COVENTRY, England, Nov. 16. -Walls lean crazily, chimneys stand like charred tree stumps aft er a forest fire and debris lies 50 feet high in the streets where two days ago was a thriving industrial city with traditions dating back almost 900 years.

The bottoms of my feet are cut and my clothes reek with acrid fumes from walking along what was the main thoroughfare of Coventry before German bombers men are about the only persons one meets. Groping along this "main street," which is damaged beyond recognition, I found one A.R.P. warden lolling in an upholstered chair in front of what had been one of the city's smartest shops. He said he was guarding against looters. I asked him how many bombs had fallen. "Thousands," he replied, wear-

I saw block after block of ruins that tended to confirm the warden's estimate.

Glass was ankle deep on the main street. There were huge bomb craters in every block and undoubtedly many persons still were buried under the mounds of debris. Walls hang out over the sidewalks, threatening to collapse at any moment.

I approached St. Michael's cathedral, a 14th century architectural sterpiece, looked through gaps in the wall and through window spaces that had contained fine, stained glass, and saw the sky. Only a skeleton 2 the cathedral remains.

Farther along the street, beds are visible through the half-collapsed wall of one of the leading hotels. Nearby was a pile of steel girders, twisted like pretzels. Most persons to whom I talked admitted that Coventry would have to be pulled down and

The United States Goes to College

Did you vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt or Wendell Willkie for President on Tesday, Nov. 5?

Pardon us, but you didn't. You voted for electors, who you hope and expect will vote in the electorial college for the candidate of your choice. That is the unique college to which all the United States goes, once every four years, to find out whom it has elected its President.

Those electors, for whim you really voted, will meet and THEY will vote for the presidential candidates. The result of their vote will be forwarded to Washington, there tabulated with similar votes in other states, and the result is the official election of a President.

A long way around to achieve a result everybody knows about anyway? Perhaps. Some people think it ought to be eliminated as a useless snarl of red tape, to say nothing of the possibility that the electors just might possibly get together and vote for somebody you didn't intend them to vote for at all.

It all started when the country was young, and had fewer than 4,000,000 people, most of whom were not allowed to vote. Even this restricted suffrage was not trusted. It was felt that the voters ought to delegate the right to choose a President to a select group of respected citizens. These would be chosen by the voters for their standing and judgment, and they, in their wisdom, would choose anybody they thought best for President.

Their number, too, equal in each state to the number of senators and representatives, guaranteed minimum representation to each state as such, no matter how small.

But after this college had twice elected Washington, parties sprung up, and the idea became more and more irmly entrenched that the electors were to be pledged in advance to vote for a specific candidate, thus reducing hem form a choice-making body to a mere transmission! belt for a choice made by the voters themselves.

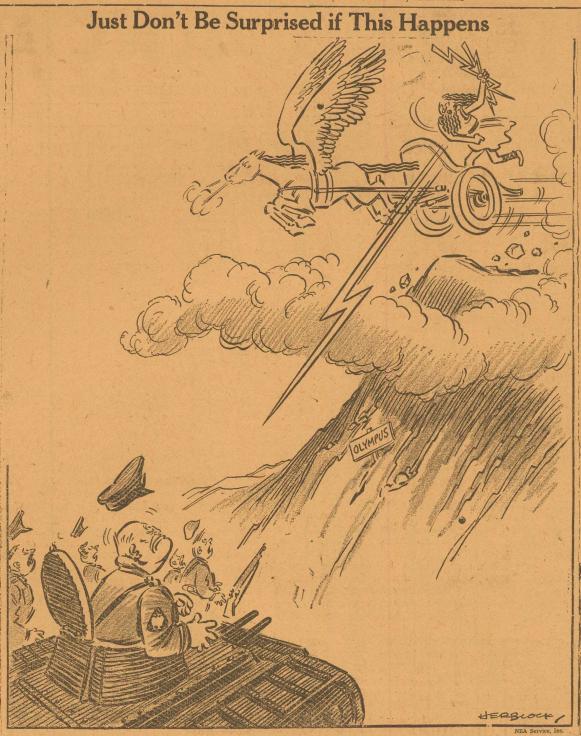

Thus we are reminded every four years of two things: rst, that our government is more democratic today than when it was first set up, and second, that it is a federal union of sovereign states, and that our presidents are chosen by the vote of the people of the states as such, and not directly by the mass of all the people.

This odd and atavistic "college" has been functioning for 152 years and bids fair to turn out many another "graduate."

We're already wondering what they'll blame everyhing on after this presidential year has passed.

Army ordered 200,000 pairs of shoes. Hayfoot, strawfoot and 400,000 chances for the "hot foot."

AMERICA FOREVER

There's a time that will come for thankfulness And for laying our burdens down

I like to think that this time will come When our land is not tattered with fight That the time will come when our work is done With a labor not labeled "flight."

When God gave us this nation He said "This is the land you're to love so in building it use discretion And remember I'm watching-above."

Our forefathers struggled and fought For the land He bade them love And the freedom for which they sought

Was granted from Him up above. He guided and helped and watched them Knowing full well what they'ed done

He granted their smallest, their slightest whim And never tired with the setting sun. And so in our struggle to keep our land

To preserve what was gallantly won Let's work together—a united band Never ceasing till our work is done.
