Patrick Hossley, in charge of the United States Army recruiting station at Eastland, has announced the following enlistments during the past month:

Charles J. Johnson, Jr., Route 1, Ranger; Wilson Barton, Route 1, Eastland; J. T. Taylor, Railroad Ave., Eastland, and Merlin L. Eubank, Route 2, Eastland, all enlisted in the infantry and sent to Fort Sam Houston.

Hossley also announced that he had received 12 openings for the army air corps at Kelly Field. Any man who is a high school graduate or a journeyman mechanic is qualified for these openings. This is for three-year enlistments only.

Openings also have been announced at Fort Sam Houston for boys who do not have a high school education, who may enlist in the infantry, quartermaster corps or field artillery.

Boys who are at least five feet tall, and over, and who weigh over 105 pounds may enlist in the army, Hossley stated. Previously a man had to be at least five feet four inches tall and weigh at least 115 pounds.

Fresh grapefruit, fresh cabbage, and onions (except green onions) have been added to the national list of surplus foods for the November 1 through November 30 period. All other nationally listed surplus foods, available to Stamp Plan participants during the October 1 to 31 period, will be continued for the month of November. The complete list for November is as follows: cabbage, grapefruit, onions (except green onions), Irish potatoes, apples, pears, oranges, butter, raisins, rice, pork, hard, all pork (except that cooked or packed in metal or glass containers), corn meal, shell eggs, dried prunes, hominy grits, dry edible beans, wheat flour, and whole wheat flour (graham).

Local designations of seasonal surplus vegetables, which have been made periodically since June on a regional basis, have been discontinued with the wind-up of the growing season in most producing areas.

Law Students Get Practical Lessons

DETROIT.—To acquaint senior law students with the practical side of the law by an internship period similar to that served by doctors, the Wayne University Law School has launched a program of apprenticeship training with the cooperation of Wayne county attorneys.

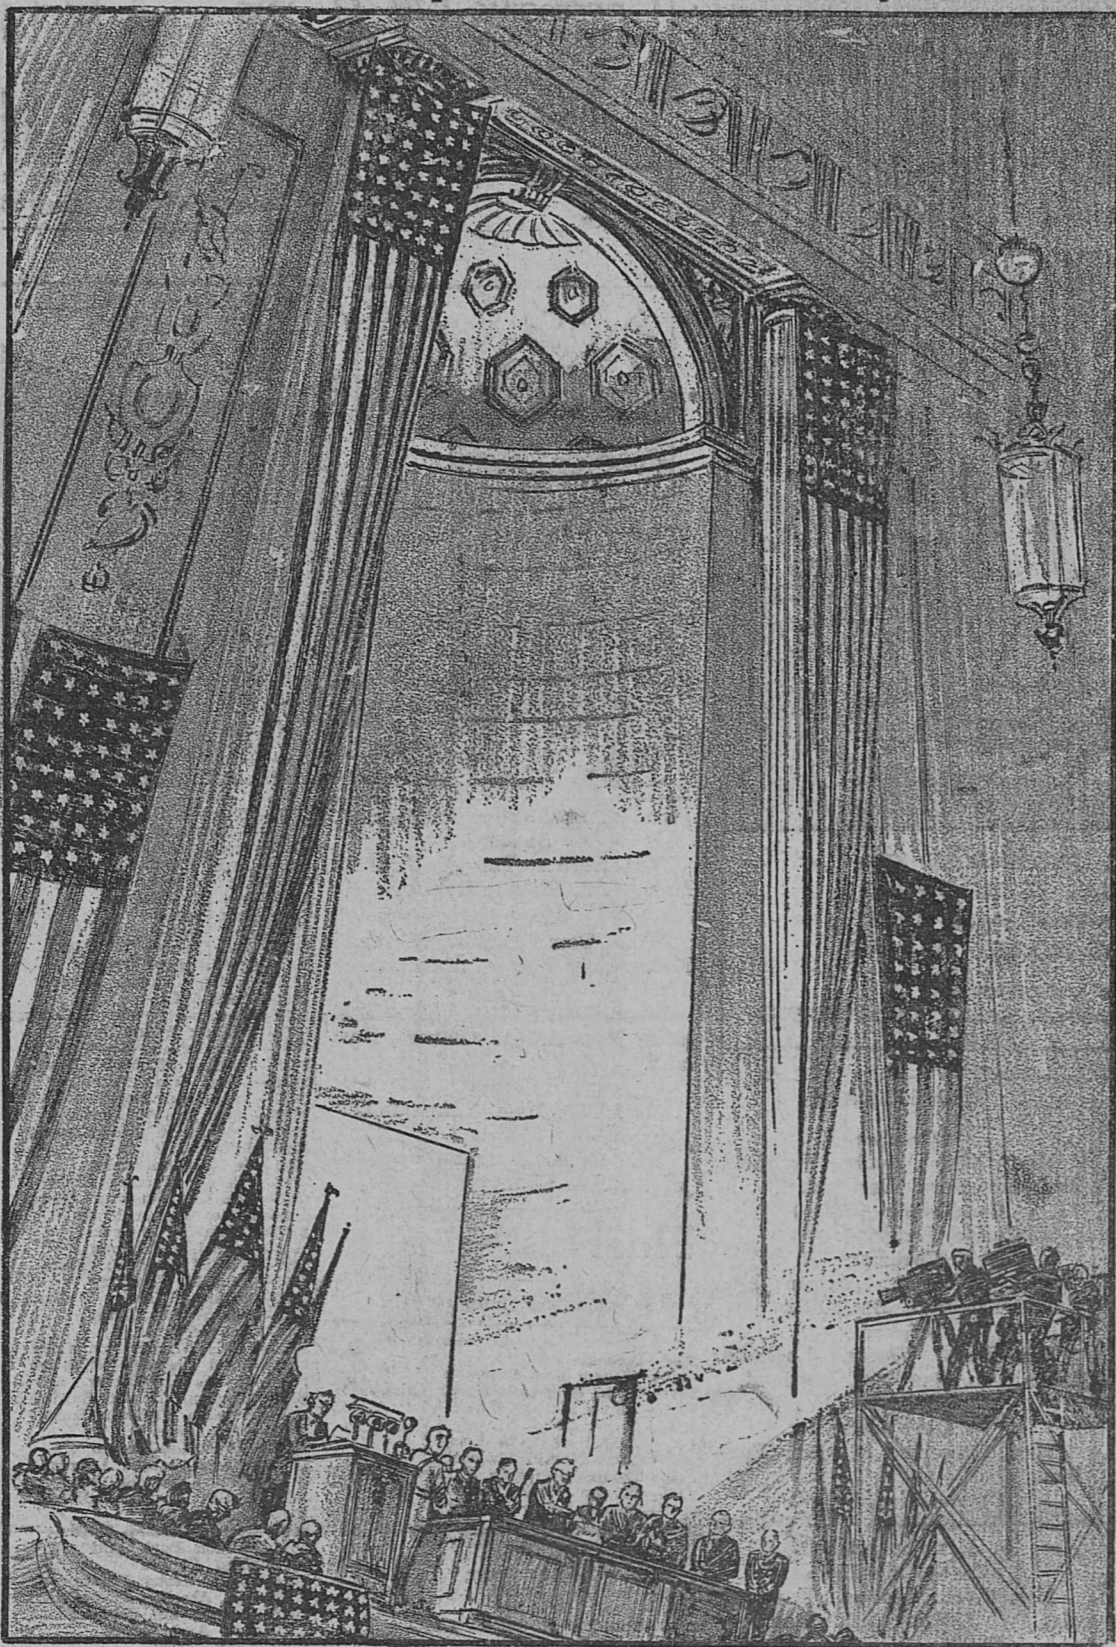

Through the Legal Aid Bureau of Detroit, a non-profit agency operated cooperatively by the Detroit Bar Association and the Detroit Community Fund, students are placed in offices to assist practicing attorneys with all necessary work in law cases except actual court appearances.

Personal interviews with clients, experience in looking up law and preparing briefs, and training in terms and procedures peculiar to practice in Michigan are provided. Formal classes for seniors are before noon, making the afternoons free for internship. The amount of class work required will not be diminished.

Numbers will be flashed on the large screen behind Stimson and relayed to the nation. Others on the platform with Stimson are to be President Roosevelt, Draft Director Clarence Dystra, Lieut.-Col. Charles Morris, (retired), who supervised World War lottery mechanics, and various other Washington bigwigs.

Passengers Give A Shower For Bride

Boarding her accustomed morning bus, Miss Betty Long was greeted with "Here Comes the Bride" sung by her fellow passengers to the accompaniment of a lone tuba player. Afterwards she was deluged with culinary articles.

The transportation company warned other commuting brides-to-be not to expect such showers in the future as part of its service.

An axis offensive struck at Greece today but a quick counter move by the Greek defenders and by Great Britain brought reports of naval action and the British occupation of the island of Crete, off the southern coast of Greece.

Although neither Russia nor Turkey seemed likely to aid Greece immediately, first reports from Yugoslavia said that the Greek lines held fast against the initial blows struck by the Italian forces. The Italians were said to have entered two small Greek towns, however, after suffering severe losses. The axis offensive began at dawn, with Italian airplanes bombing airports and harbors in Greece, including those at Athens. Italian warships sought to seize Corfu and an estimated 200,000 Italian troops began crossing the border from Albania in the direction of Salonika.

A message from King George, in England, promised aid to the Greeks and British forces were reported to have gone into action. There were reports that Turkey might eventually get into the war to aid Greece, and Russia was reported to have cautioned Germany and Italy against any expansion toward the Dardanelles.

Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Rumania attempted to adopt a policy of strict neutrality, but at Belgrade there were fears of a German-Italian demand for permission to send troops through Yugoslavia and it was believed such a demand would be resisted.

After an all-day meeting with Benito Mussolini at Florence, Adolf Hitler started northward today, apparently enroute back to Berlin.

Accuses The City Of Starving Squirrels

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—R. S. Menefee, former school board president, has accused city officials of robbing the squirrels of their pecans for a mere $760.

Menefee lodged a petition with the city clerk asking that the council nullify a contract selling the pecans in Brackenridge Park to J. T. Baker of San Saba.

"The park, and the pecans belong to all the citizens of San Antonio, and the city council, acting in the name of the taxpayers, can't legally sell them."

"And the squirrels are starving," Menefee said.

Co-eds Spend More Than Male Students

At least a recent survey taken by the business staff of the Kansas State Collegian shows the average woman student here spends approximately $538.72, while her male counterpart averages $521.64.

It revealed the average Kansas State University student spends $530.18 during the school year, and that the total buying power of the 4,000,000 students is $2,066,309.

The greatest part of the $2,066,309 is amount spent for food totaling $620,184.65 per year. Candy, ice cream and chewing gum purchases amounted to $27,271.94, and $31,570.24 is spent for drinks.

The Scrap for Scrap

Japan is convinced that the United States is serious about cutting off sales of scrap iron. That is clear from the frantic efforts she is making to buy it up in every corner of the world.

Japanese interests are bidding desperately, for instance, for 150,000 tons of scrap to be sold by the Mexican railway and oil administrations. Many Americans have managed to drum up considerable indignation that Mexico would presume to consider such a sale now that the United States has embargoed it.

Mexicans will get a laugh out of that, because of more than 21,500,000 tons of scrap iron and steel exported from the United States since 1933, more than half went to Japan. A country which has sent ten million tons of this essential war material to Japan can scarcely criticize a neighbor country which negotiates for the sale of a mere 150,000 tons. It is even unlikely that so much will actually be sold.

As a matter of fact, the deal is nothing to worry about anyway. Mexico has no great amount of such supplies. The scrap now being sold by the Mexican railway and oil administrations has probably been accumulating for years.

More important is the possibility that Mexico will sell increasing quantities of oil and aviation gasoline to the Japanese. At present it is selling around 200,000 barrels a month, and there are desperate efforts to increase this. The grant of an exploratory oil concession to Japanese interests on the Gulf Coast is interesting, but no such concession could readily be developed in time to bear on the Chinese war unless Japan thinks that war is going to last a long, long time.

Mercury and antimony are also being sold in Mexico to German interests, which send them to Japan, there dividing the materials. It is a perfectly legal trade, and there is nothing the United States can do to prevent it except buy the materials itself.

As long as the controversy over the expropriation of American oil properties in Mexico continues unadjusted, it seems likely that Mexico must continue to sell what it can where it can. This pressing problem seems certain to be a legacy to the incoming Avila Camacho regime in Mexico and to whatever administration is in office here after Jan. 20.

We can always scare Japan to the point of collapse by threatening to make our own lapel flags and salt cellars.

Elliott Roosevelt, who made quite a study of economics, gives up a $75,000 job to take a $316 a month army captaincy. Maybe he didn't study long enough.

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

YESTERDAY: Sidney follows Nella to the swimming pool, arrives in time to see Leseneff dive in, save the drowning girl. The director insists the girl attempted suicide. He notices a bruise on her head. Leseneff has an alibi for his presence in the neighborhood, expresses no regret over Adam's death. Nella revives but is unable to speak.

MARTA REVEALS A SECRET

CHAPTER XVII

AFTER the doctor's second visit, everyone in the house knew that Nella Langdon was a victim of psychic dumbness. She could not speak. But he had administered a narcotic and had held out hope that when she awakened from the sleep induced by the drug she might be herself again. People afflicted with psychic dumbness or blindness became so, he explained, because they had heard or seen sights so terrible that their nervous systems refused to recognize them and relate them. In Nella's case, a nervous inheritance from an insane grandmother, made her a ready victim. The question in all minds, including Captain Plovman's, was: What would Nella relate when she did return to normal?

"What can Nella have seen?" Marta asked Sidney when they were alone together in the library, later in the day. "Can she be protecting someone?" "God knows," Sidney replied. "To guess is to accuse, and I am not prepared to do that. Neither, I believe, is Plovman." "Aren't there drugs that may be used to free her?" "Yes, but they are not always successful and cannot be employed without the consent of relatives. I imagine Hugh, as the nearest relative, might not wish them tried."

Abruptly Sidney switched the subject. "Barkes said he saw a shadow against your curtain at 6 o'clock last night, Marta. Have you an idea who made it?"

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

YESTERDAY: Questioning Marta about the shadow on her window, Braitwood discovers it was Adam. Marta tells him then, of Adam's long fight against the narcotic habit, his victory, and the attempt to prove himself cured. A siege of fever in Capetown ruined all that. She had offered to marry Adam. But a gossip column item, and the failure of her letter to reach him, left Adam believing she had abandoned him. He married Pat.

PAT EXPLAINS A FIRE

CHAPTER XVIII

GLAD in an orange boucle suit and framed in the green shrubbery as she sat on a garden bench, Patricia Langdon looked like a tropical bird. Even Braitwood admitted she was attractive. He thought Pat selfish. Had she really loved Craig Gundrum she would not have married Adam. A professor's salary, while not comparable with a fortune such as Adam Langdon's, was still sufficient for two if real love were present.

For Adam, he did not believe she cared the least. Nor did he believe that Adam would have married any girl, knowing he was a drug addict, had not that addiction sapped his morale. An air of relief characterized Pat. As Sidney dropped into a seat beside her, he guessed—rightly—that she had been thinking of the fortune she would soon inherit. The unpleasant notoriety that they must all shoulder, but that would pass and her short month as Adam Langdon's bride would be but a dark memory.

"I shall live in Capetown when this is over," she told Braitwood. "The sooner an ocean separates me from this blood-stained old house, the sooner I shall forget the unhappiness it has brought me." "Your people are in Africa now, aren't they?" he asked. "Yes," she replied. "What legal formalities must a wife go through before an estate is settled, Mr. Braitwood?" "For a few moments they discussed legal matters, then Sidney asked: "Did you know that the autopsy had revealed a considerable amount of morphine in Adam's system, Mrs. Langdon?" "Oh—I feared that might happen," she admitted in a startled me all you know," he said gently. Marta faced him, eyes despairing. "It was Adam's own shadow the chauffeur saw," she said simply. "After you left me, he came to my room. He wanted to explain before I met the others. I had gone down the hall for a shower and when I returned he was standing by my window. The curtain had been drawn."

A quick frown darkened Sidney's face. Langdon's conduct remained inexplicable to him. "Don't judge him too harshly, Sidney," Marta said in a low tone. "You were in California when he came back from his hunt in India last year, after he'd had that terrible brush with a tiger. The beast would have done for him but for Hugh." She swallowed. "Now—I wish Hugh had not been there. We would have been spared all this horror."

Helpless to offer comfort, Sidney waited for her to go on. "The tiger had ripped the sheath off a nerve," she said. "The pain was dreadful and impossible to bear without the aid of morphine. In Capetown they operated and he recovered, but soon his nerves began to trick him. He would wake up at night covered with cold sweat and imagine the tiger before him. He had never before known the meaning of fear. He knew it then, and it became unbearable."

"So he continued to use the drug?" Sidney guessed. "Yes," Marta admitted. "When he got back we decided to fight the fear as well as the drug—together. He and Hugh and I came down here and we saw him through."

"You dear girl!" Sidney's eyes were moist. "He thought himself safe, Sidney. We believed it, too. He decided he must prove himself by going on another hunt and though we tried to dissuade him, he felt that he had to go."

"That took courage," Sidney commented. "Adam was fine, when he was himself," Marta went on. "He contracted fever in the jungle and lay for weeks at Patricia Bridges' cousin's farm. The doctor gave him morphine."

"So the fight had to be fought all over again," Sidney mused. "It did," Marta admitted. "He wrote me in despair. I decided that if I showed my faith it would help, so I—she hesitated a long moment and continued—"I wrote him that when he came back we would be married, and that I'd take a long vacation until he was himself again."

"Greater faith hath no man," Sidney breathed. "I should have been justified, but for one of those slips of fate. An inconsequential bit of unfounded gossip, based on someone seeing me with Boris several times."

"You mean when a report of your engagement to Leseneff got into the newspapers? I saw that, Marta."

"How Adam got the paper in Capetown, I don't know, but no doubt all papers are available there. Unfortunately he saw the announcement and did not receive my letter."

"Then he took that for your answer to his call for help?" Sidney said. "He did. He simply gave up and when he believed that Pat cared for him, he married her. She attracted him, he admitted, but he did not love her."

"Adam had a bad nervous inheritance. Such people should keep away from drugs."

MARTA continued the story: "It wasn't long before he realized Pat did not really care for him. Of course, he had money and the Bridges had lost all they had. Then she discovered his habit and once they had arrived here, she made plans to have him put in a hospital for treatment."

"He told me she meant to keep him there and control his estate. His nerves were completely shattered. He did not know what to do, so he sent for us without telling his wife. He thought she might prevent us from seeing him."

"It makes a clear picture, Marta," Sidney admitted. "Adam groped in a fog but he knew we were his friends."

"I couldn't tell Captain Plovman of Adam's weakness," Marta said. "It would have put him in such a bad light."

"I understand, dear. Nevertheless Plovman must be told. An autopsy will reveal that Adam used morphine. For your own sake, frankness is wise. Plovman is a natural gentleman. He will not cause you a moment of unnecessary distress."

"There is no such thing as a private life in my profession," Marta burst out. "Tell Plovman what you think he should know, but ask him to protect Adam's character as much as possible."

"Adam had the habit. Or did you know it?" "Recently I learned of it," Sidney confessed. "I understand you had planned to send him to a sanitarium?"

FOR the first time, Pat lost her poise. Her crimson lips quivered and her hands locked in an effort at self-control. She did not ask how Braitwood had obtained his knowledge. Probably she assumed that Adam himself had communicated it to his lawyer.

"You have not much sympathy with me, Mr. Braitwood," she said. "Don't pretend. I hardly blame you. You were Adam's friend. But if you would try to understand what marriage to a man who was all but a maniac meant, you would know I had little choice but to have him put away."

"You think there was more than an excessive use of drugs troubling him?" "I don't know, really. I have never been associated with a person who used drugs. But I do know that more than the time he was not rational. When deprived of the drug he was like a madman."

Says Amateurs Are Losing State Relics

By United Press PORTALES, N. M.—New Mexico is losing priceless relics of prehistoric men and animals because of thoughtless though innocent digging up of ancient skeletons by Sunday pleasure-seekers by Sunday pleasure-seekers according to H. Weston Roberts, geology professor at the Eastern New Mexico College. Lamenting loss of complete skeletons to well-meaning parties not connected with colleges or universities, Robbins issued a call for all who find skeleton remains to contact the nearest authority before molesting their discoveries. MODERN MENUS

MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Service Staff Writer

GRAPEs are abundant. The slip-skin grapes which grow east of the Rockies are from American native vines. They grew wild along the coast when the colonists first came to the new world. From California on the other hand, come many delicious European type grapes with skins which cling to the pulp. These grapes were carried to California by the early missionaries. In the markets, look for grapes that are plump, have firm fruit. Make certain they do not drop off at the slightest touch. Avoid wet and moldy grapes. Watch out for fruit injured by frost. It is soft and fleshy. The Pacific coast grapes are on the market most of the year. But the slip-skin Eastern variety has a short season. There is still time to make a batch of grape conserve for the winter menu. The following recipe has been worked out by the Federal Bureau of Home Economics:

GRAPE CONSERVE Use slip-skin grapes such as Concord. Wash and drain grapes and remove from stems. To 4 lbs. of prepared grapes allow 2 lbs. sugar, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 orange, 1 cup nut meats, and 1 teaspoon salt. Slip skins from grapes and keep them separate from the pulp. Peel

BREAKFAST: Grape bowl, French toast, honey, bacon, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON: Black bean soup, frankfurter rings, rye bread sandwiches, pears, tea, milk. DINNER: Fried pork chops, grape conserve, mashed potatoes, baked squash, apple and lettuce salad, chocolate pudding, coffee, milk.

Above are Joe McCrea and Laraine Day who have two of the principal roles in "Foreign Correspondent," the Walter Wanger thrilling production showing for the last times today at the Arcadia theatre. "Foreign Correspondent" is the screen story of the American newshawks who are responsible for the European news which you read at your breakfast table. McCrea is cast in the title role with Day, Herbert Marshall, Robert Benchley, George Sanders and Albert Basserman in support. The direction is by Alfred Hitchcock, England's leading megaphonist who brought "Rebecca" to the screen with such fidelity. Critics are unanimous in their opinion that "Foreign Correspondent" eclipses the screen efforts of the Du Maurier novel.

Exposition Train Will Show Here On Friday, Nov. 1st

A new and modern streamlined version of the bulky, immobile circus, condensed into the confines of modern railway cars which move with express train speed over the nation, will be presented to the Ranger show going public, for one day and night, Friday Nov. 1st, on the Texas Pacific railroad tracks at Commerce street.

Known as the Mammoth Exposition Train, the show will present many features of showmanship known hitherto only to the more cumbersome tented circuses, and will offer a large and interesting collection of strange animals and exotic humans gathered from all corners of the globe in addition to intriguing side-show entertainment.

Gone with the introduction of the exposition on the modern streamlined railway cars are many of the old circus customs . . . the erection of large canvas arenas with burly roustabouts driving stakes, the heavy equipment, and the large working personnel. Replacing these customs and characters are two huge railroad cars which can be converted into a self-contained exhibition in one hour and thirty minutes, an efficient management, and a quiet moving, highly trained personnel.

The manner in which the exposition moves from city to city is also reflected in the type and kind of entertainment provided, and the continuous style of showing instead of set performances.

In the main exhibition will be seen many unusual living human and animal attractions, including what is said to be the world's largest living horse, a titanic Belgian roan gelding, weighing 2750 pounds, and standing 19 1/2 hands tall. Companion exhibits include the smallest horse on earth, said to stand 28-inches tall, a synthetic 'unicorn,' a terrifying creature with but a single horn growing from the center of the forehead; the tiniest living mule, thirty-inches tall; an imported Scottish highland steer, and a rare black-and-white spotted mule, together with other rare and interesting creatures.

Featured will be an open air managerie, entirely free to the public, located outside the train in an open air steel corral. Here one may see a rare living De Brazza monkey, newly arrived in America from the French Congo, and boasting a pure white Vanddyke beard seven inches long, shown with the world's largest living steer, a huge creature said to stand nearly nine feet from horn tips to the ground. Others exhibited in the free managerie include living specimens of zebu, water buffalo, karakul sheep, llama, alpaca, Texas longhorn steers and western plains buffalo.

One of the highlights of the exhibition on board the railway cars will be the showing of a living 'headless' woman. The public will be allowed behind the scenes to inspect the apparatus that makes possible the presentation of a living human body with the head missing, thus explaining to everyone at first hand exactly how this seeming miracle is accomplished. Showings will be continuous from noon daily while here.

Among the linemen on King's freshman team is listed Arkie Sharpe, who played end and tackle on the Bulldogs several years ago.

Cement Purchases Are On An Upgrade

AUSTIN, Tex.—Shipments of Texas-made cement moved faster during September to total 645,000 barrels—up 8.4 per cent over August and 10.3 per cent above September a year ago, University of Texas business statisticians report.

Production—though almost 10 per cent higher than in August—remained 8 per cent below the September, 1939, output of 685,000 barrels, University Bureau of Business Research records reveal.

Stocks on hand at the month-end totaled 848,000 barrels, compared to 862,000 barrels August 31 and 822,000 barrels on September 30, 1939.
