Only One More Day Left in Which To Vote For a Favorite

The "Beauty and the Beast" popularity contest started the second week of December is scheduled to close tomorrow at six o'clock, according to an announcement by Jodie Trainer, manager of the contest.

These contestants are being sponsored (two to each organization) by the Sonora Volunteer Fire Department, Parent-Teacher Association, Methodist Woman's Missionary Society, Young Woman's Episcopal Guild, Sonora Woman's Club, Baptist Woman's Missionary Society.

The two winners of the contest will be guests of the Lions Club's Tuesday luncheon at which time awards will be made to the organization whose candidates are declared successful. The award will amount to five per cent of the net proceeds derived from the affair.

Up to Thursday morning at nine o'clock voting box count showed the following figures:

WORK ON SCHOOL ADDITION TO BE STARTED TOMORROW

Work order has been issued for construction of the addition to the L. W. Elliott school effective not later than December 31.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Sonora Independent School District Wednesday afternoon, bids, recently called for on additions to the L. W. Elliott School, were opened and read and contracts awarded for the following:

A four-room brick addition to the L. W. Elliott School Building, repair and alteration to plumbing in present building, painting, furniture and equipment for school plant in accordance to plans and specifications drawn by David S. Castle Company, Architects.

After tabulation and consideration of all bids submitted, the school board selected the following as the lowest and best bids submitted:

General construction: H. H. Myers, San Angelo, $16,468;
Plumbing, heating, electric: A. P. Kasch, Big Spring, $3,200;
Gasium Furniture and Fixtures: W. C. Hixson, Dallas, $1,494.74;

Loose Furniture and Equipment: American Seating Company, Dallas, $945;
Shop Equipment: Bekeley School and Church Furniture Co., Houston, $442.58;
Stage Equipment: Southern Stage Equipment Co., San Antonio, $697.

As the total amount of the bids accepted ($23,885.46) exceeds the funds available for the improvements called for, the board will avail itself of certain alternates and changes as required to assist in bringing the total cost within the funds available.

Under the circumstances and in order to carry out the program as outlined the David S. Castle Company has recommended and the Board elected to request the PWA to increase the amount of their original grant, and agreed to match same with school funds on a 45-55 per cent basis to enable the completion of the program.

In case the PWA does not approve the supplemental grant the school board will work out such change orders as may be necessary to bring the total cost of the project within the funds available.

It is understood that in awarding equipment contracts the award was made subject to such elimination as was made necessary in order to stay within the limit of the amount set aside for the improvements.

STATES HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW WARES IN HUGE BUILDING AT NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Included in the limited edition book of unusual size and beauty which the New York World's Fair 1939 incorporated has sent to state governors and, through diplomatic channels, to foreign governments, is the following text devoted to . . .

The Sovereign States of the Federal Union

George Washington, in declaring that the public felicity and prosperity of America depend upon the firm union and the unceasing cooperation of the sovereign American States, divined the future. The prosperity and the greatness of these United States have arisen from the free and unimpeded circulation of ideas and products in the world's greatest consumer market.

The Fair gives to each State the appropriate setting and opportunity to announce to the world its unique and indispensable contribution to America's rich and colorful civilization. The Fair contemplates a Hall of States, in the imposing Government group and flanking the structure which the Fair looks to the United States to build, to house the exhibits of the forty-eight States, and the Territories. Those wishing to participate more extensively will, in addition to their exhibits in the Hall of States, either erect their own buildings or obtain space to display their products and attractions in one or more of the exhibit zones.

The State of New York has naturally taken the leadership in the participation of the sovereign States of the Federal Union. Its total appropriations for Fair purposes may exceed $5,600,000; and the New York State World's Fair Commission, appointed by the Governor, has been active for some time. Other States already are beginning to express enthusiastic interest in participating more extensively than at previous world's fairs.

The many visitors will find a fresh cause for pride and enthusiasm in the revealing exhibits of their respective States. But beyond this, the exhibits will enable the States to make a persuasive presentation to all visitors of what they have to offer to the consumer and to the tourist.

Mr. Phudd Gets a "Mad On"

William Harrison Butterfield Phudd steamed down Concho street fast Saturday morning at ten in a high state of boundless agitation. Fifteen minutes later he was seen steaming up Main street in an even more advanced state of unbridled indignation. At the expiration of another quarter of an hour he was seen steaming across the street, angrier than ever. It might safely be said that Mr. Phudd "had a mad on."

And what made it alarming to the point of civic concern was the fact that William Harrison Butterfield Phudd had started getting mad on Thursday evening at 8:15 and had been getting madder every fifteen minutes ever since. It was now getting nigh onto noon of Saturday and things were looking no better for all those who had begun taking an interest in the case of Mr. Phudd and his temper.

But now a sinister note enters into the case, along with your reporter. "A conspiracy!" snarled your sly sleuth, spreading a bit of mucilage on a spare set of handlebar moustaches he always carries in case of conspiracy. "A conspiracy is afoot!"

"Yeah, about a foot from your nose!" yelled a sympathetic member of the mob which by now was following stealthily along at a safe distance behind W. H. B. Phudd. "Come on along and keep your trap shut and you," respectfully advised our new-found friend.

Falling right into the trap, your reporter followed, meanwhile carefully buttoning his hirsute lip, and decided to let come what might.

The trail led into a well-patronized Concho street tavern. Mr. Phudd took up a position at the bar obliquely opposite the nearest attendant. He was just about to lift a finger for attention when another patron stepped up before him.

The new-comer caught the bartender's eye, stood at attention, turned up his coat collar, and then slowly raised his right hand, palm upward, toward the ceiling. This, obviously, was what the crowd was waiting to see. One by one they did likewise. Stepped up to the bar, turned up collars, and made motions as though lifting something over their heads.

Each time this signal was given, the bartender would nod knowingly, grab a certain kind of bottle from the ice chest, and pour the patron a glass of sparkling, creamy-topped beer, which he would proceed to imbibe with great relish.

Mr. Phudd turned from the bar glowing an apologetic purple from ear to ear. He was about to plunge through the door on his way to the next refreshment parlor to repeat this amazing drama once more to the huge amazement of the assembled crowds. But something stayed him. It was the tender understanding look in your reporter's honest eyes that had suddenly reached his troubled soul.

He approached hesitatingly, humbly, imploringly, trustingly. "Stranger, it's little that I ask," he began, pitifully, "but what in the name of all that's sane and rational is this all about? It's been going on for three days and soon it will go on into the third night if you don't stop it right now! What sense does that silly signal convey? Everybody in the world seems to know but me, and nobody will tell me. Now if YOU don't tell me I'll positively . . . I'll . . . I'll . . . I'll . . ."

What could a poor tender-hearted reporter do? The sight of such suffering was too much for us. We decided to tell him all.

"Brother Phudd," we counselled, "bear up. We'll put you wise if it means losing our life membership in the Fraternal Joker Society of the World. That signal is just another way of asking for a certain kind of beer that has become a great favorite in these parts.

It's a delicious genuine lager beer with a special seasonal difference . . . it's a bit heavier for winter warmth. So when you see someone turn up his collar . . . that stands for Winter. When he raises his hand above his head . . . that stands for Weight. He's just asking for a bottle of Grand Prize Winter Weight Beer. Why don't you step up to the bar and ask for some yourself?"

Which he did. And folks, Mr. William Harrison Butterfield Phudd has never had a mad on since!

Meteorite Believed To Be Lost or Stolen

Austin, Dec. 28.—Dr. Fred M. Bullard, professor of geology at the University of Texas, is searching for information about a meteorite—"lost, strayed or stolen."

Dr. Bullard, who is cataloging and recording all the known meteorites of Texas, was recently handed a tattered clipping from the San Antonio Daily Light of January 28, 1895, which stated that "E. B. Garner of Sabinal Canyon, Uvalde county, has placed a 225-pound meteorite in Professor Attwater's Exhibit of Texas Curiosities."

Having no record of this meteorite or of Professor Attwater's exhibit, Dr. Bullard has begun a search for information of both. Thinking probably the words "Garner" and "Uvalde county" were a clue that pointed to relatives of Vice President John Nance Garner, as owners, Dr. Bullard hopefully communicated with the vice president, only to be told by Mr. Garner that he had never heard of the meteorite.

"This meteorite must be a very interesting specimen," Dr. Bullard said. "In fact, it must be one of the larger ones in the state. It may be in someone's back yard without their knowing what it is. Just the other day a new one was brought to my attention. It had been in a field for years, and the farmer who owned the land happened to read a description of a meteorite and wrote us about it.

"I have no idea of the shape of the meteorite mentioned in this clipping, but most meteorites are composed of iron and are dark brown or black on the outside. This one should not remain unrecorded in a catalogue of the state's meteorites for it must have been an outstanding stone."

MARKED INCREASES IN NEW AUTO SALES

Austin, Dec. 28.—Sales of new automobiles in Texas during November rose sharply over the preceding month and substantially over the corresponding month last year, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas.

Reports from seventeen representative Texas counties show an increase in sales of 88.1 per cent over October and 17.9 per cent over November last year. Aggregate sales in these counties during the entire eleven months of the year, however, were still 32.4 per cent below the corresponding period last year.

Marked increases occurred over October and over November last year in all price groups, the Bureau's report showed.

Cotton Bowl Game To Be Broadcast

Arrangements have been completed by the Humble Oil & Refining Company to broadcast the Cotton Bowl football game from Dallas on January 2nd over a widespread network of Texas Radio stations. Broadcast of the game, which features undefeated Texas Tech and colorful St. Mary's of California, will be one of the stand-out Bowl attractions of the day.

Additional color will be lent to the broadcast by the introduction over the radio of prominent spectators by Elliott Roosevelt, president of the Texas State Network of radio stations. It is expected that Governor James V. Allred of Texas, Brother Albert, president of St. Mary's, the Mayors of Lubbock and Dallas, the president of Texas Tech, and others, will be among those introduced by Mr. Roosevelt.

Kern Tips, most popular football announcer of the Southwest, will handle the play-by-play description of the game, and Hal Thompson will handle color. Both announcers are well known to Texas radio followers of football through their work on the Humble Company's broadcasts of Southwest Conference games during the regular season.

The game is scheduled to begin at 2 p. m., and Humble's broadcast will start fifteen minutes earlier, at 1:45. The game will be carried on stations of the Texas State Network.

NEW OUTLOOK

By Gregg Alexander

"A glorious New Year's day, isn't it?" the young man asked.

Molly aroused herself. She had noticed this attractive young man on the boat, of course. Molly had avoided him, however. If she hadn't been so absorbed with her own gloomy thoughts he wouldn't have gotten near enough to speak.

"Yes, it is," she replied coldly. But as she looked up into his merry face, her own sad countenance thawed.

"Gee, but you are swell looking when you smile," he blurted out. "I've been wondering how you'd look with a smile on that pretty face."

Molly couldn't help but laugh. He sounded like a child. Then she grew sober.

"If you knew what makes me sad: my eyesight going, my fiance deiding he didn't want a blind wife,"—she started. But Jack stopped her.

A NEW YEAR STORY

"Start the New Year thinking of what you have, not pitying yourself. You have money to travel."

"Surely. Money!" Molly agreed disgustedly.

"More than ordinary good looks. Education, I should judge. A fair amount of charm. I can't judge that accurately, for you've kept it shut off." His tone was so droll that Molly had to laugh.

"Well, you do paint rather a strong picture, Mr. Pollyanna. You have your fair share of charm and good looks too," she responded, with a provocative smile.

"Stop it, stop it," Jack pleaded in mock alarm. "Turn it off, turn off the charm. I'm too susceptible."

"All right. Since you had the courage to tackle the glummiest girl on board ship, maybe I'd better try making myself agreeable." Molly was still smiling, but there was a look of determination on her face.

"Sure thing. Be a good sport. Take life as it comes."

A trace of bitterness returned to Molly's face as she said: "It's easy for you to talk, with health and good looks and everything to make life easy."

Jack laughed. "Lots you know about it. They told me five months ago I had six months to live. But I'm showing them they're mistaken. Aren't your eyes better?"

Molly looked at him in astonishment: "You mean it, really? And you so full of fun all the time? Oh, my eyes, you say. Yes, they really are better."

"I was sure of it. Well, I'm off to see the mate. His wife wants him to give up the sea and settle down on land. The idea is driving him nuts. So long, I'll be seeing you. Good luck, and Happy New Year!"

It's Open Season For Resolutions; Made Yours Yet?

CHICAGO.—It's again time for New Year's resolutions and psychologists have something to say about it.

"Humbug," is the comment of Dr. Robert N. McMurray, executive secretary of the Chicago Psychological corporation.

"He's wrong," answers Dr. George W. Crane, noted psychologist with Northwestern university.

Although most scientists admit the average resolution lives no longer than a May fly, they claim this old American habit does have merit. Dr. McMurray sees no more logic in using the first day of January for making resolutions than in the old southern custom of shooting off fireworks at Christmas, but he admits that people most meticulous about their obligations are more likely to keep New Year's promises.

"A good resolution," he says, "becomes a compromise solution to the conscience conflict. The man who makes one says to himself, 'I will make a resolution not to do this or that which I should not during the forthcoming year.' Although it's not the same as refraining from such actions, it does have some value in quieting the conscience's reproaches."

But Dr. Crane is more hopeful. "It is wise to make resolutions," he says, "since the first step in progress of any sort consists of formulating the plans."

For those without sins to expiate, he suggests the following ideas:

"Pay a sincere compliment to your wife or husband, your children or neighbors.

"Don't wait for death to tear the selfishness from your eyes, after which, in remorse, you heap extra bouquets on the coffin.

"Resolve now to pay at least three sincere compliments every day in 1939."

Official Quits After 35 Years

H. C. Chase, superintendent of telegraph for the Santa Fe System Lines, today announced his retirement, effective January 1, after serving the Santa Fe and Western Union Telegraph Company for more than 35 years.

Starting as messenger boy in Santa Cruz, Calif., in 1885 he was promoted to post of manager of the Western Union office at Watsonville, nearby, at an early age. Later he served in Fresno, Los Angeles, Seattle and Ogden.

In 1902, he was appointed manager of the Santa Fe Telegraph office in Los Angeles and was made Assistant Superintendent the same year. He served as division traffic manager of Western Union Coast Lines in 1910 and served in that position until 1917, when he was appointed superintendent of the Santa Fe telegraph with headquarters in Topeka. Upon retirement he will return to his fruit ranch at Watsonville.

T. P. Brewster, assistant superintendent at Los Angeles, has been named to take the post of Chase, under whom he received training. Brewster started as an apprentice operator at Azusa, Calif., in 1909. He has been with the Santa Fe service since 1914.

Little Stories

By The DREAMER

Coach O. P. Adams was in Sonora yesterday on his way to his home in Grand Falls from San Angelo. Coach reports that his little city is preparing to organize a Lions Club. Between the choice of a chamber of commerce, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs citizens decided upon the Lions Club.

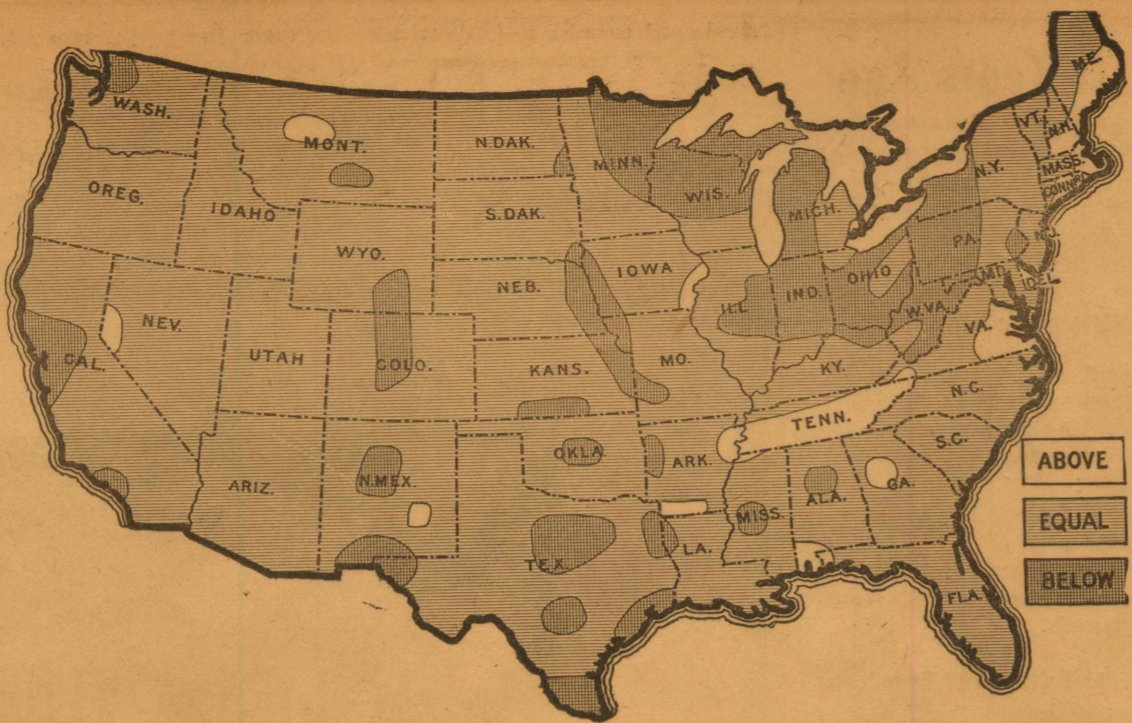

George Barrow, reporting on his stopped watch brain teaser, stated Tuesday that he gave the decision to Billy Penick. According to Mr. Barrow the time piece quit running at 3 o'clock, 51 minutes and 10 seconds. Billy said it stopped at 3 o'clock, 52 minutes and 23 seconds, and is now sporting a Bulova President. George said a number of people missed the exact time three to four minutes.

Santa Claus visited the courthouse when the courthouse gang had a Christmas tree. Earlier in the week names of those employed in and around the county home-stead were drawn and presents brought accordingly. At any rate the gift exchange was attended by much merriment; refreshments were served. The jollification took place in the sheriff's office.

There are two ways of getting out of a bath tub, but evidently W. E. Caldwell employed the wrong one. While attempting to reach a towel from the slippery bottom of a porcelain tub, his foot slipped and he fell against the side of the tub, doing considerable damage to his left side. Dr. Joel Shelton taped him up and he was able to be down town yesterday.

The News office is in receipt of a copy of the original photograph of the five Sonora boys astride of "Old Croppy," the historical old burro. We are indebted to N. H. Rose, the early day photographer for the picture, which will be framed and hung in the office of the "Devil."

W. E. Glasscock states "If you don't hurry and start that '35 Years Ago' column, I'm not going to pay my subscription. That's the only thing I read in the Devil." The column has been placed in the News again, W. E., so as not to lose you as a reader even of only the one column. Soon The News is to publish a full page of early day

BOWL BUSINESS . . .

Football's biggest event comes on New Year's Day in this modern world. Bowls of all flavors attract several hundred thousand spectators. Here are last year's bowl games, where huge crowds gather again this New Year's Day.

Oldest of the New Year games, Pasadena's Rose Bowl dates back to 1916. Last year it attracted 90,000 spectators who watched California defeat Alabama by a score of 13-0. Above is an aerial view of the 1938 crowd. The spectacular tournament of roses always precedes the game.

Shriners sponsor the annual East-West all-star game at San Francisco each New Year's day, an event that drew 65,000 football fans last year at Kezar stadium. The game ended in a scoreless tie. Brilliant pageantry featured the between-halves period.

At Miami, Fla., 18,000 attended last year's annual Orange Bowl game where Auburn defeated Michigan State 6-0. Halfback Sitz (No. 11) carried the ball for many of Auburn's gains. The Orange Bowl is fast becoming a major gridiron attraction.

Santa Clara beat Louisiana State 6-0 at the New Orleans Sugar Bowl last year. Two other "bowls" attracted attention. At Dallas Cotton Bowl Rice beat Colorado 28-14 before 37,000 fans, and at El Paso a crowd of 15,000 watched West Virginia nose out Texas Tech, 7-6. Truly, "bowl business" is becoming "big business."

DREAM COMES TRUE

The dream of that noted artist and exponent of the rare beauties of the Great Southwest, the late Gerald Cassidy, today attains realization through the co-operation of the Santa Fe Railway System four years after the painter's death in Santa Fe.

For nearly a score of years it was Cassidy's ambition to place before the nation the color, romance, scenic and historic interest of the territory he adopted as home. He met with considerable success in these efforts with his canvases displayed in art salons of the world. But his was a single-handed endeavor, and he aspired to wider recognition, not of his own work, but of the multifold attributes of the area.

His artistry is undisputed. The American Historical Society, in its Encyclopedia of Biography, has this to say about Cassidy:

"To achieve world wide reputation during a lifetime in one's chosen profession is a reward of merit. To have done in the short period of 15 or 18 years in spite of ill health and financial reverses is the reward of genius."

It remained for enthusiastic selection by officials of the Santa Fe of one of the artist's best known pictures to enhance the System's calendar for the year

U. S. FAMILY

NEW YORK — "Unity," the sculpture by Harry Poole Camden, of Parkersburg, West Virginia, which won for him the $10,000 prize in the contest for sculpture to embellish the United States Government Building at the New York World's Fair 1939. The group represents a typical American family being sheltered by the symbol of "Unity." There were 430 contestants in the competition, which was held in the Fair's Hall of Communications.

1939. The reproduction chosen is that of the "Navajos Riding to the Fiesta at Laguna, New Mexico." For the first time in 25 years the Santa Fe departed from the use of Indian art as portrayed by the late and likewise internationally famous, E. I. Couse.

Hence Cassidy's dream of presenting part of the natural wealth of the area in the American home reaches fulfillment. Not only does the artistic reproduction call attention to the natives of the Southwest but the text on the calendar pad is devoted to advertisement of the many virtues of the Southwest.

NEW YEAR on WHEELS

By Helen Morton

"JUST one more mountain range to cross," Mac said to his sister, Josephine as they got into their car one clear bright morning. They had been traveling forever, it seemed to her. They wanted to reach California and restore Mac to health.

"If we can start the New Year on the coast, everything will be all right," Josephine had told her brother, and she really seemed to have a superstitious feeling that if Mac was to get well, they must accomplish their trip by that time.

"Stiff wind blowing through here," Mac exclaimed, drawing his scarf more closely about his throat as they approached a grade.

"Mountain Springs grade," Josephine told him. "I hope the wind doesn't mean a storm. This is the last day of the old year."

They hadn't climbed far, however, before they knew they were in for it.

Josephine, at the wheel while Mac rested from his morning-of-driving, had to grip the wheel with fierce intensity. The car was climbing with difficulty. The snow was blurring the windshield.

"We've got to make the coast," Josephine was muttering to herself, when she realized that Mac had wakened from his restless sleep. Abruptly she became animated, alert. "It's lovely and woodsy around here," she exclaimed.

"Here's luck," she said. "A house—the first I've seen in an hour."

"Awfully narrow road," Mac rejoined. "Are you sure you're on the highway?"

"I'm not sure of anything," Josephine replied. "Do you think we'd better stop and inquire?"

"I sure do," Mac agreed emphatically. "Your gasoline gauge isn't any too encouraging. We don't want to be stalled in this blizzard."

"You're getting tired, too, I know. I didn't count on this storm when I suggested stopping early yesterday. Here's luck," she interrupted herself. "A house right here, the first I've seen in an hour. I'll pop in."

She was back in a few moments, with a uniformed figure in a big slouch hat and high leather boots.

"Mac, I'm miles off the highway. I've been following the trail of Mr. Boseman's car. Oh, this is Mr. Boseman, a border patrolman, and this is my brother, Mac Silver. Mr. Boseman lives in this house here. He wants us to stop with him until the storm is over," Josephine explained, looking troubled.

"See here, Mr. Silver, I have plenty of room, and it will be a job trying to make the nearest town in this storm. In the morning I'll pilot you back to the highway and on to the coast." The young patrolman was very much in earnest. His eyes wandered from Mac to Josephine.

There really was no choice. Nothing ever tasted so good as the beef stew that was simmering on the back of the wood stove.

It was hard sledding next morning, getting through the drifts to the highway. But from then on it was only a matter of a few hours until they were descending the mountain.

It was after a hearty lunch together in a rustic tearoom that Jerry Boseman got up to leave them. "No, not good-by. I don't mean to let this be the end of our acquaintance. It's only the beginning," he insisted, looking at Josephine. "Here's hoping this New Year will mean a lot to you."

"New Year! Sure enough, and I forgot all about it," Josephine exclaimed. "And we are in California for it. Thanks to you, Mr. Boseman. Here's wishing you all the happiness in the world!" Josephine's smile was good to look at as she spoke to him.

"I know where that is to be found," he said, as he looked into her eyes.

A WARNING One Drink May Lead to Another, So Be Careful New Year's Eve!

Here's a graphic warning about your New Year's Eve celebration. Congenial drinks have a habit of following each other in insidious succession.

It's bad enough to risk your own life by driving after drinking, but how about the other lives that are thereby endangered? Gasoline and liquor don't mix!

Disaster stalks the highways each New Year's Eve because of drinking drivers. Won't you do your part to combat this needless slaughter? If you must drink, leave your car at home or let some one else do the driving!

He Tries, Anyway!

WASHINGTON.—Each year since 1911 J. W. Hunefeld has donned his special red necktie and walked to the White House, hoping to shake hands with the President. He was successful until 1933 when President Hoover left town for the day. The next year President Roosevelt abandoned the New Year's handshaking altogether and Hunefeld hasn't seen the inside of the White House since. Here he is shown barred by the White House gates, still hoping that President Roosevelt will change his mind.

New Year's Eve Revelry Dates Back to Romans Who Really Celebrated!

New Year's eve may be a Roman holiday to Americans but it's nothing like the celebration tendered the new year by Romans themselves in the days of Caesar.

Long before the wassail bowl became an English institution and $5 floor show seats were invented, the hardy Romans of a past age were forced to pay even higher stakes.

It started as a celebration of the winter solstice. In old Rome it was Saturnalia, even as now. Then Caesar changed the calendar and delayed the opening of the new year a few days until the first of the month honoring Janus. He was a two-faced god who looked both forward and back.

In Rome during the empire the heads of the state exacted presents at New Year's. They got so greedy that Claudius finally set up a schedule to make it legal.

Everybody's heard about the old English wassail bowl, but how many know how it's made? Here's a mellowed recipe, unchanged from the way its author prepared it years ago:

"Simmer a small quantity of the following spices in a teacup of water—cardamums, cloves, nutmeg, mace, ginger, cinnamon and coriander. When done, put the spice to two, four or six bottles of port, sherry, or madeira, with one and one-half pounds of fine loaf sugar

New Year's Eve Needn't Be Wild, Says Ex-Fighter

New Year's eve may be a time for celebration, but take it from Jack Dempsey—it's not a time for debauchery.

The former heavyweight champion and now New York restaurant operator sees no reason for young men and women to do a lot of heavy drinking just because everybody else seems to be doing it. They gain nothing by it.

"Lots of our young women customers," says Dempsey, "never order anything but ginger ale, orangeade or horse's necks."

A horse's neck, he explains, is made of ginger ale, ice and lemon. If made by people who know their business, it doesn't have any liquor in it at all.

The current season's New Year's eve celebrant will behave herself in the following fashion, says Mr. Dempsey:

She will stick to her own party and won't attract attention to herself by a lot of raucous laughter or loud talk. She'll make noise, because that's what New Year's is for, but she won't become obnoxiously boisterous.

As for being kissed at midnight, Jack says it's not necessarily a sign of affection, so why not?

New Year's Is Big Event In Horse Racing Circles

There's a big birthday party in horse racing circles on New Year's day. Twelve thousand thoroughbreds in training, in common with all other horses, become a year older.

To old timers like Man o' War, celebrating his twenty-second birthday in old Kentucky, the day doesn't mean much. But to approximately 5,000 yearlings and at least half that many two-year-olds, it marks the turning point of their careers.

Yearlings become eligible to appear under colors for the first time, while the juvenile racers join the rich three-year-old ranks, ready for participation in such moneyed events as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and the Belmont.

(pounded) to four bottles, and set all on the fire in a clean bright sauce pan; meanwhile have yolks of 12 and whites of 6 eggs well whisked up in it. Then, when the spiced and sugared wine is a little warm, take out one teacup, and so on for three or four cups; after which, when it boils, add the whole of the remainder, pouring it in gradually, and stirring it briskly all the time, so as to froth it. The moment a fine froth is obtained, toss in 12 fine soft roasted apples, and send it up hot."

Gets Relics of Mound Builders

St. Louis Doctor Pursues a Hobby and Unearths Important Data.

ST. LOUIS.—Dr. Paul F. Titterington, physician who made a hobby of archeology, in the last eight years has uncovered hundreds of prehistoric burial sites in the Middle West in an effort to satisfy a boyish urge "to collect things."

Doctor Titterington said he spent most of his time as a boy near Jerseyville, Ill., collecting arrowheads and Indian relics found on the surface. The desire remained with him as he grew older, however, and eight years ago he began to excavate Indian mounds in the area near Jerseyville, about 16 miles above the mouth of the Illinois river.

Although he has been able to devote only his spare time to his hobby—amounting to not more than three or four weeks in one year—Doctor Titterington has uncovered 475 burial sites in addition to hundreds of relics.

Rich Exploration Area.

Doctor Titterington explained that he became an amateur archeologist after conversations with scientists associated with museums and universities in which he mentioned the wealth of material in the Illinois mounds.

"They never seemed to have the time or money," he said, "so I decided to do some digging myself. I always spend a week of my vacation and seven or eight Sundays each year at it, and since the locality still contains much that is undiscovered I expect to continue for some time."

Only about 40 per cent of the skeletons uncovered so far were those of babies or children, Doctor Titterington said. There were evidence of four violent deaths. Three of the skeletons had fractured skulls and an arrowhead was lodged in the vertebra of the fourth. Deposits on bones showed that rheumatism and arthritis were prevalent. Condition of the teeth found in the skulls was proportionately worse with age.

People Were Traders.

Doctor Titterington said he has concluded from this evidence that the mound builders living in what is now central and southern Illinois were a peace-loving people who farmed and traded with the Indians to the north and south. He pointed out that he found evidences of both the northern and southern tribes along the Illinois river.

Two discoveries of particular importance were uncovered in recent weeks. The first was a beaded garment found in the grave of a woman. The garment had decomposed but the snailshell beads had been kept in perfect order by the tightly packed clay, Doctor Titterington said.

The second discovery was a hammered copper plate five inches square, which apparently had been used as an ornament. It was the first and only metal piece found so far in the mounds and was sent to the Milwaukee museum for study.

Ruins in Caves Reveal Old Mayan Line of Forts

WASHINGTON.—Mexico's Maya Indians developed a rudimentary "Maginot Line" generations before France built its net work of defensive tunnels, according to the Carnegie institution.

The Indians used caves for defense against both human and animal enemies, said an institution report by Dr. A. S. Pearce of Duke university. He said the caves contained walls that divided the tunnels and thereby strengthened the Indians' defense even after enemies had entered the cave.

The institution said the Indians did not live permanently in caves although "there is abundant evidence of early occupation of these caves."

"These include," the institution reported, "potsherds, bones, carvings; excavated holes in rocks used for catching dripping water, stone blinds for concealment in hunting birds, and carved steps."

Frost Family Has a Jack, Snow and Cold in Fold

BOSWELL, N. M.—Homer Frost of Roswell is a man with an imagination, a sense of humor and a family.

The combination has caused many a chuckle in New Mexico—and in every place members of the family have broken into print.

Take, for instance Homer Frost's eldest son. His name is Winter Night Frost, but he has a hard time making people believe it.

Homer Frost has no explanation for his choice of a name for his son. The last name, he said, presented opportunities which his own parents took no advantage of.

Homer Frost, it would seem, is making up for the time his parents lost. Other members of his family are named Dew Frost, Hail Frost, Jack White Frost, Snow Frost and even Cold Frost.

Winter Night Frost is the most famous of the strangely-named Frosts. As a member of the United States marines he set a new swimming record by traveling 28 watery miles in 28 hours.

Jamaica Weavers Make Banana-Coconut Cloth

WASHINGTON.—The newest banana-coconut combination turns out to be, not a soda fountain special, but a fabric for sports clothes.

The National Geographic society reports that weavers in Jamaica have evolved a cloth, especially for beach wear, made of the strong fibers of the two tropical products.

Toad Overlooks Adage 'Birds Flock Together'

KEENE, N. H.—This would-be foster-parent probably would have been more successful for knowing the adage—"birds of a feather flock together."

Mrs. Maude Kew found a toad sitting on three eggs in a bird's nest. After several days of futile "setting," the toad deserted the nest. Two eggs were broken, result of the toad's inexperience.

Singer Finds Rich Folklore in Canada

The French Peasant Types Prove Valuable Source.

LONDON.—A woman who gave up her career as an opera singer to study folklore, the art, and the old songs of Canada, is in England on one of her journeys of research, which annually take her 20,000 miles.

Mme. Juliette Gaultier de la Verendry has devoted all her time since the World war to finding and preserving the details of Indian and Eskimo history and of the early French settlers in Canada. She has lived with the natives, has gained their friendship and so obtained their secrets.

She left a Boston opera company one day in 1920 because "it hurts me to stay in any one place more than two months." Today Mme. Gaultier can claim records of 10,000 folksongs, of which 6,000 are French, more than 2,000 Indian and the rest Eskimo.

Her visit to Europe provides an extraordinary link in the chain of her researches. For it is only in France that she is able to trace these old scraps of legend and ballads which the Seventeenth century settlers took with them to Canada.

"Perhaps the most interesting work I have done in Canada has been among the French peasant types of French in Acadia and Quebec," she said.

"My methods have always been the same. I travel from village to village, call on the doctor (because he knows everyone) and then go and talk to the oldest residents."

"What success I have had! In the tiny out-of-the-way village of Simon, I found an old lady of 95 who gave me my most interesting material."

"Unable to read or write, this old woman knew 3,000 songs and nearly 250 legends."

"A fortnight ago in a museum of folklore in Liege, Belgium, I found traces of the legends about which she had told me in her home."
