Familiar Faces Resign School Positions

With Friday, May 28 the final day of the 1975-76 school year, Sonora Schools lost four of their most familiar faculty members...three to retirement and another to seek a new profession.

Friday was the final day for Mrs. Mary Ruth McGilvray who has been teaching school for a total of 38 years...32 of them in the Sonora Schools.

Mrs. McGilvray, who is a graduate of North Texas State College of Denton, will move back to her hometown of Decatur where she hopes to do some substitute teaching.

Though she has taught second, third and fourth grades from time to time, she has been teaching third grade students for the past few years. One student inquired of Mrs. McGilvray as to her new address so that he might write to her after she leaves. When she told him she wasn't quite sure what it would be but that she would let him know as she'd like to keep in touch with her students, he replied, "Oh, well, you'd probably just send my letter back and make me correct the spelling and heading anyway!"

Another teacher who retired from the teaching profession was Mrs. Harva Cooper. She has taught a faculty for thirteen years, four as principal of the Elliott School, and the last years as principal of Sonora Elementary. Cade will begin a new profession. He will be employed by Enserch, a subsidiary of Lone Star Gas Company. Mrs. Cade who teaches English in Sonora High School, will remain with the school system.

After assisting in satisfying the noon hunger pains of students for the past 18 years, Mrs. Jim (Della) McLaughlin, resigned that position with the schools.

A small party was held Friday by the staff of the cafeteria honoring "Mrs. Mac", as she is called by her multitude of friends. She was given a silver pendant inscribed 1959-1976, which were the years she has spent in her school-related job. A small reception was also held complete with cake and punch.

A native of Sonora and Sutton County, Mrs. Cooper will continue to make her home in Sonora.

Clay Cade, principal of the Sonora Elementary also resigned earlier in the year.

He Finds Something Funny About Egypt's Foreign Policy

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River discusses foreign policy this week, sort of.

Dear Editor: Ordinarily, if a person is looking for something funny to write about, he wouldn't tackle foreign policy. American foreign policy, for example, is no laughing matter, except maybe to people in other countries. Therefore I will discuss Egyptian foreign policy. According to an article I read in the paper the other day, Egyptian President Sadat has cancelled a treaty with Russia because he said Russia has become unreasonable. "The Soviets are refusing to give me more arms. They are refusing to reschedule Egyptian debts. What is worse they are demanding that I pay interest on the military debts."

In the face of this President Sadat has cancelled Egypt's treaty of cooperation with Russia and has turned to the United States for help.

This makes sense. Who ever heard of a country lending money to another country and then trying to collect interest on it? You won't catch the U.S. trying to pull a stunt like that.

If all the countries in the world we've lent money to started paying just the interest on it, Washington would conclude we'd lost all our friends, our image abroad was ruined, and Kissinger would have to grab his check book and get back on his plane.

Oh well, Rome wasn't built in a day. You know, I've heard that expression all my life and never once have I ever heard anybody at any time ever claim it was built in one day. Rome is like some of those high-rise urban development apartment buildings. It takes longer to build one than it does to fall down.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Can you suggest a supplement to normal retirement plans for employees of a small business?
You might consider a deferred compensation plan based on the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) to further fund retirement income. Funding through company owned (not taxable to the employee) life insurance on the employee whereby a definite amount is paid each year to the employee upon retirement. Payments are not made in the employee's name... saving him liability from current income taxes. Cash values remain part of company assets. At retirement age, the insurance can be surrendered and cash value used to make retirement payments. The payments are tax-deductible by the company. Deferred compensation, as an added retirement plan, saves tax dollars for both the company and the employee. A word of caution, any written agreement between the employer and the employee which refers to the insurance policy could result in the premiums being taxed to the employee as current income.

Bob Krueger's Weekly Report

Recently the Science and Technology Committee on which I serve passed a loan guarantee program to provide businesses with 90 percent guarantee on their investment in new plant technology for the manufacturing of synthetic fuels. These loans are intended to guarantee investment in converting coal to synthetic natural gas, and gaining oil from shale in the Rocky Mountains, and in supporting new investment in other synthetic fuels. I voted against this program, because I believe that although a loan guarantee program may be necessary for our future energy needs, we cannot adequately evaluate this program at this time.

The problem is this: we cannot decide at what price synthetic fuels can be competitive with existing fuels, and, therefore, whether they deserve governmental loan guarantees until after we have a market established for fossil fuels. Currently, 78 percent of our nation's entire energy consumption is provided by oil and gas. Yet, domestic oil and gas are under rigid price controls that depress their prices below what a competitive marketplace would allow. The loan guarantees are intended to provide synthetic fuels to meet some of our shortage of domestically produced oil and gas. However, optimistic estimates of the cost of synthetic fuels to be provided by the loan guarantee program suggest a price of about $4.00 per MCF of synthetic natural gas versus the federally regulated ceiling price of new interstate natural gas of 52c per MCF. It does not seem rational for the government, on the one hand, to force the price of natural gas down to 52c, and, on the other hand, to guarantee loans for synthetic natural gas to be produced for $4.00. If we first deregulate the price of domestic oil and gas and allow them to find their natural market levels, we can then judge whether or not, in terms of existing reserves that will be made available at a deregulated price, it makes sense to support plants that will produce SNG at $4.00. But until that time, we lack the information available to allow us an informed decision as to whether or not it is in the taxpayer's interest to offer this kind of loan guarantee.

The government would guarantee 90 percent of the loans. While the government may never have to pay these loan guarantees, anyone who has ever co-signed a note knows that he stands liable for that obligation. No doubt banks are always happy to have the government guarantee 90 percent of any loans they offer. But I see no reason to redirect capital markets in this way, requiring taxpayers to take high risks, when the technology has not advanced far enough to judge the appropriateness of these loans and the risks.

When we again have a genuine market for our domestic energy, one in which coal, natural gas, oil, and hydroelectric power all compete against one another, then we can decide whether or not loan guarantees are appropriate. But until then, we cannot.

CLOTHES CHOOSING

Choose dresses with multiple possibilities for different looks. Uncluttered necklines are adaptable to various scarves and jewelry, while undefined waistlines can be changed with different belts and scarves. Layer dresses and jumpers over pants, T-shirts, blouses, turtlenecks or other compatible dresses, suggests Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

SWIMMING CAN CAUSE EAR PAIN

Most people are aware of swimming dangers such as drowning. But there is one problem they may hear little about, especially if they have it--ear infections. Swimming can cause ear infections marked by hearing loss, pain, ringing in the ears and more, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says.

An Atlanta, Ga., study shows swimmers are five times as likely to get ear infections as non-swimmers. Danger of infection increases if people swim in polluted waters or waters above 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

One of the main bacteria suspected of causing ear infections was found in 75 percent of non-polluted swimming waters above 85 degrees Fahrenheit. About 45 percent of swimming waters between about 60 and 85 degrees had the bacteria. Less than 35 percent of waters with temperatures below 60 degrees contained the bacteria.

The bacteria, pseudomonas aeruginosa, is not easily killed by chlorine so swimming pool waters also may cause ear problems. In fact, data shows swimming pools may have more of the bacteria than other non-polluted swimming waters. The study stressed that this particular bacteria is not a proven cause of ear infections but it is highly suspect. Other bacteria also are associated with outer ear infections.

An easy way to avoid some ear infections is to thoroughly dry the ears after swimming. If some water is lodged in the ear, often placing the ear on a warm rock or a heating pad will cause the water to drain out, TMA says. Drugstore variety ear plugs may provide some protection but are not totally effective. One home remedy involves mixing 1 teaspoon of white vinegar with 4 ounces rubbing alcohol. Put a few drops in each ear--only if someone does not have an ear disease. A physician can drain an ear, prescribe medicine to kill infection or relieve pain if there is a more serious problem.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Some unscrupulous business promoters take advantage of every fad, disaster, catchword, and trend in public opinion to market products or services that may have virtually no merit, our Consumer Protection Division attorneys warn.

"It's tornado time in Texas—will your roof stand the test?" or "Forget energy worries by harnessing the power of the wind with our special suburban-sized windmill!" or "Grow huge, disease-free organic tomatoes effortlessly in your own bathtub using the principles of hydroponics!"

Advertisements similar to the above should trigger a warning light in the mind of an alert consumer. They may or may not provide a useful product or service, but they do merit careful investigation before a purchase is made. That's because they trade on the fears or worries of a concerned consumer and, too often, our attorneys say, the person who buys under crisis conditions or out of panic is less than a careful shopper.

It is true that energy problems are a major concern, and utility bills are soaring—but does that necessarily mean that a small windmill in your backyard will reduce costs? Not likely, when the equipment may cost $100 or more, plus installation charges, and when your lot has 10 big trees that block the wind, making a windmill useless.

And really—is it feasible to grow tomatoes in your bathtub? Hydroponics can work beautifully under the right conditions, but it's unlikely that you can duplicate them in your bathroom. Besides, would your family be willing to shower outdoors under the hose during the entire growing season?

Tornadoes are a real threat in some parts of Texas in spring, it's true. But no roof—regardless of its construction—could withstand the full force of a tornado.

The point of these examples is that many promoters will encourage you to buy by linking whatever they're selling to what's in the news in some way—remember those A-bomb shelters? It's the job of the alert consumer to analyze critically all advertisements for products or services, decide whether or not he needs or wants them, and then determine that the advertised item offers the very best quality and guarantee for the very best price.

Our Consumer Protection Division recently obtained an assurance of voluntary compliance and $1500 from a promoter who was trading on the current high interest in sharks to conduct a show featuring a "Killer Shark" . . . a "Man-eater of the Sea" which came "directly from the waters of the Atlantic."

The promoter advertised that there was no admission charge, but that donations would go to "benefit crippled children." Our lawyers found that the promoter was pressuring people to "donate" at least $1 in order to see what turned out to be a bull shark that had been frozen for several months, and that only a small percentage of the money he collected was to go to charity.

Consumers should always be wary of exorbitant claims by promoters and should make pointed inquiries before spending any money—whether it's $1 or $100—if there is any question about the seller's reliability. If you are suspicious, find out how long the company or individual has been in business and talk to other customers before spending your money.

I want to thank you personally for your generous support in the primary election of May 1st. If I can be of any assistance to you, please contact my Washington office or any of my district offices.

Best Regards,

Don't discard a beautiful teapot, vase or jar too cracked to hold water. Instead, insert a "hidden compartment" made of a smaller jar and fill that with liquid.

A LADIES LUNCHEON

For springtime luncheons with the girls, serve a molded salad that you make the day before. You'll be able to spend time with your guests because you'll only need a few minutes for garnishing. This chicken and vegetable salad will be a colorful dish for your table, and is sure to make a hit at a shower or other special occasion. To complete your meal, serve with RITZ Crackers, Cheddar cheese and apple slices.

MOLDED CHICKEN-VEGETABLE SALAD

3 (3-ounce) packages lemon flavor gelatin
3 cups boiling water
2 1/4 cups cold water
1/4 cup vinegar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon liquid hot pepper seasoning
2 1/4 cups diced cooked chicken
1/2 cup shredded carrots
1/2 cup diced celery
1 (4-ounce) jar DROMEDARY Diced Pimientos
1 tablespoon grated onion
Lettuce leaves
RITZ Crackers

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; stir in next four ingredients. Chill until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon. Fold in next five ingredients. Pour into a 9-cup mold; chill overnight. Serve unmolded on lettuce leaves with RITZ Crackers, natural Cheddar cheese and apple slices. Makes 9 (about 1 cup) servings.

WHICH WAY TO TURN?

There he goes, walking into the future. But what direction will he take? Whatever his choice, he will have to face problems and obstacles before his chosen goals can be reached.

One thing is sure, the years ahead hold much promise. One day he may be landing a jet on a carrier at sea, building a bridge in a foreign country, closing a big sale, or perhaps covering a fast-breaking news story. But to successfully reach his goal he will have to find the strength and wisdom to rise above the knotty problems of life.

Fortunately, he need not make his decisions alone. With the help of the Church, he can determine a course for successfully living his life in the world of tomorrow.

4th Annual LL Camp Set At Waco

In anticipation of a very successful Little League Baseball season about to burst upon the scene, Little League officials at the Texas State Headquarters at Waco, have announced plans for the fourth annual Summer Camp program.

The summer camp program at Waco, on the campus of Baylor University, is quite naturally oriented to baseball and the correct way to play the game, according to Jan Cochran, Coordinator of the camp program.

Open to boys 9 to 15 years of age, the camp sessions are supervised by carefully selected and experienced instructors and counselors, many of whom are chosen from the ranks of college coaching staffs, the field of physical education and from school guidance personnel, Little League officials said.

The spokesman said information and summer camp applications can be obtained by writing to: Little League Summer Camp, TSTI Box T 1999, Waco, Texas 76705. Telephone: 817-799-1961.

Fathers Vital In Childrearing

Father's Day celebrates the role fathers play in parenting—but often some fathers are reluctant to take an active part in childrearing.

Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist, offered some "rules of thumb" to guide fathers in their vital role.

--Show sympathetic understanding of a child's inner feelings and thought --put yourself in the child's position in viewing the world.

--Learn to expect and live with a child's irrationality--it's his way of experiencing and learning.

--Alter a behavioral act that does not please you unless it is normal behavior for children at that age and stage of life.

--Love your children and be free to express your love. Children (and parents) thrive on it.

--Learn about children, their needs, their behavioral patterns and personalities. You will raise a mature, independent, loving child.

This specialist is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Roles of parents are changing, but parenting is one of the few life skills that must be totally learned. Parents--regardless of their sex--are not born with an inner

Mental Health Drive Raises Benefit Funds

Sonora raised $50.10 in the May drive benefiting the Texas Association for Mental Health.

Bellinger workers collected house-to-house during May, Mental Health Month.

Proceeds benefit the non-profit organization whose members are dedicated to fighting mental illness through education, while working on behalf of the emotionally disturbed and their families.

Association President Carroll B. Bryant said that the organization exists solely on donations, such as those raised in the Bellinger campaign.

Bryant thanked Mrs. Gwen Kordzik and the Bellinger workers in Sonora, calling them "Citizens Who Do Make A Difference".

Independent Cattlemen To Hold Convention

Delegates, members and guests from all corners of Texas are expected in Austin July 15-18 for the second annual state convention of the Independent Cattlemen's Association.

ICA President T.A. Cunningham of Goliad said the convention will serve as a launch pad for goals the association will pursue during the coming year in marketing, legislative, and organizational programs.

The convention will be held in Austin's Municipal Auditorium. The Hilton Inn will be the headquarters hotel.

Each organized ICA county chapter will send four delegates, four alternates and a convention official to the state meeting, but Cunningham emphasized that all ICA members and guests are equally welcome and can benefit from participating in the convention.

In less than two years since its inception ICA has grown to more than 100,000 members in 138 organized county chapters, making it the largest non-affiliated livestock organization in the nation.

CARL DALLY

Judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals

"Carl Dally has been a commissioner-in-aid to the court of criminal appeals for half a decade. He has argued before the U.S. Supreme Court and has had extensive experience in both the criminal and civil branches of the law. His opponent is a man with no judicial or appellate experience in criminal cases. We urge Texas Democrats eligible to vote in the June 5 runoff to inform themselves of the qualifications of the candidates in this and all races. We urge them not to vote for a vaguely familiar name, but to vote for the best man. In the case of the runoff for the criminal appeals court, the best candidate is clearly Carl Dally."

AUSTIN AMERICAN-STATESMAN

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram calls Carl Dally "eminently qualified" and the Houston Chronicle says he is "uniquely suited" to serve on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Dally is also endorsed by newspapers in Dallas, Lubbock, Corpus Christi, San Angelo, Tyler, Bryan, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Victoria and Wichita Falls.

Ask your lawyer, your district attorney, any judge, or informed friend about the candidates in this important race. Then vote for the best man.

A Bishop Looks At Life

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop Of the Episcopal Church POETRY COMES ALIVE ON BROADWAY

New York City-- I shall always be grateful I was in this city for a few days during the short period (just four weeks) that America's foremost actress, Julie Harris, recreated on a Broadway stage the life of America's best loved and most mysterious woman poet, Emily Dickinson.

The title of the one-woman play, "The Belle of Amherst," is ironic. In 1845 when Emily was 14 she wrote to her best girl friend, Abiah Root, "I am growing handsome very fast indeed! I expect I shall be the belle of Amherst when I reach my 17th year."

She fell far short of that goal. In fact, she was an eccentric, plain, shy spinster who lived in her family home "Homestead" the whole of her life (1830-1886) and was practically unknown even by her nearest neighbors.

Her life was filled outwardly with care of her parents, her brother and sister, and her beloved garden. Inwardly, her soul lived in a world of beauty, love and spiritual insight recorded in 1,775 short poems unknown to the world until after her death.

It is this inner life that Julie Harris brings into shining reality as she treats the audience before her as guests who have come to her simple 19th century home. She tells the story of Emily's life with frequent quotations from her letters and her poems. There are bits of humor, moments of ardent but unrequited love, soaring descriptions of natural beauty, and glimpses of her deep inner despair.

One of her darkest moments was when her effort to get her poems published was repulsed by the scholar Thomas Wentworth Higginson. As she sought to accept her enforced anonymity, she wrote: "I'm Nobody! Who are you? Are you-Nobody-too? Then there's a pair of us! Don't tell! They'd banish us-you know. How dreary-to be-Somebody! How public-like a Frog- To tell your name the livelong day To an admiring boy."

Emily was impatient with the forms and creeds of organized religion but she had a profound sense of God. She wrote much about death; it often seemed to her the ultimate ecstasy. "Because I could not stop for Death He kindly stopped for me, The carriage held but just ourselves And immortality."

At the end of Julie Harris' moving performance she moves to center stage and places there the box with all of Emily's treasured but unappreciated poems-and quotes: "This is my letter to the World That never wrote to Me. The simple News that Nature told- With tender majesty. Her message is committed To Hands I cannot see- For love of Her-Sweet Countrymen- Judge tenderly-of Me."

Over two and a half centuries ago, the first pianos were created by artists like Bartolommeo Cristofori of Italy, who became known as the Father of the Modern Piano. These pianos were given the name "pianoforte," meaning "soft-loud," because of their ability to produce either a loud or a soft musical tone, unlike earlier keyboard instruments which could produce only one volume level.

For no logical reason, except perhaps that the dried strips of intestines seemed too small to come from sheep, the material came to be known as catgut.

A MISNOMER

CATGUT is a substance used for sutures in surgery. Despite its name, there's no record that Catgut was ever derived from cats.

Almost two thousand years ago, surgeons were trying to find a material to sew together flesh at point of incision. Strings made from leather, hemp, or wool were used. They caused festering and sores, worse than the cut that had been sewn together. But when strips from sheep's intestines were tried, wounds healed and, like magic, the strips would disappear-absorbed by the body in a short time. The discovery was a most important advance in surgery!

For no logical reason, except perhaps that the dried strips of intestines seemed too small to come from sheep, the material came to be known as catgut.
