Proper Range Practices And Range Use

in April and early May stopped abruptly in mid-May, and were quickly replaced by continuous hot, dry weather. Though grass got a good start during the rainy period, a heavy stand of annual weeds offered serious competition for moisture. When the rains stopped the grass quickly dried out and the young leaves bleached out white—rather than the normal reddish brown tinge of fall.

Another peak rainfall period is normally expected in Septemberwhich could give the grass a chance to make seed and store food for next spring's growth. In view of the unfavorable late spring and summer growing conditions, ranchmen should make every effort to encourage grass production if rains come this fall

How can ranchmen encourage grass production if rains come? The green leaf is the manufacturing part of a grass plant. Livestock use must be light enough to enable grasses to produce long leaves-and abundant leaf growth. Plant food is then manufactured and stored in the plant, used to produce seed, or used to produce more growth.

Some pastures should be completely rested, to enable the more palatable and desirable plants to regain vigor and mature seed. If grasses are kept short this fallafter the dry summer- the plants will be weakened and next spring's production will be greatly Proper range use and deferred grazing are the only range practices which, in themselves, produce plant improvement. Other practices, such as fencing, water development, salt distribution, brush control, and others are very desirable in helping the ranchman to manage his livestock, but these practices alone do not help plants become stronger. They only facilitate proper range use and deferred grazing by better distribution and control of livestock. Ranchmen in the Edwards Plateau soil and water conservation district should evaluate range conditions from now through September. If the fall rainfall period is also below normal for moisture

A fantastic lake in Texas is the impoundment generally known as "Alcoa," near Rockdale. It is one of the most "constantly good" fishing lakes of its kind.

Alcoa furnishes good fishing for bass, crappie, bream and catfish practically the year around.

This lake was built by the Aluminum Company of America, when it opened its plant near Rockdale back in the early fifties.

Alcoa Lake was stocked by the Old Game and Fish Commission, kept closed for a reasonable time and then opened to public fishing. Since then thousands of pounds of wonderful fish have been taken from the lake.

Alcoa has permitted a concession on the lake, where boats can be rented or supplies can be bought. There are certain necessary restrictions, but none any good sportsman wouldn't approve

It is a picturesque spot. Heavy smokestacks of the aluminum plant form a background that is most interesting. Part of the shoreline is rocky. There are also many cattails, reeds and willows along the banks. These furnish fine cover for the fish

Alcoa Lake is kept at a fairly constant level because the company pumps in water from the San Gabriel and Little rivers some 12 miles away.

This lake is unusual from another standpoint. It has a "builtin" hatchery, which produces a good crop of brood fish earlier than most other lakes in Texas. Actually there are two lakes, connected by a deep channel. In one of these lakes the water used in the cooling process is released.

ranch on Dry Devil's River attacks the traffic problem this week, but we're not sure he wins.

Five cars drove past my mail box on the road near this bitterweed ranch yesterday morning in a span of two minutes and I walked down to see what was causing all the heavy traffic and while I didn't find out, any more than I've ever been able to figure out where all the cars are going bumper to bumper, seven days a week on a regular highway, I did find a newspaper some passenger had thrown out.

In it I found an article that reported that a big bridge built four years ago to allow traffic to go around Manhattan -which certainly is a good idea, I've never seen a city yet I hadn't rather go around than through - last year handled 29 million cars, trucks and buses. Faced with such a mess of cars, the city decided to solve the problem by adding a second deck.

The second deck will now enable the bridge to carry 48 million cars a year, after which, when that proves inadequate, I don't know what we'll do.

It is hard for me to imagine 48 million cars passing by one spot every year-can you imagine that many going past The Devil's office?-and the problem is increased when you realize half are going in one direction, half in the other. If they were

Editor's note: The Dry Devil's all going in the same direction, Philosopher on his bitterweed you could maybe hope to see the end of the procession some day, but like it is, they aren't getting anywhere. The thing could go on forever. Every time you add another deck, you invite another 29

I have a theory on solving this. What we ought to do is stop trying to keep a highway or bridge from becoming obsolete. Like it is now, one end of a new highway is obsolete before the other end is finished, and this drives people to widen or double-deck the first section, then the last section just in time to start over on the

The entire policy should be reversed. Where we made our mistake was, when we found dirt roads were obsolete, rushing in and building graveled roads. When they became obsolete, we rushed in and built paved roads, then four lanes, then six, then eight.

Anybody should have seen that the more roads we built the more cars we invited, since highways attract cars like sugar does ants. If we really want to stop traffic jam-ups we'll stop building highways.

If this is not perfectly clear to you, I'll come into Sonora and explain it further if you'll get somebody to fill up a chug-hole in the road going by my house. Actually it's too narrow for safe driving.

Yours faithfully,

Medical and nutrition experts of the Association recommend a change to fatcontrolled, low cholesterol meals. Today's article, tells how to perk down on your family's risk.)

The typical American diet is rich foods which are high in cholesterol and animal (Saturated) fats. These tend to raise the level of cholesterol in the blood and this can contribute to the development of artherosclerosis, a form of hardening of the arteries which underlies most heart attacks. But many of the foods people prefer can remain in the diet, says the Texas Heart Association, providing they are prepared properly or used less frequently.

In most meat meals for the week, the use of fish, chicken, turkey and veal is recommended. Beef, lamb, pork and ham should be limited to five moderate-sized (about four ounces) portions per week; and lean cuts should be

But even lean meat has fat in it, so it should be cooked, where possible, on a meat rack so that the rendered fat can be drained off. Wine, tomato juice, or bouillon should be used instead of fat drippings to baste the meat. Stews and soup stocks should be cooked a day ahead and refrigerated so that the fat can be scooped off the top before it is served. In the following recipes, appe-

we made our way through this sprawling capitol city of three million persons.

The more we learned the more we came to believe "this king," namely Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, now 49, is not only good for the people of Iran, but also an example for people and rulers everywhere.

It is really a story of "conversion", or what has been called, "revolution from the throne." As a young man, and even for 10 years after he came to the throne in 1941, the Shah was chiefly concerned with pretty girls and flashy cars. Then he developed

> He began with land reform. Instead of the land belonging to the "old thousand families," it is now the property of the people who cultivate it. There is a compulsory plan of profit-sharing for Iranian factory workers. There is a "Literacy Corps" of dedicated volunteers who have built thousands of schools and have taught more than a million Iranians, both children and adults, to read and write. In 1963, the Shah gave women equal rights with men, including the right to vote and to hold office. (The present empress, Farah, is almost as active in leadership as her husband.)

> > A major problem is water; "there is just not enough of it." says the Shah. Major dams are being built at strategic points and there is a plan for desalting plants along the Persian Gulf. The Shah hopes, ultimately, to have land enough to support a popu lation of 75 million instead of the present 26 million.

The visitors coming in growing numbers to Iran are finding out not only the granduer of Golestan Palace and the world's most fabulous crown jewels in Teheran; the 2500 year-old remnants of the Persian Empire at Persepolis; the world's most beautiful mosque and most luxurious hotel at Isfahan-they are finding a happy people under an enlightened ruler, a bright spot in the dark and troubled area of the Middle

Viva! Plan A Fiesta Fare Picnic

Serve family or friends zesty fiesta franks when next cooking over coals. Appease their lusty outdoor appetites with fiesta franks built on a bun with crispy tortilla chips—layered with the lively new Texas-style chili and topped with shredded lettuce and Cheddar cheese.

The intriguing addition to this popular sandwich is the savory Texas-style chili. Available in handy zip top cans, with or without beans, the chili is simply opened and heated in the can over While the franks are grilling, the zesty Texas-style chili is heating.

For a finale to the fiesta fare picnic melt chocolate bits in a clean zip top can. Dip bite-size pieces of banana or pretzels into the chocolate fondue for dessert.

Fiesta Franks Yield: 10 franks

15 or 15½ ounce can Texas-style chili 10 franks

Tortilla chips Shredded lettuce 4 ounce package shredded Cheddar cheese

Open a zip top can of chili with or without beans. Place over the coals to heat. Meanwhile, grill the franks. Assemble the sandwich by layering a frank bun with tortilla chips. Add a grilled frank and top with several tablespoons of warm chili. Add shredded lettuce and Cheddar cheese.

"Concealed Weapons"

"That guy is so tough," runs an old gag, "that if he puts his hands in his pockets, he could be arrested for carrying concealed weapons."

He couldn't, though, no matter how deadly his fists, because they would not be "concealed." In spite of the fabric covering the pockets, anyone could tell that his hands were there.

For contrast, consider this case: A man arrested with a gun in his pocket argued that it had not really been concealed, because it made a distinct and vis-

But the court decided there was charge. The judge said a mere bulge was not enough warning, to an ordinary observer, that the man was armed.

In this test-obviousness to an ordinary observer-that the law usually applies in deciding whether a person is carrying a concealed weapon. Thus, a gun would not be considered concealed simply because a particular person looking from a particular angle, was unable to see it. For

A man who had a gun openly displayed in his belt was found not guilty of the offense. Even though the arresting officer approaching from behind-could not see the gun, it was obvious enough for ordinary observation.

And what does "carrying" really mean? Does the person actually have to be moving with the

One man seeing an officer near by, hastily slipped his pistol into an inside pocket. Arrested and brought to trial for carrying a concealed weapon, he offered this defense to the court:

" 'Carrying' means transporting the weapon from one place to another. I did not move a single

But the court pointed out that, although "carrying" could mean "transporting," it could also mean to pick the meaning which considering the purpose of the law, made the most sense-and he found the man guilty.

Dusty old tax bills are being pulled out for discussion now that Gov. Preston Smith has vetoed the one-year spending bill and called Legislature back into spe-

Governor Smith made it clear that he expects the special session to adopt spending proposals for a full two years starting September 1, and to levy new taxes to finance whatever is

So far, legislature leaders have not shown any intention of passing another one-year spending bill and then going home without levying new taxes. Smith's contention that the tax bill will be smaller if it is passed now instead of waiting until 1970, apparently won some statewide sup-

Smith has one ace up his sleeve. He vetoed a big stack of Senate bills because they were not properly passed and sent to him by adjournment of the legislation session. He said that he will allow the special session to consider re-passage of those bills, after the legislature passes the two-year appropriation bill.

Only the Governor can select the subjects to be considered in a special session. So authors of the bills he vetoed may be anxious to help put over his program in order to try to pass their bills again.

Among the vetoed bills, and one of wide interest, is that by Sen. Murray Watson of Mart creating 27 new district courts. Here is what Governor Smith will ask the legislators to do: -Enact a budget in the neighborhood of $5.6 billion for the 1970-71 fiscal period. -Levy a balancing tax bill, which he estimates at around $300 million or slightly less. -If there is time in a 30-day special session, then take up the bills he vetoed because they were still a rose, and a chiggerwhether called a harvest mite or a red bug-still can give you sleepless nights and ceaseless spasms of itching misery.

The threat of chigger bites will last until cold weather cuts into their tanks, but there are some steps which can be taken to offset this threat, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

A few people have an apparent immunity to chigger attacks, but the vast majority of us are oh-so

They-the chiggers, have a special affinity for low, damp places covered with vegetation. Bermuda grass harbors them well, but for some unexplainable reasons they are not usually found in carpet

Just for the record, it's the larvae which do the damage, attaching temselves with their mouthparts and sucking blood until they become engorged and fall off. The fiery itching is caused by an anti-coagulant material they inject into their victims.

Although adult chiggers are probably harmless to humans, their wayward offspring can be serious as well as annoying. Not that they spread any specific disease -at least not in this country, but their bites demand scratching which frequently causes secondary infections in the form of sores and boils.

A rose by any other name is To find out if your back yard or your picnic area is infested with chiggers, stand a piece of black cardboard on end where you suspect they might be. If after a few moments you see tiny vellowish or pinkish mites accumulating on the upper edge, you'll know its time to check your supply of insect repellent.

Chiggers attack lizards rodents, snakes, and birds with the same vigor and resourcefulness they display in attacking humans. They draw no distinction between mankind and lesser animal species.

Light applications of sulphur dust on lawns and low branches of shrubs have been used successfully for years to control chiggers. Certain insecticides are very effective when used strictly according to directions.

But perhaps the biggest gun in the arsenal of chigger control are the repellent products which can be applied directly to exposed skin surfaces and to clothing. They come in spray, liquid and stick forms, and when properly used will keep most insects at arm's length.

PEACHES PICKED AT LBJ

Residents of State schools in Austin, San Antonio, and Kerrville this week picked approximately 75 bushels of peaches from the orchard at Lyndon B. Johnson State Park, and Harold Wood, park superintendent estimates the orchards will yield 300 to 400 bushels before September.

The orchard was on the site when the Department acquired the 269-acre area for the State Park in 1967. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department contacted the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for the picking of the fruit to keep it from going to waste.
