

ON YOUR MARK, GET SET, GO! Saturday's horse enthusiasts saw a full program of races as six futurity trials and three other races were run at Sonora Park. Although Sunday's races were called off because rains caused a wet track, this weekend will see the running of the West Texas Quarter Horse Futurity, feature of the meet, as well as those races originally set for last Sunday. Thoroughbred races are set for this Sunday.

Rains for Third Straight Week Brighten Area Ranchmen's Outlook

Ranchmen in the Edwards Plateau soil and water conservation district continue to wear broad smiles as good rains occurred for the third straight week.

A hard thunderstorm, accompanied by strong winds and vivid lightening, brought rains of from 1 to nearly 4 inches over the area. Heaviest rains fell around the Sonora Caverns, where 3.70 was recorded. B. B. Ingham, near the Caverns, measured up to 3.5 inches. Most of the area received rains of 1 to 2 inches, with little or no runoff loss.

Representative rainfall measurements, collected by the Soil Conservation Service, included W. B. McMillan (McKavett) 1.20 - Edwards County ranch 1.00; Edgar Glasscock 1.9 - 2.2; Harold Friess .75 - 1.00; Dick Hill .8 - .9; Ben Cusenbary 1.20; Tom Davis 1.40; Jo Hardgrave 1.10; Frank Bond 1.20; Herbert Fields 1.00; Lea Roy Aldwell .9 - 1.3; Experiment Station .65 - .80.

The April moisture, accompanied by good growing weather, is providing excellent growth of the range grasses and weeds. One grass of questionable merit is becoming particularly abundant with the rain. Purple threeawn, or needlegrass, on closely grazed areas is producing a tremendous

Rains that dumped over an inch of moisture on Sonora's race track put a damper on a card of eleven horse races set for Sunday. Resources of Land Must Be Used Wisely To Meet Future Food And Fiber Needs Press reports of rising prices in the forest products industry hold far greater significance than most people realize. We are used to the steady advances in prices that are an inflationary fact of life, but, in this case, something even more serious is involved. As the American Forest Institute now points out, "The easy assumption of an affluent public that management of the forests to supply timber needs is unnecessary and secondary in importance to exclusive use for recreation and 'preservation' has been confronted by reality."

What is the reality of which the Institute speaks? The answer is simple. There is only so much land, and, as the population increases, the resources of that land must be used judiciously and scientifically to meet food and fiber requirements, or there will be growing shortages and soaring prices. Currently 60 percent of all the softwood timber suitable for lumber and plywood manufacture in the nation is on federal lands—not in parks or wilderness areas, but lands which the Forest Service itself classifies as "producing lands." Yet these lands now contribute only 3 out of every 10 logs that go into lumber and plywood.

Thanks to modern forestry practices, the investor-owned forest industries, which account for but 17 percent of the forest land, produce most of the nation's wood products needs. Production on federal forest lands could increase by one to two thirds more, according to authoritative estimates. Steps are now being taken, led by President Nixon, to increase timber production on federal land, and they are coming none too soon.

The reality is that we can no longer afford less than the best in forest management on federal as well as private lands—and this means utilization and conservation as now practiced by major timber companies.

will Week, this year, which takes place between May 4 and 10, hold more than usual significance. The nationwide self-supported program of Goodwill Industries providing training and employment for the handicapped is a particularly fitting and unique illustration of the manner in which it is possible for a worthwhile endeavor to stand on its own feet through the voluntary actions and support of the American people.

The far-flung operations of Goodwill Industries are kept going by the generosity of those among us who provide the organization with the substance of its existence—used clothes to be mended, as well as used toys, furniture and other objects that, with repair, may be sold for revenue to perpetuate Goodwill work. The repairing is done by handicapped persons employed by Goodwill. Beyond that, Goodwill Industries provide rehabilitation training and placement of handicapped persons in different industries that may have niches for them.

Over the years, countless thousands of handicapped have found new hope, jobs and economic independence through this outstanding organization. Goodwill Industries has demonstrated the capacity of the U. S. system to combine generosity with good business principles. At this time, as answers are being sought for a wide range of social problems, this holds a special significance for the entire nation.

THE DEVIL'S RIVER PHILOSOPHER SEZ... He Finds Suitable Spot For An ABM, But Waits On Scientists To Agree

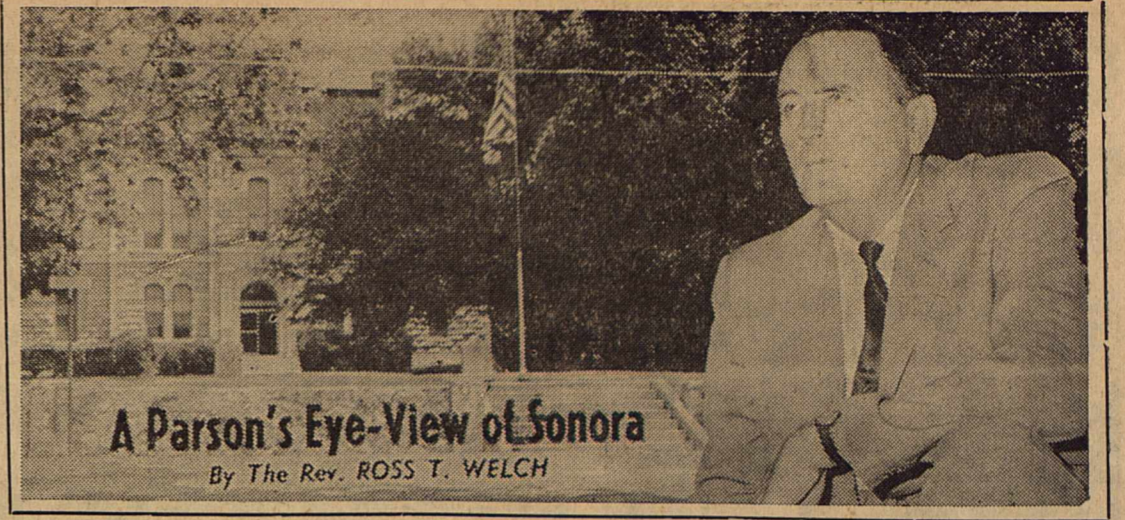

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Dry Devil's River seems confused by the scientists this week, which is as good a way as any to be confused.

Dear editor:

I was out here on this bitterweed ranch yesterday wandering around seeing if there's any like-ly spot here for building one of those ABMs, after all, you can't rely on the accuracy of a gunner, foreign or domestic, and a guided missile aimed at some metropolitan center or even at Sonora, might just as easily sail by this place. My theory is that if the world ever gets into a guided missile war, the things are all going off like children's skyrockets in all directions and it may be years before anybody knows who won. Won't even know which country is supposed to feed the other.

The reason I was hunting for a possible site is that just that morning I'd read that a group of scientists testified in Washington that the Anti-Ballistic Missile System will work, that it can sense an in-coming missile, take off and blast it out of the sky.

However, that afternoon I ran across another newspaper and read that another group of scientists had testified that the system won't work, that you can't build a system that'll keep out a tenth of the missiles aimed at this country if somebody lights the fuses. This is the trouble with listening to two different groups of experts. One bunch of them, pockets stuffed with credentials, says the system will work, another with pockets just as full says it won't. You mean to say scientists are like psychiatrists? I don't suppose there ever was a murder trial since psychiatry was invented where you couldn't get one psychiatrist to say the accused is

A Parson's Eye-View of Sonora By The Rev. ROSS T. WELCH

Some wise (?) men thought we could beat the depression by spending money we did not have. Now we have inflation; how are we going to spend our way out of that? Some underprivileged groups seem to feel that they can enhance their own position by destroying those who have greater means. Making other persons poor is not going to improve the economy.

If the 'have-nots' could exert enough influence to ruin all the financiers, would that improve their plight or make it worse? The wage-earner may reach the point of decreasing return, as it has on so many small ranches, where it is no longer possible to hire ranch hands and still make a living. Many ranch owners feel they have to do all the work by themselves or swap work with their neighbors. It is difficult to see how that improves the plight of the laborer.

All my lifetime the churches have been preaching—if not practicing—the brotherhood of man. Is the situation going to be improved materially by those who come in and advocate class hatred? It seems to me that MAN-power is more important than BLACKpower or BROWNpower.

I think the rich should pay their proportionate share of the taxes. Tax laws should be revised so that no loop holes would permit those with large incomes to go taxfree. But if we get too many able-bodied citizens depending entirely on welfare, the system is going to break down somewhere.

The circumstances of my early life taught me to be wary of debts. I realize I would make a poor business man, because of my reluctance to incur indebtedness. But on the level of individual economy, it seems to me there is some virtue in doing without what one cannot pay for. These finance companies make it sound all too easy. They encourage people to lump all their debts together, borrow the money to pay them, then pay it back with interest in small monthly sums. This is a good way to jeopardize one's future for years to come. If debts are large and payments small, the principal is not being reduced very fast.

A child cannot learn to think and act independently if his parents insist on making all his decisions and doing everything for him that he ought to be doing for himself. I believe the same thing applies to adults in relationship to their government. Those who have everything provided for their use soon lose their initiative.

You know how it is in the spring of the year, when the top fever hits—every boy wants a spinning top. That is one thing that has not changed much since I was a boy.

During the drouth that followed W. War I the top spinning fever had hit in the small rural school we were attending. One Saturday my two older brothers and I accompanied my father when he went to buy the necessary supplies.

We had only one purpose in going—we hoped to get at least one top. When we got to town we sat in the wagon while my father attended to the business. He went to the post office. He went to the grocery store. He went to the feed and grain store.

At last he stopped behind the hardware store and our hearts missed a beat for we knew this store handled spinning tops. My father was gone what seemed like a long time and returned with a sack in his hands.

"Did you get us a top?"—we dared not ask for one apiece. "Just this," my father answered and removed from the sack a can of Red Top Axlegrease. We knew the wagon needed greasing, so we swallowed hard but there were tears in our eyes—and there might have been tears in Dad's eyes too.

Hardly a word was spoken on the long drive home. But when we reached home, we hunted up the toughest piece of seasoned oak we could find, and fashioned the heaviest, toughest top you ever saw—using only a saw, a drawing knife, a rasp and our pocket knives. That day we learned a lesson in self-reliance.

I suspect some sportsmen were disappointed because of rains the past weekend, but they certainly put the pastures in tip-top shape. The big problem posed by these good rains is keeping the grass and weeds cut.

Some folk complain about having to keep a lawn clean, others have to watch thousands of acres to try to keep the bitterweed down.

Members of the Ministerial Alliance were comparing notes the other day and it seems to us that we have had an unusually large number of funerals the past year. Since the first of last June, eight names have been removed from our church roll by death. This is over 2 percent in eleven months.

And these are not just names, they are the persons who have provided the strength and stability of our county over a long period of time.

The story is much the same in other churches. We are rapidly losing the members of that generation of early settlers who know how this county was established and put together. An era is passing.

Before the generation—under-thirty become too critical of the older generation, they ought to stop and do some comparing.

How many more opportunities for self-development have they enjoyed that their grandparents did not have? Some of the most respected men in this county were limited in their formal education to three or four short school terms.

Could the new breed endure the hardships their grandparents had to live through and come out with as wholesome an attitude? I suspect most of our malcontents of this generation have been over-indulged, and scarcely know the meaning of sacrifice.

It is not the kind of world most of these grandparents would have liked to bequeath to their grandchildren. But before this new generation starts tearing down what has been given them, they had better stop and consider whether they have what it takes to build something better.

Now I'll turn the soap box over to someone else for equal time.

GREEN NEWS

By Monica Davis

We finally had a tournament that terminated. There were a few times when we had our doubts, believe me!

Fifty six teams of two entered. When some started out Saturday morning it was misty and cold, and we had a few hours there when we were a bit dubious as to whether we'd be able to go on. By afternoon, it was a bright and glorious day.

Sunday morning after 1.25 inches of rain during the night, the players were in water and mud ankle deep, and it was so cold the players thought they were holding icicles instead of clubs. The wind was so strong golf balls almost came back in their faces, especially on number nine. By afternoon, however, the wind had calmed and the sun was glorious. The tournament ended on a beautiful note, especially so for the winners.

Ricci and Eddie Strayhorn won first in the championship flight. W. Koerth and D. Moore were second place winners, while J. Cantu and C. Salazar won third.

First flight winners were Ken Malone and Doc Whitehead; second placers were Allie Lock and Troy White. Phil Turner and Harold Wood won third. K. Williamson won the second flight; B. Cantu and C. Chavez came in second. Jack Hext and Vernon won third place. In the third flight, Web Elliott and Ed Grobe won first place; S. T. Moore, and B. Sinclair won second, and N. Nichols and Rip Sewell were third place winners.

The barbeque Saturday night was lots of fun. We had a wonderful crowd and lots and lots of good food. Our cooks, W. B. McMillan, Hix Hall, Bob Vicars, Walter Pope, and helpers and the tasters did a wonderful job at preparing the meat—it was 'swell-egant!' The auxiliary wants to thank everyone who made the supper such a success.

Last week, I didn't get in all the names of the wonderful people who donated prizes for the women's tournament. Barrow's Jewelry, Carl Cahill's, Teaff Oil Company, Walter Pope, and Salty Barton.

Lloyd Hopf, USN Gets Promotion

Equipment operator third class Lloyd C. Hopf, USN, son of Mrs. J. H. Henry, was advanced to his present rate while serving with Mobile Construction Battalion 12 in Vietnam.

His advancement was based on time in service and rate, military appearance, performance of duties and his score on the Navy-wide test for promotion.

Construction Battalion 12 is a reserve seabee unit from the New England area recalled to active duty to help provide construction support for U. S. and allied forces in Vietnam.

The unit will be released from active duty soon.

Say, John McClelland, will you show us how to make a hole-in-one with a five iron, or with a three iron, or even with a wood? I'm jealous!

Lee and Louis haven't learned yet either, have they?

Something wonderful has happened—I think we are going to get rid of some of the mesquite trees. Yep! Houston Cullen of C. G. Morrison donated two dozen trees of all sorts from Ash to Magnolias, and as I understand it, some mesquites will be taken out for these new trees—I think I'd rather hit an Ash any day than a danged ol' mesquite tree. Thanks a lot Cullen.

Letter To The Editor

The Devil's River News:

The P-TA has completed its flag sale and is very grateful to the people of Sonora for the wonderful way the sale was received. The Cub Scouts, Troop 2, assisted with sales. These boys worked awfully hard and every minute of their time was deeply appreciated.

As you will recall, a panel of high school students sparked a patriotism drive by the P-TA, faculty and students earlier this year. Since that time, the P-TA purchased 2 new flags for the auditorium and a flag for the football field. Carl J. Cahill, Inc., very generously erected the flag pole at the field at his own expense. Another good mark by an outstanding citizen.

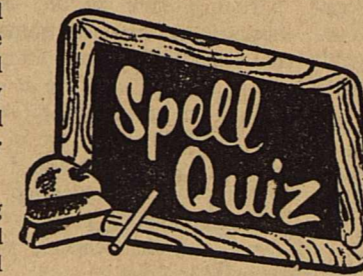

The P-TA encouraged the use of the flag and paid for school flags by selling flags around the town. The people who purchased can be proud in this way, they helped provide flags for the school and are making Sonora a better place in which to live.

Jimmy Harris purchased a flag for the little league field, and now the Stars and Stripes will be showing all over town. I would like to think these flags will be shown enough so that they will be very noticeable to everyone. In these times when many things are trying and we have so much trouble around the world and at home, it is refreshing to see clean-cut teenagers come forward with solid thoughts and ideas the way students did to spark the patriotism drive. May we as adults never be too busy to listen, weigh their thoughts, and try to help in any way we can. If the lines are always open for communication, who knows, maybe the so-called generation gap can be closed.

Accent On Health

Can you get food poisoning from frozen food? If frozen food thaws out, should it be destroyed? Can you freeze meat that has thawed out?

State Health Department officials say these questions persist, although frozen foods have become an integral part of modern day living. Properly stored, handled and prepared, frozen foods will serve you and your family well.

Food poisoning, originating from frozen foods, is a rarity. Processors are careful to prepare and freeze their products at the peak of freshness, insuring that bacteria are at a minimum. The very act of freezing the food suppresses the ability of the bacteria to multiply. Not until food temperatures rise and conditions become favorable to growth of the bacteria do they begin to multiply.

And what about frozen foods that have thawed out—must they be destroyed? Not necessarily. After all, they must be thawed before they can be cooked and eaten. If foods have been thawed only a short time, they may be safely eaten. The important question is how long they have been thawed and how high the temperature has been.

If the temperature went no higher than 45 degrees, the foods may be maintained at this level safely for several days, but should not be refrozen.

Is it ever safe to refreeze meat that has been thawed? Refreezing meat is permissible if the meat was fresh at the original freezing and if the meat was thawed for only a short period. There may, however, be some degrading of flavor and quality with the second freezing.

The risk in refreezing cured or smoked meats is greater. These meats may be slightly spoiled even though there is no discoloration, off-odor or other signs of spoilage.

Can you determine the quality of frozen foods simply by looking at them? Loss of quality—resulting from improper handling or extended storage—is usually indicated by loss of flavor and color. (This is particularly true of vegetables.) Orange juice, as it deteriorates, tends to separate and "settle out" rapidly when reconstituted. Cream sauces appear curdled and the liquid begins to separate.

To preserve the quality of the frozen foods, store them at the lowest possible temperature, and when you transport them from the store to your freezer, do so as quickly as possible. Rising temperatures cause chemical changes which influence the food's flavor and quality.

"Now I'm big—with a hat like Mommy's!" Amy was really full of herself when we went shopping yesterday.

I was amused, too, as I watched her imitate her mother on the way to church the next day. She really had that walk down to a "T."

I'm glad her mother is her model. She couldn't have a better one. Mary's love of God is reflected in everything she does. Her happiness in serving God and His church is contagious. I should know!

When we were married, I was a sometime church-goer. Now, I teach Sunday School, sing in the choir and am chairman of the building committee. I find it deeply satisfying to know that my church needs me.

Every church needs the dedicated effort of its members. Experience the joy of serving God.
