VOLUME 38, NUMBER 20

RECENTLY I ran across a list of the top ten things which are most feared among citizens of the U.S. and thought you might be in-terested to know that the number one phobia in this country is the fear of public speaking.

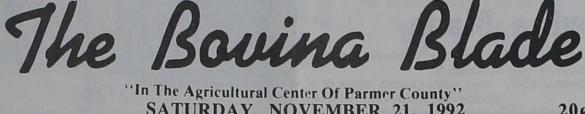

In second place was the fear of heights. There was a three-way tie for third place: fear of financial problems, fear of bugs, spiders, snakes, etc., and fear of deep water or drowning.

There was a tie for fourth place between fear of sickness and fear of dying. In fifth place was the fear of flying. Sixth place was the fear of crowds. Seventh place was fear of dogs. Eighth place was the fear of driving or riding in a car (having a wreck). Ninth place was a tie between fear of darkness and fear of riding in elevators (falling). Tenth place was fear of lonliness.

This survey on fears was taken several years ago. I think some new phobias might have been added since that time, such as the fear of being mugged, fear of no landfills left where you can throw your trash, fear that your child will take up bungee-jumping, fear of hitting an orange colored barrel out on the highway, fear of having a Democrat in the oval office, etc.

My own personal phobia wasn't on this list either. The staff members at the newspaper office like to tease me about my ZZZZ-phobia. What's that you say? Well, it's not the fear of an attack of African killer bees or the fear of losing sleep because of a loudly snoring spouse.

It is the fear of spelling something with a Z when it should be an S and vice versa. For instance, I could give someone a surprise and it would come with an S, but on the other hand, I could give someone a prize and it would come with SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1992

LET US COUNT OUR REAL BLESSINGS THIS THANKSGIVING

Remember, this Thanksgiving Day, To count your blessings, come what may. It seems so strange, and yet it's true: Hard times can be a blessing, too; Reminding us to be aware Of family and friends who care. No circumstance can take away These values that are here to stay. And now, before we start the feast, Let's be appreciative, at least, Of all the happy times we've shared, And all the troubles we've been spared. In gratitude, let heads be bowed For every day that we're allowed, A blessing with its own reward, So let's give thanks unto the Lord.

a Z. Why is that?

When I first started to school about a million years ago, the teacher told us that we could spell a word correctly if we would sound out each syllable and spell it accordingly. We were also told that S sounds like a hissing snake and Z sounds like a buzzing bee. But in real life it just doesn't work out that

For instance the word praise has an S but maize has an Z. The same thing applies to seas and seize. You could organize (with a Z) a group of organisms (with an S). Or you could vandalize something (with a Z) but then you might get charged with vandalism (with an S). If you go to the hospital for surgery you'll want to have anesthesia (with an S) and then you will be anesthetized (with a Z).

You could socialize (with a Z) or you could compromise (with an S.) Then you might analyze something (with a Z) or supervise something (with an S.) Does any of this make any sense?

Oh, sure! I could dig around here for about an hour and finally locate a dictionary. Or I could get out the manual and after about two hours I might figure out how to work the spell-checker on the word processor. But fortunately, the good old boy who lives with me over on Maple Street was the County Spelling Bee Champion of Bailey County in the eighth grade, so it's a lot quicker to just ask him if it has an S or a Z.

Now back to our original topic of dizcussion, which was "phobiaz." My huzband Bill, sufferz from something known az "mistagame-a-phobia." That's the fear of not being anywhere close to a televizion set during a game of the Dallaz Cowboyz.

LOOKING UP

BY RICHARD L. GRISHAM Thanksgiving is a uniquely American religious holiday. Other countries of the world will celebrate their Independence Day (or anniversary of founding), Christmas, Easter, and special memorial days honoring their military heros and veterans, but Thanksgiving as such is celebrated only in the U.S. of A. and Canada.

The uniqueness of Thanksgivng as an American religious holiday truly points to the uniqueness of America herself as a nation. It cannot be denied that our national forebearers came to North American soil for the sake of religious liberty and felt the providence of God had everything to do with their success. The pilgrim fathers of Plymouth colony honored God for his blessings on their early beginnings, and even invited the Indian natives to participate with them in a time of feasting and thanksgiving in 1621. George Washington in 1789 issued the first national day of Thanksgiving, and Abraham Lincoln in 1863 put it on the national calendar as a holiday.

Thanksgiving is unique because it honors God. No matter how much secular historians would like to ignore or alter the history of America's religious beginnings and foundations, Thanksgiving stands as an undeniable reminder to them and all of us that God's hand and providence were instrumental in the establishing of our land! Secularist do not know how to handle a holiday that refutes their anti-Christian bias and calls for a specific act of thankfulness to God for his blessings and mercies. I certainly would not deny them their right to not believe in God; but neither do I want them to deny me and the majority of Americans the right to have a time to honor and praise God for what he has done. We must guard this unique, although religious American holiday, for what it is -- a day of thanksgiving! But do not be surprised if Thanksgiving comes under attack as a national holiday by those who do not like what it represents. Thanksgiving is special to America. It points us to our religious roots. We must be diligent to preserve its place on our national calendar as a unique holiday that keeps us looking up!

Burning Crop Residue Issue Is Discussed

Wednesday morning, the issue of burning has finally been resolved, at least for this year.

Texas Air Control Board (TACB) officials, Texas Corn Producers Board (TCPB) staff, and other area officials were on hand at the meeting to give their opinions.

"All in all, this meeting was a good beginning. We now have a revised set of guidelines that must be followed before the burning of crop residue," stated Carl King, Executive Director of the Texas Corn Producers Board.

policy is set for the future, the position of the TACB is that the farmer must send a written notification to the TACB regional office which certifies that there is no practical alternative, guarantees compliance with the seven conditions of Regulation I (listed below, and contains a map of the site including uses of adjacent lands. The notification must also indicate when the burn will occur. Such written notification must be received by the Regional Office at least five (5) days prior to the burn, and telephone verification of the continued intent to burn must be made to the Regional Office 24 hours prior to the burn. When it appears that several tracts of land are to be burned in the same area at the same time, it may be necessary for the TACB to require the scheduling of burn times over several consecutive days to avoid cumulative nuisance and traffic safety problems.

Compliance with the conditions specified in Section 111.103 will be required, and they are as follows:

1. Burning shall be commenced only when the wind will carry the smoke away from any city, town, residential, recreational, commercial, or industrial area, navigable water, public road, or land strip, and shall not be conducted when a shift of wind is predicted;

2. Burning must be at least 300 feet from any adjacent properties which have residential, recreational, commercial, or industrial use;

In a meeting in Plainview, synthetic rubber, or any material which may produce unreasonable amounts of smoke must not be burned.

"The farmer is responsible for smoke that travels across non-public roads used for school bus routes or mail carriers, and the farmer must have flaggers on such roads," said Tamra-Shae Oatman, Small Business Ombudsman, TACB. Additionally, the Texas Corn Producers Board agrees that it is the responsibility of each farmer to notify adjacent neighbors of proposed burning, and limit the size of the Until such time as a definitive burn so that wholesale burning will not be conducted.

The Texas Corn Producers Board stresses that failure to comply with the Regulation I conditions above, or the creation of a nuisance or traffic hazard will result in an agreed Texas Air Control Board order (ABO) with administrative penalties up to $10,000 for each day or incident of violation. An ABO is a legally-binding document agreed to by the violator and issued by the TACB.

The address of the Regional Office for the 40 counties of the South Plains and Panhandle is TACB, 4630 50th Street, Suite 600, Lubbock, Texas, 79414. The telephone number for the Lubbock office is (806) 796-3494. The telephone number for the TACB Ombudsman's office is 1-800-824-7247.

Farm Loan Applications Being Accepted

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by excessive rain and hail are being accepted at the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) office located at 109 3rd street in Farwell, Texas, FmHA County Supervisor Thomas S. Taylor said today. Parmer County is one of 47 in Texas recently named by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from the excessive rain and hail. Thomas S. Taylor said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 % of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue in business or $500,000.00 whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 4.5 percent. "As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for a FmHA emergency loan," Thomas S. Taylor said. Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss. "Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until June 28, 1993 but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly over into the new farming season," Thomas S. Taylor said. FmHA is a credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is authorized to provide disaster emergency loans to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living. The FmHA office in Farwell is open from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. 0-4; Gina Jarman 6-2-12; E. Jones Monday through Friday, closed from 12:00 to 1:00 for the lunch hour.

He said the program aims at assessing the insects' well-being.

Taylor wants Texans to participate in the monarch census by catching them, checking for a numbered tag on the upper right plentiful this year.

Migration of the Monarch Butterfly

Tens of thousands of monarch butterflies are beginning to arrive in Texas en route to winter roosts in Mexico. Entomologists are asking people to look for monarchs that have been tagged in a project aimed at assessing the insects' well-being.

> studied by scientists hoping to find out where the millions of butterflies flew. It was not until Joy Morton. 1975 that the winter roosting area was discovered near the summit of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Gee. the thickly forested Cerro Pelon mountain northwest of Mexico City.

This year, researchers there discovered that up to three-fourths of the butterflies apparently were killed by heavy winter rains and extreme cold.

Taylor said that if the monarchs traveling through the Midwest are plentiful, the butterflies may be wintering at a site not yet discovered. Thus he enlisted the help of hundreds of school children and their teachers to tag monarchs flying through Kansas.

He said finding out where the butterflies are entering Mexico from the United States may help determine if there is a different wintering ground for at least a portion of the monarch populaiton.

The numbered tag, which is similar to a grocery store price sticker, is applied to the butterfly after rubbing the scales off a small portion of the right forewing. If handled gently, the butterfly is not harmed by the tag.

especially those closer to the southern border, can be a part of the study by catching monarchs to see if a tag is present, Taylor said. If so, the number of the tag should be recorded and reported along with other information such as the date, location, general weather conditions and other observations if any. The butterfly can be released to continue its trip after reading the tag number. Taylor said Texans also may obtain tags to apply to monarchs that have entertainment, Santa Claus in an not been marked.

up in Texas and will continue to fly through for three or four weeks, according to Dr. Ed Riley, an entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in College Station.

"The best time to see them is at the end of the day when the sun is low and the monarchs are looking for flowers to feed on. They must have nectar to maintain energy. They cluster in meadows and stay there through the night," said Riley, who already has seen a monarch this season in College Station. "Sometimes they roost in large numbers."

Quick Bread Recipes

BY CARLA McKEOWN Coffee cakes. Muffins. Tea breads. No matter what they're called, quick breads are just that-quick and easy.

Quick breads rely on baking powder or baking soda instead of yeast to make the batter rise into a light bread. No kneading or rising time is needed. The ingredients are mixed together, poured into a pan and baked.

Most quick breads are prepared using the mix-mix method. The dry ingredients are mixed in one bowl; the liquid ingredients are mixed in another bowl. Then, they are mixed together.

The batter should be mixed until the dry ingredients are moistened, but it should not be overmixed. Over mixing will result in a flat end product.

Keep in mind that baking powder and baking soda start to work as soon as they are mixed with the liquid. Make sure the pan is prepared and the oven is pre-heated before the liquid ingredients are added to the dry.

Baking times may vary from oven to oven. The wooden pick test is one of the best ways for determining if the bread is done. You also can test the doneness with a light touch. If the bread is done, it will spring back when pressed lightly.

Try the following recipes for breakfast, afternoon snack or dessert.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE TEA BREAD 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour 3/4 cup sugar 1/3 cup cocoa 1 tablespoon baking powder

1 2/3 cups milk 1 cup raisins

In a medium bowl, stir flour, oats, baking powder and salt. In a large bowl, with the mixer at medium speed, beat peanut butter and sugar until smooth. Beat in egg. Gradually add milk. With mixer at low speed, beat in dry ingredients until smooth. Stir in raisins. Pour the mixture into a greased 9-inch-by-5-inch-by-3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 70 to 75 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted in the center of the bread comes out clean. Cool in pan

4th Graders Write Halloween Stories

Bovina wrote Halloween stories as part of their class work this year. The best story from each class was chosen, by the students, to be published in the Blade. They are as follows:

The Haunted House BY MARISSA RODRIGUEZ

One spooky Halloween my friends and I went in the Haunted House because they wanted to. I saw hairy monsters, evil vampires, witches on brooms, a scary monster with fangs, skeletons rattleing their bones. Suddenly I heard a noise. It sounded like chains. Suddenly, a monster grabed me with his chains. I looked back but I didn't see nothing. I was scared from the tip of my toe to the top of my head. My friends asked, "What's the matter"? I think I need to get you a glass of water. After 11:00 p.m. I went to my house. Soon the guy who scared me came to apologize. He said, "I apologize for scaring you." That's o.k., I answered. From that day on I never went to the Haunted House again.

* * * * Halloween Night

One spooky Halloween night Anthony and I were trick-ortreating. We had lots of candy. We walked by an old spooky house. Anthony said, "Do you want to go in that house?" "I guess we better try it. You never know when your going to get a lot of candy." anwsered. Anthony and I went up to the door. "Come in" a voice demanded. Anthony and I both went in and suddenly the door locked. "Aaaaaaagh", Anthony and kindly, "Hi, my name is Frakin Stine." Frakin Stine replied, "You

The fourth grade classes at see you tommaro." "Ok" Jake replied. I opened the gate and shut it behind me. I ran into my room and through my bags on the floor and jumped on my bed and I thought about last year and the Haunted House.

> We were waiting to go in and out people came that where in front of us. "You ready?" replied Jake. I nodded. The tickettaker took our tickets and put someother kids with us we didn't even know and took their tickets. "Off you go," he shouted as he opened the door. Then Jake and I walked in with the other children. We all walked through it very slowly. As we walked down the webby halls a ghost on a string jumped out of nowhere and yelled, "BOO!" We all screamed. We walked further. Out jumped a goblen! A girl behind us screamed and grabbed a hold of her friend. We all walked on and the next scary thing was a person half here. She said, "Come here boys." Then as we walked closer and closer, she put something on her face, but we couldn't see for sure, until we got to a dim light. Now this is the most embarrassing of all! She had red, mooshy, gooshy stuff. Then she poured a pot of spagheti on us. It scared me good because I looked down and my pants were at my ankles. And I had my batman underwear on that my mom got me! The girls behind us laughed. Even Jake and the half here person laughed! I grabbed Jake and yelled "We're out of here!" We went back through the webby halls and out the door. We raced to my house and Jake went on home laughing. Anyway I'm not going again I thought.

My mom yelled at me from the kitchen and said "Jakes on the Phone." "Ok" I yelled back. I got up and ran through the hall forgetting about the haunted house. I ran to the kitchen. "Hello," I said. "Are you going to the Halloween Carnival" he asked. "I guess I will." "Ok, see you there, by." The next day I painted my face and waited for Jake on the front porch. When I spotted him I ran up to him and we went to the Halloween Carnival. We played some games. Then we saw the Haunted house. We got in line. I wore a tight belt so my pants wouldn't fall down. When the tickettaker took our tickets and opened the door and this time more children wearn't with us. The same scary thing happined but, I didn't lose my pants this time! We went to the parts we missed last year. It was scary but fun. As we walked home I said "That was fun!"
