BOTH SIDES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Official views of the Republican and Democratic Committees on leading issues of the campaign are presented by leaders of the two parties in this series of twelve articles, taking the place of Rodney Dutcher's Washington column during Dutcher's vacation. The Republican and Democratic arguments are presented on alternate days.

By Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Vice Chairman, Democratic National Campaign Committee

The sane and sound leaders of business should—and most of them do—thank God for Franklin D. Roosevelt. There is a multitude of others, of course, who curse him. The sane and sound leaders of business get beyond the political news pages and the partisan editorials of their daily papers into that department where no newspaper publisher can afford to tolerate error. They go to the business pages.

About the time that Governor Landon was accepting the Republican nomination and the Chicago Tribune, in common with other anti-New Deal papers, was hailing him as the savior of business, the Tribune printed a remarkable statistical summary in its business pages. In a graphic and understandable way it told the story of what has actually happened to business under the Franklin D. Roosevelt who its editorial writers were denouncing as a menace to business. Its principal features compared important business factors for the first six months of 1933 with the same factors for 1936.

HERE are the facts from the Chicago Tribune's summary: Loadings of freight cars, and nobody loads a freight car unless there is an actual business transaction, a sale, increased more than 24 per cent for the first six months of this year over the first six months of 1933. For the same period our foreign trade, which President Roosevelt ruined, according to his opponents, actually increased 85 per cent. Nobody builds an automobile unless it can be quickly sold. In the first six months of 1933 the automobile industry built 990,000 cars. In the first six months of 1936 it built almost 2,500,000 cars, an increase of 151 per cent!

THERE can be no better index of the solid permanence of this improvement than the remarkable increase of building construction between 1933 and 1936. People do not put their savings or their borrowings into new buildings, industrial or housing, unless they feel that a profit on the investment is certain for many years to come. According to the Chicago Tribune's summary of facts, for the first six months of 1933, new building construction was valued at only $432,000,000. In the first six months of 1934 it jumped to $894,000,000. There was a slight recession in the first six months of 1935. But for the same period in 1936 building construction reached $1,210,000,000. That was an increase of 180 per cent.

FARMERS RUSH HARVESTING AS FLOODS NEAR

NAVASOTA, Sept. 30 — Lowland farmers along the flooded Brazos river today harvested crops in an effort to salvage their labors before the onrushing streams destroyed them.

Keeping constant watch on the Brazos and Navasota rivers, which converge at Washington, the farmers remained on their property but moved their livestock to higher ground.

Crest of the Brazos moved slowly downstream from Valley Junction, but residents of this area were prepared for instant flight.

Thousands of acres of rich farmland were inundated today at Gonzales for the third time since July, when floodwaters of the Guadalupe river reached a crest of 35 feet.

Police Chief James Yates said all were held on vagrancy charges and "for investigation." Yates had previously announced he would not permit Browder to make an address here tonight.

"I told Browder I wanted him to stay out of Terre Haute and he defied my orders," the police chief said. "We do not want radicals here."

CONFAB PAINTS DARK OUTLOOK FOR FARMERS

No relief for drought-stricken farmers was seen Wednesday by members of the Eastland County Drought Committee who returned from a conference with WPA officials at Abilene for liberalization of rules to afford employment for farmers.

An increased county quota of 45, granted Tuesday by the WPA officials, will be absorbed by that many of hundreds on waiting lists, R. R. Bradshaw of Scranton, a member of the committee, stated. The committee members were also advised farmers seeking WPA employment must follow the regular procedure.

The next step of the drought committee in its efforts to aid the county, designated by the Agriculture Department on the emergency list, had not been mapped.

Reduced rates on shipments of feed into the county became effective Wednesday.

Sale of Beer Is Defeated In Vote

GEN. FRANCO IS NAMED HEAD OF ALL SPAIN

BURGOS, Spain, Sept. 30 — Gen. Francisco Franco, insurgent commander, has been named head of the provisional nationalist government, it was announced today.

Spain's civil war neared its dramatic climax today, but not its end.

The insurgents were in the ascendancy. They were massing on all fronts, on roads leading from Toledo to Madrid.

Except for a miracle the capital seemed doomed. The Madrid loyalists, outmatched by the insurgent forces, were ready to resist to the end.

Madrid made plans for rationing food.

The fall of Madrid, however, although it means a rebel victory and domination of Spain, does not mean the end of the war. Months of scattered strife likely will follow.

The anarchists, communists and some others undoubtedly will never be reconciled to a fascist or a semi-fascist rule.

The apparent disintegration of the loyalist defenders of Madrid made it seem likely the capital will fall in two weeks. The rebels have set Oct. 12, the day Columbus discovered America, for their entry into the capital.

The Madrid government began mustering every able bodied man for a last stand. The semi-independent Catalanian government, loyal to Madrid, also began mobilizing. If Madrid falls, Catalonia would continue to resist, unless bought off with an offer of a separate republic.

Rebel airplanes made their sixth army raid on Bilbao today and it was reported seven big fires were started by a loyalist bombing raid at Oviedo, farther west.

Leon Dam Data Sent Engineers

Data on the Leon river flood control district was sent this week to the U. S. Army Engineer Corps in Mineral Wells, J. Frank Sparks, chairman of the board, stated at Eastland Wednesday.

The data was prepared by an engineer who made a survey of the proposed project.

Sparks stated the project was included in the omnibus flood control bill passed by congress in its last session. The bill authorized construction of the projects but did not allocate funds, Sparks said.

It is understood projects in the bill are approved by army engineers will be constructed. A hearing with engineers has been sought by Sparks and other members of the board.

The Leon project includes the construction of a dam at Mangum near Eastland as part of the water conservation plan. Eastland and Callahan counties are included in the district formed by the state legislature.

Eastland Farmer Is Raising Capon

John Reed, farming 4 miles southwest of Eastland, is raising some Rhode Island Red capons to determine whether there is sufficient profit in capon raising to justify going into it on a large scale. He had the county agent caponize 9 cockerels several days ago, which will be grown out and fattened for the winter market. He expects to make them weigh 8 to 10 pounds when they are devalued.

U. S. Freedom—Light That Never Failed

It is easy enough to say that the celebration of Harvard's tercentenary marks a great milestone in the progress of free thought and unhampered inquiry. It is not so easy to realize that this fact has a deep significance for every plain citizen in the country...

Preserving the light of learning at Harvard is not simply a matter for broad-shouldered speeches of congratulation. That Harvard and her sister universities and colleges may look forward to 300 years more of free and unhampered research and teaching is just as vital to the steel puddler, the dirt farmer, and the garment-maker as to the cloistered professor.

For the mere existence of a university such as Harvard, which finds its way according to its own inner light and heeds to the line of eternal truths without regard for the shifts and changes in outside affairs, is a symbol that the country in which it exists maintains that freedom by which men in all walks of life can realize their own potentialities.

This freedom is the freedom from all restraints save those which are absolutely necessary to make society reasonably secure and orderly. It is the freedom to think, to talk, and to live as one chooses, whether he be a great scholar wrestling with abstract truth, a corn-and-hog farmer trying to find a way out of economic disaster, or a Pennsylvania steel hand eager to exercise the right of free assembly.

And freedom of this kind is a thing which we must give in order to receive. As President Roosevelt remarked at the tercentenary exercises, "it depends on men's tolerance, self-restraint, and devotion to freedom, not only for themselves, but also for others."

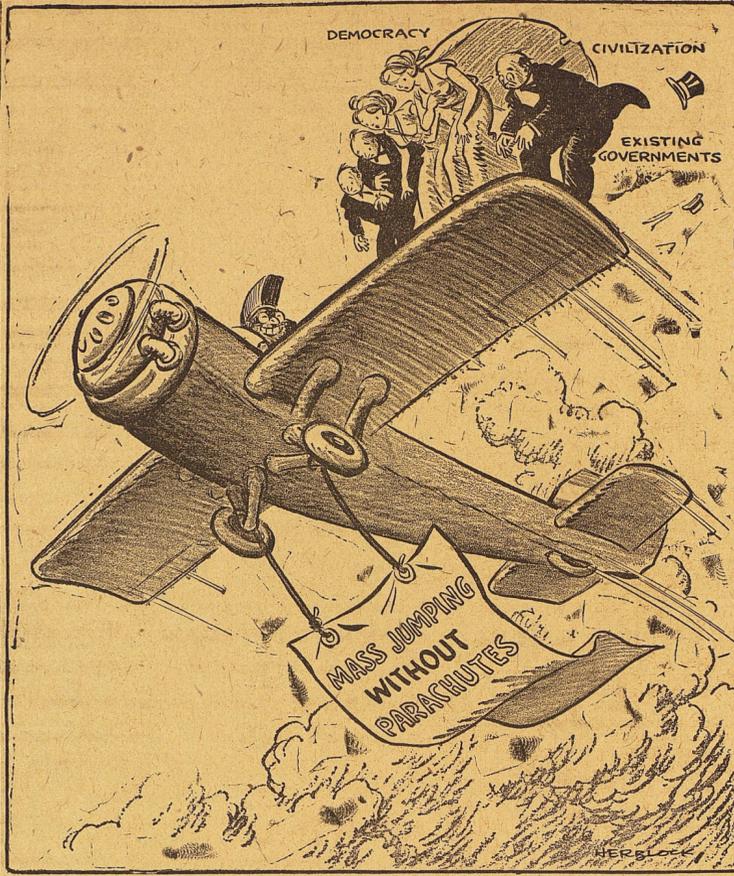

It is the very opposite of regimentation and repression. It is not afraid of dissent or heresy. It has a profound distrust of any attempt to discipline men's minds, and an even greater distrust of those who would in any way limit men's rights to say precisely what they please where they please.

It runs in an unbroken line from the great university down to the humblest citizen. Infringe it in one place and you infringe it everywhere. Shackle the scholar and the teacher and you will find, sooner or later, that you have prepared shackles for your own ankles.

In one nation after another, during these dark post-war years, the lights of freedom have flickered and gone out. Great universities have been curbed to the will of dictatorial classes and individuals; and in each country where that has happened, the ordinary man—wage-earner, farmer, business man, professional man—has seen his own freedom to order his life as he pleases taken away from him.

The light still burns in America. May the Harvard tercentenary remind us anew that our greatest responsibility is to keep it aflame.

ANOTHER FEATURE OF THE NEXT WAR

Sport Glances. By Grayson

SYRACUSE.—Vic Hanson's jutting jaw isn't one to droop with a bad attack of the weeps this year; rather, the Syracuse University mentor has it thrust forth pugnaciously with the attitude that the Orange is going to have "potentially, one of our best years."

Pinned down to facts and figures during one of the scrappiest practice sessions these eyes have seen in years, Vic summed up the situation thusly: "We have last year's team back (a team that lost only one and tied one out of seven games) with the exception of the 1935 co-captains, Ed Jontos and George Perrault, who, incidentally, were two of the greatest guards to play here in recent years. I might add that they were really the strength of a mediocre line."

"Vannie Albanese, our captain, who was chosen on many All-East selections, is due, I believe, for his best year. He is without doubt the greatest fullback we have had since Jack McBride. "I have a sophomore by the name of Art Morrison from whom I expect great things. He has plenty of speed, and is a dangerous climax runner and a triple-threat. You'll hear more of him as the year progresses."

But what about that line, from which the two bulwarks, Ed Jontos and Perrault, were lost? "Well, I don't think it will measure up to the forward wall we had two years ago, but I believe what I would call exceptionally good, due to lack of speed and ability. However, they are the best available, and I am inclined to believe they will play a consistent game of football."

they will play a consistent game of football.

"As you know, the key to any good football team is a couple of exceptionally good tackles, and as I visualize the season, that is the most important work to be accomplished in developing a good team here this fall."

Hanson points out that all along the schedule his opponents have been strengthened, but despite that fact, he sees a successful year ahead.

Cornell, Columbia, Penn State, Maryland, Indiana, Baldwin-Wallace, and Colgate are better than they were a year ago, he says, and he really expects to take a couple of lickings along the line. He sees in Columbia another roaring Lion varsity, built around Sidney Luckman, a phenomenal sophomore Coach Lou Little has unearthed.

HANSON is watching Carl Snavely's experiments at Cornell with interest, and has some very good ideas on what the former North Carolina mentor, succeeding Gil Dobie, will face in his first year at Ithaca. "The Cornell situation as I see it is one that is apt to encounter a few disappointments before the season is over, inasmuch as Snavely is planning on playing a team composed of at least 10 sophomores."

"Don't lose sight of the fact that Cornell is very much on the upgrade, and in two years will be one of the leading powers of the east."

"By the way, the Ithacans expect to beat us this year for the first time since the series was re-founded in 1933." But after watching those Orange bruisers at work, we've an idea that Cornell will have to wait at least another year.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY KAY DUNN, pretty airplane stewardess, falls in love with TED GRAHAM, veteran pilot who flies the trans-Pacific route. Ted has two interests in life—his job and DICKIE, his adopted son, 7 years old. When Ted asks Kay to marry him, she fears it is merely to make a home for Dickie, but she agrees.

She does not agree, though, with Ted's theories that marriage to be successful, must be planned scientifically, just as a plane flight. She is rebellious because he insists her housekeeping must be carried on in the same way, with charts and budgets. They have their first quarrel when Kay hears that Ted has lectured MONTE BLAINE, another pilot. Kay believes it is because she and Monte went dancing together.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII THE first quarrel of Kay's and Ted's married life ended in a reconciliation, but it left its mark on Ted's mind. He had spent more time at home when he was in port and Ted agreed she had not meant her angry words. But the conflict was still in their hearts. Kay knew it and Ted knew it. She could see it in his eyes when he kissed her goodbye before his next trans-Pacific flight.

For several days after he had gone she was strangely quiet. She would sit for hours, gazing across the distant reaches of the bay. Finally, after a struggle, she took up life again as it had been in the little house on the sands. Monte Blaine seemed to avoid Kay. He had received his promotion from apprentice pilot to pilot, and everybody was pleased. Throughout the spring nothing disturbed the tranquility of the colony except the occasional ripples of gossip at bridge.

IN this way a rumor reached Kay's ears, third or fourth hand, that Ted had been seen in Honolulu with a foreign girl called Iliah. It was, Kay felt sure, the same Iliah she had met on her honeymoon in the Orient almost a year before. The news was not reassuring to a lonely wife's peace of mind.

But Kay laughed off the tale. Doris had repeated it to her before some others, and Kay tried resolutely to show them that she wasn't a silly, jealous woman. "That's a long grind at the controls, from port to port," she said. "Of course Ted dances at the hotels when he is in port. Why shouldn't he? He has to stay keen for his work."

"And what about the wife's job at home?" Doris said, laughing. "Doesn't she have to have relaxation to stay keen for such a man?" Everybody laughed, dismissing the incident lightly, but, deep in her heart, Kay faced a struggle.

The look Iliah had given her in Manila on the honeymoon was neatly and precisely closeted in her mind. She long had anticipated her wedding anniversary. For weeks she had counted the days, even the hours. Ted was due from Hawaii the day before the anniversary, and Kay planned a little dinner for them, alone, even excluding Dickie. She spent hours on the menu, and did most of the cooking herself.

Then she went happily down to the landing to see the Mariner come in. But Ted did not walk down the gangplank with the crew of six. The acting captain handed her his letter. Kay read it through a mist of tears. He had been detained at the company's office in Honolulu. He needed some advice from an expert there on a feature of his gyroplane. He was coming in on the next plane, a few days later.

And he had forgotten their first wedding anniversary! He didn't even mention it. At home Kay cried a little. Then Doris came in with Ralph Bangs and an invitation to a gay party. Doris tried to console her friend. "It's too bad," she said, "about Ted being held up in Honolulu. I remembered it was your wedding anniversary, and we were going to surprise you both with a party tonight."

Even Doris had remembered the date! "We're going to dance at the Presidio," Doris said. Kay smiled at them, holding her arms wide. "But to dance at the Presidio I have to have a man!" "That's easy," Doris advised. "We'll call up Monte. Poor Monte! Since he's been promoted to a pilot he's been as dead as a stick! I think he's afraid of that husband of yours."

Suddenly Kay's eyes danced with an inner fire. She picked up the telephone book, and searched for Monte's number. "This is Kay," she said when the husky masculine voice answered over the wire. "Remember? We used to dance together in the good old days—before the war?" "Which war?" Monte said, laughing. "I can't keep track of them." "Monte!" Her voice rebuked him. "Ted was held up in Honolulu and Doris and Ralph are here with talk about a party. Why don't you come over and go with us?" "I'll be right over!" he said.

At the Presidio they met the aviation colony, on a larger scale—a compact group in which everybody knew everybody else. Gossip flew. There were people there who were as familiar with Honolulu and Manila as with Chicago or New York. Many of the officers' wives had flown to far-flung army posts with Ted Graham as pilot. They were anxious to meet his wife.

Kay liked her new acquaintances. She loved the glitter of spurs and the uniforms. She liked to dance with the officers. But, most of all, tonight she enjoyed Monte Blaine. His spirits were high. He was easily the handsomest man in the room. Many of the older women, solicitous for their unmarried daughters, cast acquisitive eyes in his direction. "Who is that remarkable young man dancing with the red-headed girl? Buzz! Buzz!" Lognettes clicked. Fans halted in mid-air. Kay was dancing near by and could hear every word. She wondered why gossipers so often fail to realize how loudly their voices carry.

But all at once Kay's eyes became as still as china eyes. Her fingers tightened in Monte's arm and she couldn't help but listen. "I suppose she has the right to dance with this gay young fellow," a voice at her right said. "I flew with Ted Graham from Honolulu the last time, my dear. He is always dancing in the islands with that woman. You've seen her! That horribly rich young widow, Rosalind Kruger. So terribly attractive and so smart!" "My dear, my husband once said that Rosalind Kruger was a menace to the army and navy both."

Kay leaned against Monte for an instant. Something closed over her heart and squeezed it mercilessly. She felt a little faint. Her hands were leaden. "Monte, let's go out in the fresh air," she said. "I need fresh air. A cigaret." She hurried down the terrace steps into the dark. She didn't want anybody to see what was going on behind the mask of her face. (To Be Continued)

'Surprise' Entry in Baby Derby

(Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

Ruling that unwed mothers and those separated from their husbands are eligible to compete in Toronto's famous $500,000 baby derby added zest to the race, clearing the status of Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke, and making her one of the leading contenders for the fortune left by Charles Vance Millar, Toronto sportsman. Mrs. Clarke is declared to be the mother of 10 children, born since 1926, all said to be properly registered. Five of them are reported to have been born since she was separated from her husband in 1931. Mrs. Clarke is shown here with one of her sons as they were snapped while walking in a Toronto street.

Building Soil Is Greatest Problem in Eastland County, Says Agent

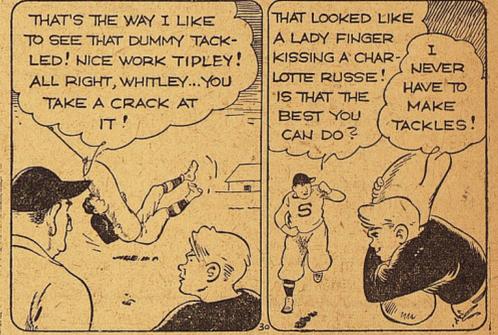

"The greatest long-time problem facing Eastland county farmers today is the building of the soil, our greatest natural resource," remarked county agent Cook when he and assistant county agent Barnhart were holding their first terracing demonstration of the season on the K. F. Kirk farm, east of Colony school last Tuesday. "The soil of the county shows to have been as badly neglected generally as any I ever saw," Cook added, "and the agricultural extension force of the county feels its duty is to do everything possible to encourage the up-building of the soil. For that reason we urge every landowner who possibly can to cooperate with us in making the 1936-37 terracing season the most successful in the history of the county. Although terracing is only one step in building the soil, it is probably the most important step." The county agents stated that those in the county wishing to terrace or just contour their fields, can get the cooperation of the county agents by filling out a terracing request card in their office in Eastland or writing for a card to fill out. The first step in terracing, the running of lines, can be done on an average field in one day. A season is being considered now which will offer several crews who will run lines in the county as long as there is any demand. Whether the plan will be followed depends upon the number of requests received by the county agent's office. A good system of terraces can be constructed at a cost of $1 to $1.50 per acre, depending upon the contour of the land, condition of the land, and kind of equipment used to do the construction work. The most economical and quickest way to build good terraces is with large road machinery. A good terrace can be built with four to six good work animals and a terracing grader, but more time is needed. There are several such graders in Eastland county. A regular 4-horse road grader is not suitable for building terraces as it will not build them high enough, with lots of patience, a reasonably good terrace can finally be built with two horses and a breaking plow. Those who use this method should not attempt to build many terraces in one season. Experience has taught that a good terrace should be at least 24 feet wide and 18 inches high when settled, which means that first construction should be at least 22 inches high. Terraces should be sown down with small grain, sorghum, or some other fibrous crop the first season to prevent their breaking when it rains. If they are properly built and protected the first year

Q. Will you give the exact dates of the destructive storms at Indianola, Calhoun county? A. S.
A. The first, which left most of the town of 2000 in ruins, was on Sept. 15, 1875. The town was rebuilt, and the second storm, more violent than the first, completed the work of destruction, Aug. 20, 1886, resulting in the abandonment of the place.
Q. What was the first county seat of Shelby county, and when and how was it moved to Center? T. B.
A. When the county was organized in 1837, Shelbyville was made the county seat. In 1866, R. T. Parker, then county clerk, drove a stake in the pine forest seven miles from Shelbyville, contending that as this was the center of the county it should be the county seat. He secured the holding of an election to move the county seat to the stake. The stake won. A local war was almost precipitated, but Parker slipped the county records to the new location at night, and opened his office next morning in a tent. The place became known as Center.
Q. When was Marion county organized, from what territory, and for whom was it named? N. N.
A. Marion county, the area of which was once in Red River county, was organized in 1860 from Cass and Harrison counties, though Jefferson, the county seat, was founded as early as 1836. It was named for Gen. Francis Marion, known as the "Swamp Fox" of the American Revolution.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK.—The Wall Street industrial-financial community is still lined up almost solidly against the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but with certain exceptions, a few mental reservations, and a fairly general tendency to fear the worst.
Governor Landon is not a hero in the Wall Street area. That may be partly because of a feeling that he hasn't yet fully demonstrated his capacity to straighten out the nation's affairs. But it is certainly in part due to the fact that he has refused to take an outright conservative position and insists on demonstrating certain liberal leanings.
Landon conspicuously refused, on his eastern trip, to rub noses with Old Guard leaders in New York state with whom Wall Street is on excellent terms. His declaration for repeal of the undivided corporate surplus tax appealed to many financiers and big business men and his previous stand on labor was popular among conservatives. But there are other factors which tend to make him somewhat less than an idol.
The corporation of one of the largest employers in America went west while ago laden with advice to see Landon. He came back reporting that no one in the Landon camp at Topeka was in the least interested in his ideas, although some interest was displayed in the amount of money he might contribute.
ALTHOUGH the bitterness which the upper and near-upper crust in New York feels toward Roosevelt hasn't abated and shouldn't be minimized, one no longer hears many complaints based on the uncertainty of what to expect under Roosevelt.
Whether the president's assurances that new taxes won't be sought if he is still in the White House after December have had much to do with that is doubtful. "Big Business" operators have assimilated the fact that the next Congress will be Democratic, certainly in the Senate and by all odds of probability in the House as well. And that still leaves "uncertainty" as an element to face, regardless of who's elected.
NEVERTHELESS, some of the boys a couple of steps removed from the top are willing to admit that what really bites the captains of Wall Street and industry hardest is the fact that they have lost rather than regained prestige and power under the New Deal.
As an erstwhile "ruling class," they have been challenged by Roosevelt and his followers, as well as by Congress.
THE Street, meanwhile, is anticipating a big outburst of dividend payments in December if Roosevelt is re-elected. Some estimates say corporate disbursements might rise as high as $4,000,000,000 for the year, nearly two-thirds of an anticipated net corporate income of more than $6,000,000,000.
The new tax of 7 to 27 per cent on undivided corporation profits is responsible for these expectations, but it is said that many boards of directors are withholding decision on dividend policies until after election, because Governor Landon has promised repeal of the tax.
But even if Landon should win, the directors might still be in a box. They couldn't be sure Landon could persuade a presumably hostile Congress to repeal the tax. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By NEA Service
THOSE of you who are firm believers in the idea that a full cookie jar is the surest method of obtaining a reputation for hospitality will enjoy this unusual recipe for chocolate poppy seed cookies.
Of course, you may have heard tales about poppy seeds, tall tales about the dreams they inspire, but these innocent little poppy seeds will induce no dreams except those of good, crunchy cookies with a wonderful flavor, due to the use of the little black seeds. You can buy poppy seeds at most grocery and delicatessen shops. Usually 1-4 cups (1-2 pound) sell for about ten cents.
Poppy Seed Cookies
One-half cup butter, 2 ounces sweet cooking chocolate, 1-2 cup hot milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup poppy seeds, 1-1/4 cups flour, 1-4 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.
The sweet chocolate comes in packages just like the bitter chocolate does, marked off in one ounce squares.
Soak the poppy seeds in the hot milk.
Melt the chocolate over hot water.
Cream the butter and sugar and add the poppy seeds and milk; then the melted chocolate and sifted dry ingredients (flour, cloves, baking powder and cinnamon).
Mix thoroughly to a smooth batter.
Grease a large cookie pan and drop the batter in small rounds about two inches in diameter and one inch apart.
Have your oven moderate (350 degrees), and bake the cookies about 12 minutes.
Remove with a spatula or flat knife to a board to cool.
These cookies will be crisp and have a delicate and elusive flavor.
Incidentally, here is a solution for that knotty problem of "what is there in the house to serve with drinks". They are an ideal accompaniment to tea or coffee or even iced drinks, since they aren't too sweet.
And to serve with a fruit dessert, nothing could be better than these delicious tid-bits.
By the way, save this recipe for your pre-Christmas baking. These cookies are just right to have with a Christmas or New Year egg-nog.

Tomorrow's Menu

EASTLAND CITY BOND DECISION IS INVALIDATED

ABILENE, Sept. 30. — An order setting aside decree of Sept. 15 in the case of J. V. Abraham, et al, vs. the City of Eastland, et al, has been received from Judge J. Whitfield Davidson of the Abilene federal district court, by the deputy district clerk here.

Suit in the case was filed May 10, 1935, with four plaintiffs appearing for all bondholders of the city of Eastland. From 1911 to 1929, Eastland issued bonds in excess of one million dollars. The plaintiffs charge that no payment has been made to bondholders since 1921.

An injunction was granted in October, 1935, restraining the city from dissipating the sinking fund in a hearing in Abilene before Judge James C. Wilson. Final hearing on merits was held July 20 and 21 in Fort Worth before Judge Davidson.

At conclusion of the hearing Judge Davidson set Aug. 4, Fort Worth, as time and place for completing testimony. In the final decree, all outstanding bonds and warrants of the city of Eastland were validated and money adjustments were decreed, aggregating $318,868.11 to the sixteen claimants, and intervenors besides the plaintiffs. The court also decreed that of $2.50 total tax levy of the city, $1.12-1-2 should be set aside in a sinking fund. The city denied validity of some of the securities.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are Elcock and Martin, of Wichita, Kans., and Smith and Eplen of Abilene. The city of Eastland is represented by Frank Sparks and Percy Sayles of Eastland, intervenors by Wagstaff, Harwell, Wagstaff and Douthett of Abilene, Earl Conner, Sr., and Milburn McCarty of Eastland; the banking commissioner and the RFC by Carl P. Springer of Eastland, R. H. Walls of San Angelo and Ocie Speer of Austin.

Universal Credit Company Has Big Expansion Plans

Upon completing its eighth year of exclusive service to the great Ford Market, Universal Credit Company has in operation offices in 100 cities from coast to coast, serving in a convenient and courteous manner the many thousands of time buyers of Ford cars and trucks.

More than 60 of these offices have been opened since late summer of 1934. Additional operating offices are planned for the remainder of this year and further expansion will follow where necessary in 1937.

This expansion program has been undertaken to keep pace with the great public acceptance of the Ford V8. Throughout the country Ford dealers have come to look upon Universal Credit Company as an outstanding sales adjunct and many outstanding dealers have stated that UCC low cost, flexible plans for the Ford buyer will play an even more important part in future sales than in the past.

The outlook for Ford sales for the remainder of this year and for 1937 is assured with the highest type of sales leadership indicated on every hand. Universal Credit is proud to play a part in bringing the Ford products to constantly increasing thousands of the buying public by making possible the purchase of Lincoln, Lincoln-Zephyr, and Ford V8 cars and trucks out of income, at new low costs in the industry.

During the comparatively brief period that has elapsed since the Universal Credit Company was established, that institution has financed the purchase of Ford transportation by the motor-buying public of America in the amount of more than $2,000,000,000, serving a total of more than 3,000,000 customers of Ford dealers.

Ever since Universal Credit Company commenced operations, over eight years ago, financing costs on Ford products have been materially reduced. It is estimated that time payment buyers of Ford cars and trucks have thus saved in excess of $75,000,000 through the lower financing costs made available by the authorized Ford finance plans of Universal Credit Company. These lower credit costs have been and continue to be constructive contributions toward national economic recovery.

When asked regarding the outlook for 1937, Mr. Ernest Kanzler, president of the Universal Credit Company, recently said:

"I consider our expansion program the best expression of our confidence in recovery and in an expanding business future. We are going ahead with our expansion plans without hesitation. We have increased our offices to over 100 located in all sections of the United States to meet the growing demands of the public for Ford cars and for our credit services.

"These are, more than ever, days of building good will through efficient service and courtesy in the credit industry. Our company has always served the Ford Dealer and Ford time buyer with these factors uppermost in our mind. Throughout all our growth," said Mr. Kanzler, "we have always kept before us our original statement of purposes made several years ago when we were first organized, in which we said: 'In the performance of our many duties, we can remember always that beyond our contribution to the advancement of organizer industry, UCC is at the same time contributing substantially to the happiness and contentment of society.'

"By extending credit to every deserving person in the nation, we are enabling him to purchase Ford products at the lowest possible cost and are thereby bringing greater health and happiness to a large group of American people, heads of families as well as their children.

"In the process of transition from the crowded city to the healthy country districts, UCC is aiding the American family to establish itself with economic advantages in more desirable locations and thus helping to raise the standard of American living conditions.
