To Report A Fire Dial 2-4242

Residents of Sonora and vicinity are reminded by Fire Marshall John A. Martin, Jr. that to report a fire they MUST dial 2-4242. "This has always been the proper number to dial but most people have dialed the operator instead."

He emphasized the importance of dialing the proper number since dialing "0" will automatically connect the caller with the long distance operator in San Angelo.

Other changes in phoning through the local exchange include dialing 2-1601 in order to reach a rural number containing the letter "K". This connects the caller with the rural operator who will complete the call.

Read Warning And Save Poisoning

It began six months ago when rats and mice got into the home of a rural family in Central Texas. The father began fighting them with poison.

Then suddenly, a couple of weeks ago, four members of the family had to be hospitalized for acute poisoning. Investigation revealed the poison had been set out at random about the house and yard.

The poison involved was thallium sulfate. The case is a perfect example of how a man can fall victim to his own weapon—especially when the weapon appears to be a harmless-looking powder or paste.

Thallium sulfate is a metallic salt, the action of which is similar to that of arsenic. It was originally compounded for use by professional exterminators but is available in practically any retail store.

Thallium was the object of the hazardous substances law passed by the State Legislature two years ago. The law makes it illegal to offer for public sale any product containing more than one percent thallium salt.

But even a one percent concentration is very hazardous when humans are exposed to a lot of it or to smaller quantities over long periods of time. The poison used by the Central Texas man was in a one percent solution, which accentuates the fact that thallium can affect humans when it is absorbed through the skin, when inhaled, or when accidentally eaten. Too, thallium concentrations increase when the mixture evaporates.

It isn't that rat and insect poisons are not labeled as being hazardous. They are. The labels on original packages spell out in big black bold or red type the fact that the compounds are poisonous for man, and list precautions to be followed in using the materials.

But warning labels do not always have the desired effect—either because people don't bother to read them, or ignore the message of caution.

Therein lies the answer to the problem: If users would read the label and believe what it says, the danger of accidental poisoning would be minimized.

Used carelessly, thallium sulfate as well as many other rodenticides and insecticides can be as lethal as a stiletto through the heart. Used properly they can be tremendous agents for good. A prominent industrial hygienist with the Public Health Service put it like this:

"... any poison, however toxic, may be used with complete safety, if proper precautions are taken."

Twenty-two range management students from the University of Wyoming spent Saturday and Sunday morning studying range work in the Sonora area. They were accompanied by Dr. Alan A. Beetle, head of the range department at Laramie.

The group spent a day on the Experiment Station observing range studies being conducted by Leo Merrill. They were particularly impressed with the phenomenal progress made by the four pastures in the deferred-rotation grazing system.

Sunday morning the group looked at conservation work on the Rip Ward, Alvis Johnson, Herbert Fields, Harold Friess and J. M. VanderStucken ranches. Many favorable comments were made by the students on the amount of high quality range forage being produced.

Many of the boys had never been south of Denver, Colorado, and were expecting to find the Great American Desert in West Texas. They were agreeably surprised to find the Edwards Plateau to be a highly productive range area. Goats and mesquite trees were novelties to the group and many questions were asked.

The range management class left Sonora Sunday noon on their way to San Antonio for a day or so in the Rio Grande Plains area. They will also visit an experiment station near Monterrey, Mexico, before returning to Laramie.

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weed ranch on Devil's River takes a stand on the front porch argument, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

There are times when I can't understand people.

For example, about a week or so ago all the newspapers carried an article about a Congressman who was using his front porch for a home office run by his wife and was collecting rent on it from the government, since, as I understand it, the government allows Congressmen $1,200 a year for home office rent if there's not room in the post office or some other federal building in his home town.

And what I can't understand about people is that most of them were outraged by this set-up. They thought it was wrong to get paid for using your front porch for an office.

I'm outraged by this too, but not for the same reason. What outrages and baffles me is why anybody, if the government would pay him to sit on his front porch, would turn the job over to his wife, and himself sit in an office in Washington.

I can't understand such a sense of values. You take me, whenever the weather allows, I sit on my front porch, even if the government doesn't pay me a cent to do it. There are some things a man ought to be willing to do on his own, whether he gets paid for it or not. Although understand I wouldn't object to getting paid for it. In fact, I think it would be a more positive approach, if the government paid me to sit on my porch, instead of paying me not to sit in my pickup, although I'd be willing to tackle both jobs at the same time if the pay was doubled.

I can't say I accomplish anything by sitting on my front porch, which isn't the purpose in sitting there in the first place, and besides it's not always a proven fact that some Congressmen accomplish more by sitting elsewhere.

It might be thought by some people that I'm starting a crusade for more people to sit on their front porches, but I'm not made that way. I find it impossible to care whether my neighbor is sitting on his front porch or sitting in a pickup or riding to town in his car. All I know is that for me, sitting on the front porch suits me fine. It's easier, it's cheaper, it's safer, and you can do it in the shade. Also, you don't have to get elected to it. Very few taxes have ever been raised by a man sitting on his front porch.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCulloch of Lubbock were the guests of his father, R. A. McCulloch, during last weekend.

Industry Supports Sonora Research In Brush Control, Seeding Trials

San Antonio, March 20.—The Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas recently predicted that some day soon Texas ranges may again resemble the grass covered prairies of frontier days. "The tide of the ranchers' war with brush has definitely turned," the agency said, "even though successes to date have been generally limited to the Rio Grande Plains."

Howard R. Murphy of the William K. Holt Machinery Company, an Antonio, has released details of research efforts initiated in the Edwards Plateau to solve this problem. "In 1958 studies were started on the Sonora Agriculture Experiment Station to perfect techniques of mechanical brush control and seeding. It has been the fine work of Leo Merrill, range specialist at the station, which prompted us to support this project. We feel that results of this work on the station could be the springboard for spread of this range conservation measure throughout the Edwards Plateau as well as west Texas."

Merrill and Holt Range Specialist Jack M. Fletcher set up a series of techniques on a 68-acre pasture in May 1958. This acreage was rootplowed and seeded in part and/or ripped and seeded. Contributing machinery to the project, along with Holt, was G. T. Rode, Sonora. Judd Morrow, range specialist of the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station, furnished a mixture of plant materials for the project. Merrill fenced the acreage so that it could be deferred until the grass was established.

The area was laid out in four plots for seeding purposes with a mixture of sideoats grama, plains bristle grass, caucasian and cane bluestem along with blue panic and sorghum alnum. This acreage is being fenced out at the present time and will be deferred until the grass is established.

Mrs. R. V. Cook and her mother, Mrs. J. W. Turner of San Angelo spent several days in Sheffield this week pisting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wagner, Danny and Hal, of Houston arrived to spend the holidays with Mrs. Wagner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Davis.

Vet Medicine,
Public Health
Work Together

Why should we be concerned about diseases in animals?

What relationship does animal disease hold to humans?

Often people wonder what veterinary medicine has to do with public health. The answer is, it has much to do with it.

The fact is that animals, birds, chickens, and man plus the go-between vectors such as mosquitoes, ticks, flies and lice are capable of sharing hundreds of diseases common to one another. Recently World Health Organization officials listed 110 animal diseases transmissible to man.

Take rabies! At the recent conference on Diseases in Nature Transmissible to man, in Austin, a national public health authority stated that there were about 3,750,000 cases of rabies throughout the Americas.

What about brucellosis? This is the number one problem in some countries. It can cause dire economic consequences because of its effects on goats, hogs and cattle. In humans it is called undulant fever.

At the same meeting mentioned above, it was brought out that so-called shipping fever, a bane to cattle buyers and shippers, has its parallel in the illnesses suffered by students going off to school for the first time or recruits entering the army or navy.

The probable cause for such

BACK WHEN

Friday, April 7, 1933

The Sonora Lions Club, by virtue of the addition of twenty-five members in the last two months, has become the second largest in the entire Texas 2-A district, it was announced Monday by President W. C. Gilmore. Two new Lions were voted in Monday and one was added by transfer. G. H. Davis and Alfred Cooper secured by C. H. Jennings, are the new men, and F. J. Wood was admitted by transfer from the Eldorado Club.

The feature of the Monday meeting was a trial, in which Wood, the new member, was prosecuted for shooting ducks out of season. On evidence presented by our Eldorado Lions, he was convicted by "Judge" C. H. Jennings, state game warden, after his plea of not guilty of shooting ducks was charged to guilty of shooting geese. He was fined 25 cents.

Miss Pauline Turney entertained with several piano solos. Jess Willis, high school declamation winner, delivered his winning address "The Call to Arms," first delivered by Patrick Henry before the colonial conference 1776.

The Rev. Z. E. Parker talked briefly on the opportunity for service offered by membership in the Lions Club. He stressed the thought that the club belongs solely to its members, and that their benefit from its contacts depend directly on the effort which they expend in advancing its welfare.

Carleton Leatherwood, Hillman Brown and George Barrow are members of next Monday's program committee.

Guests, in addition to those on the program, were the four Eldorado Lions, A. T. Wright, Ed Hill, Clarence Knight and J. H. Jarvis.

L. M. Marion and Wesley Sawyer hiked to Collier Shurley's and back Saturday. While there they passed some scout tests.

illnesses is the exposure to new infectious agents the individual has not been exposed to previously. Therefore, he has not built up an immunity and falls prey to the strange infection.

It is known many diseases of animals have their counterparts in humans. Ringworm, rapidly spread among children, is shared by animals. It is not unusual for Fido to pick up the ringworm parasite during his wanderings.

Little Johnny and Suzie romps and plays with Fido and the next thing we know, they have contracted the unsightly and embarrassing disease.

These minor illnesses we can live with. We can cope with most of them. But a constant vigil by public health authorities is necessary to prevent more serious diseases of domestic and wild animals from attacking humans.

For instance, a recent study of dogs (all house pets) uncovered salmonella organisms in 10 percent of the animals tested. Salmonella causes dysentery. Now they must discover how the dogs got the organisms and remove the cause.

This, in essence, is the problem confronting public health veterinarians, an important and growing public health program. (A weekly feature of the Public Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.
