Legion Revelry Proves Human Nature Elastic

To witness an American Legion convention is to marvel anew at the way human beings can take a distressing memory and dance a maypole dance around it.

The legionnaires are bound together by memories of a common experience; and, save for a lucky few, this common experience was in the highest degree unpleasant. Not one of the veterans would be very glad to live it over; not one can fail to hope and pray that his own son may be spared a repetition of it.

And yet, with nothing but this background to tie them together, the men of the legion make their annual convention one of the most hilarious, rousing, carefree good times ever seen on the planet.

They come to their convention with bands and drum corps. They turn busy city streets into carnival playgrounds. They whoop and dance and parade and have more fun, as the saying goes, than a barrel of monkeys; and you seldom get so much as a hint of the dark background that each of them must carry in his memory.

There is something amazingly elastic and resilient about human nature. It can bounce back after the most harrowing experiences. You can knock it down and kick it and step on it and push it around until you are blue in the face; but you can't seem to break that mainspring that enables men to crack jokes about it afterward.

It is true of the legion; it has been true of ex-soldiers everywhere. The men of the G. A. R. — so old, now, and gray and dignified — used to cut similar high jinks at their annual get-togethers; if you could dig up the right set of records, you would probably find that the paid-off veterans of Caesar's legions used to turn Rome upside down when they came in from the farm for a night or two.

There are good people who deplore this trait. They feel that men ought to be sobered by their memories of war; that veterans' reunions ought to be solemn and exalted occasions in which the costs of war are soberly weighed and the survivors prayerfully dedicate themselves to the cause of peace.

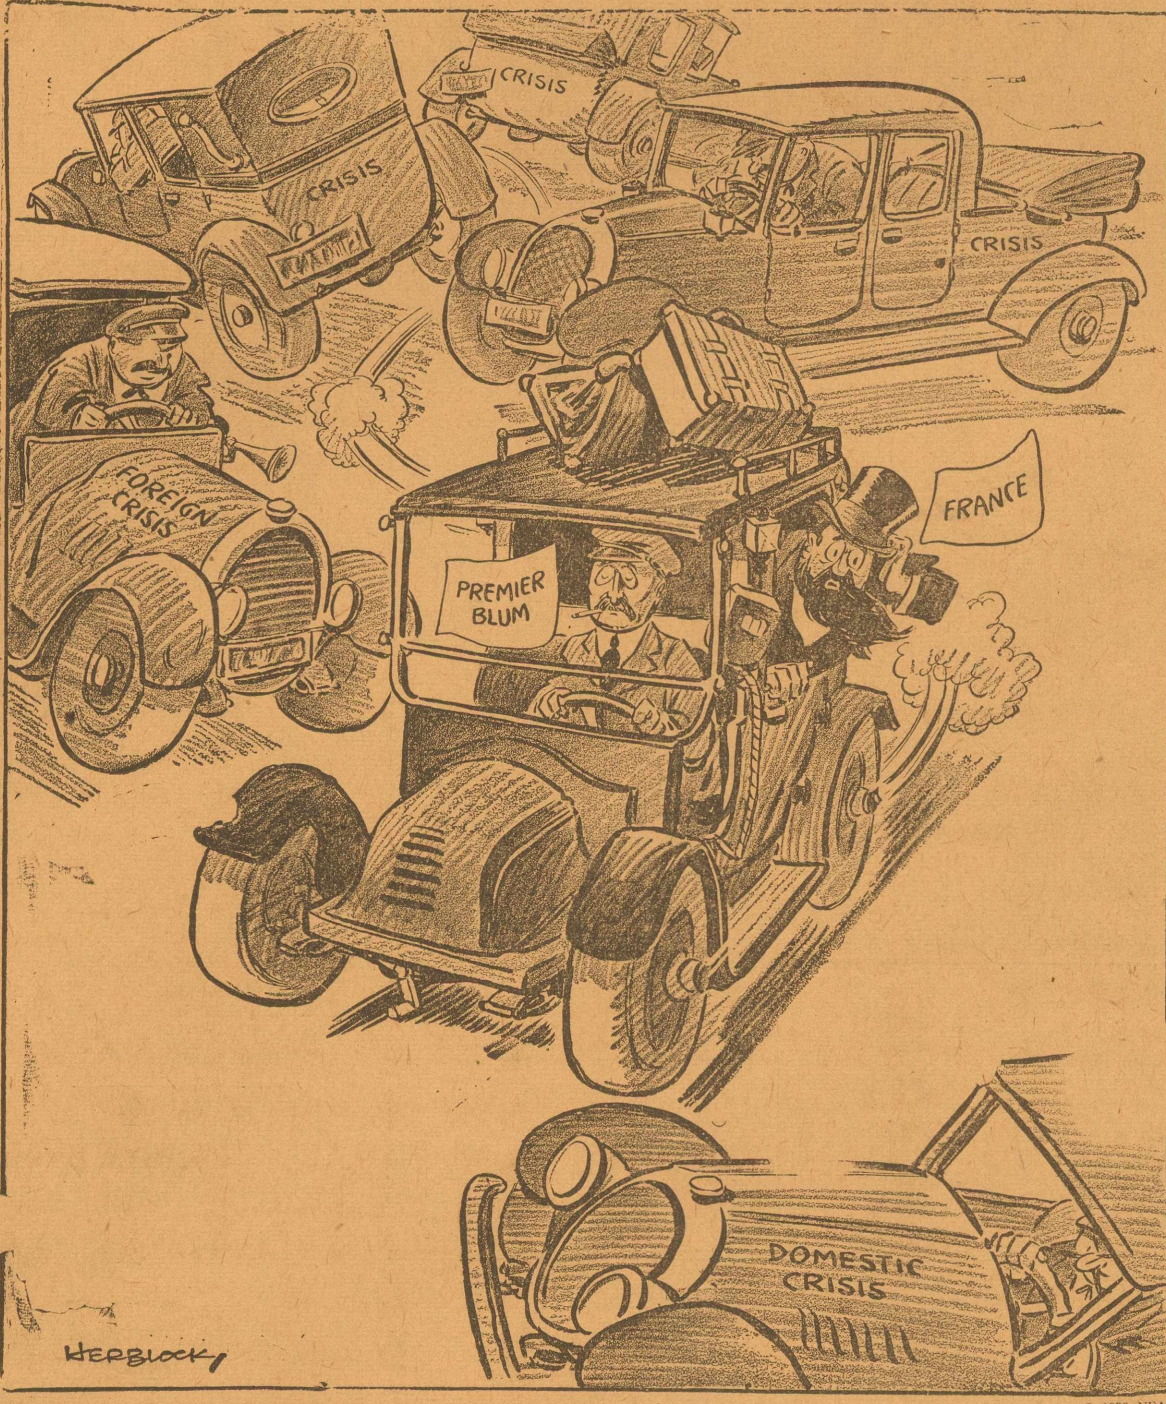

Well, perhaps they ought. But they aren't, because human nature just isn't made that way. It is made, instead, to bounce back from tragedy and loss; to shake off the dire things that happen to it and rise, undismayed and buoyant, ready for another round.

In the process of bouncing back, it cracks jokes, goes in for horseplay, and pretends that it was all a grand lark — and thereby proves that human nature is, after all, unconquerable.

For the world lets loose terrible things on the heads of mankind — wars, depressions, panics, revolts, and pestilences.

Mankind's salvation lies in this very ability to roll with the punch — to get together, two decades afterward, and make the reunion a carnival of fun instead of a long chorus of "Wasn't it terrible?"

Texas Democrats Are Digging Into Pockets To Help Finance Campaign

AUSTIN—Regardless of all polls, straw votes and predictions the people of Texas are digging into bank rolls and piling up moral support for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in conformity to the old-fashioned Democratic spirit of Texas. If every other state does what Texas Democrats are now doing the whole 48 states of the Union would be in the Democratic column in November, which statement is based on facts.

For instance, right here in Travis county, Democratic leaders have given Roy Miller, national campaign director in this state, assurance that they will double their campaign fund quota. Although assigned $3,240 for the Roosevelt war chest, already Travis county has turned in $5,497, and expects to go over $7,500. Three other counties, Winkler, Duval and Bosque, have filled their quotas and turned the money over to Mr. Miller, while scores of others are just about to complete their quotas.

From New York, Congressman Sam Rayburn contributed $1,000. Rayburn, whose home is in Bonham, is in charge of the Speakers' Bureau for the national campaign for Roosevelt.

Up in Fannin county, Deets Dorrough, H. A. Cunningham and S. F. Leslie are collecting a quota of $1,666, and while this is being written already have obtained more than $300.

Down at Beaumont, $4,000 toward Jefferson county's quota has been subscribed, nearly one-half of the entire quota.

Over in Gregg county rallies have been planned, with Sidney Latham, militant member of the legislature, as one of the speakers, with Miss Cora Mackey organizing the women and with Cyril A. Parker, county chairman, working strenuously. Parker, by the way, issued an unusual statement. "Every person who has a job, every business man, every professional man should be willing to contribute," he said. "Gregg county is Democratic and will assert itself accordingly at the polls November 3. In the meantime it is very important that we maintain tradition by raising our quota in rapid time. Every man, woman and child in Gregg county should contribute who is interested in the Democratic party, whether it be 50 cents or $50."

The enthusiasm manifest in Gregg county is being equalled all over the state, according to Director Miller, and he is confident that Texas will raise its quota of $250,000, badly needed where the fight is hottest, in the doubtful states.

Down at Port Arthur retail clerks have organized a Roosevelt club.

Democrats in Washington are doing their duty to the Texas campaign fund and Ernest H. Donohoo chairman of the Texas Democratic club of Washington, is confident that the $25,000 quota assigned to them will be filled.

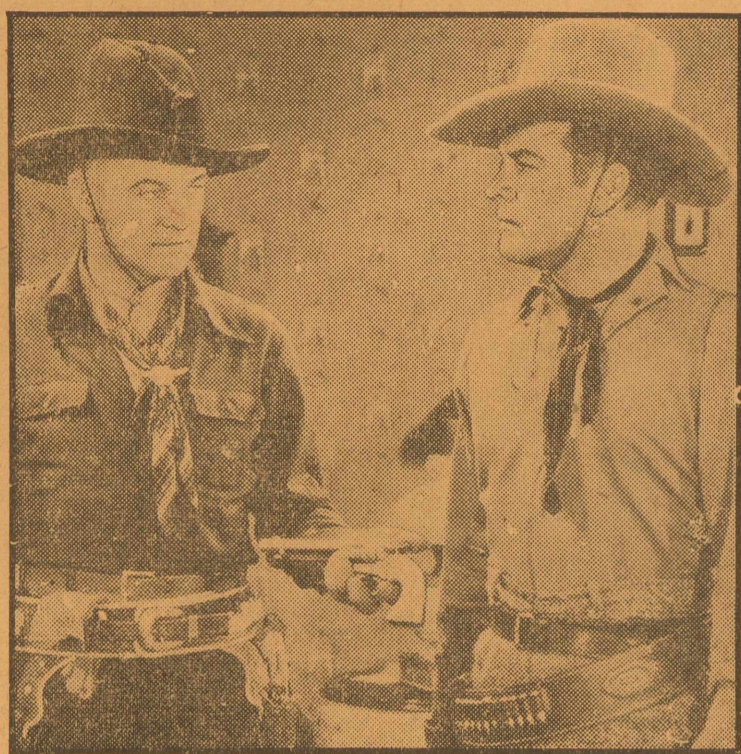

Texas Democracy has been called upon to enlist under the colors and help Roosevelt with contributions, moral support and votes because the party must depend upon many contributors of small amounts, not having the resources of the Republicans of the East and North, who have subscribed several millions of dollars to put over London.

Miller and state headquarters are especially grateful to witness how the contributions have been coming in, for they are turned in with real spirit and everyone was glad to do his or her bit.

Then, there is A. O. McCracken, head of the Young Democrats in Texas, assisting Miller in the drive, McCracken going into many sections to cooperate with his organization in behalf of the national ticket. McCracken is a newly-elected member of the legislature, is a hard worker and has the confidence of his co-workers and colleagues.

Well, the Roosevelt Administration gave to Texas $1,000,000, 000 to put the state on its feet, so why not help him a little bit?

was that of a 6-year-old ape, whereas the Sterkfontein skull is that of an adult. With both skulls for comparison more reliable inferences will be possible about the relation of these African superapes to existing anthropoids on the one hand and to fossil and living types of man on the other.

Dr. Broom has held to the view that in these South African types of advance toward human standards will be found. Hence his great interest in the Sterkfontein discovery and his faith that important evidence of the course of evolution towards humanity will be found in South Africa.

Texas Observatory Will Be Ready By September, 1937

AUSTIN—McDonald Observatory of the University of Texas, which is scheduled to begin observations in September, 1937, will contain the second largest telescope in the world, university officials said.

The telescopes of the reflector type, built around an 82-inch mirror. The mirror is 13 inches thick at the rim, weighs 5,000 pounds, and required two years of polishing before it was pronounced perfect. The telescope proper will be about 26 feet in length. This is much shorter than the telescope used in other large observatories, but officials explain that it will have about four times the light-gathering power.

The entire unit can be operated by one man, who may by pushing buttons, move the giant telescope to any position desired. It will be possible to see stars which are so faint it takes a million of them to make a brightness equal to that of a star barely visible to the naked eye.

The observatory, named for W. J. McDonald, of Paris, Texas, whose philanthropy made it possible, is located atop Mt. Locke. It is 420 miles from San Antonio and 43 miles from the nearest railroad. It was located there for two reasons. The location was selected because of the condition of the air which was pronounced the best in the United States for observations and because there would be no miscalculations because of trains or lights from cities.

The isolated spot, however, was not without its inconveniences. It has been necessary to power the observatory with diesel engines. Installations of the diesel equipment have been completed, and preparations were being made for the final installation which will include the giant reflector mirror.

The clause of the McDonald will which left the bulk of his estate to the university for the purpose of installing such an observatory, also provided that the observatory should be self-supporting.

After construction was completed it was decided that the University of Chicago would participate in the operation and would bear three-fourths of the operating costs. Approximately $300,000 has been invested in Texas Municipal bonds, the income from which goes into a fund which will be used as a maintenance fund or will be used to purchase new equipment.

In charge of the observatory will be Dr. Otto Struve, of the University of Chicago. He also is director of the Yerkes Observa-

Hawaii Lowers Leprosy Cases

By United Press
HONOLULU—Evidence that general and maternal mortality rates have sunk to record lows, that the dread disease of leprosy is decreasing and that for the first time in history tuberculosis cures outnumber deaths contributes to Hawaii's record as one of the most healthful places in America.

Dr. Frederick E. Trotter, president of the territorial board of health, in his report to the governor estimated the general mortality rate as 8.58 per 1,000 population, and the maternal mortality rate as 3.92 per 1,000, the lowest ever registered in Hawaii.

However, a marked increase was noted in the infant death rate with 628 deaths recorded this year as compared with 597 in 1935. Chinese, Filipino and Japanese led the list of infant deaths.

Dr. Trotter said organic diseases of the heart and nephritis headed the list of ten principal causes of death, pointing out that tuberculosis had dropped from second to third place.

Dr. L. F. Badger, head of the U. S. leprosy investigation station at Kalihi hospital, reviewing medical science's 75 year crusade against the disease in the territory, said it was on the wane.

Badger said many lepers now can be cured but when they are released from the station they are systematically checked every two weeks by health officials.

Badger's report revealed a decrease of 98 in the total number of active patients at Kalihi and at Kalaupapa settlement on the island of Molokai, over a five year period. Patients now total 525, of which 427 are at Kalaupapa, 98 at Kalihi.

Dr. C. Alvin Dougan, tuberculosis bureau doctor, said during the past year there were five cures for every four deaths and only one death for every 10 cases of tuberculosis registered.

Fossil Reveals a High Type of Ape

By United Press
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—A discovery described as of great importance for the study of prehistoric man has been made by Dr. Robert Broom, of the Transvaal Museum, and his colleagues, in the Sterkfontein caves near Krugersdorp.

They have found the natural cast in limestone of the brains of an advanced type of ape and a number of fossilized bones of the skull to which the brain belonged, including parts of the jaws and a number of teeth.

It appears fairly well established that the skull was of a creature of the same type as the Taung ape discovered in 1924. The discovery is regarded as of particular importance because the Taung skull

Texas Gins Would Surprise Inventor

AUSTIN, Tex. — If Eli Whitney were alive today and could visit Texas, he would be as much surprised at its cotton machinery as early planters were at his device of ginning.

The U. S. Bureau of the Census has just completed a survey of the state's ginning industry which reveals some astonishing facts and figures.

Number of gins, their horsepower, type, motive power and capacity are given by counties. If all were running simultaneously, the report shows they would gin 163,733 bales in 12 hours. A 500-pound bale is used in making the computations.

The total number of ginneries in Texas is 3,564 and 3,335 of them were active during the 1935 cotton season. Nine are owned by governmental organizations, 211 by co-operative associations, 934 by corporations, 1,032 by partnerships and 1,378 by individuals.

Steam is the favored power. The report shows 1,522 gins operated that way; 1,051 Diesel-operated; 770 electrically driven; 311 operated by gas and 12 by water-power.

Thirty ginneries have more than one kind of power operating various units.

Today there are many variations of the simple cylinder with wooden pegs that Whitney devised to remove seed from the lint. Classifications in the bureau report refer to many types such as brush, air blast, huller, and plain. Some gins are equipped with screw, some with hydraulic and some with round bale presses. Some have double press boxes; some single; some have steam and mechanical trappers; some have seed-cotton driers. Overhead cleaners and extractors, cleaning feeders, hull extractor feeders and other mystifying devices are listed and classified.

State agricultural officials now are watching the next great step in changing the procedure of cotton raising and marketing. Tests are being made of mechanical cotton pickers.

It is not only in the major machinery of cotton handling that the industry is undergoing changes. Newspapers in cotton areas are advertising cotton sack paint. The sack is a long receptacle that a cotton picker drags along, placing the cotton in it as it is packed.

The farmer says that "in the sack was worn out after 400 pounds of cotton had been picked into it, a painted sack had 6,000 pounds picked into it before showing wear."

Bad Teeth Break Health of Children

DALLAS—Bad teeth are breaking the health and future possibilities of an amazingly large percentage of the American children, Dr. Ernest A. Branch, Raleigh, N. C., told the joint convention of the Texas and Oklahoma state dental societies here.

Maladies most frequently produced in children from neglect of decayed teeth, he said, are tuberculosis and ailments of the kidneys and heart.

"Being dark, soft and warm, the mouth is a perfect incubator for germs and bad teeth provide the perfect culture media within it," said Dr. Branch, who is oral hygiene director of the North Carolina State Board of Health.

Tuberculosis germs breed rapidly in a mouth full of bad teeth, he said, and then are carried into the lungs.

Diet, hygiene and prenatal care are all involved in building good teeth, Dr. Branch said.

The fondness of Americans for sweets and soft foods was blamed by Dr. Branch for the current increase in tooth decay.

Customs Inspector Will Be Retired

ROMA, Tex. — Antonio J. Zyanaga, United States customs patrol inspector stationed here for the past 18 years, will be retired late this month after 30 years in the customs service, according to announcement received here from Harry P. Hornby of San Antonio, collector of customs for the South Texas District.

Inspector Zyanaga served his entire three decades of government duty on the Texas-Mexican border. He was born in Brownsville and joined the federal service on October 16, 1889, at a salary of $3 a day or $93 a month. He was required to leave this station at various times on scouting trips but was not paid for the time he was absent.

Zyanaga recalled that when he first came to Roma in 1918, it had no customs house, no bridge, "no anything." He performed his official duties under a big mesquite tree after an old wooden ferry brought incoming visitors to this country across the muddy Rio Grande from San Pedro, Mexico.

Questions that Some Folks Ask About Cardui Benefit For Mal-Nutrition

Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome mal-nutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menstruation.

"What is meant by helping to overcome malnutrition?"

Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices — to improve digestion — so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KAY DUNN, pretty airplane stewardess, falls in love with TED SARIAM, veteran pilot who flies the trans-Pacific route.

Ted has two interests in life—his job and DICKIE, his adopted 7-year-old. When Ted asks her to marry him, she fears it is only to make a home for Dickie, and she agrees.

She does not agree, though, with his theories that matrimony to be successful, must be planned scientifically. Just as a plane flight is planned, so must a marriage. Her housekeeping must be on in the same way with budgets.

gives a party one night and Ted and Dickie, instead of being with the guests, goes to room. To punish him, Kay never decides to take the plane for Honolulu.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

TE laughed, but his eyes were Kay's eagerly. There was something restless in his manner. He stood up, looking out the ocean.

you want to fly to Honolulu?" he said. "Sorry, Ralph's turn to make the day."

however, refused to be dissatisfied. The impulse to board the plane set off on such an utterly reckless flight seemed the only way to all her unhappiness and your turn, Monte," she said. "Do it for me! We'll look in his room and run away tonight. We can say he and that you'll take his day."

me on," he cried. "Let's go to the hotel, he left orders for the pilot was not to be disturbed. They hurried off to the hotel. Kay and Monte in a good humor, excited about their proposed adventure. Doris decided that the whole thing was of her hands.

Kay bought a ticket to Honolulu and Monte reported to the operations division and was assigned Ralph's place in the crew of the Mariner. Almost in no time it was time to leave.

Doris stood at the landing place, watching her eyes, as she watched the great silver ship rise gracefully from the water and disappear in the west. Now that it was too late to call them back, she was terrified to think of what might be before her friends.

KAY, likewise, was worried. After the first hour in the air, the flight seemed much less thrilling. She sat back in her chair, looked out at the water and took stock of the situation. She wondered how many adventures in history, later repented, have been inspired by a roseate dawn!

She thought of all she had left behind, of Dickie who would be asking where she had gone. Was it today that she had promised to take him to a movie?

And she thought of Ted, though she tried not to—Ted, waking and finding her gone from the house, later, that she was running away.

Was she—was that it? Back at Ship's Harbor she could imagine Ted hearing Ralph's version of Monte's guilt. Ralph could do nothing but say that Monte had promised to wake him on time.

Ralph, of course, would be punished. She wondered what Ted would say about such a breach of discipline. Why, oh, why, had she gone out of her way to cause so much trouble?

SHE looked around at the other passengers. There was the usual lot of international travelers, some of them prominent persons. And there was one woman, swathed in white and heavily veiled, whose identity Kay recognized instantly. It was Illah, the Oriental dancer, returning to Honolulu after a single day on the mainland.

Kay had an opportunity, through the long hours of the day and night, to observe Illah closely. The Oriental had the seat closest to the radio room and she seemed to listen to every message that came in, sitting tensely when the rapid-fire crackling of code came out of the land receiving set.

Kay thought she saw Illah's lips moving, repeating words to herself. At other times Illah's regard seemed fixed on the chart room. Once, when she stood up, she passed a swift look over the captain's shoulder at the chart. Twice she questioned the second officer pilot about the ship's course. When he had gone down the aisle she made swift notations in a little book.

Kay's alert mind began to correlate places and events in Illah's life, and suddenly she sat up in her seat. Something seemed to warn her, "Illah is a foreign spy. She can't be trying to learn the secrets of operation on this line, for the ship is open to inspection. She must be after the secrets of Ted's invention, the gyropilot."

Kay had no way of knowing this. She smiled, realizing the suspicion was prompted by nothing more than woman's intuition. And, too, she was supposed to be jealous of this woman! Was she,

Kay Graham, giving way to foolish, jealous suspicions?

But suddenly the events that had led up to this escapade crystallized, and left her with a clear understanding of what she intended to do.

She knew her own heart now; the escapade, as such, had been over the minute she stepped on the plane.

She would disembark at Honolulu and wait for Ted. She would go to him and explain that it had been only a single night's lark and nothing more. She was sure he would understand this much.

MONTE came back presently and spoke briefly to her. He looked worried. He had lost his devil-may-care manner during the long hours of his watch.

"Ted has ordered me off the plane at Honolulu to await instructions," he told her. "The message came through on the radio just now."

Kay sat up, her eyes wide. "Monte, they won't do anything to you!"

He smiled and saluted with a gesture that was not as jaunty as he intended. "Adventure in the air!" he said.

"Ted didn't say anything about me?" she asked. "No. Only company messages have come through thus far."

Kay's heart sank. That was Ted, all right! The company meant everything to him. It was the trans-Pacific flight, and she was only his wife.

But she knew now that she owed her loyalty both to Ted and to the air service. She resolved to try to get something on Illah as a spy. Kay was defending her own against the outside world. She was defending what was Ted's, and what belonged to the trans-Pacific flight.

She thought that perhaps Ted had been duped by Illah into giving away the secrets of the gyropilot. That would explain everything—the flirtation, Illah's appearances on the trans-Pacific route, the mystery of her movements.

She didn't know how Ted could have been so easily duped. He had successfully eliminated "the human element" in flying, but was he blind to the danger of people who might want to do him, personally, harm? Perhaps he was a victim of his own elaborate precautions.

Throughout the night she watched Illah closely. (To Be Continued)

CRAYON PROJECTS IN TEXAS HISTORY

It is easy to teach children history by penciling out pictures of historical subjects and coloring crayons. History taught in this way is never forgotten and a taste is created for more information.

"Centennial Projects, Texas Under Six Flags" contains 28 pages of outlines on many phases of Texas history and events, with cover showing the Texas Capitol under six flags, each in its correct color. This beautiful project book mailed postpaid for 25 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Patent System Is Near Century Mark

WASHINGTON—A nation-wide celebration of the founding, in 1836, of the present American Patent System will be held here on Nov. 23.

The announcement was made by Dr. Charles F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Research Corp., who has accepted an invitation of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, to serve as chairman of the national committee to celebrate the event.

The celebration will have the sponsorship of the national committee, whose membership includes representatives of the Department of Commerce, the U. S. Patent Office, the national association of patent attorneys, science museums and the industries of the nation.

The American Patent System Centennial will review the past, present and future progress of industry and science through the inventive arts.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

By NEA Service

ONE of the finest meals in a well-run American household is the Sunday breakfast. For once, the family is assembled for breakfast and can eat the meal without thinking of the morning train to the city, getting the children off to school or the many other reasons for watching the clock of a morning.

A good Sunday breakfast is what you make it. If you serve the identical fare you do on week-days, it's just another meal. Most of us eat sketchy breakfasts, anyway, and Sunday is just the time to have something that can be eaten with leisurely appreciation.

Something like cornbread or popovers in place of toast or rolls, for example.

There's a school of thought that is firmly convinced that good popovers can only be made in iron popover pans. Others favor muffin tins. Whichever you use, here's the recipe:

12 Large Popovers

Two eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

The real trick in making popovers, no matter what kind of pan you use, iron or tin, is to be sure the pans are piping hot before you put the batter in. Bear this in mind, and your popovers will be all you could hope for.

First grease the pans thoroughly and put them in a hot oven until the fat begins to steam.

In the meantime, beat the eggs about two minutes, add the milk and beat again.

The more air in the batter, making lighter, better popovers.

Sift in the flour, mixed with the salt.

Lastly add the melted butter.

Now, pour the batter into the steaming hot tins, filling them half full.

Place in a moderately hot (350 degrees) oven for 20 minutes.

When the popovers are done they will pop over the sides and top of the tins to about 2 to 3 inches. They will be brown on top and look absolutely delicious.

They are really nothing but a hollow shell, crisp and brown on the outside.

A good Sunday breakfast would be chilled melon or grapefruit, shirred eggs in ramekins, popovers, home-made jam or honey, and coffee.

Of course, the size of the morning meal on Sundays is determined by what time you have dinner—at noon or in the evening. If you have a late afternoon or evening dinner on Sundays, a large breakfast is in order. Crisp bacon is delicious with shirred eggs and may be added, if you desire.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Chilled grapefruit, shirred eggs in ramekins, popovers, honey, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tomato bouillon, toasted crackers, ham salad, rye bread, apricot Bavarian cream, milk, tea.

DINNER: Boned leg of lamb, browned potatoes, gravy, mint jelly, succotash, fruit salad, toasted crackers, cheese tray, milk, coffee.

A. The "Bowie knife" was first manufactured by Rezin P. Bowie, brother of James Bowie, for use as a hunting knife. He presented it to James, who was expecting an attack from Norris Wright, by whom he had previously been shot. He and Wright afterward met unexpectedly on a sandbar in the Mississippi river, an encounter ensued and Wright was killed with the knife, a single edge, straight blade weapon, nine inches long and one and a half inches wide.

Q. Can you give the date of the introduction of barbed wire in Texas and something of its early history? A. S.

A. Barbed wire was introduced in Texas in 1871 by John W. Gates, a hardware salesman who gave a public demonstration of its resistance to cattle at San Antonio. By 1880-83 its use had become so general that wire-fence cutting had become so serious a problem that

Gov. John Ireland called a special session of the Legislature in 1883 to pass laws regulating the building of barbed wire fences and punishing fence cutting.

Q. What early Spanish mission was in what is now Rusk County? S. S.

A. San Jose de Nezon, a log structure in the southern part of the county, between Patrick and Minden, was established in 1719 and abandoned in 1727. Traces of the mission have long since been lost.

Q. What will be the total length of the lakes created by the series of dams being built above Austin by the Colorado River Authority? P. P.

A. The seven dams now being built or planned will create a lake separated by the dams, 125 miles long.

Tarleton Students Will Present Play To Buy a Washer

STEPHENVILLE. — Men students who are willing, even anxious, to write, produce, direct and act a play in order that they can wash their own clothes have been discovered at John Tarleton College.

Registra Gabe Lewis, director of the new dormitory at Tarleton, says that cadets will stage the play sometime in November to raise money for buying an electric washing machine. Playwright Le Von Lee of Clovis, N. Mex., announces that production will be started soon.

If the play is a financial success, the washing machine will be bought, triumphantly installed in the dormitory basement. Industrious cadets will then eliminate the expense of "9 cents a shirt," launder their clothes themselves.

Cattlemen to Ask Congress to Pay Bill for Damages

By United Press
FORT WORTH.—Twenty Oklahoma and Kansas cattlemen have a $700,000 bill which the next congress will be asked to pay.

The bill, in the form of a federal district court judgment, is for damages incurred shortly after the World War when federal inspectors allowed tick-infested cattle to be shipped into "free" territory. The result was an epidemic of ticks in Kansas and Oklahoma, and a subsequent quarantine that prevented cattlemen from selling their animals.

Attorneys for the 20 complainants alleged that federal inspectors were negligent in 1919-1922, by dipping tick-infested cattle in crude oil instead of an arsenic solution.

Largest judgments were: Russell and Tuckett, Osago county,
