$365,000 Bond Election Saturday

On August 16, the City will hold a bond election in an effort to raise $365,000 in water and sewer revenue bonds. This amounts to a $90 debt for every person in Sonora today; before any interest costs. When interest charges are included this cost increases to over $200 per

Most of us would not begin to write a check for $200 without knowing what we were to receive in return. The purpose of this article is to explain the bond election: the use of the funds; the costs and the benefits to be

Water System Improvements

The bulk of the proposed bond issue is for improvements to our water system. It is doubtful that there is anyone in Sonora who has not at one time or another suffered some inconvenience from our water system. Every day it becomes more evident that our community has outgrown the capacity of the existing water service facilities. If Sonora continues to grow, and all indications are that it will, our water problem rather than a minor nuisance.

During the past two years the City Council has considered many alternative solutions to our water problem. The Council felt the best solution would have to address and resolve two specific problem areas; inadequate storage capacity; and inadequate pressure at the point of delivery. Moreover, the solution must be economical, long range, and involve minimum maintenance over the long run. Ultimately, it was decided that the best alternative would be an elevated storage tank having a capacity of at least 250,000 gallons to be used in combination with three booster pump stations. These additions to our water system will provide for water storage in excess of 1,000,000 galllons - enough to serve a population of 4,000, including the necessary storage required for fire protection by the State Insurance Board. In addition, line pressure will be increased to the point that adequate pressure and volume will be obtainable at any potential building site within one mile of Sonora.

What the City Council expects to achieve through the proposed water system improvements is not the ultimate in system design, but it is certainly a major improvement over our present situation and is very unlikely to ever outlive its usefulness.

Sewer System Improvements

By 1983, Sonora must comply with certain standards established by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) dealing with the purity and disposal of water which results from the processing of raw sewage. To help cities meet these requirements, the EPA has provided a grant process whereby the Federal Government will pay up to 75 percent of the cost of necessary improvements to a City's sewage treatment facility.

To meet these requirements, Sonora must invest $340,000 in upgrading our treatment facility. By taking advantage of the EPA Grant Program the local share of the total cost can be reduced to $85,000. The Council is

Summary

The City Council hopes to invest over $600,000 in sewer and water system improvements in 1976. The Council intends making these improvements at a local cost of celled this week due to $365,000 with the balance coming from the Federal Government.

The decision to call the August, 16 bond election was not an easy decision to make, nor was it made in haste, by our City Council. 2nd Screwworm Case Reported

A screwworm case in the navel of a calf was reported on the Philip Jacoby ranch 20 miles East of Sonora, August 5. This is the second case reported in Sutton County for the year.

All area ranchers are urged to check their livestock regularly and report all cases at once. With fall calving. Angora Goat shearing, and fall sheep shearing in progress, the screwworm problem could become critical f ranchers should fail to report all of the cases or if they should fail to treat navels of new born calves and spray fresh shorn sheep and

Houston Man Killed In Motorcycle Crash

Steven Clark Livingston, 27, of Houston was killed instantly August 6, when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a pickup on the Caverns Road, eight miles west of Sonora. He was taken to Janes

Funeral Home in Ozona and later transferred to Houston.

Richard Ivey Mayfield of Ozona was the driver of the pickup and was uninjured in the accident.

There are, however, certain notions about food production which need to be corrected. Some people have argued that in order to have enough food to feed all the world's population we should cease eating meat. The idea behind this argument is that animals inefficiently transform plant protein into animal protein. therefore many nutritional benefits of the original plant protein are lost to the ultimate consumer of meat.

There are some problems with this argument. Ruminants (those animals that chew their cuds, such as cattle and sheep) eat hav. grass and other roughage which man cannot eat. The only way for humans to benefit from the plant protein contained in roughage of this sort is to ingest it as animal protein, once it has been consumed and transformed by a ruminant. Threequarters of all food for ruminants consists of food from the pasture, rather than feed grains. Thus, the relative efficiency of ruminants as converters of plant protein to animal protein is a moot question, since there is no way other than through

Like meat, grain is of great importance to the American economy. There is an important (and quite evident) relationship between the two commodities, and grain in its own right accounts for a major share of United States exports. In 1974 threequarters of our wheat was exported, one-half of our soybeans and one-quarter of the corn crop. We need these exports in order to pay for some commodities which must be purchased overseas. In order to maintain this healthy domestic (and international) agriculture industry, however, we need to strengthen our research efforts. For instance, we need research into how ruminants convert plant energy and plant protein into animal protein. We need further research into the process of photosynthesis, whereby the plants convert solar energy into their own energy and therefore become productive. Not enough progress in these important areas has thus far been achieved. This is an area in which private enterprise is not likely to undertake the necessary research; government will have to provide a needed stimulus for further progress in this area. If we can discover which strains of cattle add weight fastest, if we can find out which grains of grasses put on meat most effectively, if we can reduce the amount of grain which ruminants require, then not merely ranchers and producers, but all consumers, will benefit.

I have often indicated my belief that government has entered into too many areas in which private undertakings could do a better and cheaper job. One area in which this is not true, however, is agricultural research. A subcommittee of the Science and Technology Committee, on which I serve, recently heard testimony on the need for increased government interest in the field of agricultural research. It appears that increased government activity in this important field is not only desirable but also necessary if the future physical and economic well-being of our nation is to be served.

A Bishop Looks at Life

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of Episcopal Church

Are You Ready to Give Up? A young man I know was recently seriously injured in an automobile accident. He was confined to the hospital for almost two months. It was the kind of recuperation in which the patient's morale is all-important.

He told me that he found nimself thinking often of the Lord's Prayer, especially the petition, "Lead us not into temptation."

He said he had always considered that these words referred to sins of the flesh, 'The kind of thing we associate with Bourborn Street." Suddenly it came to him that in his case the temptation was to give up, to quit trying to get well.

This experience comes to us in various ways. Sometimes we are ready to give up on ourselves. We make good resolutions only to break them; we set high goals and fall far short of reaching them. Worse still, we are shocked to find our own capacity for violence, hatred, meanness and selfishness. We are tempted to abandon the moral struggle and stop trying to be more than we

Again the temptation is to give up on other persons. We may decide that someone we have tried to help is a hopeless case. We may even feel this way about our own children as we see them caught up in the moral confusion and unlimited permissiveness of our times.

A prevalent form of the temptation today is expressed in words such as these: "I don't believe America is capable of world leadership. We cannot solve our critical problems at home and we have lost the confidence of nations abroad. Our leaders in Washington cannot work together. We face a dim future." If you are in any one of these "giving up" moods, I urge you to do two things. The first is to read again the story of America's struggle to become a nation and see how often the odds seemed insuperable. See in a fresh way just how the refusal to give up on the part of a militant minority made all the difference! Secondly, I urge you to read some of the Bible passages in which we see God's compassionate readiness to give His faithless children another chance. See Jesus' infinite patience with his closest followers as he dealt with their blindness and frailty. See how his faith in them made them the examples we remember and honor today. St. John summed it up: 'Having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them (believed in them) unto the end." (John 13:1)

New Math Is Good Training For Balancing Government Budget

River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River touches on a couple of subjects this week, however lightly.

Dear Editor: Never having mastered the old math, I can't tell you anything about the New Math, but I was interested in an article I read the other day about the subject.

According to it, a generation of kids has grown up on the New Math and as a result they understand how math works but they can't figure up what a grocery bill comes to at the check-out counter and what's worse can't even balance a checkbook.

"What's to become of these kids?" the writer of the article moaned.

Obviously he can't see very far. There are thousands and thousands of jobs in Washington for people who can't balance figures. If you want to get thrown out of work, out

Changing the subject, I see that the Russians are buying some more American grain. Will you have The Devil's River News' bureau chief in Washington ask somebody up there if the Russians ever paid us for the grain they bought two years ago? You know, the 17 million tons they bought at a ridiculously low price with money we loaned them? I don't know why the New York Times' Washington correspondent or NBC or CBS or somebody has never thought of asking the question. It'd be the first thing a Sonora banker would

Of course, we want to handle this with the utmost delicacy; can't afford to interfere with detente. You question Russia's credit rating too closely and no telling how mad you'll make Dr. Kissinger.

Tough Eggs

Did you hear about the hens laying cement eggs? It's true. TAES researchers found that feeding a group of White Leghorn hens a commercial laying mash with a small percentage of portland cement added as the major calcium source increased egg size, percent shell, shell thickness and egg breaking strength. This diet improved shell quality with no significant difference in egg production, body weight gain, feed efficiency and mortality being detected. Supplying needed calcium can result in more top quality eggs delivered to the consumer.
