JAPAN RENEWS BITTER ATTACK UPON THE U. S.

By ROBERT BELLAIRE
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO, Dec. 6.—Japan renewed bitter attacks on the United States through officially approved statements today, declaring that efforts of "hostile powers" to hamper creation of a new order in East Asia would be repulsed and that the next move for war or peace was up to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"We Japanese are tensely watching whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Churchill will commit the epochal crime of further extending the world upheaval," Lt. Gen. Teechi Suzuki, minister without portfolio and president of the cabinet planning board, told a meeting of the East Asia Economic Council.

"Japan's patience would not longer be necessary in event the countries hostile to peace in East Asia—countries whose identities are now absolutely clear—attempt to continue to increase disturbances in the Far East."

(At Manila, the Philippines cabinet took emergency measures including preliminary evacuation of danger zones, suspension of non-essential construction to supply fields for defense and cancelled inauguration plans for President Manuel Quezon.

"At Singapore, British sailors were suddenly recalled to their ships."

The East Asia Council, in what was regarded here as a declaration of great importance said that "regardless of how intensely hostile powers attempt to interfere," Japan will go ahead with the creation of a new order in East Asia.

The Domei news agency said that the government is "sternly watching the next move of the United States and is not neglecting vigilance regarding the British and Dutch East Indies fronts which are being strengthened in the southwest."

"The fact that the Japanese government is displaying an invincible attitude is most reassuring," the agency said.

The newspaper charged that the White House released the Japanese reply to President Roosevelt (disavowing intention of aggression or conquest) to the press in violation of diplomatic practice and in order to "blame" Japan for collapse of the Washington peace negotiations.

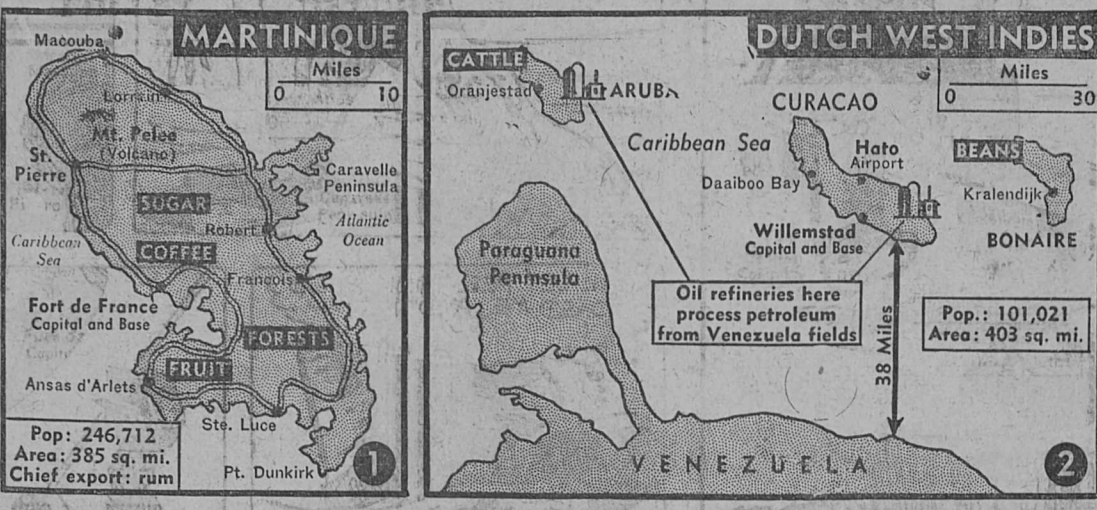

"This shows that the United States is insincere and has been scoffing at the negotiations," the newspaper Chugai said, pointing out that the reply was not published here.

RANGER WILL HAVE A BIG YULE SEASON

Plans for Ranger's most complete Christmas Season, though a relatively short one, are in the making, with the opening of the Christmas Shopping Season and open house by the Ranger Merchants planned for the night of Thursday, Dec. 18.

Ranger, too, will have more Christmas lights this year than ever before, with the stringers across Main Street being installed the latter part of November and turned on the last Saturday night in November and kept on each night until after Christmas.

Show windows already have taken on the Christmas air, with many merchants expecting to vie for the two cash prizes being offered by the Ranger Lions Club for the store which has the most attractive windows. The windows are to be judged Dec. 18 and the prize awarded to the two selected as the most attractive.

Tentative plans have been made for a big Christmas party on the night of Dec. 18, with Santa expected to pay his first visit to the city to see what the kiddies want, and to distribute a number of gifts of candy among them.

A large tree has been installed on the lawn of the Texas and Pacific railway station, and on which many lights have been placed by Fire Chief G. A. Murphy, who supervised erection of the tree. It is at this tree that the first Christmas party for the kiddies will be held.

ANTI STRIKE BILLS MAY BE LESS SEVERE

By GEORGE E. REEDY, JR.
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Senate consideration of anti-strike legislation developed today into a three-way race to bring out bills of varying degrees of severity and there was a hint that action might be postponed until January.

Leaders of the three major factions jockeyed for position and there was no indication of whether the administration would take a stand. The bills awaiting action were:

1. A house-approved bill by Rep. Howard Smith, D., Va., which was generally believed to be the most drastic. It would forbid jurisdictional and organizational strikes; require a 30 to 90 day "cooling off" period before a strike vote could become effective; require strike votes to be by government supervised secret ballot; require unions to register annual financial and membership statements and forbid union representation by "subversive" or criminal individuals. The act would be enforced by revoking the protection of the National Labor Relations Act and the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction act from recalcitrant unions.
2. A bill by Sen. Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn., to require a mediation period before a strike vote could become effective. This measure indirectly would prevent closed shop agreements by penalizing employers who sign contracts containing such a provision for duration of the emergency. It has the approval of the Senate labor committee and moderate and pro-labor senators.
3. A bill by Sen. Tom Connally, D., Tex., to authorize government seizure and operation of strike bound defense plants. All working conditions, except wages, would be frozen in the plants after they had been commandeered. Connally said he would attempt to bring the measure before the senate Monday but its prospects of passage were generally conceded to be slight.

The senate labor committee, meeting Monday on the Smith bill is expected to report out the Ball measure as a substitute.

First Citizen Of Gainesville Is Dead

GAINESVILLE, Tex., Dec. 6.—(UP)—There was another war going on and it was a long time ago, but William O. Davis, 14, weight 70 pounds "petered" recruiting officers until they let him join. He went through two years of hefting ammunition cases. Then the war was over, he completed his law studies and came to Texas where he wrote the city charter for Gainesville citizens in 1872. He gained prominence during the cattle boom, became State Senator, first mayor of Gainesville at 81 under the city manager plan, and the grand old man of the city.

He died yesterday after a short illness, at 92, with his wife, Anna, at the bedside. Their two children are Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Wilson and William Owen Davis, Jr., both of Chicago.

REDS MAKE BIG GAINS ON MOSCOW FRONT WITH WEATHER AT 17 BELOW

KULBYSHEV, Russia, Dec. 6.—German forces were retreating "in disorder" on the Mozhaisk and Volokolsmak sectors west of Moscow, as a result of a sudden and fierce Red Army counterattack in 17 below zero weather, Soviet dispatches said tonight. Thousands of Germans were reported killed and wounded.

Moznaisk and Volokolsmak are key sectors about 50 or 60 miles west of Moscow.

Berlin had claimed that Mozhaisk had been captured by German troops.

The Soviet dispatches said that the Germans were retreating along the Moznaisk highway.

The German retreat along the Moscow front followed an Axis retirement from Rostov, where the Russians had driven the enemy back across the Muis River, west of Taganrog.

LIBYAN WAR TEMPO GROWS MORE SEVERE

CAIRO, Dec. 6.—British mechanized units, infantry and artillery inflicted heavy losses on four Axis columns in the Libyan Desert, regained ground on the Tripoli Front and surrounded enemy infantry in the Solum sector on the Egyptian border, a general headquarters communique said today.

Reporting that strong pressure was maintained on all sectors in Libya during the last 48 hours the communique said that 7,500 Axis prisoners had been counted so far.

The fighting was on a wide, fluctuating front without definite battle lines except at Tobruk and on the border. The Royal Air Force pounded enemy concentrations, reporting destruction of many vehicles.

Sixty enemy vehicles and a supply dump were destroyed and 100 prisoners taken in one encounter west of Bardia while the Indian troops fighting at Bir El Gobi destroyed 15 tank columns, 150 vehicles and 50,000 gallons of fuel oil. A total of 400 Italian prisoners were taken, as well as two batteries, five antitank guns, 50 lorries and other booty.

The enemy suffered heavy casualties in the fighting, the communique said, while land forces shot down five enemy dive bombers.

In addition to the 7,500 prisoners counted many others have been taken, the statement said.

The Royal Air Force reported that 21 Axis planes had been shot down on Friday and six British craft were missing.

The communique reported three principal air combats but said that dust storms curtailed bombing operations.

"Many other enemy aircraft were severely damaged," it said.

Hongoe Peninsula Again Is Claimed A Part Of Finland

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 6.—President Risto Ryti today announced that the Hongoe Peninsula ceded to Russia at the end of the Russo-Finnish war, again had been incorporated as part of Finland and that the Moscow peace treaty of 1940 had been abrogated.

The declaration, indicating Finnish determination to continue the war against Russia, coincided with celebration of Finland's independence day and Britain's announcement that she is at war with Finland, Hungary and Rumania for their refusal to withdraw troops from Russia.

Official Finnish quarters said they had no official knowledge that they were at war with Great Britain.

Yes, We Are One Country, One Nation

An American citizen is free to go from one state to another, on a temporary or permanent basis, seeing to better himself.

"Of course," you say.

But that right has only now been clarified and broadened by the unanimous decision of the United States Supreme Court. In ruling unconstitutional the California "anti-Okie" law, the court has by implication ruled invalid similar laws in 27 other states, all aimed at preventing entrance into those states of people without property.

Specifically, Fred F. Edwards took his jobless brother-in-law from Texas into California, where, after living with Edwards for 10 days, the brother-in-law received assistance from the Farm Security Administration. That made Edwards a violator of the California law against helping indigents to enter California; he was convicted, and he appealed.

Such a law violates the Constitution, the court now unanimously holds. But the court was not unanimous on the reasons Justice Byrnes, delivering the opinion (his first), decided that such a law exceeded the proper "police power" of the state, and further, that it was an unconstitutional barrier to interstate commerce. Thus the court's majority hitched still another trailer to that venerable wagon, the commerce clause, with its provision that "Congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states and with the Indian tribes."

Justice Douglas, speaking also for Justices Black and Murphy, traversed loftier ground to the same conclusion, paying no attention to the commerce clause. They cited the Fourteenth Amendment, that "... no state shall make or enforce any laws which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens..." Justice Douglas ringingly said that the "right of persons to move freely from state to state occupies a more protected position in our constitutional system than does the movement of cattle, fruit and steel..." and "it would prevent a citizen because he was poor from seeking new horizons in other states. The result would be a substantial dilution of the rights of national citizenships."

Justice Jackson was equally vehement in a separate opinion: "... we should say now and in no uncertain terms that a man's mere property status, without more, cannot be used by a state to test, qualify, or limit his rights as a citizen of the United States."

With that general proposition it is hard to quarrel. Yet states which have had an influx of the disinherited, with a correspondingly heavy relief burden, will feel that some provision ought to be made to mitigate the burden.

We are one people, one nation. The right of the people to seek opportunity where it may be found is rightly secured by this decision.

SERIAL STORY

LADY BY REQUEST

BY HELEN R. WOODWARD

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Lovely Diana Tucker and Stephen Curt, famous writer and commentator, arrange a marriage of convenience when she is fired by lawyer Richard Thorpe. Diana is to receive $10,000, get a divorce in six months, and saving for Stephen's inheritance he would have lost had he not married before he was 35. Evelyn Thorpe, beautiful blind wife of Richard Thorpe, is the woman Stephen and Phil Bruce, Stephen's best friend who is strongly attracted to Diana, know nothing of the arrangement. Diana, Stephen's spiteful, spiteful jealous sister, and Richard Thorpe, who is having an affair with her, do not know of it.

As happy then as they were now with their ambitions and their ambitions and their love. "They will be—if they keep love," she thought. "It's a sort of insurance against loss of happiness."

BILL returned to work after a cordial invitation for them to come again and the promise to bring his family to see Diana soon. Diana and Elsa washed the dishes and then the three women spent a pleasant, idle afternoon gossiping comfortably as women do.

ADELA STARTS TROUBLE

CHAPTER XVI NEXT morning, feeling the need of contact with someone of her own, Diana took the shining coupe and drove 20 miles to spend the day with Elsa. As an afterthought she stopped for Evelyn and persuaded the blind girl to come with her.

As she put the coupe in the garage, snow began to fall in large white flakes and Diana was glad of the shelter of home. The drawing room with its shaded lamps and crackling wood fire was warm and inviting, and she stopped to warm her hands before going on up to her room. A sound behind her caused her to turn. Stephen stood there smiling.

"Yes, he would be hurt and humiliated beyond thought to find his sister with the husband of the woman he loved. "Thank you for telling me, Essie. Do you know where they went?"

Before they reached Elsa's, Diana stopped and bought a thick loaf, lettuce, tomatoes, and a loaf of twisted French bread. She did not want unexpected guests to work a hardship on Elsa's budget.

"I was afraid you had run away," he said, and Diana's heart absurdly skipped a beat. "I went down to Elsa's—took Evelyn with me," she explained, a little breathlessly. "We had a nice day." Then she added, "I didn't think you'd want—need me."

"Don't worry about it any more, Essie," Diana said. "Perhaps I'll think of some way—"

They reached the little white cottage an hour before noon. It was spotless and shining and Elsa came with happiness at sight of her sister. She seemed a little wed of Evelyn at first, but soon Evelyn was delightedly holding the fat, fragrant-talced baby—young Bill, Junior—a cooing uncle of beauty.

She did not know that her cheeks were pink from the wind; that her eyes were glowing like stars. Stephen came to her, took her two cold hands in his warm ones, held them tightly. Diana felt that again he might be going to forget their bargain. Surely he was going to take her in his arms.

"Fifteen miles out the River road. You can't miss it, ma'am. The name's on the gate. I drove out several times with the family—for picnics and such."

"I wish I could see him!" Evelyn said, and buried her face in his soft white neck, thus winning the undying affection of young Bill's mother.

They both turned. Adela stood in the doorway, her face distorted with rage at the tableau she had witnessed. She quickly controlled her features, said petulantly, "You promised to help me go over some of my accounts, Stephen. Can't you do it now?"

"I have an errand to attend to," she said regretfully. "But perhaps I'll be back early."

Diana watched Elsa and Bill a little wistfully. Bill was tall and good-looking and confident, and adored his wife, his baby, and his home. He worked hard for them and gloried in doing it. He would some day own the garage where he worked—perhaps have the agency for one of the better cars. Diana wondered if they would be

Diana was dressing for dinner an hour later and heard the hum of a motor in the driveway below. Hardly knowing why, she stepped to the window and, looking down, caught a glimpse of Adela getting into a car which backed swiftly out into the street and disappeared around the corner.

"Yes, ma'am—I heard her talking over the phone. The hunting lodge, she said. I tried to reason with her, but she only laughed and said I was old-fashioned. If you'd only go up there, Miss Diana, and fetch her back!"

Professor Claims There's No Normal Mind In World

By United Press BUFFALO, N. Y.—There is no such thing as a normal mind in the world today, according to Dr. Nathaniel F. Cantor, social science professor at the University of Buffalo.

Declaring that no one has developed the well-rounded personality necessary for normality, Dr. Cantor points out that there are both positive and negative types of maladjustment. He claims that the individual who "dares be himself and is unafraid to express his differences" and the individual who "cannot accept responsibility for positive behavior and is overcome by guilt and fear" are both abnormal and have emotional conflicts.

"Anyone who has achieved a satisfactory dynamic balance between the need for self-expression and the need for self-repression has a normal personality," Dr. Cantor asserts. "Such a person will possess a sense of inner freedom, a feeling of inner confidence and a lack of disruptive fear."

"Normality of mind is characterized by a friendly relation to others. To be yourself, accept your own limitations, recognize the inconsistencies in your own behavior without feeling too guilty, and to recognize the inconsistencies in the actions of others without feeling too hostile, is to approach normality of mind. "Who of us, then, is normal? None of us is the answer. No one in our society has attained an ideally well-rounded, nicely-balanced personality. We dare not, most of the time, spontaneously express ourselves nor permit others the freedom to express themselves when our toes are being stepped on."

Explaining the lack of normality, Dr. Cantor said social life is unbalanced and modern civilization is "neurotic."

"To develop a normal mind we need economic security and opportunity for creative self-expression," he said. "However, we live in constant fear, fear of not obtaining work or losing our job, fear of sickness, dependency, of

Church Still Waits for Fulfillment Of Noble Ideals of Its Founders

Text: Acts 2:41-47; Ephesians 4:11-16

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance WHEN we consider the extent and nature of the Christian Church in all its various branches today and in its worldwide organization, we are impressed with the simplicity of its early beginnings.

The Christian Church did not arise out of the plans of some promotional organizer. There was no advance prospectus or blueprint of a proposed organization. The Church definitely grew out of an experience. It was not a matter of organization awaiting or developing life; it was life leading to organization.

JESUS in one sense was the founder of the Church, but in another sense its foundation came after He had left the earthly scene. Although Jesus did not formally organize the Church, there was more organization associated with His ministry than is commonly supposed. He gathered about Him the apostles, to whom were committed special privileges and responsibilities, and with whom He commended concerning the deep things of the Kingdom, so that He developed an inner band of disciples—a sort of Christian cabinet—to carry on His work. Also, he organized the "seventy" who went through the villages teaching and preaching, two by two.

Although Jesus in one sense did not found the Church, it was built definitely and directly upon Him and His teachings and upon the new experience of life through the Gospel that He had brought to man. We sing today "The Church's one foundation is Jesus Christ her Lord," and that that has been emphasized. Whether, and to what extent, we can build a society in which men and women can be provided with greater opportunities to develop balanced personalities, time and active participation in the contemporary scene will tell."

Sonny will give you an argument if you tell him a satin slipper isn't felt.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 7.

The Golden Text is: "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ" (Ephesians 1:3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortal spiritual man alone represents the truth of creation. When mortal man blends his thoughts of existence with the spiritual and works only as God works, he will no longer grope in the dark and cling to earth because he has not tasted heaven" (page 263).

The lungs of the average man contain about five quarts of air, and you can estimate for yourself how much of it is hot.
