The Balloon Tugs at Its Mooring Ropes

The balloon called "Boom" is filling rapidly, and tugging nervously at its mooring ropes. America is going back to work.

After 10 years of fruitless struggle to achieve that, the world has suddenly thrust forward a situation that achieved it for us. Jobs are at last beginning to seek the man in the higher brackets of skill, and in the Cleveland area, manufacturers are beginning to bid against one another for skilled machinists and toolmakers.

This has not yet gotten down to the rank and file of unskilled labor, yet the American Federation of Labor is confident that it soon will, and advances the possibility that by the end of 1941 as many as 7,500,000 of the present unemployed may be at work. Up to 4,000,000 will be direct-ly needed in the expanding defense industries. That will From A TCU Team Fish Season Asked give work to another 2,000,000 in non-defense and transport. The military will remove another 1,500,000 men from the labor market. That would leaved nly 1,000,000 unemployed, at the end of 1941, with another 500,000 reaching employable age that year, and a reserve of 3,500,000 people not ordinarily employed who could be brought back to jobs at need.

This is a pretty picture, and we hope it's a true one. But like all pictures, it is only on the surface. What does it mean?

It means that the United States is being driven to adopt the kind of economy Germany, Italy and Japan adopted by choice that is, an economy in which a major part of the country's labor energy is diverted into armanent regardless of cost or relation to "normal economy."

But some time this emergency, like all emergencies, must end. The men will come back from the training camps some day; the shell plants and armor plate mills will close.

Not only government, but every person, especially those in positions of responsibility on whose decisions will hang the jobs of others, must begin to hatch in the back of their minds plans for peacetime production that can replace that of war preparedness.

eat them, 7-2. It is not that it isn't pleasant to feel the balloon begin to rise. It is pleasant. But there is no use kidding ourselves hat any problem is being solved. The essenial readjustment of the economic machine in "normal" times has not yet been made, and we must be ready with our adjustments when-and if-"normal" times come again.

nany things being used for bait, but a human tooth tops all of them in our estimation. A Mr. Welch, 85-year-old fisherman of Frisco, Texas, recently showed the state game and fish warden on Lake Dallas two large white bass. His story: "I was pretty disgusted late this afternoon for I hadn't caught a fish and I had a toothache to boot. One of my teeth was very loose and I finally jerked it out of my jaw. I was willing to try anything to catch a fish, so I fastened the tooth to my hook and dropped it into the water. It was not long before I had a fine white bass. Not much later a second white bass bit my tooth and here he is. But I lost the tooth in catching the second fish."

Andre was scowling. "A fool you make of yourself," he was saying, "and fortunate for you is the change in plan."

"What do you mean?" Andre asked.

"I got your card. That much was all right, the information. But you would have been called here anyway. An-what is it you call yourself? Andre Girardeau, hah!' Andre's lips tightened. He hadn't come to Washington to be insulted, and yet he was helpless here.

"After all, Herr Girardeau, if you will, you are to do exactly as you are told. Must I explain what I mean? No. I speak not for myself, you know that. Now at home you were always a soft mark for the women, and here in America you make a name for yourself with the first pretty woman you contact. Do you fancy that is approved?

A young man was helping her from the car. "Ah, Senorita Montoya, may I help you?"

Andre stared at the girl, and at her crutch, as she hobbled past.

"Listen, I—" "No. You listen. You. Now, Such as Brownsville and El Paso, so better he form his you can never work high if you Texas, Nogales and Tia Juana, are business contact first. When the Ranger Bulldogs go up against Class A Anson's Tigers at Bulldog Stadium Thursday, it will be the only time this season, except against Eastland, where the Bulldogs have not been heavily outweighed, man for man, it has been pointed out by Coach H. G. Jennings. But, as on all other occasions, the Bulldogs will be up against a team with far more experience

If H. O. Woods, 172 pound back is in the starting lineup for the Bulldogs, Jennings states, they will be outweighed but three or four pounds to the man, but if Woods does not start and a lighter man is used, the average will jump to above seven or eight pounds.

Two men on the Anson starting lineup have more experience than the entire Bulldog traveling squad of 22 men, each with three years of playing experience for a total of six years, while the Bulldogs
