MADRID GETS READY FOR A BIG AIR RAID

MADRID, Oct. 24 — Madrid braced today for a merciless air raid. All railroad service was suspended. Normal activity was all but paralyzed.

Rebels occupied the towns of Borox and Sena, on the southwestern sector, at noon today. These are less than 25 miles from Madrid and about eight miles west of Aranduz, the railway town on the trunk line.

For many hours Madrid citizens watched airplanes fly over the city on what was believed a forecast of what was to come.

The capital made ready for the raid. Pedestrians and vehicular traffic was held to a minimum. Thousands remained in their homes. Crews of the city's anti-aircraft guns remained on watch.

PARIS, Oct. 24 — Unconfirmed reports swept through Paris today that a Russian merchant fleet loaded with arms and ammunition for the leftists, left for Spain today. One report was that nine ships of a total fleet of 30 had sailed.

LONDON, Oct. 24 — In a note to the non-intervention committee today, the British government charged that Russia is making large scale deliveries of war materials to Spain and of landing 18 trimotored planes and 15 tanks a week ago.

BULLDOGS IN FIRMER STAND IN LAST PLACE

The Ranger Bulldogs went down in defeat on a muddy field at Big Spring Friday night by a score of 38 to 0 to remain in the Oil Belt Cellar, with a firmer hold on their position than they have held at any time this year.

While the Bulldogs were losing at Big Spring, Eastland's Mavericks were being tromped by the Breckenridge Buckaroos by a score of 44 to 0 and Brownwood was losing to San Angelo by a score of 12 to 0.

The Abilene Eagles, who do not have umbrellas under which they can play, were apparently afraid of getting wet, as were the Sweetwater Mustangs, and the Eagle-Mustang clash, scheduled for Friday afternoon at Sweetwater, was postponed until Nov. 16, when it is hoped the weather will be suitable for both teams.

The Bulldogs play the Brownwood Lions next Friday, in a game that was scheduled to be played in Ranger, but which, like the other home games of the Ranger season to date, must be transferred because of delays in completing the Bulldog Stadium. No work has been done on the stadium for the past two weeks, but there is still a remote hope that it might be finished enough for the Cisco game on Nov. 11.

COLD WEATHER ABATES OVER ENTIRE STATE

Cold weather and heavy rains, which brought Texans their first taste of the 1936 winter, abated Saturday after rivers throughout the state began to rise slowly.

"Rains fell over the entire state today and yesterday," said Dr. Joseph L. Ciine, federal weather forecaster at Dallas. "It will be warmer and partly cloudy Sunday."

A. D. Jolley, Dallas county agricultural agent, said the general rains were "the very thing the state needed."

Gainesville had 2.90 inches of rain during the last 48 hours for the heaviest precipitation of any point in the state. Showers fell in scattered sections of the state Saturday.

Rainfall figures reported at Dallas for the last 12 hours included Dallas 1.28, Abilene .26, Amarillo .02, El Paso .04, Del Rio .28, Palestine .76, Austin .46, San Antonio .28 and Corpus Christi .04.

Animals In Zoo Take the Bitter With the Sweet

FORT WORTH — Animals in the Fort Worth zoo, like school boys and girls — take the bitter with the sweet in winter time.

There's no extra scrubbing of faces, but a daily dose of cod liver oil is added to their fish, meat, hay and grain. The food rations, incidentally, are doubled during cold weather to give them extra body heat.

Since most of the animals are from tropical climates, daily doses of cod liver oil are a precaution against colds and other winter ailments.

There's no "school" for the specimens in winter time — most of them even are taken off exhibition and lodged in heated buildings. Patsy and Jerry, the trick chimpanzees, for instance, are at home for the season in the steam-heated food house. On warm days (above 70 degrees) they are brought out for exhibition.

The bears and other animals that live in rock pits, built to simulate their own dens, can stay inside in winter. In summer, their own doors are barred, so they may ever be on view to the public.

The ferocious members of the feline family — tigers, leopards, ocelots, etc. — are the diet "sis-sies" of the lot. They must have a daily round of milk and eggs in addition to their regular meals.

Only five animals at Forest Park zoo have real winter fun. They are the Alaskan "husky" dogs, whose eyes sparkle and fur takes on added fluffiness at the first cold snap. When it snows, Zookeeper Hamilton Hittson plans to take them out for a trial run with a sled.

Miss King was named for her father, the late Commander Frank King, American naval hero in the World War. So when the Navy department wished to honor Commander King's memory, it decided on an Annapolis academy appointment for pretty young Frank, supposedly the commander's son. Although she was "excited and thrilled," Frank didn't embarrass Navy chiefs by accepting the honor.

Showing of Oil Reported In Well Drilled By Monarch Refining Firm

A showing of production of undetermined proportions was reported Saturday afternoon in the Monarch Refining Company No. 2 fee lands, about four miles west of Eastland off the Cisco highway.

Pay from the Rust sand at 1,600 feet was reported flowing by heads. The well is 650 feet from the south and 1,420 feet from the east line of the northwest quarter section 44, block 4, H&TC.

Many difficulties were encountered by the operator in drilling the well. Further development of the area north of Cisco was assured in the announcement Lone Star Gas company is building a rig for its second recent deep well on the J. G. Boggs farm.

The farm has been the location of three operations by Lone Star. The No. 1 Boggs had initial production of 110 barrels from the Lake sand. The other well was a shallow operation.

The new well is to be known as the No. 3 Boggs, 660 feet north of the No. 1. It is 910 feet from the south and 320 feet from the east lines of the farm, section 88, block 4, H&TC survey. It will be drilled to 3,710 feet unless commercial production is found at a lesser depth.

The south offset to the recent producer drilled by Dorothy Oil Company, Neil A. Moore et al No. 6 Holcomb Heirs, was temporarily shutdown at 1,864 feet. The well is 1,130 feet from the south line and 1,238 feet from the east line of the west half of section 1, block 4, H&TC survey.

The States Oil Corporation No. 1 Holcomb, a north offset to the Dorothy well, had been drilled past 600 feet. Location is 150 feet north and 330 feet west of the southeast corner of the northwest quarter section 1, block 4, H&TC survey.

States Oil Corporation No. 5 Henderson remained a location, 825 feet from the north and 330 feet from the west lines of the northwest quarter of section 8, block 4, H&TC survey. It is six miles north of Eastland. Production at 1,500 feet will be sought.

Anderson-Drewery No. 2 L. J. Griggs, 700 feet from the north line and 500 feet from the east line of the A. Miller survey, eight miles southwest of Carbon, was reported to have reached the top of the Caddo. Pay is expected around 2,800 feet.

GREENIES BOWL OVER EASTLAND BY 44-0 SCORE

The Breckenridge Buckaroos found little resistance in their drive to the Oil Belt Championship Thursday night when they defeated the Eastland Mavericks 44 to 0. Eastland, roundly outplayed throughout the game, registered five first downs to Breckenridge's 18.

Line plunging by Magness and Rector was chiefly responsible for the scoring, Breckenridge employing little but running plays on the heavy field. Magness plunged over the goal line five times and Rector twice, although Rector's broken field running was responsible for placing the ball in scoring position several times. The Bucks converted twice.

Eastland's passing and running plays were ineffective and they never once threatened.

Eastland's next game is with Sweetwater there Friday night. A special train in connection with the game is under organization.

Many New School Buildings Erected In Texas By WPA

SAN ANTONIO. — When Texas school children reported for classes this fall, a large number of them found new buildings and improved facilities as a result of Works Progress Administration activities during the past year, it has been announced by H. P. Drought, state administrator.

On school campuses in 237 Texas towns and cities WPA workers have wrought improvements sponsored by local school authorities. Projects range in magnitude from Fort Worth's million-dollar city-wide school improvement program to the installation of playground equipment, building of walks, and sodding of grounds at tiny rural schools.

By the end of August WPA workers had completed the construction of 78 new school buildings in Texas schools. These newly completed buildings are only a part of the WPA school improvement program, Drought explained. Erected at a cost of $289,363, of which WPA contributed $178,171, the structures are included in a $3,360,33 program of general improvement and ground beautification which has been undertaken in this state.

In addition to work on educational plants, WPA efforts have been extended to the improvement of athletic facilities in 113 Texas schools. Work has been completed or is in progress on construction and improvement of 85 gymnasiums and auditorium-gymnasiums and on 28 high school stadiums.

Texas sponsors have been particularly receptive to opportunities for improving school facilities, Drought said, and a large proportion of the projects which have been suggested by city and county authorities have been for such work. He declared that the following communication, received from C. Wedgeworth, superintendent of schools at Snyder, is typical of expressions from sponsors of school projects referring to the recently-dedicated gymnasium at the Snyder school Superintendent Wedgeworth wrote to Abilene district WPA officials:

"Not only do the sponsors appreciate what you have done, but our entire community shares in this feeling. It is with much pride that we point to this project as one community as a whole."

SENATE MAY CHECK PENSION BILL TO HOUSE

AUSTIN, Oct. 24 — Texas Senators planned to accept the conference report Monday on a $7,000,000 old age assistance tax bill which is an amendment for restricted payment, and tell the House to "take it or leave it."

"I think we should adopt the report Monday and recess until 11:59 p. m., Tuesday, Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodcut told the United Press.

If that procedure is followed the House will be forced to accept the bill as reported by conferees or reject it entirely. The session ends at midnight Tuesday, by time limitations. It could be prolonged only by turning back the clock.

Last Thursday the House voted 78 to 62 to leave its conferees unrestricted on deliberation. The resolution against limitation had passed 74 to 41.

It would take half of those present to accept or reject the report. Full membership is 150.

Present laws permit payments to persons over 65, though they have $360 annual income, $500 cash and property worth $5,000. Average payment is $16 a month; half state, half federal. The Tax as law has been reported by pension director Orville Carpenter, "most liberal of any state."

The restrictions placed by the Senate on the tax bill to finance old age assistance said no person shall be paid anything who is not in necessitous condition.

The tax bill, as agreed upon by majority of the House and Senate conferees, raises an estimated $7,000,000 for the 10-month pension period ending Aug. 31, 1937.

Most of Monday and Tuesday will be spent by the House and Senate seeing if the other will weaken. In the meantime the House will have a diversion, Rep. Joe Caldwell, Jr., of Asherton, has announced his committee seeking to uncover "Red" tendencies at the University of Texas will hold an all-day session.

Reckless Stunt Flyers Did Their Part, Too

Probably nobody will bother about it, but right now wouldn't be a bad time to drop a wreath or two in the ocean in honor of the stunt flyers who made so many headlines, created so much excitement, and provided a long casualty list back in the era which began about 10 years ago.

The Pan American Clippers are carrying mail, express, and passengers over the Pacific on regular runs now, and similar ships will be shuttling back and forth across the Atlantic before long. And something of a debt is owed the stunters who tackled the oceans so rashly back in the '20s.

It is hard even to remember the names of those flyers, now. They were serious-minded technicians of the air, of course, such as Lindbergh and Chamberlain and the various army men. There were also a good many young daredevils who looked on the broad, peril-haunted seas as a challenge to their daring and who couldn't be happy until they had replied to the challenge.

Some of them made their flights successfully, landing in England or France or Hawaii just as they had planned; others set out into the gray mists and were never seen again, leaving us with a creepy feeling along the spine when we thought of what their final landing must have been like.

But all of them did their bit to accumulate that store of experience and knowledge which aviation had to have before it could loop the seas on a steady commercial basis.

It used to be the fashion, you remember, for serious-minded folk to dismiss those flights as stunts. We were assured that the flights proved nothing; that an ocean crossing by air was so extremely hazardous that it took luck and extraordinary skill to get across; and that it was foolish to believe that hit-or-miss, haphazard jaunts by stunters would ever bring us nearer to the goal of regular trans-oceanic passenger planes.

That was all very true, of course — but somehow we do have these trans-oceanic passenger planes now, we are about to have a good many more of them, and it is hard to avoid the feeling that these stunt flights did a good deal to blaze the trail.

For the stunters, if they did nothing else, showed us just how dangerous an ocean flight can be. They emphasized in an unforgettable way the need for perfect organization, elaborate preparation, and better planes.

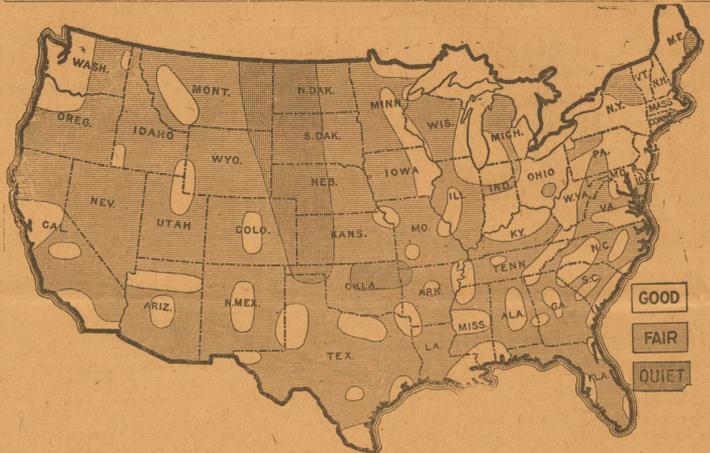

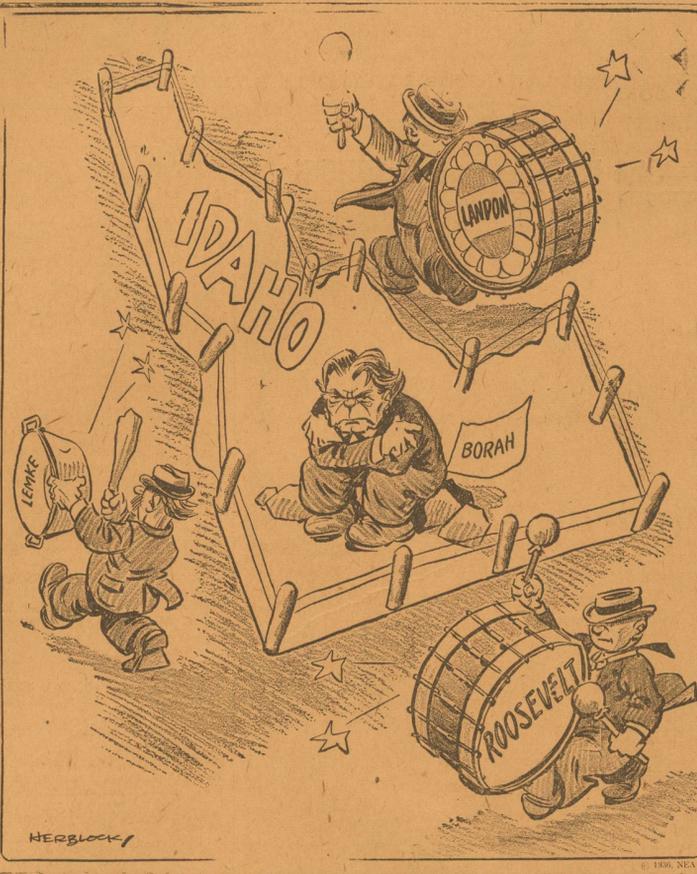

They at least demonstrated that the job wasn't going to be easy; and they did prove that it could be done if everything was right.

The lesson stuck. Pan American spent years getting ready for this Pacific line. It went to almost unbelievable lengths to make its flights safe and secure.

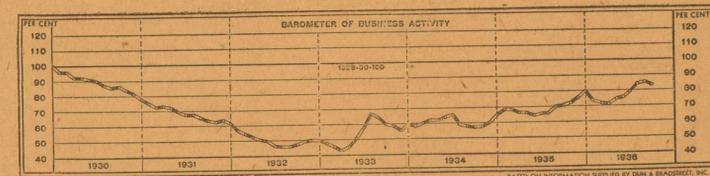

It insisted on getting planes of a type that most designers thought it impossible to build in the days of the stunters.

Now we are at the goal of those far-off days of the mid-twenties. The old dream is coming true. And at least a little of the credit ought to go to those daring, fool-hardy, and occasional crack-brained youngsters who set us to dreaming 10 years ago.

THE COMPLETE ISOLATIONIST

This map represents business conditions in every state of the Union as shown in November, 1936, issue of "Nation's Business" official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce

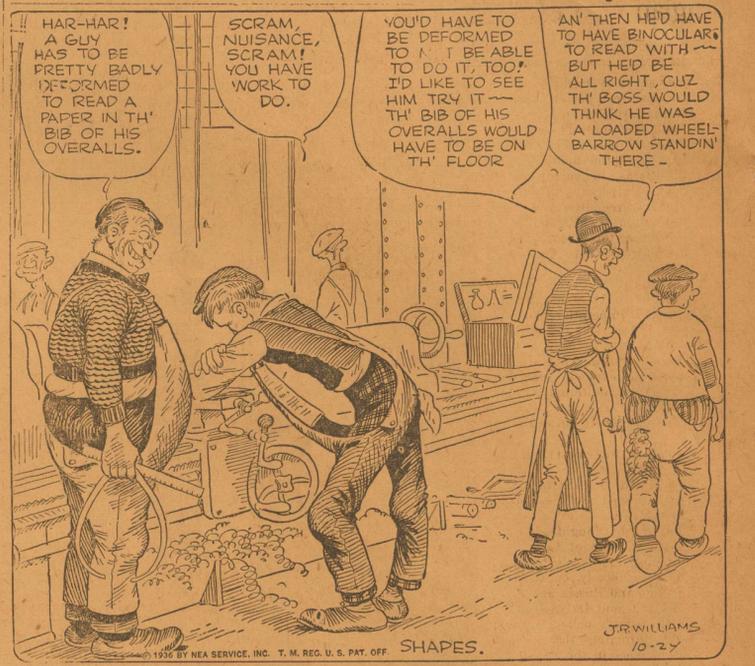

Distributive trade gained seasonally in September, manufacturing advanced slightly and collections improved over August. Rains late in August and throughout September restored what corn was not made, helped later crops and gave winter wheat a fairly good start.

The general commodity price movement was upward, the Dun & Bradstreet price index to October 1 being second only to that of January 1 last. Wheat and corn prices rose. Cotton rose on lower estimates of yield. Stock market values moved within a narrow range. Bonds advanced in greater relative proportion.

A gain in winter wheat seeding was predicted as were car shortages. Building continued to expand. Steel output reached a new high for the year and scrap sold at the highest since 1929. Other metal markets were strong. Railroad revenues rose sharply with net returns making better relative showings than for years. Electric power output registered a new all-time peak. Coal loadings were the best since 1930.

Popular Vote of 42,000,000 Is Seen

WASHINGTON — More than 3,000,000 additional voters are expected to cast ballots in the London-Roosevelt election than went to polling places four years ago.

Due to the woman suffrage amendment, approved Aug. 26, 1920, and normal population growth, the number of votes cast in Presidential elections increased from 18,528,743 in 1916 to 39,916,522 in 1932.

The average Presidential election year increase since woman's suffrage has been more than 3,000,000, pointing to a probability of more than 42,000,000 votes in the Roosevelt-Landon race.

Although the woman suffrage amendment was proclaimed more than two months before the 1920 election, many women were unable to vote that year because of registration requirements.

The nation's Presidential election votes for candidates of all parties since 1916:

History Instructor Sees No War with England at Peace

AUSTIN, Tex. — General European war can be averted so long as Europe's greatest power, England, refuses to fight, and that country will not enter hostilities unless her own possessions are threatened, it is the opinion of Wilson H. Elkins, instructor in history at The University of Texas...

"Another so-called world war can be averted for a time, until Germany finds it imperative to demand more territory outside the present boundaries of that country," Elkins said.

European war was most imminent a few months ago when Germany re-occupied the Rhineland, but England refused to fight, and France knew that she could not but be defeated if she fought alone, he continued.

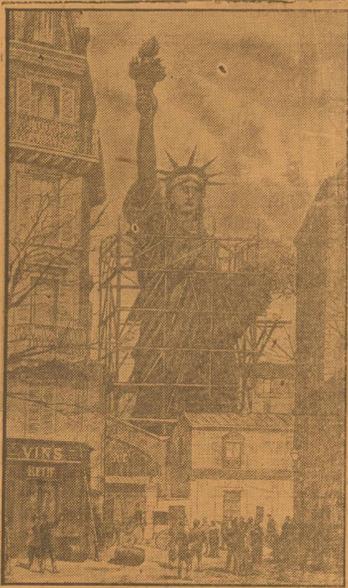

In the Italian conquest of Ethiopia, it was generally felt in England that, while perhaps Italy was not justified in making the campaign, actually she was doing just what Great Britain has done in the past, Elkins explained.

England wants peace, Elkins went on. The majority of the British people, whether of the upper, middle or lower class, want peace and fear war. There is peace in England momentarily, and certain factions in that country advocate a "splendid isolation" in order to keep that peace.

BEFORE THE GODDESS OF LIBERTY BECAME NATURALIZED AMERICAN

And as She Looks at 50th Birthday

Before being shipped to America (as a gift from the French people) Liberty was set up in Paris and sightseers permitted to clamber up the torch.

The immense size of the Statue of Liberty becomes apparent through comparison of the man with the ornamental work for the torch and the huge toe sections.

Such an important part of the American scene that it seems to root in the nation's beginnings, rededication ceremonies of the Statue of Liberty on October 28 mark, nevertheless, only the 50th anniversary of its erection on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor.

The Statue of Liberty came into existence piecemeal in the studio of Sculptor Bartholdi in Paris, where an old sketch shows the work on hand and torch in progress.

A rare closeup of Liberty's head is provided in this picture, made before the statue was completed. Set up in the French capital, it dwarfs the men standing on the pedestal.

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a farm, Meed Meadows, with their lovable, indolent grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKKE. Kate is engaged to handsome MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE ELWELL, beautiful and wealthy.

Major Meed, addicted to drink, loses Meed Meadows to JEFF HOWARD, bitter young mountaineer who swears contumacious encounters with Kate and is ruled by her. He responds with insolence, though dears to her. The Meeds move to a tenant house nearby. The girls learn that the Meed family buried a valuable tea service on their land during the Civil War. Kate broods over this news, trying to figure out where the silver is buried. She hopes to recover it and sell it, and persuades ZEKKE and ALTHY to accompany her on a dark night to Meed Meadows.

CHAPTER XV IN order not to arouse her sister's suspicions, Kate went back to her room, undressed and went to bed. When Caroline came upstairs later she found her there, apparently drowsy with sleep.

Kate lay still and tense until Caroline's regular breathing told her she slept. Then she got stealthily from bed, dressed herself in dark clothes and tennis shoes and crept downstairs.

When she reached the quarters of ZEKKE and ALTHY she found them ready and waiting. No mishap accompanied the departure.

"Dis here business," ZEKKE announced mournfully, "is bad! It's right sneaky, an' risky, too. Ain't no good comin' of it!"

ALTHY, always the more adventurous of the two, gave him a reassuring slap on the cheek nearest her. "You give me dem lines," she snorted. "If'n you's afraid of yoah shadow, me an' Miss Kate can go on by ourselves."

The abuse had the desired effect. ZEKKE put Dobbin into as brisk a walk as the darkness allowed. A growing excitement gripped them all, and as they drew near to Meed Meadows, Kate was actually aware of her heart pounding at her ribs.

The night seemed no longer dark. The fragment of a new moon was showing itself. Their eyes could distinguish outlines plainly.

They kept to the shadows. Only at one place was there a great length of moon-lit space that must be traversed. This was the stretch that led them to the oak tree near the porch.

"Now!" whispered Kate. She went to the west of the tree, which was the side farthest from the house. She looked up at the outstretched limbs and with her eyes she measured its height, calculated its shadows on the ground. She knelt at a certain spot and pointed to the earth. "Dig here!" she said.

ZEKKE obeyed. The digging was almost soundless.

AFTER a while a sort of security settled upon them. All three worked and no one bothered to stand guard. When they grew unbearably weary, they rested. Then they commenced again.

How long now had the dull sound of ZEKKE's pick been throbbed against their ears? For hours, surely. The trench was almost as deep as they were tall.

"Deep enough!" Kate whispered to ZEKKE. The premonition of failure was mingling with her physical weariness. She climbed out of the hole and sat on the ground and mused fiercely.

"On an August morning the shade would've been just where we've dug. Toward noon it would've been closer to the trunk. But we can't go closer. . . roots. . . Pompey would've avoided the roots. . . We've dug in the right place, I tell you! Why isn't it there?"

By now both ALTHY and ZEKKE took it for granted that Kate knew the silver to be there.

"We must widen the ditch," said Kate, like a tired oracle. They labored on. It was increasingly difficult to raise the dirt pick loosened, yet they somehow managed. They developed a sort of tempo, so that their movements did not interfere or conflict. They succeeded between them, in digging a monstrously large hole — a hole as deep as a man is tall and as wide as the shadow on the oak tree.

Finally it was Kate who said despairingly, "It's not here!" She climbed out of the ditch and the others followed her. Their faith in this wild venture could not live beyond the faith that had kindled it.

ZEKKE, looking at the piles of dirt that loomed a yard there, said wearily, "We got to put de dirt back, Miss Kate!"

"Bosh!" Kate answered. "We'll do nothing of the kind! Her voice, like ZEKKE's, had risen. "Let him shovel it back himself. That's all he has to do — except sleep!"

It was then that the discharge of a shotgun shattered the darkness. "Mercy on us!" ALTHY moaned. "Don't shoot no more! Us is goin'!"

They went. Skirting the lawn, following the fence, stumbling down the avenue to where Dobbin stood hitched to a tree. ZEKKE dragged with him the pick and one spade. ALTHY was leading Kate, who seemed dazed and strangely submissive. ZEKKE hastily untied Dobbin and they got into the wagon, the two servants on the driver's seat, Kate on the floor amid the burlap bags. Napoleon's army returning from Moscow could not have suggested more complete defeat.

WHEN they reached home they turned in at the pasture gate and drove into the stable. As Kate got out, she moaned a little. Her right hand, with which she had been gripping her left shoulder, was damp and sticky with a substance that shone red in the lantern light.

"Lawd!" said ALTHY again. "Where dat blood come from?" She seized the lantern ZEKKE had lit and held it nearer to the quiet girl.

"From my shoulder," Kate said in an odd voice. "Buckshot. He aimed too close to be funny!" ZEKKE and ALTHY conferred in low tones. Kate heard the words, "better call Major Sam!"

"You'll not call Gran'dad!" she declared violently. "Haven't we had trouble enough for one night? ZEKKE, you unthick. ALTHY can help me in the kitchen." She ran indoors and ALTHY followed her.

ALTHY tremblingly made a fire and put water on to boil. Then she cut the sleeve from Kate's dress and somehow got her out of it.

It was only a flesh wound in which the shot had not lodged, but it was made ugly by the matted blood around it. The shot had ploughed through the soft flesh of the left shoulder in that inexplicable way that gunfire so often misses a vital area.

ALTHY boiled and swabbed the wound. Then Kate gritted her teeth while ALTHY poured iodine into it. They applied a crude surgical pad, fastened on with adhesive tape.

Kate crept up to bed and covered her head with the sheet while she cried softly and dejectedly. Her bubble had burst, leaving her aching and hopeless in a world without promise. The fierce pain in her shoulder was no worse than the pain in her heart. All her troubles, she had thought, would come right when she had found the silver. Caroline could have her year at college; their poverty would be relieved; she herself would be a sort of story-book heroine who had accomplished something daring and clever for the sake of her family. Morgan would hear of it, she had dreamed, and would take her in his arms and tell her how wonderful she was.

But she had failed. She had been routed by the mountaineer. It was all Jeff Howard's fault. Everything was Jeff Howard's fault.

She slept fitfully and awakened in broad daylight to find Caroline bending over her anxiously.

Caroline said, "You've been restless, Kate! I think you've been out of your head. Or else talking in your sleep!"

Owing to steady increases in personnel of both services, the government is considering a large-scale building program to provide suitable homes, particularly to accommodate enlisted men and their families.

Before the proposed construction is started, E. D. Flander, deputy administrator of the Federal housing administration, will survey local needs and arrange for necessary financing.

Law, Love, and Temperance of the darkness of this world, and of spiritual wickedness in high places (Ephesians 6:12). It is well to bear both these things in mind, for the true citizen has not only the spirit of obedience to law, but he has the duty to see that laws are themselves just, honestly enforced, and maintained.

It is part of true citizenship to protest against unjust laws, and to fight in every possible way against corruption in law and government.

We are thus driven quickly in this matter of temperance and right living to more than mere conformity to law. There is the higher law of conscience, which asks, concerning every action, not, "Is it lawful?" but, "Is it right?"

Hence love is revealed as the true standard of right, for Paul insists, as Jesus also insisted in His teaching, that it is only in love of one's fellows that one can fulfill the moral law. Adultery, murder, theft, envy, all are offenses against God. They are breaches of the law that one should love his neighbor as himself.

PAUL makes a superb exposition of this "Love worketh no evil to his neighbor." The man who is determined to base his life upon love cannot possibly go wrong if his vision and judgment are as wise as his determination. What a fine appeal Paul makes to these Christians at Rome to "walk becomingly."

That in our English translation is a significant and beautiful phrase, and Paul sums the whole thing up in one very explicit final word. If we put on the Lord Jesus Christ, we shall be saved from evil ways, and will find wisdom and strength to walk becomingly.

LATER in his life, when he felt that he was being treated unjustly, in Palestine, and appealed to Caesar, he discovered that in going to Rome, the source of authority, he did not get the justice that he anticipated. As a matter of fact, he lay for a long time imprisoned in Rome, without having his case brought to trial. If one reads the later epistles of Paul, written during this period of his imprisonment, one finds that Paul is not quite so sure that the powers that be are ordained of God. On the contrary, he speaks of the rulers

Q. What prominent Texans were first to advocate separation from Mexico, even at the expense of revolution? G. W.

A. Among the most prominent were Henry Smith, W. B. Travis, Branch T. Archer, William H. and John A. Wharton, James Bowie, R. M. (Three Legged Willie) Williamson, Edward Burleson, J. B. Patrick, Asa Hoxey, and Alexander Horton.

Q. When was the "Houston East and West Texas" railway built? E. T.

A. Construction was begun at Houston in 1853.

Q. Was Provisional Governor Henry Smith a school teacher? F. D.

A. He taught a school at Brazoria soon after reaching there in 1827 from the Red River settlement, where he lived when he first came to Texas from Missouri in 1821.

Q. What was the attitude of the San Felipe consultation of November, 1935 with regard to separation from Mexico? T. R. D.

A. The consultation, which set up a provisional government, by a vote of 33 to 15, decided to declare for preserving the constitution of 1824, and stated that while it was "no longer morally or civilly bound by compact of union," it would stand against military despotism and maintain the right of self-government while the disorganization of the Mexican government continued.

Q. What was Austin's version of the Austin-Robertson controversy? E. P.

A. Austin claimed that the government had lost confidence in Robertson's ability to fulfill his contract, had cancelled it and expelled Robertson, that he (Austin) had failed in efforts to have Robertson's rights restored and had then taken the grant to protect his own colonists by selling the lands.

Revival Services to Be Closed Tonight

BY DR. L. B. GRAY
The meeting in the First Presbyterian church closes tonight. Dr. Cleveland's next meeting will be in Abilene, Central church, of which Dr. E. B. Surface is pastor. A cordial invitation is extended to all our friends to worship with us tonight, as well as this morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Cleveland's messages have been helpful to all who have attended. The simplicity of his style, his earnestness and his sincerity, as well as his strong, Biblical sermons, have endeared him to the people here. His work will live on. Every member of the church should be present today to make this the climax of a glorious week of good gospel preaching. If you have a friend who is not religious, the very best thing you can do for that friend is to bring him under the influence of the preaching of the gospel. Bring that one out today and tonight.

Entire Ranger Band Will Give Its First Concert On Nov. 5

The Ranger Public School Bands will give the first concert of the season Thursday, November 5, at 8 p. m., at the Recreation building. Admission to the concert will be free, but admission will be by ticket only. All merchants who are assisting in maintaining the band, or who are assisting in the drive for new uniforms for the band will be given a supply of tickets to pass out to their friends and customers.

The program will be quite varied and unique. There is a total membership in all of the band groups, of 124. Many of these are beginners who have had less than two months of practice, but on the program one or two band numbers will be played in which the 124 members will take part. Then the younger musicians will "take a rest" and let the more experienced players perform. In this band there are 53 members who began the study of music before this present school year, and this band will play a few numbers. Of the fifty-three members who at present constitute the main band, there are about fifteen who are experienced musicians of from two to six years, and these members constitute the "artist band". This band will play several selections.

One interesting part on the program will be one band number played by the full band, then this same number will be played by the main band of 53 members, and then the same number will be played again, this time by the "artist band" only.

Several other special features of the program will make it one of musical interest to the people of Ranger. As the seating capacity of the auditorium is limited, all citizens of the city or community who are interested in the development of a fine concert band for Ranger are requested to ask your merchants this week for your free ticket.

The full personnel of the band is as follows:
J. N. Crawford, director.
Arthur Shelton, assistant director.
Stephen Preslar, assistant director.
D. A. Robertson, drum major.
Bobbie Rex, mascot drum major.
Clarinet: Thomas Thompson, Edith Mae Taylor, Ernest Green, Herman Bryan, Jerry Devore, Bob Galloway, Jimmie Utley, Bennie Jo Blanton, Marie Green, Dorothy Mathena, Billie Smith, Fern Meroney, M. L. Masquers:
The Masquers met Thursday morning at 11:30 with Mrs. Hunter. The scenery committee reported and the club decided on the material to use in reconstructing the scenery in the high school auditorium. The club decided to study current plays this year and the following were appointed as the program committee: Marie Galloway and Margaret Smith.

The Masquers and the band will produce a play in the near future. The following were present: Orvil Harrell, Mattie Byrl Montgomery, R. V. Robinson, Druella Perry, Kathryn Edwards, Stephen Preslar, Marie Galloway, Lester Bendix, Kathryn Galloway, Grace Jones, Margaret Smith, and the sponsor, Mrs. Hunter.

Class Meetings
The sophomore and freshman classes met in a joint meeting on Friday at 11:30 to decide whether to have a party or picnic. The student council president, Alvis Rodgers, presided, and after a short discussion the students voted in favor of the picnic. The picnic is planned for Monday evening at five o'clock, and is to be at the country club, and the college bus will be held over until after the picnic.

Last Monday was the beginning of a new six weeks and everyone made the resolution "to stay at home and study." We wonder how long this resolution will be kept. Monday at 11:30 the grades will be shown and we'll either start burning the midnight oil or mom and dad will go to bed early and lay awake wondering when we're going to come in and do a little studying.

Former Ranger Girl to Be Bride of Francis M. Blair of Amarillo and Austin

Announcement of the engagement of a former Ranger girl, whose marriage takes place Friday, Oct. 30, was made to Lubbock society recently when hostesses, Mesdames Oscar L. Slaton Jr. and Kirk Dean, entertained with a lovely tea at the home of the former hostess, 1210 Avenue R. Miss Martha Marie Gholson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Gholson of Lubbock, is now the popular bride-elect of Mr. Francis M. Blair of Amarillo and Austin.

The house party consisted of Mesdames Dick Mims and Robert Crawford, and Miss Frances Snyder, the guests were received by Mrs. Slaton's mother, Mrs. J. L. Barstow, the honoree, her mother, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. John M. Gholson.

The home carried lavish decorations in autumn tones given special accent in the dining room where Mrs. C. C. Craig, formerly of Ranger, and Mrs. D. K. Bondurant, presided over the refreshment board.

The table was surfaced with a lace cloth and centered with a bowl of maroon and pink dahlias. Crystal candelabra held long white tapers and similar tapers furnished light throughout the entertaining suite. The announcement was made in gold lettering on autumn leaves, which, with gladioli, were given as plate favors. They bore the words, "Martha and Blair, October 30th."

Miss Gholson is a graduate from University of Texas and has her degree in business administration.

Mr. Blair is with the Texas Railroad Commission at Austin, where they will make their home.

The bride-elect made a colorful debut since residing at Lubbock and has been highly popular in many social circles. A series of parties have been planned in compliment to her, which included a one o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. G. McMillian 2121 Thirteenth street this Thursday passed.

The marriage, which takes place at Lubbock, will bring to society happenings one of the most brilliant affairs of their current season.

Class Hostess

Mrs. Roy Wilkes, 704 South Rusk street, with her co-hostess, Mrs. J. R. Watson, will entertain with a 12:30 luncheon Tuesday in honor of members of the Ruth class, of Central Baptist church. Members are again invited to be present.

Big Plans in the Making For Hallowe'en Carnival

Big plans are in the making for a gala Hallowe'en carnival to be staged at Cooper school by the Parent-Teacher association headed by the President, Mrs. Carl Clemmer. Date for the entertainment has not as yet been definitely decided on, but patrons and friends are asked to watch the paper for further announcements.

One of the outstanding attractions is to be the tea room, where other booths will be found. Special time is being given this particular feature. The PTA promises to contribute with a well arranged negro sketch, followed with a musical program. The menu to be prepared by the foods committee is scheduled to come first on program, varying a bit from the usual arrangement.

A big time is in store for all patrons and friends who are extended a cordial invitation to be present.

Dean, of Ranger, at the home of their mother, Mrs. Frank Day.

Fourth of Radio Owners Need Sets

Recent outstanding achievements in radio engineering have rendered obsolete a large portion of the receiving sets now in operation, according to Sayre M. Ramsdell, vice president of Philco Radio & Television Corp.

"Although 2,664,000 replacement sets were purchased during 1935," says Mr. Ramsdell, "it is estimated that fully 25 per cent of the sets in operation, or approximately 7,000,000 sets, were incapable of quality performance as judged by technical standards at the end of the year."

"With the introduction of Magnetic Tuning, Automatic Tuning, the Spread Band Dial, the Philco Foreign Tuning System, and other great technical advances, a large proportion of the remaining 21,000,000 sets have been rendered equally obsolete."

This increase in obsolescence substantiates the prediction of the Alexander Hamilton Institute that more than 6,000,000 radio sets will be sold in 1936. Every seventh home in the United States got a new radio in 1935, and the figure is expected to be even higher in 1936.

Mr. Ramsdell reports that although radio ownership in the United States has reached the figure of 28,500,000 radios in 22,500,000 homes, almost 30 per cent of the homes have no radio.

"Of the radios sold in 1935," Mr. Ramsdell continues, "many went into homes already equipped with radio, in line with the current trend of having radios placed throughout the house, such as the bedroom, kitchen, nursery, workshop and dining room."

Radio Outnumber Phones
Figures reveal that radio remains the most popular of all electrical devices, exceeding both telephones, and electric refrigerators; and through the use of battery sets there are even more radio equipped homes in the United States than there are homes wired for light.

"The increased interest in short-wave programs of foreign origin, and the improved quality of these programs has definitely stimulated the public's desire for all-wave sets capable of bringing in such programs with strength and clarity," says Mr. Ramsdell.

"The new Philco, with its great engineering advances, satisfies this need so thoroughly that many homes will supplant or supplement their old radios with all-wave Philcos, while other homes will install receiving sets for the first time."

The new model Philcos, both electric and battery sets, may be seen at Killingsworth, Cox & Co. A political Atlas, furnished and prepared by Philco, can also be obtained. All you do is fill in the coupon found in this issue or call at the store.

Big Vera and Her Baby to Visit Here Saturday, Oct. 31

Did you ever see a mother weighing 8,000 pounds and a baby weighing 250 pounds? Residents of Ranger and vicinity will have the opportunity of witnessing this unusual sight on Saturday, Oct. 31, when "Big Vera" and "Mary" mother and baby elephants came to town with the Harley Sadler Circus. Harley Sadler this season has forsaken the dramatic tent theatre and is with his all new circus. He has assembled this season a circus of standard attractions, featuring performers from many many countries. All equipment is new, and many new and novel ideas are being carried into effect. The show is presented "Jumbo" style, as given at the Ft. Worth Centennial and every act is a feature act. There are many strange specimens of the animal world carried by the circus, equine and canine stars. The quality of a Harley Sadler show is well known throughout Texas, and Harley Sadler has devoted the same care in the selection of his circus acts and programs as he did in his dramatic show. He is bringing it to Ranger on Saturday, Oct. 31 at popular prices, and a large crowd is expected to turn out to see this new type of circus. As a special feature, he is making it possible for all children to see the matinee performance at greatly reduced prices.
