Second Generation Fall Webworms Now In Evidence On Numerous Trees

by Charles W. Neeb, Area Extension Entomologist
The white female moths of the second generation fall webworms are now laying or have recently laid eggs on numerous kinds of shade trees and on pecan trees in home yards throughout the West Texas area. All home owners are urged to inspect trees in their yards for signs of fall webworm moth and larvae activity.

The fall webworm adults during the daytime rest on the under side of a leaf, on the tree trunk or on tree branches where they may be seen easily because of their white color. The adults normally fly only at night.

The female moth lays eggs one beside the other on the under side of a leaf (rarely on the front side) making a small mass of eggs that are light green in color. In most cases, the egg clusters are placed on leaves near the end of the branch. The female moth covers the egg cluster with soft hair from her abdomen. The eggs usually hatch in 7 to 10 days. The young hatched worms begin immediately feeding on the leaf bearing the egg cluster. As they begin feeding, the young worms form a small structure of webbing over the feeding area, eventually pulling the edges of the leaf inward.

Early feeding results in scalping of the leaf surface, but as the worms grow, the entire leaf surface is consumed leaving only skeletonized veins and leaf stem that turn brown and drop off.

Fall webworms construct a web or nest as they feed on the tree foliage. The web or nest is usually of copious silk and compact or "tightly" woven. The fall webworms may feed within the web or they may leave the web to feed when the tree is completely defoliated. Second generation webworms feed for approximately 4 to 5 weeks.

Later this fall when the second generation worms have completed larval development, the worms leave the webs and crawl across sidewalks, patios, driveways, and up the outside walls of homes looking for a protected spot to spin loose cocoons and change into pupae. The pupal stage lasts until May or June of the next year.

What can the home owner do to control fall webworms? Check trees now for egg clusters on leaves or young worms webbing over the leaves or young branches. When detected, pick off the infested leaves or prune out infested branches and destroy them. Pole-pruners are useful for reaching webs in large trees.

Fall webworms are best controlled with insecticides when they are still feeding on foliage. Spray applications are needed when webs are detected in the trees and before webs and worms grow large.

For chemical control of webworm infestations in large trees, a high-pressure, high volume sprayer is needed. The web or nest of the fall webworm has to be penetrated with a spray in order to destroy the worms in the web. Since the web is compact or "tightly" woven, a high-pressure sprayer is needed to penetrate the web. The addition of spray surfactant to the insecticide spray will aid in the penetration of the web. However, most home owners do not have a high-pressure volume sprayer and will need to hire a commercial pest control operator to control fall webworms in large trees.

County Agricultural Agent D. C. Langford says chemical control recommendations are as follows:

Pecan tree, Insecticide Diazinon 48% liquid, 1 tablespoon per gallon of water, or 3 pints per 100 gallons water. Fruit tree, Diazinon 50% powder, 1 tablespoon per gallon of water, or 3 pounds per 100 gallons of water.

Shade trees, Carbaryl (Sevin) 50% wettable powder, 2 tablespoons per gallon water, or 2 pounds per 100 gallons of water.

(Follow waiting periods between application and harvest of fruits and nuts listed on the insecticide container label.) Trees should be sprayed when air is calm. Keep children and pets away from treated trees and sprayed surfaces until spray is dry.

UNFORTUNATELY SECOND GENERATION FALL webworms are now plaguing Sonorans and are very much in evidence in pecan trees throughout our little city. Concentrated efforts by all citizens should help to eradicate the worms,

GARBAGE PICK UP

City manager Alex Binford is reminding residents that there will be no collection of garbage Monday, which is a legal holiday—Labor Day. Two trucks will be in operation Tuesday in an effort to expedite the collection of refuse. Binford said last week pick up of garbage was interrupted due to a breakdown of one of the city trucks. He expressed his appreciation to residents for their understanding of the situation.

SCHOOL

City council approved sending two men, Binford and Gene West, to Midland September 19-20 for a two-day school of instruction in maintenance, street work and foundation materials for city streets. The course is being offered by Texas A&M University.

How Does Football Team Compare To Lord's Church?

Answer to this question may be found according to Mr. Carlos Storm who says, "everyone is invited to hear an unusual but urgent and kindly comparison to a football team and the Lord's church".

Mr. Storm, local Church of Christ minister, added, "...if you are a football fan you'll enjoy finding out more about the Lord's style of action in the Devil's district".

This unusual message will be delivered by Mr. Storm at the 10:30 a. m. worship time at the Church of Christ this Sunday. The public is cordially invited.

Susan Raymond, 28, of Tuscon, Arizona; her daughter, Betsy Raymond, 6, and James Walter Knapp, 22, of West Melbourne, Florida.

They were occupants in a van driven by John D. Van Camp, 25, of Austin.

Both the man and child were D. O. A. at Hudspeith Hospital, and the woman died about ten minutes after arrival at the local hospital.

Listed as injured were Van Camp; Timmy Raymond, 5; Judy Johnson, 29, of Houston and James L. Barron, 22, also of Austin.

According to Department of Public Safety officers, the van was traveling west on U.S. 290 when it left the road on a curve spun over to the right shoulder, then back across to the left shoulder, traveling a considerable distance before going into a broadside spin and back to the right shoulder, beginning to roll over. The van overturned three times before reaching the final position. All three of the dead were thrown from the van as it rolled.

Texas Highway Patrolmen Larry Hill and Archie Crenwelge investigated.

Ratliff-Kerbow Funeral Home shipped the body of Knapp to a West Melbourne, Florida funeral home Monday. Burial will be in Florida.

According to public records the bodies of Mrs. Raymond and her daughter were refused by persons notified of their deaths. Burial was in Sonora Cemetery under the direction of local authorities. Wednesday, August 30.

"DEATH BY OUNCES"

The director of the Texas Department of Public Safety estimates that statewide traffic accidents over the Labor Day weekend will claim 48 lives.

The Labor Day holiday, as set by the National Safety Council, is a 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Friday, September 1 to midnight Monday, September 4.

As is customary on major holidays, all available DPS patrolmen will be placed on duty throughout the state. They will make full use of radar and breath testing instruments in an effort to curtail the major causes of fatal accidents—excessive speed and drunk driving.

"Death by Ounces" is the title of the 1972 edition of The Travelers Insurance Companies book on highway accident statistics. The "ounces" are the 80 proof variety.

Consumption of such drinks by motorists in the United States in 1971 caused death for 27,000 men, women and children and injuries for 2,350,000 others, according to statistics in the book.

All studies undertaken so far point up that alcohol taken in any amount immediately before driving impairs the operator's ability to some degree. This has long been recognized in many foreign countries and is reflected in extremely stringent legislation, notably in the Scandinavian nations.

Finland, for instance, jails a person caught driving with any detectable trace of alcohol in his blood. Even with no accident involvement, he faces up to five months' imprisonment. Hard labor is added if the drunk driver injures or kills someone.

We in the United States are a long way from taking such unequivocal stands. Convictions of drunken drivers are extremely difficult to obtain. Of the 350 drunk-driver cases surveyed by The Charlotte (N.C.) News, only two ended in trials. In one, the defendant was found guilty. In the other, the jury could not reach a verdict.

The solution to this dilemma is obvious: There are laws against drunk driving. It's up to each of us to let our law enforcement officials know that we want the laws to work.

Laws alone cannot remove a drunk driver from the road. It is up to all of us to keep the problem drinker from creating havoc on the highways and byways of America.

Let's have a safe Labor Day weekend! It may sound trite, nevertheless... "if you drink, don't drive"... It's still good advice.

THE DEVIL'S RIVER PHILOSOPHER SEZ.....

He Claims He Has Found A Man Who Has Read Both Platforms All The Way Thru

Editor's note: The Dry Devils Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Dry Devils River makes a sensational claim this week.

Dear editor:
You may not believe this but I've found a man out here who claims he has read every word in both the Democratic and Republican platforms, and I was thinking, don't you think we ought to capture him and exhibit him at a fair or some place?

I suppose the people who struggle for long hours writing a platform and hunting for words with the proper blur must read it, at least the planks they had a hand in producing, but to find a voter who has read one all the way through, not to mention two, is as rare as finding a politician who's not in favor of cutting taxes while he's raising them.

As far as I can tell, a platform, six months after it's adopted, is about as useful a document as the minutes of a year-before-last's P-T-A. meeting.

At nearly every national convention you're always hearing about floor fights over the platform, with television reporters interviewing everybody right and left, but it's usually about like arguing with the referee in a football game.

You might say that adopting a platform is like the pre-game ceremonies at a professional football game when the captains of both teams walk out to the middle of the field for the coin toss and the referee indicates who gets to receive, when actually it was tossed and the receiving side selected an hour earlier when the two teams were still in the dressing room.

I asked this man who'd read both platforms if he'd made up his mind how he's going to vote and he said things are still a little cloudy and it's still a long time till November. Asked me if I had any good books he could borrow.
Yours faithfully,
J. A.

A Bishop Looks at Life

HAVE CLERGY A FUTURE?
By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of the Episcopal Church

There is widespread interest today in the role of the clergyman, and whether it is as necessary and important a role as in former years.

In the past few days a Sociology professor at the University of Wisconsin has sent me a list of question as part of a nation-wide study he is making. It might be of interest to share these questions and tell you how one clergyman answered them. (My answers are in quotation marks.)

How would you rank in order of their importance, from your viewpoint, the functions of the clergyman? "Counseling and pastoral care, preaching, teaching, civic work, private study, church administration."

In what areas of American life do you believe the clergyman's influence is greatest? "In those areas that have clear moral character, e.g. integration, relief of poverty, better housing, care of aged, etc."

Do you regard yourself as conservative or liberal with respect to your theology? "Both. I am conservative in that I want to conserve all the great spiritual wisdom of the past. I am liberal in that I believe all truth comes from God, that new truth is always being revealed, and that He wants us to be open to new revelations."

In your view what has been the greatest change in the clergyman's role in the past few decades in America. "It is a paradox; he has become a greater force in public life thru his voice and witness, and also a greater private counsellor due to the growing moral and spiritual needs of individuals."

Do you regard yourself as conservative or liberal with respect to your political beliefs? "Moderate liberal, because I believe that Society, like the Church, must keep open to new needs, be ready for constant reform, break up outworn patterns of the past, and give new meaning to old traditions and principles."

In your view has the clergyman lost or gained prestige and influence during the past few decades in America? "On a statistical and superficial basis he has lost. I do not believe it is a permanent loss. It is part of a transition period. He will always have an indispensable role!"

Do you believe that clergymen should be neutral or active in community and national politics when moral or ethical issues are involved? "Definitely active, especially in defining the moral issues. It is an ancient responsibility, dating back to the Old Testament."

In your opinion what is the most critical problem facing the clergyman in American Society? "It is to see and accept, in terms of today, his role as moral and spiritual interpreter of the meaning of life, bringing the wisdom of the past into effective application amid the revolutionary changes of the present. It is a ministry both to individuals and to society. He is to be God's voice, to the limit of his capacity. It is a difficult role (it always has been!) but exciting and challenging."

More than a FRIEND

Did you ever have a pal who was like a second shadow to you . . . a friend who was always there when you needed him . . . someone who laughed with you when you were happy, and comforted you when your turtle died or your puppy ran away?

Our world is a big place, and people, even close friends, can't always stay together. One day you had to say "goodbye" and go your separate ways.

Since then, you've found new friends. You've also found an emptiness, a need, which people alone could not satisfy. We need a goal at the end of life's path and unfailing strength and guidance along the way.

Only God can fill this emptiness.
Only God can be with you the entire length of your path.
And when you reach the end? Only God can take you safely beyond.

Come to church this Sunday. You don't have to walk alone.

You are more than an electric consumer here. . . . You are one of the people who own this consumer-owned electric utility.

• Most of the people in the U.S. buy their electricity from private power companies owned by investors who usually live outside the community served.

• Here, you and your neighbors own the local electric utility. You are the "stockholders", and you get the dividends.

• Among those dividends from public ownership are: Local control, with people here making the decisions and operating the system. . . . Reasonable rates, with benefits going to local consumers. . . . Better service, with your needs coming first. . . . And responsiveness to local needs.

• As a user of electricity provided by this consumer-owned electric utility, you are an owner as well as a consumer.

Harper Plans Labor Day Weekend Rodeo-Roundup

The 8th annual two-day Labor Day weekend Frontier Days rodeo, fiddlers contest, barbecue and dance will be held at the Harper Community Park Saturday and Sunday, September 2 and 3.

Activities for the two-day affair will get underway with a parade through town at 5 p. m. Saturday.

An old fiddlers contest is scheduled to begin at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, with a good number of the best quality fiddlers expected for this lively and entertaining event.

Rodeo events will include bareback bronc and bull riding, calf roping, steer roping team tying, and girls barrel race. A calf scramble through age 12 has been set for each night.

As a rule, the bigger the talker the smaller the brain.

Accent on Health

The "flu" may be of little concern to most people, but there are those with one or more chronic ailments which make it a mighty important part of their health planning, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

The end of a long, hot summer signals the approach of fall and winter and their threats to the health of the individual. Influenza is a distinct possibility during the cold, bustery, wet months.

What to do about it? If you fall into one of the special high risk categories, the State Health Department recommends an annual vaccination against influenza.

You are in the high risk group if you have one of these chronic debilitating conditions:

1. Congenital and rheumatic heart disease, especially with the narrowing of a heart valve, and the hardening and thickening of arteries;
2. Chronic bronchopulmonary diseases such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, cystic fibrosis, bronchiectasis, emphysema and advanced tuberculosis; and 3. Diabetes mellitus and other chronic metabolic disorders.

Although the value of routinely immunizing all older age persons is less clear, the State Health Department says patients with incipient or potentially chronic disease should also be considered for annual immunization. Of particular consideration should be those with diseases affecting cardiovascular and bronchopulmonary systems.

Persons who provide essential community services may also be considered for immunizations if local priorities justify.

Influenza occurs in the United States every year, but the incidence and geographic extent vary widely. Periodically, it appears in epidemic form, such as the onslaughts in the past few years of the A-2 Hong Kong variety.

The U.S. Public Health Service says the effectiveness of inactivated influenza vaccines has been variable, and protection has been relatively brief. Partly for this reason, vaccines are recommended only for selective use in persons at high risk.

Primary series of vaccine consists of two doses preferably six to eight weeks apart—with completion around mid-November.

Because of the time lapse between the first and second shots for those getting shots the first time, persons falling into the recommended categories may want to contact their private physicians now about getting vaccinations.

Persons who have had one or more doses of vaccine containing the Hong Kong strain antigen (all influenza vaccines since 1968-69) need only a single booster dose of bivalent vaccine. All others should receive the full primary series, according to the Public Health Service recommendations.

Persons who are hypersensitive to egg protein, ingested or injected, should not be vaccinated. Influenza vaccine is prepared from viruses grown in embryonated eggs and ordinarily should not be administered to those who have an egg allergy.

Research is going on constantly toward developing other types of vaccine but it must be tested and approved before release for general use. The influenza injection-type vaccine is the only one in use at present.

The State Health Department doesn't recommend flu shots for everyone. However, those with chronic problems are more apt to suffer from the serious effects of flu and take longer to recuperate.

Apology

I want to apologize to my customers who have their pecan trees under my annual care for letting webworms get on their trees.

The engine on my sprayer needed repairing, and I took it to Rogers Machine Company in San Angelo the first week in July. They still haven't fixed it.

As an interim measure, I have been renting a sprayer when available to spray the most affected trees.

I hope to have my big equipment back in service soon. Again my apology.

Tuition for Public School?

Squeezed for funds, a board of education decided to impose a tuition fee on all high school students. In short order, indignant parents went to court to complain. They pointed out that the state constitution called for a system of "free" public education.

In reply, the board argued that it was simply using its discretion to ease a tight financial situation. But the court decided that tuition was indeed unconstitutional.

"The right of children to attend public school," said the court, "is not dependent on the discretion of anyone."

Public High School BILL

Tuition $25C

With education costs climbing, there has been renewed interest in the idea of charging fees of one kind or another to public school students. But tuition, at least, has usually been ruled out because of the requirement that education should be free.

Lesser fees, too, have been rejected by the courts more often than not. In another case, a school board tried to charge pupils for their textbooks. The board's theory was that "free" education referred merely to the school building and the teachers — not to "extras."

However, the court held this fee unconstitutional also, saying that books are an integral part of the educational process. The judge commented:

"No education of any value is possible without school books."

Nevertheless, another school board did succeed in collecting a textbook deposit from its students. This time, the plan had two features that made it more palatable: 1) the deposit was waived for any student who could not pay it; and 2) the deposit was refunded at the end of the semester, if the books were returned in reasonably good condition.

A court decided that this kind of a fee was too minor a burden on the educational process to be objectionable. All it amounted to, said the court, was a practical method of encouraging students to take good care of their books.

Coffee Break

By Shirley Hill

Came across an interesting article in the Seguin Gazette last week. Although the writer was unknown, I'm sure it could have been written by almost any concerned citizen. "A MODERN DAY RED RIDING HOOD"

Once upon a time, in a far-away country, there lived a little girl called Red Riding Hood. One day her mother asked her to take a basket of fruit to her grandmother, who had been ill and lived alone in a cottage in the forest.

It happened that a wolf was lurking in the bushes and overheard the conversation. He decided to take a short-cut to the grandmother's house and get the goodies for himself. The wolf killed the grandmother, then dressed in her nightgown and jumped into bed to await the little girl.

When she arrived, he tried to grab her. But by this time, the child was very frightened and ran screaming from the cottage.

A woodcutter working nearby heard her and rushed to the rescue. He killed the wolf with his axe, thereby saving Red Riding Hood's life. All the townspeople hurried to the scene and proclaimed the woodcutter a hero.

But at the inquest, several facts emerged:

(1) The Wolf had never been advised of his rights.

(2) The woodcutter had made no warnings swings before striking the fatal blow.

(3) The Civil Liberties Union stressed the point that, although the act of eating grand-ma may have been in bad taste, the wolf was only "doing his thing", and thus didn't deserve the death penalty.

(4) The SDS contended that the killing of the grandmother should be considered self-defense, since she was over 30 and, therefore, couldn't be taken seriously because the wolf was trying to make love, not war.

Several nights later the woodcutter's cottage was burned to the ground. One year from the date of "The Incident at Grand-ma's" her cottage was made a shrine for the wolf who had bled and died there. All the village officials spoke at the dedication, but it was Red Riding Hood who gave the most touching tribute.

She said that, while she had been selfishly grateful for the woodcutter's intervention, she realized in retrospect that he had over-reacted. As she knelt and placed a wreath in honor of the brave wolf, there wasn't a dry eye in the white forest.

Visited in San Angelo with Cynthia and Albert Ward and am glad to report that Cynthia looks well and is progressing very well. With a few more weeks of traction, followed by some physical therapy she will be able to return to Sonora. And she reports that she is most anxious to get a glimpse of home.

A letter from Betty Rankhom Flanagan came to Dee with her subscription payment, and although she said, "... for Pete's sake don't print this self-pitying diatribe in the paper" ... a lot of her friends will be interested in knowing that she lives in a town that she says is sure not like Sonora.

She says newcomers aren't mistreated in the town where they live. ... just ignored. She said a lady on a church visitation committee remarked, "... visit the new members and prospects? Of course not. I don't have time for them". (Hope we are not guilty of this!)

Audrey and Slim's friends will be glad to know that their daughters are well. Janet is married and lives in Nacogdoches, and Betty says Debbie is a junior at San Marcos. It was nice hearing from Betty ... and it was great to hear from you!

COACH J. T. HILL ALONG WITH OTHER COACHES accompanied the Sonora Broncos to McCamey Friday night for a scrimmage session against McCamey. Both the "B" team and varsity participated. Rainy weather prevailed throughout the scrimmage, but the wet weather failed to dampen the Broncos who scored two touchdowns, holding McCamey to none. Both teams will again scrimmage this Friday night when they meet Iran here, with the "B" team leading off at 6, and the varsity to follow at 7:30.

GUESS WHO!

The dimples displayed here on the face of this young lady are still very much in evidence, and her smile is still just as friendly.

Last week's "guess who" was not too difficult as nearly everyone sees Horace Hill daily as he makes postal delivery rounds.

Under Texas Motor Vehicle Law, it is unlawful to tamper with any barricade erected by or under the authority of the State of Texas for the purpose of preventing the passage of motor vehicles (which includes motorcycles) over any street, road or highway during a period of construction or repair of same; or to disobey any warning sign or instructions placed upon a State barricade or placed upon a street, road or highway under construction or repair.

ONE OF THE EARLIEST BUSINESSES in Sonora was Mayer Brothers and Company. This picture showing two freight wagons stopped before the general store was probably taken before 1895. The company was later purchased by E. F. Vander Stucken.
