue of "The Texas Ranger" is to be unveiled by Governor James V. Alfred, and there is to be a premiere showing of "The Texas Rangers" Paramount film. Director King Vidor and Jean Parker, star of the picture, will be present.

Relaxed and enjoying a smoke when acting as host to 40 persons at a picnic on the beach at Herring Cove, N. B., President Roosevelt is shown in contemplative pose. He met New Brunswick officials at the outing near his summer home and with them discussed the Passamaquoddy power project.

Ruling May Divert More Money In Gasoline Tax Fund From Roads

AUSTIN — Texas will have to take half a million dollars out of one pocket and place it in another to comply with the latest ruling upon state funds.

Roads will suffer and schools gain by the process.

The ruling applies to occupation taxes. The state constitution demands that one-fourth of all revenue derived from occupation taxes shall go to schools. The new ruling is that the Constitution means the gross collections, not the net income from occupation taxes.

Four cents a gallon gasoline tax is levied as an occupation tax upon refiners. This puts the gasoline tax within the ruling. But in passing the state gasoline tax law the legislature specifically directed that one per cent first be deducted from collections as an enforcement fund and that the enforcement fund and school purposes be made from the balance.

The state has been following law as plainly directed by the legislature. All was going along serenely that way until John T. Smith, former legislator and Austin tax expert, became inquisitive. Smith asked state school superintendent L. A. Woods how the division was being made for schools and pensions in apportioning liquor occupation taxes. It was found the liquor taxes were being administered in conformity with the constitution, but an inquiry from superintendent Woods to the attorney general's department was in general terms and applies to all occupation taxes.

Freight Surcharge Denied Railroads

WASHINGTON — The Interstate Commerce Commission refused today to permit the nation's major railroads to establish permanently the emergency freight rate surcharges, put into effect last year and scheduled to expire Dec. 31.

The surcharges were granted after carriers asked federal action to bolster freight revenues.

The President Tries Relaxing

Caddo and Elks Win Eventually In Slow Contests

Caddo defeated Lone Star Gas Monday night in a slow and uninteresting game that started shortly after 8:30 and lasted an hour and 35 minutes before the stalling was over, after which the fans awoke temporarily to watch the Elks defeat Texaco in another lazy game.

Lone Star used three pitchers and none of them were very effective, and the players loafed all around in the field, stopping at intervals to play catch while the fans and batters waited.

A controversy arose in the fifth in which the umpires allowed four outs and gave Lone Star at least two additional runs. With two out and the bases filled the runner on second ran over the Caddo shortstop and prevented him from playing the ball, which is an automatic out according to the rules.

The third base umpire said he was umpiring outs at third only, the first and second base umpire was calling those two bases only, and the umpire at home plate seemed to have no jurisdiction, which hame the strip of base path between second and third a sort of no man's land in which anything went. An appeal to all three umpires by Caddo failed to get anywhere so they went back into the field and made a flock of runs to win by a score of 15 to 9.

When the game was finally over the fans perked up temporarily to see the second game, but difficulty seemed to be had in keeping the Texaco players awake at that late hour. They managed to get most of the fielders to their feet, only, the $411,500 deducted for enforcement will have to come entirely out of the road funds and none out of the school fund.

A record of testing four cars a minute was made by the state motor patrol in a safety lane established near Corsicana recently.

The patrol already has tested more than 116,000 cars in various parts of the state. Of these 23,000 were found to have some defect. Pink cards are given drivers of defective cars with notations of what is needed. Average cost of the needed repairs is less than a half-dollar.

The pink sticker carries no penalty but most drivers are wise enough to want their cars operating safely. Others do not want the risk of being held responsible for an accident and know the pink sticker puts them on the defensive.

Under the new ruling, appar-ive.

On Way to Cheer Eleanor Holm

Loyal supporter of his wife, Eleanor Holm Jarret, in the Olympic Games controversy in which she was ousted from the American team, Art Jarret is shown here as he waved farewell before sailing from New York for Europe to join her. The orchestra leader husband of the swimming champion voiced belief that "everything would come out all right."

however, but the pitcher was new at that kind of game and insisted on waiting until the right fielder got on his feet and showed some signs of life. Despairing of this he warmed up again, but the Elk batters, in the meantime, had started a political discussion, or something, and the start was delayed again.

When the game did get underway it moved along almost as slowly as the Lone Star-Caddo siesta, with the Elks trying to make a ball game out of it by hitting and running bases, Phillips, in left field, and the lad in the short field for Texaco were wide awake, however, roaming all over the field to take flies to make sensational putouts. Without them the game might have been called on account of daylight. At bedtime the Elks were leading 9 to 0, with two out in the fifth, so they evidently won the game.

Oh, hum, it makes one sleepy to try to write about it, even after a good night of sleep.
