MINE RESCUE CREWS SEEK BURIED MEN

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 19.— Mine rescue crews harassed by water and poison gas, worked through tons of debris today in an effort to reach four men trapped 110 feet below the surface in a coal mine. Earlier estimates that the way would be cleared shortly were revised and Arnold Griffith, state mine inspector, said it might be 48 hours before the men were reached. No sound has come from the miners to indicate they still live. "There is just a chance they are alive," Griffith said, "Perhaps if we can break through in 48 hours we may save them." The entombed men are Ed Stoner, Jr., 22, Demmer Sexton, 32, Jack McCann, 45, and George Dameron, a negro mule driver. Sexton and Stoner hold the lease on the mine.

Plans have been made to conduct the practice sessions for the team on the soft ball field, beyond the left field because the sod will be too new and soft on the new football field, with water being run on the grass 24 hours out of each day.

The trippers will return to Ranger that night.

Mrs. Martha Davenport, postmaster of Ranger, has announced that the $100,000 mark in the sale of United States Savings Bonds, popularly known as Baby Bonds, has been reached by the Ranger postoffice, while a similar announcement for the nation states that $500,000,000 worth of these bonds have been sold over the nation.

The Ranger sales represent an actual investment of a little more than $85,000, it was pointed out, while the maturity value of the bonds is slightly more than $100,000.

Sales in the State of Texas have totaled more than $679,687.50, as that was the amount sold in the state at the last report of the assistant secretary of the Treasury, which was made in May of this year.

Savings bonds were first made available on March 1, 1935. For the 10 months period from that date to the end of the year, purchases amounted to a maturity value of $259,000,000 or an average daily sale of approximately $1,000,000 maturity value. Purchases from January 1, 1936, to July 6, represent maturity value of $241,000,000 or an average daily sale of approximately $1,535,000 for each business day, reflecting a 50 per cent increase in the average daily sales for the year 1936 over 1935.

Purchases for the new fiscal year beginning the first day of July are set at an increased rate averaging a daily maturity value of $1,823,700, which is in excess of 80 per cent increase over the daily average sales for the year 1935. Average daily sales in July, 1936, were approximately 75 per cent ahead of average sales for July, 1935.

United States Savings Bonds may be purchased at all post offices of the first and second class, at most of the third class, and at some of the fourth class offices, or direct-by-mail from the Treasurer of the United States, or any Federal Reserve bank. The direct-by-mail sales have likewise shown a consistent ratio of increase during the last several months. The upward trend of sales is apparently due not only to increasing numbers of new purchasers but to the purchases made by present owners at regular intervals.

To date there have been issued approximately 1,700,000 Savings Bonds. As the limitation of individual ownership is restricted by law to $10,000, maturity value, issued during any calendar year, the sales have been attained only through wide distribution to investors throughout the nation.

GARRETT REVIEWS CHARGES OF OPPONENT IN ADDRESS BEFORE VOTERS IN DUBLIN

"It became such a racket—the way Blanton handled his postmasters. So ridiculous was his method in Eastland and Callahan counties that the Democratic committees passed resolutions in censure of him," said Judge Clyde L. Garrett, candidate for congress, in his speech Tuesday night before a large crowd of citizens on a downtown street intersection at Dublin.

"Blanton disfranchised the farmers by not letting those who live more than a mile from the post office vote in a community election of a postmaster!" Still referring to the postmasters, Garrett said, "I favor placing postmasters under the merit system, a plan by which the best qualified gets the job."

In refuting a number of charges made by Blanton, Gatter, was made a copy of the Abilene man's

E. D. Smith, South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, wired McDonald: "I wish to extend my very best wishes and appreciation for the great services you have rendered our Senate Agricultural committee in trying to bring about a more equitable and fair price for our farmers on cotton and other commodities. Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma, member of the committee, sent the following telegram to McDonald: "As a resident of an adjoining state of interests of some character as Texas and as a member of Senate Agricultural Committee I hereby express my appreciation of the valuable services you have rendered not only the farmers of Texas and Oklahoma, but the whole country in the fight to give them more equitable prices on their commodities."

Skull Fractured In Gorman Train and Auto Mishap

CISCO, Aug. 19.—Mrs. H. D. Gorham and daughter, Miss Frances, 15, were resting well at their home after a narrow escape Sunday night when the car in which they were riding was struck by the M. K. and T. southbound motor car on a crossing near the M. K. and T. station at Gorman. They were en route to College Station to visit Drew, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gorham and student at A. M. College. They were riding with A. F. Schaefer, longtime friend of the Gorham family, who was driving to Austin on a business matter.

Schaefer suffered a skull fracture for which he received treatment in a Gorman hospital before being removed yesterday to Abilene.

Going by Bryan Mr. Schaefer came by Cisco Sunday evening and invited Mr. and Mrs. Gorham and their daughter to accompany him as far as Bryan, returning with him as he came home. Mr. Gorham could not go, but Mrs. Gorham and Miss Frances accepted the invitation.

Mr. Schaefer said he stopped at the crossing over the tracks at Gorman, about 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening, but heard no sound of a train. As the car drove on the tracks, however, the motor car struck the machine, a Studebaker, throwing it a considerable distance and practically demolishing it. Gorman citizens and members of the train crew picked up the three. Mr. Gorham was notified by telephone and drove to Gorman, bringing his wife and daughter to Graham sanitarium for treatment. Their injuries were found to be confined to bruises and abrasions.

BLASTS WRECK TWO FT. WORTH NIGHT CLUBS

FORT WORTH, Aug. 19.— Dynamite blasts damaged to popular Fort Worth night clubs early today, leaving police puzzled as to the cause. Two theories were offered that the explosions were the work of anti-vice crusaders or a flareup in a local slot machine war. Five employees in the Ringside club were uninjured as successive blasts tore a large hole in one corner of the building, breaking windows and wrecking the manager's office.

Police believed the charge that broke nine windows at the Oasis night club northwest of town, was set before that of the Ringside. The Ringside explosions occurred at 4.15 a. m., however, and at the Oasis 12 minutes later. Remnants of a 20-foot fuse from the road to the front of the Oasis club indicated that the dynamite there was timed to explode before that at the Ringside club.

His platform comes much nearer fitting in with mine and I believe it is the best one for the farmers of Texas. I want to thank all those who voted for me in the first primary and wish that I could see each personally to express my thanks."

Eastlandites Will Enter Swimming Events In Ranger

Announcement was made today by Claud Huffman, manager of the Willows swimming pool in Ranger that reservations for 75 Eastland swimmers had been made for Thursday night, when a big water carnival will be staged at the pool, with prizes for swimming and diving events.

Plans have been completed for the water carnival and the pool has just been drained and refilled "with the clearest, most sparkling water I have ever seen," it was described today by Huffman. Until the Eastland pool is completed and ready for swimmers many have been taking advantage of the opportunity to swim either in Ranger or Cisco pools and many in Eastland are fast becoming "swim conscious" for the first time.

A number of swimming events, for everyone from those who are beginners to the most finished swimmers, are to be staged, as will diving events, with some cash prizes being offered.

One of the events that has been planned to add zest to the carnival is an old-fashioned watermelon contest, in which watermelons will be tossed into the pool and those who manage to get them out can have them. It is possible that a large rubber ball will be substituted for the watermelons in the actual contest in order that the chance of breaking a melon in the water can be eliminated, with the melons being used as prizes.

Few Can Outgamble The American Farmer

If you can return a foolproof answer to the question, "How is the farm belt going to vote this fall?"...

Doping out the farm vote has too many angles for the peace of mind of the rival vote-getters.

You can get as many answers to such questions as there are political prognosticators.

He has to gamble, first of all, on the weather. Will there be a drouth this year, or is there to be plenty of rain?

He has no way of knowing. All he can do is to lay his money on the line and hope for the best.

He must gamble with the insect world. Will the corn borer advance upon his fields—or the army worm, the boll weevil, the 17-year locust, the grasshopper, the chinch-bug, or some other pertinacious destroyer?

He must bet, too on what all the other farmers are doing. If he devotes a good share of his acreage to potatoes, he is betting that there are not enough other farmers doing the same thing to knock the bottom out of the potato market;

He is even betting on the general level of prosperity, both at home and abroad. If it is good, he stands to make a good income; if it turns bad, he stands to make a poor one, or possibly not to make any at all.

All in all, he is betting that the whole complex chain of unrelated events which makes the difference between a good year and a bad one will operate in his favor.

He is betting that money will remain fairly "easy," so that his bank will give him the time he needs on that mortgage.

He is betting that the whole complex chain of unrelated events which makes the difference between a good year and a bad one will operate in his favor.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The A. F. of L. executive council itself saved the Committee for Industrial Organization under John L. Lewis from a smashing blow.

Suspension of the C. I. O. unions was anticipated and the heads of those unions took it with a laugh.

A chance to bust the C. I. O. wide open was exactly what President David Dubinsky of the International Ladies Garment Workers offered the craft union leaders on the council.

A member of the council, as well as of the C. I. O., Dubinsky promised on behalf of his organization to abide by a majority vote decision on C. I. O. activities at the next A. F. of L. convention if the council would only postpone action at this time.

He said he could get several other C. I. O. unions to sign such agreement.

But the other council members were asleep at the switch. They refused Dubinsky's offer and suspended his union along with the others.

The effect of the move was to solidify the C. I. O. unions and make more certain than ever the creation of a separate labor movement.

Unions following the Lewis leadership will not launch their rival federation before the A. F. of L. convention in Tampa in November.

Few of them, if any, will send delegates to the Tampa convention. A credentials committee appointed by President William Green of the A. F. of L. would declare them disqualified and the C. I. O. union delegates would be unable to vote with the rest of the convention on the credentials committee's report.

GREEN'S re-election as president is none too certain. As a member of the suspended United Mine Workers, he must obtain membership in another union to run for office.

Dominant craft union leaders at the convention are ruthless and in some cases personally ambitious. They will keep Green at the top only if they are convinced that they would invite public opprobrium if they ditched him after he had led their fight against Lewis.

Few know it, but certain craft union heads at one time made a compromise offer to Lewis which involved termination of Green's tenure as president. They overestimated the extent of Lewis' personal animosity toward Green, which isn't very great.

Convention control by craft union enemies of Lewis is absolutely certain. Acceptance by the council would have meant that the C. I. O. would have been seriously weakened in both numbers and prestige.

Today's Schedule

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE camera has solved for man the method used by insects in maneuvering their six legs, when walking or running. When studied, the method described above will show that the insect is supported by a firm, three-legged tripod while the three other legs are reaching out for a new hold.

Imagine a platter piled with luscious asparagus, mushrooms, green peas, brilliant diced beets, string beans and corn saute with a snowy head of cauliflower in the center.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Baked apples, cereal, cream, bacon and tomato sandwiches, milk, coffee. LUNCHEON: Surprise baked potatoes, celery hearts, sliced peaches with sugar and cream, crisp cookies, milk, tea.

Polonaise Sauce

One-fourth pound sweet butter, 1 hard-cooked egg, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley.

One-fourth pound of butter equals 1-2 cup. If you can't get sweet butter, wash salted butter to remove the salt, though you won't have quite the same results because sweet butter is made with sweet cream.

Melt butter in flat sauce pan and saute until brown. Add bread crumbs and mix thoroughly.

Fruit Salad in Banana Boats

Two bananas, 1-2 cup seeded white grapes, 1-2 cup diced pineapple, 1-2 cup diced peaches, blackberries.

Cut bananas in half lengthwise without peeling. Take out the pulp in dice and drop in lemon juice. Cut grapes in halves and take out seeds. Drain bananas from lemon juice and mix with other fruit. Fill banana boats and place on a bed of lettuce. Top with salad dressing and garnish with blackberries.

great business to make available to the 26,000,000 automobile owners and every of petroleum products abundant supplies of the "Life blood of this machine age." The public will be shown how petroleum is used from the cradle to the grave and the operations necessary to bring these hundreds of petroleum product necessities to the doorsteps of the people.

Principal oil and natural gas trade associations throughout the United States and Canada are starting this week to select young women employed by their member companies, each girl to be known as Miss Petroleum of the association selecting her. These young women will be brought to Detroit for the exposition and each will be presented with a new automobile. From the girls so selected, one will be chosen by popular vote as Miss Petroleum of America and will reign as queen during the exposition. The automotive industries are cooperating with the exposition management in preparations for the exposition. William B. Way, General Manager of the International Petroleum Exposition and Congress, held by annually in Tulsa, Okla., in speaking of the forthcoming exposition in Detroit said: "Detroit undisputed world headquarters of the automobile industry, which is the largest customer of the oil industry, is the logical city to be host to such an exposition."

Mr. Watson, President of the exposition company arranging the exposition, has been in business in Detroit for 21 years. Andrew M. Rowley, for 14 years editor of The Oil and Gas Journal, of Tulsa, is secretary of the company and Bob Byers of Columbus, Ohio, Vice President of the Lincoln Business Institute, is Managing Director.

Rich and Reckless

By Mary Raymond

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MOLLY MILFORD, rich and popular, has received proposals of marriage from three suitors, but BRENT STUART, whom she loves, has not asked her to marry him.

Dressed with parties, Molly asks Brent to take her to "The Red Poppy," a questionable night club. He refuses. Molly, annoyed, goes with WICK ROSS, another admirer.

The lights go out suddenly and when they come on again Molly finds herself dancing with a handsome stranger. He is, in reality, NELSON FERGUSON, bank robber, and he is one of a group planning to split Molly away and hold her for ransom.

Ferguson tells Molly his name is "NELSON WHITTAKER." A few days later he asks her to have dinner with him and she agrees. Waiting for him at a downtown store, Molly encounters police who appears to be her exact double. Impulsively Molly exchanges her luxurious costume for the other girl's shabby one.

She and "Whittaker" go to a place called "Frenchy's." Molly becomes distrustful of her escort and writes a message to Brent. She asks one of the musicians to deliver it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

THE possibility that Nelson Whittaker might be a gangster did not enter Molly's mind until later in the evening. She had merely come to the conclusion that he was surly and untrustworthy.

All his attention was apparently centered on the outer door. Each time it opened, he looked startled.

Yet when there was a commotion outside the door and the sound of the proprietor's protesting voice reached them, a half smile played across Nelson Whittaker's face. He leaned over to whisper, "Don't be frightened, I'll get you out of this."

"Get me out of what?" Molly's voice was startled.

"A raid, if I don't miss my guess. 'Frenchy's' always getting into trouble with the boys of the police department. He's sort of forgetful about some things, and now and then they come out to refresh his memory with a stiff jolt of law.

"You poor kid," he added, "You're frightened to death, aren't you?"

"No," Molly thought, "I'm not frightened. I was frightened before the police came."

The door opened. Trailing by the protesting proprietor, four policemen entered the room, pistols drawn.

"Don't move, folks. Keep your hands on the table, Nelson Ferguson. A gun in your pocket won't help you any because you're covered four ways. Come on out of that corner and keep clear of that girl with you. The game's up. You've pulled your last bank job."

Molly, staring at her companion, saw the mocking light in his eyes replaced by bewilderment and then by stark terror.

"Those dirty, double-crossing—" he began. In a split second two guns roared simultaneously.

Molly's horrified eyes registered the scene. The dark head of Nelson Whittaker falling forward on the table, hands grotesquely outflung, the white cloth turning crimson.

Then the room went dark. There were excited cries, the commands of the police. Someone caught her roughly by the arm. A hand clasped across her mouth.

"Someone is trying to get me out of this terrible thing," Molly was thinking. "One of the musicians, probably. He needn't have covered my mouth, because I wouldn't have screamed."

She felt weak and faint, and her feet seemed to be crumbling under her. Then everything went blank.

WHEN Molly awakened, she felt the sense of motion. Memory came and she wanted to cry weakly, pitifully. Wanted more than that to awake to a reality which would assure her that the dark happenings of the night were nothing more than a fantastic nightmare.

But she could not cry out because her lips were bound. And all too real, she knew, were the tragic incidents through which she had just passed. Now came another realization—her eyes were bandaged.

How long she had been unconscious, she could not tell. She was in a car which was traveling at great speed. The person who had seized her in the darkness was evidently the one who was driving the car.

Although her hands were bound, the rest of her body was free. She shifted her position, straining to hear the conversation between the two men on the seat in front of her.

"They are taking me back home," Molly told herself, trying desperately to believe it.

But almost instantly came the conviction: "No, they are not. They are taking me far away. I've been kidnaped. It was a plot, from the beginning. . . . The lights going out at 'The Red Poppy' were part of the plot. It was planned for the lights to go out tonight so this man could grab me!"

But why had Nelson Whittaker been shot when he was in on the plot? Those must have been real policemen or they wouldn't have killed him.

The tortured questioning was getting her no where. It would be so easy to break under the strain and become hysterical. All Molly's hope now lay in trying to put dreadful memories behind her, keeping calm and fighting for time. Surely, it was only a question of time when she would be found. Brent—the thought of him brought an ache to her throat—would receive her message and dash to "Frenchy's" piloted by the young musician. The police might still be there and they would begin at once the search which would, eventually lead to her. She must believe that or she would go mad.

For some time she had been folted about on the seat, which indicated they were on a rough, little-traveled road. Then the car stopped suddenly and—the door was opened.

A HARSH voice said, "Now, girl, don't give us any trouble and you'll be all right. You won't find things as well as you're used to, but make believe you're roughin' it a while, and things won't be so bad. If your old man comes across, you'll be back in your fine house in no time. If he's stubborn or puts the police on us—w-y, r your imagination, girlie."

"We're going to untie your hands," the same voice continued, "and take the tape off your mouth. You can sleep nice and peaceful tonight, but tomorrow we're going to have you write a little letter asking your dad for a half million . . . after you're good and rested, girlie."

Molly shuddered under the touch of the man's hand on her arm.

"Cold? Scared maybe," the man chuckled. "Don't worry. Nobody's going to harm you while we're around. You're too valuable."

They had reached a porch. Rough boards creaked under heavy feet of the men. A door opened and a woman's thin, querulous voice came, "So you got her!"

"What did you expect?" drawled the harsh voice. "Don't we generally get what we go after?"

"I've got that little woodroom fixed up with a bed," the woman said. "Louis put a good lock on the door yesterday and bars on the window. Guess she'll be safe as a bird in a cage in there."

Somebody was loosening Molly's arm. The tape was torn from her mouth, but her eyes were still bandaged.

"Just as well to leave her eyes bound until she's in her room," one of the men said. "It wouldn't be so good for her health to see too much or remember anything she sees. Shove her in, Winnie, but keep your trap shut. We'll do all the talking—tomorrow."

Oil Industry Prepares Exhibit For Celebration

DETROIT, Mich.—For the first time in the history of the 13-billion dollar petroleum industry, a mammoth exposition designed for the consumer of petroleum products has been arranged and will be held in Convention Hall here from December 5 to 13 inclusive, according to an announcement made today by Glover Watson, and President of the recently incorporated Michigan National Petroleum Exhibition Company, Inc. Plans are being made for an attendance of approximately 1,000,000 people at the exposition, known as the First International Consumers' Petroleum Exposition.

The purpose of the exposition is to acquaint the people, through colorful pageants and exhibits, with the tremendous strides made by the petroleum industry in production, refining, transportation and marketing. Features which affect public interest will be emphasized throughout the exhibits of oil companies and allied interests and different associations from various states which are cooperating with the exposition management. The American Petroleum Institute is arranging a comprehensive display covering taxes which for the petroleum industry last year amounted to $1,100,000,000.

The petroleum industry this year is spending $1,000,000,000 for equipment and supplies, according to figures compiled by a trade publication, which makes it an outstanding factor in business recovery. At the exposition, according to plans already being made effective, the general public will have an opportunity to see what goes on behind the scenes in this

Diphtheria Toxoid Saves Child Life

AUSTIN — Education of the public to the value of diphtheria immunization has resulted in lowering the incidence of this dread disease, but Texas still loses over 400 of its future citizens each year from this preventable disease, according to records in the Texas State Department of Health.

"It is a generally accepted fact among public health authorities," Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, said, "that any community may control its death rate from diphtheria. Immunization has been proved a safe and effective preventive measure. Wherever immunizing treatment has been extensively used, diphtheria has steadily decreased."

"The most forceful weapon in the control of diphtheria is prevention through immunization, rather than cure of the disease after it has developed. Children can be protected against diphtheria by the use of what is known as a toxoid. Young children are particularly susceptible to the disease. Accordingly, as soon as a baby is six months old, the parents are advised to take it to the family physician and have it immunized—protected, by the use of toxoid. Older children in the family who have not had the protective treatment, should be immunized also, and this should be attended to now before the school season begins. This immunizing agent is absolutely safe to administer; there is only a slight local reaction, and practically no constitutional or troublesome after effects. It confers a lifetime immunity in the majority of cases. To be certain that immunization is complete, however, the child should be taken back to the physician six months after the toxoid was administered, and given the Schick test.

"It is within the power of the parents of this state, cooperating with their physicians and public health departments, to eliminate diphtheria from Texas."

Explorers Plan To Sail Pacific In Twin Canoes

HONOLULU — Two daring French explorers, Capt. Eric Bischoff and Joseph Tatibouet, have completed the first of two sea-going canoes with which they expect to explore the Pacific for several years.

The two hulls are patterned after ancient Polynesian canoes. The first one has been brought down to Waikiki Beach from the woods where it was hewed out and it is expected that the second one will be completed shortly.

Once the two hulls are in the water, they will be joined by a platform, masts and Chinese sails

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile isn't flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely.
