The Madrid Government, hard pressed on all fronts, threw more men into the fighting lines today in an effort to offset by number the relentless rebel advance.

The war news was preponderously in favor of he rebels. Their well trained forces battered away at the loyalist lines in the Talavera section, making slow but steady progress in their drive for Toledo and Madrid.

At Toledo, the seat of the Alca-zar contingent, the loyalists seeming no nearer to dislodging the rebels within the ruined fortress than they were two months ago.

The capitol obviously was in grave terror. In the Guadarrama mountain passes, just north of Madrid, the rebels pounded away steadily as they gathered forces for a general drive southward.

On other fronts the government forces also were on the defensive. The besieged rebels at Oviedo, on the northwest coast, were holding AUSTIN, Sept. 21-Members of the state highway commission todan announced they would consider no major state program until a federally aided program has been disposed of.

The federal program, commissioner John Wood said, will close all gaps on major roads. Closing of these gaps will give the state the right to place about 1800 miles of state projects on the federal aid program.

The program is divided into three sections. Section one calls for expenditure of $15,000,000 to close gaps on major roads. First contracts on this section probably will be let in November. A second section will supple-

American Ideals An Election Issue

The average citizen must be getting more than a little tired of the campaign orators who are going up and down the land telling all who listen that the coming presidential election is the most fateful in the nation's history.

America isn't on the edge of a precipice. It will still be here a year from today, whether Roosevelt or Landon is sitting in the White House. It's a tough country, and it will go on doing business at the old stand, regardless of the outcome of the election.

Nevertheless there is a sense in which this campaign is going to be a landmark for future historians. How it comes out may not change the course of history; how it is conducted may be exceedingly important.

Consider this fact: America is one of the last of the great democracies in this modern world. All across Europe, in country after country, democratic institutions have collapsed and fallen. In countries where they have not fallen, they are under attack as never before.

Ordinary men all over the civilized world have come to wonder whether, after all, complete self-government is a working possibility in the world as it exists today.

These people are watching our presidential campaign this year as never before. How will the greatest of democracies conduct her affairs this year?

Will she, in a time of great stress, when men are worried and uncertain and the future is perplexing, be able to make a sane and intelligent decision on the issues without giving way to emotion or prejudice? With unimportant side issues, we shall be telling the other nations that democracy doesn't work so well, after all.

How America answers those questions may play a the Burlington-Rock Island railroad and chief executive officer of closer together, and which calls can the riding quelity of a giral major part in settling the fate of democracy.

For this country, which introduced democracy to the the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf Dallas, is as follows: modern world, must now justify it. It must demonstrate that the common folk of a great country deserve their freedom.

What happens between now and election day is allimportant. If we spend our time on hush-hush campaign rumors, run after the stump speakers who devote themselves to attacks on character, and get all befuddled with unimportant side issues, we shall be telling the other nations that democracy doesn't work so well, after all.

But if we hew straight to the line, examine the issues thoroughly and intelligently, refuse to be stampeded by fear or prejudice, accept each candidate as an honest and patriotic American, and make our decision finally according our most sober judgment—then the cause of democracy in the world as a whole will get a great, new lease

Many cooks are timid about trying to make cream puffs, but they are really not difficult to prepare. Quite the contrary. Any cook who knows how to tell a good cream puff when she eats one can bake one. can bake one.

This recipe makes light-as-a-feather puffs. They have a crisp crust and are hollow inside, as all good cream puffs should be. Twelve Cream Puffs

Twelve Cream Puffs
One-half cup butter, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 3 eggs, unbeaten.
Put the butter and water in a saucepan, bring to the boiling point. The boiling point means when it bubbles.
Sift the flour into the mixture and beat well.
Continue beating until the mixture forms a ball when rolled between two fingers and does not stick to the side of the pan. You can easily tell when the mixture forms a lump in the center of the pan.

Or 4 inches between each puff for spreading.
Pile the mixture higher in the center of each puff, making a peak.
Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for exactly 1-2 hour.
Watch your oven carefully and see that the heat doesn't creep up any higher than 350.
The final test, if you are not sure when they are done, is to remove one puff from the pan. If it does not fall in the cool air, it is thoroughly done.
When the puffs are well cooled,

and let cool slightly.

Then break the eggs in, one at taste.

Kay is assigned to the western division of the service. MONTE BLAINE, apprentice pilot, pays her marked attentions. Monte is daring, romantic, but Kay is more interested in Ted. She and DICKIE, Ted's ndopted 7-year-old son, become close friends.

Ted leaves on a flight across the Pacific. Monte and RALPH BANGS, another pilot, call at Kay's apartment one evening, decide to hold a house warming. HORIS LEE, a stewardess and close friend of Kay's, arrives, rnnouncing that land planes are grounded because of fog.

Other guests come later. Though the evening passes gaily, Kay thinks of Ted over the Pacific and is worried.

In Texas History

It is easy to teach children history with penciled outline pictures of historical subjects and colored crayola. History taught in this way is never forgotten and a taste is created for more information.

"Centennial Projects, Texas Under Six Flags," contains 36 pages of outlines on many phases of Texas history and events, with cover showing the Texas Capitol under six flags, each in its correct colors.

This beautiful project book mailed postpaid for 25 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

THE foot of a spider is covered in toothed claws, somewhat resembling a comb. This arrangement makes it possible for the spider to place its feet on each individual thread of its web as it travels along, without breaking the strands. Other insects make no effort to walk on the tiny lines, and become hopelessly entangled.
