Coming Sunday West Texas Sunday Shopper Saturates The Twin Cities

The West Texas Sunday Shopper will be introduced to Sonora and Eldorado this Sunday, Devil's River News publisher Wes Burnett announced this week.

A tabloid publication, the West Texas Sunday Shopper is designed to saturate the twin-city communities, "offering area merchants and families a powerful way to advertise services, merchandise and personal items," Burnett explains.

"Our recent house count of the two cities shows 1,536 homes in Sonora and 704 in Eldorado," Burnett adds.

Mrs. Sue Myers has joined the Devil's River News as circulation manager and has accepted the responsibility for the new publication's distribution.

A special "Family Want-Ad" has also been introduced...which offers a combined Wednesday and Sunday package of classified advertising with three lines for six times at $2. "We believe the West Texas Sunday Shopper answers a special marketing need for our retail merchants and families and is a natural extension of the growing Sonora and Eldorado area," Burnett concludes.

Second Thoughts

by Claude Driskell

Last Tuesday there was a meeting held in Vienna which, in spite of the fact that it was virtually ignored by our news media, was very important to us. The meeting in question was a meeting of the OPEC (Oil Producing and Exporting Countries) ministers. Petroleum price-structure is the primary purpose of the meeting, and the loaded question which inevitably must arise concerns the replacement of the U.S. Dollar as the world's standard of oil pricing. Common sense, and certainly the minister's economic advisors should indicate the replacement of the dollar. Why? The dollar's fluctuation on the international money market virtually dictates its replacement. For example, the dollar's decline in the last seventeen weeks lost for OPEC 23.7% of all the value of the oil it sold in Switzerland last week. The same to varying degrees is true in the remainder of the world with a few exceptions. It is costing OPEC billions so obviously the dollar pricing standard is a luxury that can hardly be afforded. Considering the mercy and soft-heartedness inherent in the Arab society, we must anticipate changes. The changes might be minor variations on two equally unpleasant alternatives. First, the oil pricing standard might be changed to a more stable currency, or worse yet, to a currency for which the Arabs completely control the foreign exchange rate. Second, OPEC might set up a committee to meet every week and adjust the price of oil to compensate for dollar fluctuation. It is hard to visualize the contractual chaotic pandemonium that would generate in our oil dependent economy. Our Congress, although apparently it is yet unrealized, is approaching a massive confrontation with fiscal responsibility, possibly unsurpassed to date. The results of the OPEC conference are unknown as this is written. Maybe our loaded question did not come up this time. It is an arising that is inevitable. Our dollar must be strengthened, or we must suffer the consequences which might be a recession followed by an awesome deflation. Our executive branch might seriously consider the advisability of pursuing the "high school" antic of voluntary restraint in the

by Rev. Jim Miles

Memorial day and reflection of the sacrifices of those who have given of themselves that we might be free reminded me of a forgotten moment in my own life. Some years ago I was hobbling along the streets of my home town, clumsily negotiating the half frozen sidewalk with a set of crutches, made necessary to help me mend from an athletic injury. I was really into self pity that morning, for many of my friends were making use of the holidays to ski-while I was so horribly grounded by my injury. I thought at the time that life had dealt me a horrible blow, but I was shocked into a more realistic understanding of my own situation by a voice which penetrated the silence. "Hey-kid! How about a hand?" As I turned and looked my eyes dropped, for next to the curb was a middle aged man, a double amputee, struggling to get his wheelchair upon the sidewalk. I braced myself against a parking meter, and within seconds the man was on the walk and on his way again. As a lad my thoughts were mostly confined to the fact that there were others worse off than I for my leg would mend-I could ski again. As I have reflected upon this later, however, I am convinced that the true significance of this event for me, is that, no matter what limitations one has, he or she can still be of service to others. Usefulness is not limited to the physically or mentally strong. All can serve.

Federal Expenditures in Texas Total $1,651 For Every Citizen

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday that federal expenditures in Texas during the past state budget year totaled $20.2 billion--$1,651 for every man, woman and child in the state.

This represents a 14 percent increase from the previous fiscal year when federal outlays in Texas totaled just under $17.7 billion. That amounted to $1,446 per person. Overall, Bullock said, 5.1 percent of all federal outlays during federal fiscal year 1977 went into Texas. This compares to 4.9 percent during the previous budget year.

An analysis of federal expenditures is contained in the May issue of "Fiscal Notes," the monthly financial report prepared by the State Comptroller's Office.

As in the past, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare accounted for the biggest chunk of federal spending in Texas in Fiscal 1977--some $6.8 billion. HEW expenditures for the past year were up 19 percent in Texas, primarily because of increased Social Security benefits, a boost in medical assistance grants and higher Medicare costs. Department of Defense outlays, meanwhile, increased 13 percent to $6.35 billion in Fiscal 1977 and Department of Agriculture expenditures in Texas were up 19 percent. Texas ranked 35th among all states and the District of Columbia in per capita federal outlays in Fiscal 1977--the same position it held the previous budget year. Bullock also reported that state income in January totaled $597 million, raising total revenues for the current fiscal year to $2.96 billion. This is a 14 percent increase over the first five months of Fiscal 1977. (The state fiscal year runs from September 1 through August 31). Expenditures through January, meanwhile, totaled $3.34 billion, up 17 percent from last year.

Kelley Cusenbary Cited For Her Achievements

Officials at United Fidelity Life Insurance Company in Dallas have cited former Sonora resident Kelly Jo Cusenbary for her outstanding achievements in her first full year as a professional life underwriter with the Company.

Ms. Cusenbary, who resides currently in Austin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cusenbary of Sonora and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Cusenbary, also of the city.

Ms. Cusenbary joined United Fidelity in January, 1977 and in her first full year set unprecedented sales records with the Company. She was named Rookie of the Year, an annual award given to the "new full-time representative who pays for the greatest amount of qualified net annualized premium in his or her first full calendar year."

Ms. Cusenbary was the first female Uniter to receive the Rookie of the Year Award. Additionally, she was listed as the 33rd underwriter in sales for 1977 out of a field force of over 2000.

Ms. Cusenbary is a graduate of San Angelo Central High School and attended Texas Tech studying a biology curriculum. She is a 1976 graduate of the University of Texas at Austin with degree specializations in the field of economics.

Judge Williams, Conference Member

Troy D. Williams, judge of the 112th District Court, was a participant in the Ninth Annual Criminal Justice Conference held recently at the Criminal Justice Center, Sam Houston State University.

The 1978 conference emphasized development in the trial of capital cases, including granting or denying bail in such capital cases, pre-trial motions with emphasis on confessions and searches, voir dire and jury selection, competency and sanity, and evidence presented during the punishment phase of such trials.

Another panel covered the new speedy trial statute which goes into effect July 1. There was also a special presentation on the history and development of the law of evidence.

Other activities included tours of Texas Department of Corrections facilities and a panel presentation by Texas Court of Criminal Appeals presiding Judge John F. Onion, Jr., and Judges Truman Roberts, Carl E.F. Dally, W.T. Phillips, Tom Davis, and Leon Douglas.

Max M. Rogers, presiding judge of the 2nd Administrative Judicial District of Texas and one of the founders of the conference, said the conference is the only one in the nation for judges who try criminal cases.

Area ASU Students On Dean's Honor Roll

Area students attending Angelo State University in San Angelo, are listed on the Dean's Honor Roll for the spring semester at the university.

Those listed on the 3.00 to 3.49 honor roll include Sheila Sue Alexander, an elementary education major; John Scott Alley, a music major; Brenda Lee Boyd, an undecided major; Susan Renea Dunnam, an accounting major; and Jack Martin Sykes, an animal science major.

Those listed on the 3.50 to 4.00 honor roll include Doyle Blaine Crawford, a mathematics major; Cynthia Ann Feagin, an elementary education major; Jimmy Galindo, an accounting major; Lesa Nancy Joy, an elementary education major; Janna Lean Lawson, a management major; Marsha Kay Patton, a chemistry major; Betty Lou Robinson, an elementary education major; and Dean Luu Saunders, a mathematics major.

YOU DECIDE

On June 3, Texas voters will elect one of two men as the Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner:

Jerry Sadler, 70, is a twice-defeated former Land Commissioner. Here's what three of the state's leading newspapers have to say about him:

The Austin American-Statesman: "Voters deserve to know whom they will be choosing between in the runoff June 3. Poerner is not a household name; Sadler is. But Sadler has a sorry record in state government. He is the only person ever censured by the Texas House of Representatives (for failure to cooperate with an investigation). He became notorious for attempting to choke then-State Rep. Jake Johnson. He was defeated at the polls in 1970 and lost to Jon Newton in a race for Railroad Commissioner in 1976. And now he's back again."

The Dallas Times Herald: "Sadler has made Texas government a universal target of ridicule and derision."

The San Angelo Standard Times: "Under Sadler, the Railroad Commission just might become the laughing stock he once made of the General Land Office."

IS THERE REALLY ANY CHOICE?

The Railroad Commission regulates the oil, gas and transportation industries in Texas. Our energy and utility rate problems demand vigorous and responsible leadership. We need John Poerner to fight for Texas and protect what is rightfully ours.

John Poerner, 45, is a respected businessman and rancher. John Poerner was elected to three successive terms in the Texas House before being named Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Aging and Director, Education Resources of Texas.

His honors include being named "Citizen of the Year" in his hometown of Hondo, receiving a "Distinguished Legislator" award from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, and being named to the "Agriculture Hall of Fame" at Southwest Texas State University.

He was recently appointed to the Railroad Commission by the Governor. "Poerner is a solid, competent individual with a record of 10 years of dedicated public service," says the Houston Chronicle. "(We urge) his election."

Commission Denies Rehearing

The Railroad Commission May 25 denied the City of Austin a rehearing over an April 10 order of the Commission which allowed Southern Union Gas Co. a rate increase in Austin and its Central Texas service district.

Commission Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioner Jon Newton allowed the city's motion for rehearing to expire by operation of law as recommended by legal examiner in the rate case John R. Hays of the Gas Utilities Division.

The Commission's order of April 10 authorized increased gas service rates for Southern Union amounting to about half the additional annual revenues which the gas company had requested.

Austin City Council rejected the rate increase proposed by the gas company and Southern Union appealed to the Commission.

Southern Union sought increases in Austin and its surrounding Central Texas District which would have increased their annual gross revenues by $2.4 million. The Commission allowed rates sufficient to earn the company an additional $1.2 million. The City had recommended a rate increase amounting to approximately $50,000 more in additional annual revenues than what the Commission's final order allowed, according to Hays.

Austin filed a motion for rehearing with the Commission on April 25, contending among other things that in its April 10 rate order, the Commission erred in making the new rates effective back to Oct. 20, 1977.

The City further contends that the Commission allowed Southern Union an "excessive" 10.43 percent return on invested capital and a return to stockholders' equity of 13.68 percent.

The city's arguments for rehearing were signed by Consulting Attorney Don R. Butler, Austin City Attorney Jerry L. Harris and Assistant City Attorney George K. Elbrecht.

Hays said all of the city's contentions are a reiteration of arguments made by the city in answer to the examiner's original proposal for decision which the Commission based its final order on. The arguments, he said, have already been addressed by the Commission.

Glen Fisher's Wool & Mohair Report

Wool has been selling at a rapid pace and most has been clearing soon after shearing. Shearing is now about 1/4 or more complete. Prices over the past week or so have been steady to maybe a little stronger. Most of the 8 mos. wool has now been sold even though prices were slightly under year ago levels. Original bag wools are bringing a little above year ago levels in some instances but most are just about like last year. We have found many tender fleeces here and other warehouses also report more than normal. Mohair is picking up the interest since contracting has started for fall mohair. It appears that only small quantities have been contracted during the past week or so and some companies have backed off slightly. We have contracted a small amount of fall adult. Demand is still strong world wide and most hair has cleared. The first fall clip is in the warehouse and we expect to sell it during the next week. This will give some indication of the current spot market.

Blessed Rain Falls Here

Rains never were more welcome than late last week as they fell liberally on drought-stricken areas of Southwest Texas.

Rainfall amounts ranging from 2 to 7 inches fell across the region bringing wet relief to farmers and ranchers. In some areas, the rain may be too late to help ranchers whose herds are already too hard hit to survive until ranges can come back into production. But, improvement on the ranges already is apparent with prospects for more rain this week.

Until the general rains fell last week, the crop and livestock outlook remained bleak with supplemental feeding of hay and prickly pear common. Dryland crops of grain sorghum and small grains are offered little hope of recovery in some places, and many ranchers are grazing dryland sorghum.

Farm activity last week centered mostly on harvesting of irrigated oats and wheat. Except in parts of the Hill Country, most commercial pecan producers completed spraying for the devastating first generation pecan nut casebearer.

In Southern Counties, Extension Agents reported that citrus were showing signs of heat and drought stress with heavy deer damage.

In Uvalde County, Extension Agent Darrell Smith reported evidence of the presence of the Western Crop Rootworm in the southeastern part of the county. This insect surprised farmers in 1977 by devastating or greatly reducing yields on hundreds of acres of corn.

In the Wintergarden, onion and canning carrot harvests continue despite weak markets. Some producers there are plowing down the remainder of the corn.

Fire Ant Killer Discovered

A new product, designed to kill fire ants quickly and safely, has been registered by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The product, appropriately named "Fire Ant Killer," does not contain chlordane or mirex. It is now available for home-owner use and is directed specifically at killing the vicious, aggressive insects. The product is produced by Zoecon Industries and may be purchased through most retail outlets. Zoecon Industries, headquartered in Dallas, is one of the nation's leading producers of insect control and animal health care products.

Fire Ant Killer, a liquid concentrate, should not be confused with Ferriamicide, a bait-type product containing Mirex, recently registered for use only in the state of Mississippi and under strictly controlled conditions of use. Use of Ferriamicide was granted for only a period of one year beginning July 1, 1978, pending further restrictions. The Environmental Defense Funds has brought suit against the EPA to block usage of the product on the basis that results of environmental testing of the chemical are not available.

Fire Ant Killer was developed primarily for use by the homeowner, rather than for wide agricultural use. Treatment is simple. Two ounces of the concentrate are mixed with one gallon of water and applied with a common garden sprinkling can over the mound. This method of application simulates rain, so it does not disturb ants going in or out of the mound. The whole gallon of mixture is used on each mound and the surrounding area (to a four foot diameter). Control of each mound treated is guaranteed within seven days.

If you haven't had an encounter with fire ants--don't. When the mound is disturbed, such as by a playing child or pet, hundreds of ants swarm over the intruder in seconds. Their painful, burning sting is followed by a pustule that can leave a scar like chicken pox. Multiple stings can even cause death of sensitive persons.

Since entering the United States from South America about 1920, the Fire Ants has become a pest in both urban and rural areas, particularly in the Southern part of the United States. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas are heavily infested. Despite efforts to control spreading, fire ants are migrating steadily westward and northward. Consumer research on the subject, conducted in Jackson, Mississippi and New Orleans, showed that more than 60 percent of the respondents had problems with fire ants and that 70-75 percent of the people knew someone, or their pets, who had been stung.

Fire ants are small and reddish-brown and measure about 1/8th to 1/4th inch long. The ants build mounds that may average 15 inches or more in diameter and 10 to 12 inches in height. There may be as many as 30 to 50 mounds per acre. Around stumps, shrubs or posts, mounds may reach a height of three feet. The average size colony may contain 100,000 to 500,000 fire ants.

Around homes, potential contact of people with fire ants occurs through mowing activities, gardening, play, etc., and fire ants are often a major nuisance in park and recreation areas.

In the past, there have been some remedies for control of fire ants, but governmental agencies have been anxious to replace these compounds with more environmentally desirable pesticides.

T& SCRA Pres Calls for Fight

The president of Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association May 22 called on Texas livestock owners to do all in their power to aid the Screwworm Eradication Program.

"If we don't," warns John Armstrong, "there are indications Texas ranchers will be battling a severe screwworm population in the Lone Star State within a few weeks."

"Screwworms have been detected in widely separated parts of the state, outside the sterile fly release area," says Armstrong. Indirect evidence shows that many unknown cases exist in the areas in between. "The nine known are probably only the tip of the iceberg," warns the head of Texas' oldest and best known livestock producer's association.

In late April, screwworms were found in the wound in a horse in Hudspeth county, about 50 miles east of El Paso. In early May screwworms were taken from the navel of a calf near Marfa, in Presidio county.

The third week of May brought lab identification of screwworms from two widely separated cattle in Coleman County; another in Stonewall county, one in Mitchell county, two in Liveoak county, and one in Hidalgo county. None were first generation cases. This proves screwworms exist in unknown numbers over at least a third of Texas.

Each unknown and untreated case, says Armstrong, can lead to 100 or more within just three weeks, a generation for the screwworm fly. The only practical protection we have, explains a south Texas rancher, is to cooperate with the Screwworm Eradication Program in every possible way.

This means to see our animals as often as possible, treat all wounds, detect all infestations and send samples of worms found in every infested wound to the lab for identification.

With the limited facilities at its disposal the Screwworm Eradication Program has to know where wild screwworm flies exist if it is to do an effective job. Lab identification of worm samples is the only scientifically proven way to do this.

Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC) and USDA livestock inspectors are finding many disturbing facts as they investigate the known screwworm cases. These investigations are made in order to determine the best way to stamp out known screwworm populations.

Thousands of livestock have been shipped into Texas from the severely screwworm infested areas of Arizona and California. Some are coming to Texas for slaughter, some for shows, some for breeding purposes and some for further feeding before slaughter.

Armstrong says inspectors are learning there have been cases that were not reported (no samples sent to the lab). "Some people with known screwworm cases in their livestock are continuing to castrate with reckless disregard, without taking precautions against screwworm infestation."

"If apathy on the part of livestock owners continue--man-made wounds, non-treatment of existing wounds, non-reporting of cases--we're in for a bad time," says the Kleberg county rancher.

"Sterile flies cannot win the battle alone, especially if they aren't put on the battleground."

TS&GRA Sets Convention

The Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association will be going to the border for its 63rd annual convention. Scheduled for July 21-22, the meeting will be at the Convention Center in Del Rio.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m. Friday, committee meetings from 1 p.m. through the afternoon. The convention's general business session will run all day Saturday. Other activities that day include the annual membership banquet and awards presentation and a reception hosted by American Cyanamid.

American Cyanamid will also host a reception Friday night, followed by a fish fry and dance at the Val Verde County 4-H Center.

Guest speakers for the Saturday general business session include Monfort of Colorado official Samuel Addoms, as well as legislative representatives and industry spokesmen.

Special Woman's Auxiliary activities will feature tours both Friday and Saturday, the latter outing including a shopping trip across the border. The Friday tour will kick off after the Auxiliary's 9:30 a.m. executive committee meeting and will be highlighted by a noon luncheon and general membership meeting. Cost for the women's activities will total $12.

Convention registration will be $20 per head "at the door", or $17.50 for those who take advantage of pre-registration. Pre-registration checks should be made payable to TS&GRA and mailed to Box 1486, San Angelo, Tx. 76902. The deadline for pre-registration is July 18.

This is THE Association event of the year, and all members should make their plans now to attend. Members who missed last year's convention need only to get within earshot of someone who went--they're still talking about it.

Bentsen Introduces Import Bill

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's meat import bill received a boost in Washington this week when Independent Cattlemen's Association President T.A. Cunningham told a House subcommittee that the bill would do much to improve the lot of the cattleman.

Testifying before the Committee on Ways and Means Subcommittee on Trade, Cunningham said that cow numbers have dropped to an alarming level and retail prices can be expected to soar unless the present law governing the importation of meat is changed.

He said cattlemen are well aware that high beef prices are as detrimental as low beef prices because high prices encourage the use of synthetic fillers and beef substitutes. "Like good businessmen anywhere, we don't want to lose our customers," he explained.

Cunningham also said that "When domestic production is high the domestic producer liquidates his herds. At this point, massive amounts of meat imports are allowed into the country. This causes the liquidation period to be extended and cattle prices to dip."

The Texas rancher said the Bentsen's H.R. 5052 as passed recently by the Senate is acceptable at solving the import problem created by the 1964 Meat Import Act which allows more imports when less is critically important.

"The Bentsen legislation by use of a countercyclical factor based on

Insect Control Improves Home Vegetable Gardens

"A stitch in time saves nine", especially when it involves insect control in the home vegetable garden says, Clint Langford, county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To insure good yields of high quality produce, insect pests in the home garden must be controlled, emphasizes Clint. So learning about these pests will prepare you for them when they arrive on the scene.

There are more than 30 insect pests which will attack vegetables in the home garden, and these are divided into three groups.

One group includes those insects which live in the soil and attack seedlings and underground parts of the plants. These include cutworms, wireworms, soil maggots and white grubs.

The other two groups are the sucking insects and the chewing insects, notes Langford.

Sucking insects damage plants by inserting their mouthparts into the plant tissue and sucking the juices from plants. Sucking insects include aphids, whiteflies, leaf-hoppers, squash bugs and stink bugs.

Chewing insects cause damage by actually feeding on the foliage, stems or fruit of plants. This group includes cabbage loopers, armyworms, flea beetles, grasshoppers and many others.

Home gardeners should be aware of these different types of insects and should be prepared to deal with them when infestations develop, points out the county agent.
