Visionary? Yes! Visionary and Vital

The name of Solomon, King of Israel, has become a synonym for wisdom.

Among his proverbs is one which is especially worth recalling just at this time, when we are all thinking about the future of free government. Solomon said:

Where there is no vision, the people perish.

Just as the whole zest of life is in having something to look forward to, so in the life of a people, the only thing that gives a social order any meaning (and therefore any strength) is the feeling that "we are getting somewhere—we have a splendid goal to achieve."

There has been too much talk of "preserving democracy." Certainly it must be preserved, but always with the thought before us of what it may become, can become, not what it used to be. The glory of the free way of life is not in what it has done, but in what it may do.

Professor Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago is perhaps the dean of American political scientists. He is as deep a student of government as lives, yet he is no ivory-tower dreamer.

He has seen a vision of the future of free society, such as a vision as we must all see if we are to understand that free government is worth fighting for. He sees future free governments and societies in which the role of power will not be repressive merely, but dynamic and constructive. "In these coming days," he says, "men may achieve not merely that personal security and community stability which alone might mean monotony and boredom. Men may look forward to adventurous participation in the process of creative evolution—in the constructive transformation and betterment of life conditions."

The 17th and 18th centuries, Professor Merriam says, won civil liberties by protecting person and property against arbitrary seizure and force. The 19th established political liberty through the right to vote and hold office.

The positive stage now appears. It is open to this and following generations actually to mold conditions of social life in a positive direction—to remove special privilege and obstacles to the full development of personality, with accompanying expansion of liberty—education, economic security, and cultural opportunities.

Kentucky judge, also a dentist, offered woman new set of teeth for wooded land needed for a right-of-way. She accepted and the choppers went to work.

Everybody agrees that national unity is a fine thing, so let's make up our minds what it really means.

The fellow who is perfectly satisfied with but little here below has it in his head.

Strictly a Temporary Matter

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 24.

The Goden Text is: "O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved" (Psalms 66:8,9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (II Corinthians 5:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionably to their occupancy of your thoughts" (page 261).

GIANT SUNFISH CAUGHT

SANTA CRUZ, Cal.—Capt. Sammy Pennington, navigator of a deep-sea fishing barge, had the luck to catch a giant sunfish weighing 1,400 pounds, the largest ever known to be landed in these waters. Sunfish, as a rule, do not exceed 1,000 pounds.

To avoid reduction in yield, strawberry plants should be covered with a clean straw mulch about three inches deep when the temperature reaches 20 degrees F., says George Beach of the Colorado State college experiment station.

CAMP SHELBY

Five years ago, the state began restoring the site for a permanent National Guard camp. Improvements totaling more than $500,000 were made, mostly through WPA projects.

So great is the flow of men and materials between Hattiesburg and the camp that the Illinois Central railroad has built three miles of sidetracks and is running six shuttle trains daily. Another railway, the Mississippi Central, is planning to re-lay tracks which were ripped up after the World War.

Meanwhile, Hattiesburg's civic leaders are faced with accommodating two and one-half times the city's normal population of 23,000.

Housing facilities are not adequate to shelter the new residents and already-full schools must somehow provide education for children of Army officers and construction workers.

You can't convince certain small countries that Germany isn't the ruler of the seize!

A Nomination for All - America Centaur

College gridirons have long been populated with Wildcats, Tigers, Bears, Panthers and so on through the whole gamut of the animal kingdom but this, is the first football centaur. Resemblance to the Greek mythological figure shown in inset, came when Sid Sadoff, North Carolina fullback, tackled Dinky Darnell from behind as the Duke end took a short pass from Wes McAfee.

DON'T STOP AT MURDER!

A newspaper is an accurate reflection of what today is doing with people . . . and what people are doing with today.

Murder is big-type news. So is a bank stick-up. And so is the dedication of a new library, or the launching of a new ship, or the employment of hundreds in reviving industry.

But you have read only half of the story, if you stop at murder. In our advertising columns can be found news in its most authentic sense.

What are people wearing? What are they eating? Where are they going? How are they going? Why this style, and why that vogue? When is the time to build? Who has the latest? How much does it cost?

Answers to these and like questions give you real information . . . news . . . about this business of modern living. And you will find these answers by carefully reading the advertisements in this newspaper.

SERIAL STORY

DUDE COLLEGE

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY Ronnie's sharp-shooting help Officer Starr capture the men who had shot at her plane. Later, telling the story to Ronnie's father, Starr explains that the men were not aliens, but American citizens. Bailey believes they may have some interest in the bombing tests to be held soon. Starr agrees.

WES IS UP IN THE AIR

CHAPTER VII

"I HAVE asked you to come in," Dr. Woodrow Wesley York was saying, "because it is a faculty ruling that we make a first-week check of our students, Miss Bailey. Pueblo University always maintains close touch with its registrants, to assist them in every way. Have you found your courses satisfactory? What you hoped they might be?"

"Oh, yes, Dr. York!" Ronnie Bailey had a way of saying "Oh, yes." She emphasized the yes, made it a sound of enthusiasm and gratitude so that it was distinctly complimentary. Dr. York looked up from his record book at her.

"Ah—quite so," he murmured then, inadequately. Miss Bailey always distracted him.

"And Dr. York, I'm sorry I got myself talked about. Am I to be punished? Daddy said I ought to be skinned for—"

"Miss Bailey, you are regarded, as an adult here, which of course you are. Pueblo does not 'punish.' Of course, certain disciplinary measures have to be invoked from time to time, but your—ah—episode with the airplane and the Border Patrol was distinctly your own affair, and not reprehensible in the slightest, so far as I can see."

"Mr. Starr says that it demonstrates the need for additional autogiro planes in the border service. With only three autogiros now, more should be added as rapidly as—"

"Do you like to fly, Dr. York?" "I beg pardon?" He looked astonished. "I, myself?" "Yes! Do you?"

"Why, ah—no. That is, I have never once been in—"

"Goodness, Dr. York, you ought to be ashamed! This isn't the covered wagon era. This is 1940!" "Quite so, Miss Bailey. But my scholastic pursuits—"

"Oh, ps-s-s-s-s!" She hissed at the air, wrinkling her nose, then winked imperiously before she talked on. "Listen here, Dr. York, the kids all say you are very human, really?"

"They—they—how was that?" He put down his record book and frowned, incredulous, through his heavy-rimmed spectacles.

"The older students say you are a swell sort if you'd let yourself be, and you're not broken down in years. Now listen—you're going flying with me—today!"

"Why, aw, Miss Bailey, I—" "Come on! Classes are over for the day and it's still just 3:30. Come on, Dr. York! Don't be a droop!"

"A—droop." He echoed it. Droop. It was new in his vocabulary of recognized slang. Droop. Patently, one was not expected to be a droop, if one would exert proper influence over the students. And the university president had said that he, a very young Ph.D., should perhaps be closer to the student activities than any other faculty man. The thought of flying—and Miss Bailey's unmistakably charming manner and, ah, her lips—

"Good! I knew you'd go. It's too lovely an afternoon to waste in an office anyway. Now my car is right outside and—"

SHE maneuvered him as she might have bossed her plane itself, guiding him and making him like it. Before the scholarly young gentleman realized it he was skimming over the road at 60, and when he became rational, he was skimming over New Mexico at 150. In abject awe he looked down.

"Not over 4000 feet," she answered his thoughts, shouting in his ear. "Like it?" Her grin was impish.

"Oh, quite!" "Good! We'll coast some."

Sliding, loafing along up high, motor idling, enabled them to talk more easily. Ronica noted that his somewhat pale, indoorish skin had taken on a pink glow of exhilaration. Also, he had taken his glasses off.

"It's surprising how much different you look," she said. "I beg pardon?" "Without your glasses, I mean. You look so much nicer. No, I don't mean that, Dr. York. I mean younger. Of course you look nice with them."

"—ah, thank you. I—" "What I mean is, you should get smaller frames, I think. These are too heavy. Do you have to wear them?"

"Only when I read, but one gets into a habit, and—" "That's all of that, then. You start leaving them off."

He looked at her with raised eyebrows. Here was a girl, a student, actually ordering him! Giving him personal commands. It wasn't done in a university, he felt, but—oddly, he liked it. It was distinctly pleasant, and it made sense. "THERE'S a dance Saturday night," she suddenly announced. "Quite so."

"Stop it!" she commanded, gaily. "Quite so" is something to say when you turn 50 years. Dr. York Can't you be yourself?"

He was shocked again, and looked it. "I—I—you—" She laughed happily, musically. "You're funny but I like you really. I think you haven't been any too happy. Have you?"

"I—yes. That is—" "Will you take me to the dance Saturday, Dr. York?" She might have shot a gun. Or power dived or looped a loop or, say, slapped him. No matter; it couldn't have astonished him as much as what she had said. His own voice, though, was paralyzed now.

"The kids say you have been girl shy," she went on, eyes dancing, "but the truth is, you're awfully good-looking and you're not as old as you think you are. I told some of the girls I bet I could break you out of your shell."

Still he could say nothing. "Mind if I drop the 'Doctor'?" I mean outside the classroom, of course. How about 'Wesley'? What do your intimate friends call you?"

"W-Wes." He finally croaked that. "Wes. It's okay—Wes! It's human. Here, you want to handle the controls some? Seriously, I'm not trying to flirt with you. I never flirt. I despise flirts. Wes, I'm just trying to stir you awake and I hope you don't get mad at me. Now grasp this lever first, and—"

"Get mad at her!" Get mad at Ronica Bailey. Poor Wes York, at once miserable and exalted, had no words despite his broad vocabulary. Get mad at her? Never! The girl spoke truth! He knew it, and in his own way almost frantic crying out of gladness, a welcoming of her frank comradeship; this vivacious, impulsive girl had suddenly brought life to him.

"Miss Bailey—that is, Ronica—I am both literally and figuratively up in the clouds, but I certainly shall take you to the dance!—in fact, I was about to ask you myself!"

He wondered what gave him the temerity to utter that last falsehood. But no matter; he felt a powerful new stimulant streaming through his veins. (To Be Continued)

Repeal of Hatch Act Is Asked By Educators

By United Press

MADISON, Wis.—Repeal of the Hatch law prohibiting political activity by federal employees because it "gagged" educators of land grant schools during the Presidential campaign is favored by Howard Becker, University of Wisconsin sociologist.

He urged repeal of the "entire law" before the 1944 Presidential election and said he was "willing to be an unwilling test case if someone here to decide the question." Wisconsin, like most state universities, is a federal land grant school.

The trouble with the Hatch law, Becker said, is its "failure to distinguish distinctly between academic and ordinary political freedom."

"I have a certain duty when I appear before a class in the university," he explained. "No professor has a right to use a class as a sounding-board, to lend himself to influencing unduly those students who by tradition can't effectively talk back."

Outside the classroom however, Becker believes he should be allowed "to do and say exactly what I please."

Becker planned to seek support of other American sociologists for repeal of the Hatch act during their annual meeting at Chicago in December.

Another University of Wisconsin faculty member, Elizabeth Brandels Raushenbusch, lecturer in economics and daughter of the retired U. S. Supreme court justice, Louis D. Brandels, advocated a test to "determine just what the courts' interpretation of the bill is."

"I don't think any of us really knows what the act means," said Mrs. Raushenbusch, conceding that the law should "draw the line between legal and illegal activity somewhere."

Dean Lloyd K. Garrison of the Wisconsin law school, first chairman of the National Labor Relations board, criticized the bill for absence of what he termed "clear-cut meaning." "But then," he said, "I'm not sure it's possible to phrase any statute intelligently with regard to an educational institution—especially one that wouldn't do more harm than it would good. Such a thing is just too hard to draft."

Garrison expressed "sympathy" for the Hatch law's major objectives but said lawmakers "let their original impulses roam too far astray."

One university educator, Asher Hobson, agricultural economist, defended the Hatch "clean politics" law, terming it "a good thing."

"I suppose," he said, "the argument could be held that a university educator has two separate entities, but I do believe there was some necessity for curbing the political activity of federal employees."

C. A. Compton Is Back From A Trip To Maytag Plant

C. A. Compton has just returned from a trip to Newton, Iowa which he made with a group of forty-seven Maytag dealers and salesmen from Texas. The men left from Dallas in two buses on the morning of the 16th and arrived in Newton the evening of the following day. They were met by Newton's famous "Doodle Bug" band.

Compton was one of the prize winners in a recent Maytag "Presidential" Sales Contest. The President of the Maytag-Texas Empire was elected during the series of conferences held at Newton.

Compton enjoyed the pleasure of several escorted tours through the Maytag factory at Newton, largest exclusive washer factory in the world. He saw the new Maytag washer with 50 per cent greater washing capacity fabricated "from the ground up" and visited the Maytag aluminum and grey iron foundries which are among the most modern to be found in the country today.

Compton continued, "The new department designed and built to paint Maytag washers was a marvel to me. The paint itself, which is a joint development of Maytag chemists and leading manufacturers of fine finishes, is impervious to the attacks of weather, water, and alkali, and is applied to surfaces which have been carefully cleaned and rust-proofed according to the most modern practices. Every cubic foot of air pumped into the paint room is washed, "dried," and finally forced through spun glass filters to remove the last traces of dust and dirt.

"All in all, I feel that my visit to the Maytag factory has given me a graphic picture of modern industrial practice. I don't see how it would be possible to use greater care in the manufacture of a washer than was demonstrated at the Maytag factory," Compton concluded.

If you want the best rouge on the market get plenty of exercise and eat healthful food.

College Students Will Be Polled On Foreign Policy

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — College students throughout the country soon to be leaders of American opinion, will have an opportunity to influence the nation's thought on foreign policy through a nationwide cooperative study announced today by John Stewart Bryan president of William and Mary. The college of Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall and James Monroe, traditionally a training school for statesmen, is conducting a cooperative study program on foreign policy, to which picked students from 300 colleges and universities will be invited to contribute their best thinking.

Prizes totaling $4,050 will be awarded for the twelve best studies. To judge them, three men of national reputation in the field of foreign relations will be designated for the national award and three for each of nine geographical regions. The most significant contributions will be published in a volume on "The Next Decade of American Policy," to be brought out in June.

Each of the institutions invited to take part will choose a committee of three students and one faculty advisor to draft a memorandum analyzing the economic, political and geographical factors most likely to influence American foreign policy and setting forth the basic principles that should govern the policy. The studies, not to exceed 5,000 words in length, are to be completed by March 1, 1941.

Dentists recently flocked to Cleveland from all over U. S. for a convention. It didn't hurt a bit. If all the autos were placed end to end, it would be Sunday.

TURTLE HAS METAL LEG
GREENWICH, Conn. — Sam Paskuarelli has what he believes the only turtle with an artificial leg. The turtle was crawling around on three legs when Paskuarelli found it. He fitted a wire to its shell to keep it in balance while he fitted a metal leg. The turtle is named Peg-leg.

THE PAY OFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

IN bringing back Roger Thorpe Peckinpugh, Alva Bradley admits he booted one in June, 1933, when the president of the Cleveland club coined his famous statement: "The owner only hires the manager. The public fires him!"

Or perhaps it is true that Bradley ran out of managers, and is starting all over again.

Bradley last season made it possible for the players to fire the manager. It was the rebellion of his athletes that put an end to the three-year reign of Oscar Vitt.

Bradley might have pleased the patrons to a greater extent by engaging a pilot more recently in the headlines—major or minor, but from the standpoint of operating a ball club, the selection of Roger Peckinpugh was a sensible one.

His reappointment again makes the Indians the only locally owned, administered and managed team in the big show.

THOUGH he joined the ranks of great shortstops in New York and continued his playing success in Washington, Rog Peckinpugh was born in Cleveland, attended high school there, and first cracked an American League lineup in a home town uniform . . . alongside the immortal Napoleon Lajoie.

A square-shooter, Peck talks baseball sense, and will restore much of the popularity the club lost if he is permitted to speak. Bradley ordered Walter Johnson and Steve O'Neill to remain away from press meetings after games. That left the baseball writers no one to talk to when Billy Evans was let go as general manager.

The excitable Vitt popped off . . . talked out of turn.

THE biggest complaint against Peckinpugh during his previous and five-year regime was that he was too easy going with his athletes. He had a tough bunch to handle, including Wes Ferrell and Eddie Morgan.

But when the showdown came, he suspended Ferrell, and fined the then outstanding pitcher $1000.

And, respected, he knows how to soothe the ruffled feelings of the temperamental Redskins whom Vitt rubbed the wrong way.

Peckinpugh is a grand fellow, and anybody who has been in contact with the Cleveland club since Cyril C. Slapnicka was placed in charge of the front office, knows the Indians can use one.

It's good to see Roger Peckinpugh back . . . to have someone in the Cleveland organization with whom you can talk baseball.

Rural Growth Is Seen As Accented

By United Press

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Population trends developed by the 1940 census will, if continued, shift the balance of American politics away from big cities and back to rural areas, believes Richard P. Brown, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

"If such population tendencies continue during the next 10 years the great cities will become increasingly less important in deciding our future national elections," Brown said. "It will be the combined voices of the rural districts and the smaller towns, rather than the vote of a dozen large metropolitan areas that will sway the choice for national office."

These trends, Brown explained, show cities like New York and London "to have reached and even passed" safe limits of size. Vulnerable to attack, they also are relatively sterile in producing new generations. Berlin, London and New York he cited as cities with low birth rates. In many cities, he added, births are relatively so few as to be outnumbered even by falling death rates made possible by medical science.

"The change in trend of population growth during the past 20 years is very startling to those who not long ago were making prophecies of a future America of immense glass-enclosed cities whose towering skyscrapers housed increasing multitudes of people. Nearly all dreams of the future embodied in our 'Worlds of Tomorrow' are based on what was happening in 1920 rather than 1940."

Preliminary census studies made by the state planning board, Brown said, show American population scattering, repelled by noise, congestion and living expense, rather than attracted by other advantages. The trends are evident not only in the 1940 census but in studies of the previous 20 years as well.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

ARMY HOUSING WILL BE READY BEFORE NEEDED. U. S. COMMUNISTS MAY SEVER TIES WITH U. S. S. R.

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Contrary to some of the scare stories that got around during the past month, housing for Uncle Sam's new army will probably be more than adequate.

Army officials now say housing projects will be 90 per cent completed by Jan. 1, with the "adequate shelter" stipulated by Congress available on that date for 800,000 men—although that may not actually be in service until some time in March.

Army food stands to be better than ever before. For some time now the army has been operating more than a score of special schools for cooks and bakers. Virtually all its cooks and mess sergeants, and many of its company officers, are graduates of these schools.

In addition, there are regular medical inspections of army food and food handlers. Every man assigned to K. P. duty gets a medical exam.

Westerners got alarmed recently by wild tales of epidemics at the 41st division national guard stations, Camps Lewis and Murray, Washington. Army authorities checked up and found only 13 cases of illness, all slight, among 13,000 enlisted men.

FAREWELL TO MOSCOW

SOME interesting maneuvers among left-wing groups in America are expected for the near future.

One important-if-true yarn has it that the Communist Party, U. S. A., will shortly have a grand conclave at which connections with the Third Internationale will be severed, the end-product being a 100 per cent American party not subject to orders from Moscow.

Supposed advantages: local party-line people wouldn't have to defend every twist and turn of Stalin's foreign policy . . . and maybe party members would not come under so much suspicion of being agents of a foreign government.

If that's the plan, it must be reported that the Dies Committee has already heard of it and is prepared to be very skeptical.

More absorbing to New Dealers is a rumored boil-over among the Socialists, where there is considerable discontent with Norman Thomas' isolationism and his refusal to see much good in the works of F. D. Roosevelt. It is a realignment which would find Socialists plunking for aid to Britain and occupying a position somewhat to the left of the New Deal but still rather friendly to it.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE REFORM REVIVAL?

WATCH for revival in the new Congress, perhaps even in the late days of this one, of the Norris-Lea Amendment. Submitted first in 1934, this proposal would abolish the electoral college, and current talk about the way in which a 4,000,000-vote national majority was magnified into a landslide through the lens of the electoral college has revived interest in the reform.

The Norris-Lea plan would retain the electoral vote, though abolishing the "stooze" electors. Each state would have as many electoral votes as it has senators and representatives, as at present. But instead of all of each state's electors going to the candidate having the state majority or plurality, they would be proportioned to the popular vote.

Thus, if state has 10 electors, and one candidate got 6000 votes, the other 4000, the state's electoral votes would go six for one and four for the other candidate. It would be almost impossible to obtain an electoral majority without also getting a popular majority.

Bees Go South In A Fast Trailer

By United Press

EAST PEMBROKE, N. Y.—The busy bees of John M. and Jourdan J. DeMuth, East Pembroke father-son apiarists, have migrated to Florida again to spend the winter manufacturing honey.

Imprisoned in specially constructed hives, the bees were taken to Umattila, Fla., their winter base, on a specially-built trailer in two non-stop trips. Two hundred hives, or more than 50,000,000 bees, made the trip southward.

Halts were made only for refueling or some emergency to avoid swarming of the buzzers on the screens when the transport was not in motion. Hives were so packed that air continually circulated about the containers.

The busy insects will bask in the sunny climate of Florida fruit plantations until early May, when the annual trek home will begin. They are welcome guests to the Southern growers, for Florida bees are said to be less industrious and hibernate during the winter months.

Singing To Be Held At Christian Church

A singing will be conducted at the First Christian Church of Ranger Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it was announced Saturday by Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of the church.

Good singers from all over this part of the country will be present, and the public is invited to attend.

Charity Dance Will Be On Next Friday

The charity dance, scheduled for Friday night at the American Legion Hall, was postponed until next Friday night, because of the weather.

It was announced Saturday that all tickets sold for the dance would be good on next Friday night, and that the ticket sale would be continued this week.

The DeMuths hope their wards will atone for a disastrous heavy season in the home environs.
