EIGHTEENTH WEEK

ODDS & ENDS

On our way to the ranch Tuesday afternoon we came upon the overturned trailer house described in our story on this page.

You get a pretty good insight into people's characters when you see their behavior in a crisis. In this case, the three little children were waiting patiently in the car while mother and father salvaged clothing and television set (all undamaged) from the upside-down trailer. No signs of hysteria, no indecision, no impatience with the children.

We put them down as a young couple who'll go far and accomplish plenty.

Sunday night's Valentine box at the elementary school was to be another big deal.

From the reports of the students, it is grade 3's big evening and lots of love learned last year.

Representation is quite a prospect and the auction gives snickers to last for some.

Talking with Rex Lowe about gardening we began to recollect some gardening rules we'd almost forgotten about—we plan ours when we have time.

Now we all know about and most of us go by the rule of the moon—underground vegetables to be planted in the dark of the moon and those bearing above ground to be planted in the full of the moon. But we had forgotten about planting potatoes on St. Patrick's Day and about planting asafetida with your onions.

Another one-the-time to plant corn is when the leaf on the pecan tree is the size of a mouse's ear.

If you know any others, let us know. We'll probably need all the

Drivers Have Narrow Escapes During "Icer"

Mrs. Eduardo Abrev of Los Angeles, California, suffered a fractured collarbone shortly after noon last Thursday when the car in which she and her husband were riding overturned on icy pavement about 14 miles east of Sonora on U.S. Highway 290.

The automobile, a 1954 Chevrolet truck, turned completely over, righting itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Abrev are musicians and were enroute from their home in Los Angeles to Florida. Abrev was not injured.

Earlier the same morning, the drivers of two trucks narrowly escaped death when an Alamo Motor Lines truck, driven by Edward L. Jowers of San Angelo, was sideswiped by a 1954 Mack butane truck driven by Eddie W. Ward of Odessa.

Patrolman H. E. Moore attributed the accident to the condition of the highway and iced-over windshields.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis W. Brewer and their three children, of Llano, all escaped injury Tuesday afternoon when their automobile and house trailer overturned about eight miles east of Sonora on U.S. Highway 290.

The Brewer family were enroute to California where Brewer is to be employed as a heavy machinery operator with a road contractor when the right rear tire of the automobile blew out, causing the accident.

Damage to the car was almost negligible but the trailer house which was overturned completely, is considered to be a total loss. The Brewers went on to their California destination Wednesday.

MEET YOUR TEACHER

Here is one of the school system's busiest men, Rex Lowe, supervising principal of Central Elementary and L. W. Elliott Schools, and high school Spanish teacher.

Lowe, a native of Cameron, Texas, is a graduate of the Cameron schools and holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Spanish from Texas Technological College in Lubbock and a Master of Arts degree in elementary education and supervision from the University of Texas.

Lowe began his teaching career in Cameron where he taught high school Spanish and history for two years. He then spent one year with the State Welfare Department as a field worker and supervisor, working out of offices in Palestine, Tyler and Cameron. He came to Sonora as elementary school principal in 1946.

Lowe and his wife, the former Edith Eldridge of Sonora, and their nine-months-old daughter Terry, are now occupying their new home in the Lomax addition where Lowe indulges in his favorite pastime of gardening.

A member of the Baptist Church, Lowe has taught several Sunday School classes, and is director of the choir.

During the summer, Lowe also teaches classes in swimming and life saving.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

REDMAN OTHMANN, 148 Grape Street, New Bedford, Massachusetts, had been working on his first job about two years when he realized that the future ahead was most discouraging. He didn't have a college education; he hadn't even finished high school. After looking around and talking with fellow employees, he found them very complacent with no desire to do anything to get ahead—they were all just waiting for "a break," knowing little more than necessary to hold their individual jobs.

He was so worried that he couldn't eat with relish, and he often awakened in the night with concern for his future. Just as a tired swimmer looks for a log to grasp hold of for help to reach shore, so he looked for something solid to grasp in his search for security.

One day he answered a correspondence school advertisement. Soon one of their representatives called and sold him a course of study to relieve his nervous tension and help him up the ladder of success. But most important, he implanted the necessity of having a definite aim. Then Redman decided that his aim should be to become an assistant manager. Over a period of years he took four home study courses—and reached his aim. Since that time he has set up several aims to work for and each time he has attained them. All it took was to actually believe that he could do it, then study and work hard.

He wants to leave with you the thought that worrying about your future and doing nothing about it will always hold you back, that it is possible for everyone to get what he wants if he will set his aim, work hard, and actually believe himself capable of reaching his goal.

Otto Graham, who came out of retirement to quarterback the Cleveland Browns during the past season and earned the title of "Professional Athlete of the year" in the nationwide poll, is the first footballer to win that honor. In 1954, Graham was runnerup to Willie Mays of the New York Giants baseball team. For his work in leading the Browns to the 1955 National Football League title, Otto also was picked (for the sixth time) to the Associated Press' all-pro team, was voted the plaque of merit by the Sports Broadcasters Association, and named to football's hall of fame. Quite a year for the 34-year-old veteran . . . The National Football League hopes to have fewer injuries next year because of a new rule voted unanimously at its recent annual meeting. Henceforth, when a ball carrier is grounded as a result of bodily contact, the ball immediately becomes dead. The ball carrier can still fight his way free of tacklers, but if any part of his body except hands or feet touch the ground the play ends.

BOXING REFORMER . . . Julius Helfand, New York Athletic Commission chairman, ordered New York Boxing Guild to disband, freeing fighters from monopolistic control. Helfand hopes to improve boxing by reviving small fight clubs.

Rev. F. L. Meadow Featured In San Marcos Paper

The Rev. Frank L. Meadow, former pastor of the First Methodist Church of Sonora and now of San Marcos, was the subject of a feature story entitled "Magnificent Failure" which appeared recently in the San Marcos Record. Title of the article stemmed from the warning by Mr. Meadow's brother that he might be a failure if he entered the ministry. "But," the article continues, "he was so wrong!" "During the years since he was first licensed he had held many charges, from the small churches where he did his first preaching to some of the larger ones in Texas and New Mexico. He had also held important offices in his church and had three times been District Superintendent during the 35 years of his active ministry before his retirement in 1944 at Sonora. "It was at Sonora where he finally decided to retire from the ministry as a pastor and it was that congregation to which he had so endeared himself that when he announced his plan to retire they offered to buy him a home if he would continue to make his home there."

But Mr. and Mrs. Meadow returned to San Marcos where they established their home and Mr. Meadow entered the real estate and insurance business and served as pastor of the Wimberley Community Church. Recently, however, Mr. Meadow felt that his own health and that of Mrs. Meadow was such that he could not continue to carry on his routine of preaching every Sunday, and he went into retirement.

The article continues, "His life as a minister and the record he has made in his church, coupled with the affection in which he is held by the thousands of people who have profited under his long ministry, is proof that his brother's prediction could not have been more wrong.

"He has been a magnificent failure!"

OLD TIES MAKE NEW ACCESSORIES

This month taking over part of the male wardrobe is an old trick with women, but believe it or not, here's a new one and this time it comes from a man, Clyde Clemmens of Sonora Steam Laundry and Dry Cleaners. . . it's neckties worn as headbands and perky bows.

And this bit of feminine confisication should meet with complete approval from the men for it makes use of the wide ties that are being discarded in favor of the newer, narrower ones.

It's an idea that dresses up an ordinary white blouse or adds color and dash to the man-tailored shirts that are so popular with the school age and young business girls. It's a simple matter to make one of these "headsets"—and the number you can have is limited only by the number of neckties that are cluttering up the tie racks in your house. (But don't make the mistake of using a tie that "he" thinks he'll wear again, even if he hasn't put it on in over a year!) First Mr. Clemmens suggests that you have the ties cleaned and pressed to restore body to the fabric and eliminate all traces of the fabric's having been knotted.

Cut off 24 inches from the narrow end of the tie for the headband. Leave the inner lining to give the band weight and stitch the cut end so it won't ravel. One end of the band will be a little wider than the other so gather this with tiny-stitches to make both ends the same width. Now measure your exact headsize, and have the narrow end of the necktie overlap the cut end. Sew on hooks for fastening and use two so the overlap is smooth.

The bow is made from the wide part of the tie. Hem the cut end and press the fabric flat. Tie the bow, then stitch the knot on the underside so it will stay tied. Insert a safety pin and you're ready to pin it on your white-top outfit and show your man how clever and thrifty you are. (Paid advertisement)

Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District News

By E. B. Keng
Soil Conservation Service

The first spring shower of the year reminds us that grass planting time will soon be here. Grass seed, following six dry years, is in short supply and ranchmen should make plans to purchase needed seed as soon as possible.

Range grasses should be planted from March 1 to May 1, and early plantings are more to succeed. The principal grasses that should be planted in the Edwards Plateau SCD are sideoats grama, KR bluestem, cane bluestem, blue grama and blue panic. Buffelgrass showed up well last year, but should be planted on a trial basis.

With only 14.75 inches of rainfall last year grass seeded on pitted land made remarkable growth. Grass seeded on unpitted land failed to become established. Grass seed should not be planted unless the land is disturbed by pitting, root plowing, or mechanical brush control. The disturbed areas catch and hold dict that could be very profitable seeded to permanent grass. The grass cover would protect the land against washing and blowing, furnish grazing, and seed may be harvested to seed other parts of the ranch.

The disturbed areas catch and hold

Many cultivated fields have been seeded to small grain for the past 6-10 years at a cost of $5.00 or more per acre each year with no grazing produced. Wind erosion has been severe on many fields. Our long time history of less than one inch of rainfall during November, December, January, and February makes the success of small grain for grazing extremely doubtful.

With six extremely dry years behind us it looks likely based on rainfall records since 1870 that we should soon be receiving more favorable rainfall years. An old field pitted and established to a good stand of permanent grass would be a valuable asset to any ranch.

Soil Conservation Service technicians will be glad to help ranchmen analyze seed needs, and assist with pitting and planting. Let's do our best and hope that nature cooperates to get our old fields covered with a good stand of grass.

WASHINGTON QUIZ

Q-I am drawing VA disability compensation payments. If I move, is it possible for my checks to be forwarded to my new address?
A-No. Under the law, VA benefit checks may not be forwarded from one address to another. So if you are planning to move, be sure to notify VA, and give both new and old address, full name and "C" number.

Q-I am receiving a monthly pension from VA. Recently a relative willed me a small piece of land, undeveloped. Must I consider the value of this land as income?
A-The land need not be considered as income until it is converted into cash by renting or selling it. And even then, you may deduct what ever money you had to put into the land, for taxes, improvements and the like, in determining the net income.

Q-Essentially what is the "Gray" plan recently voted on in Virginia?
A-The "Gray" plan proposes that the Virginia legislature set up the machinery for a constitutional convention, to amend the state constitution so that public money collected in taxes for public schools can be paid for support of private schools. It is a plan to prevent the integration of negroes and whites in public schools for those who prefer not to do so. It does not prevent those who are in favor of integration of the races to send their children to public schools where both races are in attendance. Neither does it contemplate abandonment of public schools, although those who were opposed to the plan contend that that will be the final result in some areas in the state.

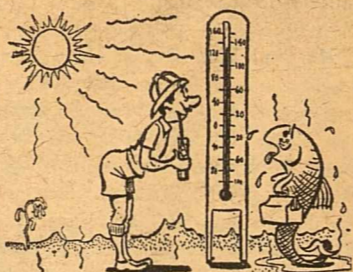

Q-What was Benjamin Franklin's statement with reference to a rising sun at signing of the draft of the constitution?
A-He arose, pointed to the figure on a half-sun painted on Washington's chair and said: "I have often and often in the course of the session looked at that sun without being able to tell whether it was rising or setting; but now at length, I am happy to know that it is a rising and not a setting sun."

IT MUST be that babies are smarter than we think. The first word the average baby speaks, that obviously has reference to some specific object or situation, usually occurs at ten or eleven months. After actual talking gets well under way, the vocabulary may increase rather rapidly, 500 or 600 words a year; as many as 1,000 or more with alert children. By the time the child is six years old he is likely to have a vocabulary of 2,500 or 3,000 words. It has been pointed out that the word "mama," with varying inflections may mean "mama give me," "mama look," or "there is mama." Such a single word sentence is called a "rheme."

Man outdoes the sea animal, whether it be a tuna or green crab, in its ability to adapt to temperature. Most sea animals can tolerate only a small range in temperature. Only those relatively few sea animals that can tolerate temperature changes of 10 degrees Fahrenheit can remain in temperate zones. All others must migrate or die. Man can withstand temperatures which range from 136 degrees above to 90 degrees below zero.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From John C. Boyles, Tonkawa, Okla.: I remember when father got back from England in 1875, he planned to build a barn on the side of a typical Michigan hill, near Charlotte. The Ice Age had left its mark in our back yard, so the stones for the foundation were close at hand.

The first thing he had to know was the size of the barn, and the size depended upon the height of the nearby trees. He sent men into his woodland to find two of the tallest and straightest trees. When this was done, the length was determined. For the width of the barn, eight logs were used as crossbeams. Then 18 poles, 20 feet long and very stout, served as girders. They dragged the logs from the heart of the timberland into the yard, and construction began.

The crude labor was great because of the large number of logs involved. Two of the logs were fifty feet long, eight were thirty-four feet long; sixteen were twenty feet long, etc.

The digging out of the bank was difficult and the scoring of the logs took many hours and left many sore hands. No sawmill in this part of the country at that time was equipped to saw such long timber. (Send contributions to this column to The Old Timer, Community Press Service, Frankfort, Kentucky.)

FIRST THING you need in a car, of course, is power to spark performance.

And you get that in a 1956 Buick in plenty - from big 322-cubic-inch V8 engines that hit new highs in horsepower and compression.

But the power under the hood must be carried to the rear driving wheels in the form of twisting force on the drive shaft.

That's torque - the end-product of your transmission. And the higher the torque build-up - the greater the "torque multiplication" in starting and accelerating - the better the getaway and response.

So if you want to feel take-off that leaves your breath behind you, come try a '56 Buick with Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

For in this airplane-principled transmission, Buick engineers raised the ceiling on torque to give you the best getaway yet.

They did it with something they call "double regeneration" - a new way to make flowing oil add to its own velocity.

And when you use the full torque of a Buick beauty like the one pictured above, you're using the highest torque multiplication to be had in any standard-production American automobile today.

Come see for yourself what that means in new thrills and new safety.

You'll find brilliant new getaway response in the first inch of pedal travel - plus greater gas mileage to boot.

You'll find an electrifying new safety-surge of full-power acceleration when you floor the pedal and switch the pitch.

And you'll find this spectacular performance blended into the smoothest-traveling, the sweetest-riding, the highest-powered and the easiest-handling Buicks yet built. Drop in on us this week - today, if you can - and judge things firsthand.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century - optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Rather than carry over until next season, we offer all women's coats and coat suits and Misses and children's coats at cost. These are all this season's garments and present a rare opportunity for a substantial saving. We also place on sale eighty boy's knee trouser suits. These suits have straight bottom trousers and of course not the height of style but the values range $2.50 to $5.00. To close out we offer them at $2.00. It will pay you to investigate. Looking Through The Windows Of Life

By W. H. Marshall

"The most important thing you will ever wear is the expression on your face." These were the words I read on a small package of matches.

Yes, your face tells pretty well the story of your life and heart. Not every face is a pretty face, but why make it still uglier by looking like you might be dying with the cramps. Believe me there are a lot of faces that need all the looks added to them that they can get without looking like a West Texas storm.

There is also the matter of the smile. You know it would do a lot of people good to learn to smile, to let a little kindness show in their eyes once and a while. A cramped face is never nice to look at especially if you are all dressed up. You know one just looks like he has no place to go when he is wearing a laced face. The ugliest person you ever saw is good looking when he put on a smile. Remember, "The most important thing you ever wear is the expression on your face."

Many people fail socially, financially, and in every thing else just because they don't know how to dress their face up with a smile. A hundred dollar suit on your back calls for a million dollar smile on your face. The person that can't smile has a hard road ahead of him.

I believe that a smile that comes from the heart might be called the soul of all great designs. A man must plan on some kind of a life he wants to live, but to try to live a life without a smile and laughing eyes, well, you just can't do it.

Franklin said, "Three may keep a secret, if two of them are dead." The smile on your face has a secret, it is one of well-being. It belongs to one who has learned the fine art of appreciation, and knows the value of any and every life he may meet.

The most fatal disease is self-conceit. What a fix one is in when that sort of disease gets a hold on him. What a monkey it makes out of him. Laveter said, "He who gives himself airs of importance, exhibits the credentials of impotence."

Wheately said, "Do you want to know the man against whom you have reason to guard yourself? Your looking-glass will give you a very fair likeness of his face." Yes, it is so true, "The most important thing you will ever wear is the expression on your face." It tells the true story of your heart and the way you are thinking.

You can be extravagant with your smile and be the richer for it, but a frown robs you of pleasing personality and finally will dump you on the scrap-heap of the forgotten-those who forgot that "The most important thing you will ever wear is the expression on your face."

It has broken many a man, and it has brought wealth to many others.

THE 860 TWO-DOOR CATALINA

Easy way to break the small car habit!

It's the hardtop buy of the year with the most power and size per dollar of any car in this style.

If you're accustomed to buying in the low-priced-three range, chances are you're paying for Pontiac's size, performance and distinction—but you're not getting it! As a matter of fact, you're not even coming close!

Where else at a price so low can you enjoy bossing the most modern, most advanced power plant in the industry—the mighty Strato-Streak V-8?

Where else at a price so low can you get the luxury of Pontiac's optional Strato-Flight Hydramatic—America's newest, smoothest automatic transmission?

Where else at a price so low can you find a big 122-inch wheelbase, such luxurious interiors and all the other fine-car features that put you so squarely on even terms with buyers of far costlier cars? Come in and see how easily this heart-lifting Strato-Streak beauty can be yours. Once you do, you'll be out of the small-car class forever!

You can actually buy a big, glamorous Pontiac 860 for less than you would pay for 44 models of the low-priced three!

ideas from other editors

From the Italy News Herald, Italy, Texas: Various types of business operating on a more or less monopolistic basis, such as utilities and railroads, have been subject to regulation by government for many years. Even the most bitter opponents to government control of industry concede that there must be regulation for such businesses, especially in the matter of rates.

Rate regulation is always thought of, however, as a means of protecting the public against excessive charges and the average person is surprised to know that application must be made to reduce rates as well as to raise them. Seldom does an application for rate reduction meet with opposition, but such a thing is going on at the present time.

Railroads are controlled primarily by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Most of the regulations under which they operate were drawn up when railroads had a virtual monopoly on transportation of both freight and passengers. Today the transportation business is highly competitive—competitive not only within the business itself, but from the private automobile and truck as well.

This competitive situation has forced all forms of commercial transportation to strive to improve service in order to hold and increase business. The railroads, for instance, have increased the speed of the average freight train more than 50 per cent in the past 30 years. They have been able to almost double the load they can carry and increase their hourly output of transportation nearly three times.

This means that the cost of hauling a ton of freight has decreased. Little as some people may believe, railroad management would like to pass this saving on to the shippers, but government regulations will not permit it. Applications for rate reductions have not been allowed because other less economically operated transportation systems say they cannot operate on lower rates.

Bills have been introduced in Congress to remedy this situation. They would give transportation concerns more leeway in establishing rates to conform to operating costs, but would still retain government regulation to prevent unusually low or high rates.

Actually, transportation has become so competitive that rate regulation is not too important any more. Competition has always done a better job of holding down costs than regulation and it will do so in the transportation industry.

gram a "Tour for International Understanding."

The group will be composed of 80 students council members, boys and girls from High Schools throughout the nation; 20 faculty sponsors; and a staff of five, including a registered nurse. The students were selected on the basis of their overall high school activity record from Student Councils affiliated with the National Association. In addition, each applicant was required to submit a plan for promotion of better international understanding adapted for use in his own student council. In the school year following the tour the student is expected to work toward getting the plan carried out in student council activities.

Eight tour members were selected from Texas, including Shannon Ratliff and Jan Keng from the Sonora High School Student Council. Shannon Ratliff is president of the Sonora Student Council and has participated in a wide variety of school activities. Jan Keng has also been active in school activities, participating in interscholastic competition in sports, literary work and band. Both students have good scholastic records.

Dr. Van Pool, and other leaders of the National Student Council Association, hope that this will be the first of a series of worthwhile tours to promote better international understanding. On part of the tour the students will be housed in private homes in the countries visited, providing an excellent opportunity for development of mutual understanding and exchange of ideas. If the current tour measures up to expectations Dr. Van Pool plans to repeat the program annually or semi-annually.

Three days in Switzerland will include sightseeing around Lucerne and Geneva. Five days in and around Paris will enable the group to see the Eiffel Tower, the Arc de Triomphe, Cathedral of Notre Dame, and other noted landmarks, before taking a boat train to Le Havre on August 8.

The tour will officially end on arrival at Quebec, Canada on August 17. The trip will cost each student $685, which covers transportation from New York back to Quebec, meals and lodging. "We are taking a top-notch group of students who we believe will adequately represent the United States," said Van Pool. No added that the trip should be very worthwhile, not only to the students, but to the country as a whole.
