Rams On Test Results At Field Day March 15

In three categories, rams whose performance in several categories has been measured precisely here the past 12 months, have exceeded those rams in 23 prior years of annual testing: in average daily gain, in staple length, in wool production.

Such results are expected to attract to the March 15 Sheep Field Day here a large number of ranchers to inspect the 140 animals just completing the Ram Performance Test at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research Station.

Still other subjects to be discussed March 15 are the problem of the bitterweed, by Dr. Robert E. Steger of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Dr. J. W. Dollahite of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Also the market situation of wool and mohair and the outlook for both, by Fred Campbell of the Sonora Wool and Mohair Company; some techniques for diagnosing pregnancy, and the potential value of them to ranchers, by Dr. Maurice Shelton of the Experiment Station.

And the sheep research underway in various areas of the United States, including that with Finn crosses, by Dr. D. A. Price of the U. S. Sheep Experiment Station at Dubois, Idaho; the activities of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association on behalf of its members, by its president, John Cargile of San Angelo. Joe R. Stewart, research associate at the station, is to review the data from the 24th Ram Test, and Clyde Thate of Burkett, chairman of the Registry of Merit Committee, American Rambouillet Sheep Breeders Association, is to present certificates to owners of various rams in the test.

Dr. Leo B. Merrill, in charge of the Sonora station, will introduce guests, and Extension sheep and goat specialist Jack Groff of Kerrville will emcee. From the time of their arrival until 11:45 a. m., guests will inspect the rams and their records. Lunch will be Dutch-treat, catered by the Sutton County 4-H Club. The program ends at 3 p. m.

Voter Registration

With the school trustee election to be held April 7, and the announcement of six candidates for the two places open on the board, voters are reminded that any person who registered for the 1972 voting year does not have to reregister for 1973 or 1974.

The "A" series certificates issued from October 1, 1971 to January 31, 1973 are effective for three full voting years, unless the voter moves out of the county or is convicted of a felony or declared mentally incompetent.

These registrations are still valid, even if the voter failed to vote in the primary or general election in 1972. Any person who voted in the May primary, the June run-off, or the November general election will have his registration extended for one additional voting year.

For persons who did not register in 1972, or for new residents of the county, any application received after January 31, 1973 will receive a "B series" registration certificate which will be effective as of March 1, 1973. The certificates will be valid for the 1973, 1974 and 1975 voting years.

FISHING, BASEBALL, GOLF, GARDENING, TRACK, HORSE RACING, birds and blossoms... beautiful March weather has brought the spring enthusiasts out in full force. If the old saying holds true to form, March should "go out like a lion".

as it came in as "gentle as a lamb". Following several months of wintry weather Sutton Countians have enjoyed the warm, sunny days and sales of gardening tools, fishing equipment and other outdoor implements are now replacing snow shovels, heaters and the old fur coat. This is truly pleasant weather!

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Browne said, "I feel that my interests, training and experience in various fields of endeavor qualify me for a position on the Sonora School Board of Trustees. We must give all of our children the best possible education and adequately prepare them for our fast-changing world.

Few of our Sonora children will be living out their lives here, and it is vital that each child be equipped to live in today's society. I pledge to fulfill the obligations of a member of the Board in a fair and impartial manner. I realize that our tax dollars must be prudently spent and I would carefully consider every situation with this in mind. Your vote of confidence will be greatly appreciated."

The race meet is being held three weeks earlier than it has in the past so that conflicts with other racing events that have occurred the past two years may be avoided. Many of the horses are sent out to New Mexico by mid-

April, so this earlier date should create greater interest with more horses here in early April, Ross said.

Border Olympic Results Given

The Broncos journeyed to Laredo this past weekend to compete in the 41st running of the Border Olympics. Ten tracksters qualified to make the trip and they did themselves proud in one of the toughest meets in the country.

The 440 relay got things started with a fast 44.2 which was only .6 of a second behind the fastest time posted by Galveston Ball. This was the twelfth fastest time posted by the 36 teams and just failed to qualify as 44.0 was

Lifetime Sutton County Rancher H.E. Glasscock Dies

Lifetime Sutton County rancher, Edgar Glasscock, 57, died at 3 a. m. March 4, 1973, in Hudspeth Memorial Hospital following an illness. He was born September 27, 1915, here. He was married to Maggie Stuart January 26, 1939 in Abilene. He was a member of Dee Ora Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite in San Antonio, and all other Masonic bodies. He was a Past Patron of the Order of the Eastern Star, adult leader of the Sutton County 4-H Club and a Baptist.

Services were held at 4 p. m. Monday at First Baptist Church with the Rev. Clifton Hancock officiating. Burial was in Sonora Cemetery under the direction of Ratliff-Kerbow Funeral Home.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Anna Rose Gillett; a son, Ray Glasscock of Denton; two sisters, Mrs. W. W. Renfro and Lillian Glasscock of Carlsbad; a brother, Travis Glasscock of Sweetwater and two grandchildren.

Serving as pallbearers were Larry Hill, L. P. Bloodworth, W. L. Morris, D. C. Langford, Robert Duran and John Rutledge of San Antonio.

An additional $1300 has been added to the purses with businesses and individuals donating most of this.

the last team to make it. Nine teams were taken to the finals.

Steve Street ran sensationally in the prelims as he roared to two 10.0 clockings to gain a berth in the finals. In the finals he got a terrible start and finished in 10.3. However, Steve has been selected as "Red Hoss" of the week because he did break the school record of 10.1 set by Eddie Howell in 1965, and tied by Steve last year. He also ran very well on the sprint relay and 220, as he clocked a 23.4 which almost got to the finals.

Bruce Kerbow ran very well in the prelims and posted a 40.3 to gain a place in the finals held on Saturday. In the finals he ran 39.4 and placed fourth.

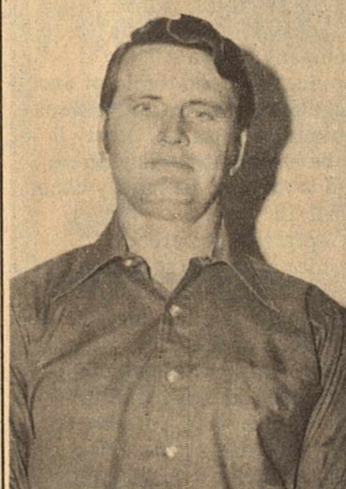

Wesley Richardson breezed to a 23.1 to have a chance to run in the finals where he posted a 23.0 to gain a fourth.

Wade Richardson vaulted 12' 9" in the pole vault for fourth place and may be about ready to start hitting some high vaults. The mile relay composed of Wesley Richardson, John Weston, Bruce Kerbow and Jimmy Galindo wheeled to a 3:33.8 but did not qualify to the finals.

John Brown ran a good mile in 4:57.5 but also did not place. Weston broke the 5-00 barrier and should blow holes in the 4:57 from now on out. He has a good chance of being the number one miler in the district.

Overall the Broncos fashioned eleven points which considering the opposition is tremendous. There were several AAA and AAAA schools who did not qualify anyone to the finals.

This week the Red Hosses will be in Iran shooting for a victory in their own class. People in Sonora, you have a great class A track team running close to home from now on and they need your support. Why not back up and come to Iran and boost these young men.

Land Speculation Is Not New

Land speculation is not new. It was going on long before population growth raised the eventual possibility of a genuine land shortage. Today, however, population growth and inflation have given land an attraction somewhat comparable to gold. It is limited in supply, holds intrinsic value and, in addition, offers a prospect of escape from the crowd. What makes the purchase of land speculative during a land-buying boom is not the land itself but the attitude and practices of people buying and selling it. These attitudes and practices have ended in busts before and can do so again.

A feature story in The National Observer by Morton C. Paulson describes some of the fantastic land development projects around the country. He writes specifically of New Mexico and says that there "The State's Environmental Improvement Agency estimates that more than 1 million acres have been platted into small lots—enough to house up to 8 million people... Yet by the year 2000 the state-wide population will total only 1,336,000, up from 1,016,000 in 1970, the Federal Government predicts." Paulson adds that if all the state's rural-subdivision roads could be strung out end to end, they would extend from Albuquerque to Mongolia via the Bering Strait.

New Mexico law requires that subdivisions provide road access to lots. These thousands of miles of roads, it is said, contribute to air pollution. Reportedly, thousands of home sites are sold to people in distant states or countries and often the purchasers have never seen the land they are buying. Further, in the words of Paulson, "The lot-selling frenzy has sparked a major uproar. Critics allege that uncontrolled subdividing has damaged the environment, destroyed land resources, and hurt many lot purchasers. What's more, they say, if a big migration does occur, it could diminish water resources and aggravate existing growth problems."

The difficulty that has arisen in New Mexico is not unique. Paulson reports that similar situations exist in several other states. Sales of subdivided land have "exploded" into a multibillion-dollar industry. Where massive developments have occurred, complications are arising. In Pennsylvania, due to the character of the soil, overflowing septic tanks have created health hazards.

In California, Oregon, Colorado and other states, subdivisions have increased soil erosion, forest fire perils and water pollution. Land development in Florida has upset the ecology. Yet it is an injustice to say that all developers are endeavoring to cash in on land-hungry and gullible people. Many developments have become model communities with many amenities such as golf courses and other recreational facilities. As always, it is the excesses in a boom atmosphere that create a cry for a crack-down.

Aside from ever-tightening controls and regulations governing land development, the current speculative land boom, stimulated by those who buy land in development projects purely as an investment, could slow down as people find that in many cases there is little or no resale market except at sacrifice prices. It seems the old law of supply and demand still works in the case of land, just as it does in nearly everything else—in spite of fears that population growth will one day create a genuine land shortage.

VIEWPOINT

T. DRISKELL
I read a letter that keeps coming to mind. It was written to the editors of the San Angelo Standard-Times and was lamenting the killing of innocents in the final bombing period of the Vietnamese War. Indubitably the writer was sincere, and above all he illuminated some widely held misconceptions by the American people, which warrant our looking over. Although we have used it frequently, we maintain a head in the mud concept of, and an illusion of a crusade of white knights about war—sheer hallucinations.

Von Clausewitz, often called the apologist for Napoleonism, put it very aptly when he said in essence, "War is the logical extension of political and diplomatic endeavors. The real object of the game is to confront the enemy (diplomatic opponent) with alternatives, and then force the realization that, to him at least, diplomatic or political concessions are by far the least of the evils. Those pretty well lay out the arena, but changes which Clausewitz never visualized have occurred.

The gentlemen's war era ended with the death of Victoria (1901), although there were previous views of the coming end such as Sherman. World War I showed plainly that the gentlemen's era was over and new concepts in 1918 played over it. Mitchell and Tedder were pioneers of a concept called strategic warfare. In brief it involves destruction of the enemies, will to, as well as his capability to, resist. This theory was thoroughly tested in World War II, and the outcome proved the theory sound.

Modern war, recognizes no innocents, and the effectiveness of the philosophy is hardly debatable. Do you think for one minute the Vietnamese debacle would be over if President Nixon had not ordered the general bombing? A mute question, "Could lives have been saved by general bombing in 1965?" is a question for which there is no answer now, only speculation. Perhaps by broadening our understanding we can establish our own opinion.

Sherman said, "War is hell" and he was right, but he did not know how right he was. Modern war is directed against the total assets of the enemy. Listed among those assets is civilian population, without regard to race, creed, sex, age, or instantaneous location. The civilian population is not only listed, but from the standpoint of vulnerability, it is an obvious target in return versus expenditure of weaponry considerations. Nasty, isn't it? Many facts are. You may rest assured, however, in the event the United States is attacked, these patterns and axioms will be vigorously adhered to.

Nothing good can be said about the Vietnamese conflict, but there are two classic lessons by example which it is imperative that we learn. The first is that war is somewhat like pregnancy—it can hardly be partial or fractional. It is either all out—or stay home.

Second, we have spent multi-billions developing military specialists, and rest assured they are competent. Our subjecting their method of operation to the theories of academic types who understand neither the game nor the weaponry is precisely analogous to summoning a ditch-digger to perform your open heart surgery. Do not kid yourself away from the fact that it is no less suicidal. Our example clearly indicates that the president should lay out objectives for the military.

For example: "Bring the North Vietnamese incursion into South Vietnam to an end". The method of accomplishing the ends should be left up to specialists. It is much like a game of chess where forces are the pieces. There is no doubt how Bobby Fischer would have come out with the same Congressional, State department, and demonstrator guidance our military received—he would have been slaughtered. A meticulous application of realistic principles of war in 1965 could not have extended the war. Our leaving these two lessons immediately is inseparable from our survival attributes.

To the letter writer, who triggered this line of thought, without an all out, no-holds-barred, total effort to take all possible enemy pressure off of them. If there can be innocents in modern war, those sons, brothers, fathers, and friends are them. It is inescapable, to our national shame, that either through negligence, vanity, or sheer stupidity, we are guilty of default. We punish Lt. Calley for the wiping out of a single village, yet a Washington theorist with thousands of American lives lying at his feet, and our national factionalism in the background has no responsibility?

The Devil's River Philosopher Sez.... He Comes Up With An Unlikely Answer To Basketball Recruiting Problem

Editor's note: The Dry Devils Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Dry Devils River gets his mind off of world problems and on to sports this week, for a change.

Dear editor:
The trouble with most problems afflicting the human race is that people attack the problems backwards, sideways and every other way except straight on.

Take the problem of basketball. As I understand from reading the sports pages recently, recruiting of basketball players by the colleges is getting out of hand, in fact scandalous.

"You wouldn't believe what's going on," one prominent coach said when a bunch of colleges were being investigated for violating recruiting rules. Like paying the players far more than the rules allow, giving them free automobiles, getting their parents cushy jobs, etc.

As it appears to me, basketball is now a game of height, and since the number of high school seniors who have reached a height of 6 feet 6 inches, or 6 feet 8 or in a few cases among the top-ranked teams 7 feet, is limited, naturally there's a wild scramble for them all over the country and it's no longer considered unusual for a boy say in New York to decide to get his higher education in California for example, although any other combination of states can be used. Tall boys just seem to get a better education at distant schools.

College professors who set up the recruiting rules are thus fighting a losing battle, because when the demand exceeds the supply, the price jumps, whether it's basketball players or T-bone steaks.

The answer to the problem is simple. Instead of setting up more rules and hiring more people to enforce them, all you'd have to do is raise the baskets four or five more feet.

A 7-foot boy would then have a lot less advantage over a boy 6-foot-6 or even just 6 feet.

If the recruiters come up with a 10-foot boy, raise the baskets still higher. I don't know anything about genetics but I don't believe they'd ever have to raise the baskets till they came out of the roof of the gym.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Phosphorous Also A Key To Successful Cattle Breeding

Just how important is phosphorous in the successful re-breeding of cattle? "Critically important," says Dr. Thomas L. Woodward, "and the ranchers making money are among those spending money for the right amounts of this expensive mineral." As livestock specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in the San Angelo-Ablene area, Woodward tells ranchers their dry cow needs about half an ounce daily of phosphorous, and their wet cow, about eight tenths of an ounce. But because forages in the winter and the early spring do not contain adequate amounts of this mineral, the cows need to get about one third of their daily requirement of phosphorous from mineral supplements. Woodward also says the rancher with a successful re-breeding program knows this about the mineral supplement he buys: that phosphorous makes up from 9 percent to 13 percent of the mixture, and that the percentage of the calcium in the mixture is not more than twice that of the phosphorous. The cattle will consume two to four ounces per head per day to supply adequate amounts of supplemental phosphorous.

A cattleman buying dry mineral supplements is likely to find printed on the label of the package any one or all of these four sources of the phosphorous therein: dicalcium phosphate, sodium tripolyphosphate, defluorinated rock phosphate and steamed bone-meal.

If the supplement is liquid, the sources are generally diammonium phosphate and phosphoric acid. From county Extension agents is available more information related to the importance of phosphorous in a cattle re-breeding program.

But the court granted the woman's claim. The court said that by placing chairs directly onto the dance floor, the management had set the stage for trouble.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

When You Go Dancing

Whenever business was good at a suburban night club, the management would "stretch" their space by putting extra tables and chairs on the edge of the dance floor. One night, a dancing couple stumbled over a stray chair.

The woman suffered painful injuries, and later sued the club for damages. She pointed out that the chair had been shoved several feet into the dancing area.

"If it was," countered the management, "some other customer must have done the shoving. We are not legally liable for what our customers do."

But the court granted the woman's claim. The court said that by placing chairs directly onto the dance floor, the management had set the stage for trouble.

When you go dancing in a public place, you are entitled to conditions of reasonable safety. The dance floor, the lighting, and the furnishings should all be maintained in such a way as to minimize the chance of accidents.

Nevertheless, merely by choosing this form of recreation, you are accepting those dangers that are "natural" to it. For example:

Another woman, injured while dancing, claimed she lost her footing because the floor was slick. But the court found no reason to blame the management for this. As one judge put it: "Dance floors are intended to be slippery."

Furthermore, your own behavior might amount to negligence. That was the court's ruling in a case in which the claimant had ventured onto a ballroom floor in a state of advanced intoxication.

And in another case, the court declared it was negligence for a woman to try a particularly tricky step while wearing heels three-and-a-half inches high.

"The situation," said the judge, "parallels that of the risk taken by a participant in a sport."

1972 Agricultural Handbooks Ready

Results of 1972 Agricultural Demonstrations in Sutton County are now available, reports County Extension Agent Clint Langford.

The annual report summarizes agricultural and agriculturally related demonstrations planned with the Sutton County Program Building Committee and conducted by cooperating farmers, ranchers and landowners. Demonstrations are planned each year based on the agricultural problems and long-range objectives of the county program.

Purpose of the demonstrations is to provide farmers, ranchers and landowners with information so that they can make better use of available resources. The latest technical research findings and recommendations are incorporated into the various demonstrations, points out Langford.

The 1972 demonstration program included Selective Breeding of Rambouillet sheep, Wool Marketing, Brush Control, Meat Type Goats, Sheep Disease Control and a Grass Variety Nursery.

Members of the 1972 program building executive committee were: W. B. McMillan, chairman; Herbert Fields, vice-chairman; Mrs. Jodie Finklea, secretary and Ben Cusenbary.

Sub-committee chairmen included: Armer Earwoor, sheep and goats; Gene Wallace, beef cattle; W. B. McMillan, range management; and Bill Whitehead, wildlife.

Copies of the Demonstration Handbooks may be obtained at the County Extension office, adds Langford.

B-Team Track Meet Set Friday

Sonora will host a track meet here Friday, March 9, beginning at 1 p.m. Several schools from the surrounding area will have people entered.

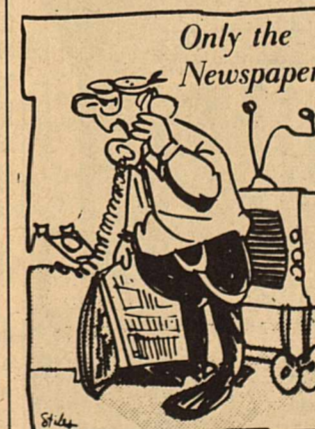

There is no admission charge. The Band concession stand will be open for the sale of sandwiches and cold drinks.

GRAPE STUDY

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station is launching a study on commercial grape production through a $5,000 grant by John Crutchfield of Corpus Christi and other interested businessmen. Research horticulturists list the major grape production problems as vine diseases, high summer temperatures and cold winter temperatures.

FORWARD CONTRACTING

Forward contracting is a financial management tool that is helpful to producers when prices are changing, contends a specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It fixes the price of a product so that there is less financial risk to the producer. A written contract is best as it prevents any misunderstanding between buyer and seller.

I wasn't watching anything—I was reading my paper... at my own pace... selecting what I wanted to read... hopefully without further interruption.

St. John's Women To Continue Rummage Sale

The rummage sale which has been sponsored by the women of St. John's Episcopal Church is scheduled again this weekend.

The Rev. Ray Nations said the sale has been an outstanding success; however, he said an interesting situation has developed in that as things were sold the space was immediately taken by the items just brought to the sale. This means they are still many bargains to be had at the Parish Hall, so the sale has been extended, he added.

The sale will be open Friday, March 9, from 1 to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A Bishop Looks at Life

LET US BEGIN

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of the Episcopal Church

This week I would like to have as guest columnist Norman Cousins, editor of "World", who has recently written some urgent and persuasive words for Americans to read.

"The rebuilding and healing of Vietnam now becomes the single most important item on the American agenda. Seldom in our history has there been so overwhelming a need and so towering an occasion for the compassionate purpose of the American people. The mobilization of the nation's morally creative energies must now become our magnificent obsession. If ever we have been capable of an explosion of the imagination, that time is now."

"We must do this not just because the people of Vietnam need it but because we ourselves need it. In the years and months ahead, the American people will have to come to terms with deeds carried out in our name that have no logic or sanction in our history. And we will need moral equivalents if we are not to tear ourselves to pieces in agonized retrospect."

"We will have to find some way of dealing with the outpouring of facts on how the Vietnam war came into being and how it was prolonged. Truths only partially seen until now will dominate the national forums. The disclosure of the Pentagon Papers last year may be only a prelude to larger and more consequential revelations..."

"The rest of humankind can never make right out of all the wrongs done to the Vietnamese for more than thirty years, but what is clearly within our capability is to demonstrate that we are as determined and ingenious in matters of mercy, reconstruction and all the processes of creative growth, as we have been in demolition and devastation. And the rehabilitation of Vietnam must come ahead of any of our own internal needs--severe though they may be."

"If the only way we can do this is through sacrifice, then so much the better. Restitution for great wrongs never comes cheaply. We are lucky that we have the opportunity to make the effort. What is most fortunate of all is that we also have the opportunity to remake ourselves in the process."

Looking Back ... By Sonora Motor Co.

E. S. BRIANT'S DRUG STORE NOT ONLY housed the pharmacy but was also the location upstairs of the short-lived Sonora Sun - a newspaper and printing office. In the early 1890's it also housed the post office with Mr. Briant serving as Sonora's fourth postmaster. Since the beginning of postal service in Sonora in 1889, the post office has been one of the most mobile organizations in town--moving a total of 10 times. In December of 1959, it made its tenth and last move, settling in at the new building still occupied by the postal department.
