DRN Receives Award

The Devil's River News was the recipient of the Superior News Media Award, an award given by the Soil Conservation District each year, to the newspaper that has been superior in reporting agricultural news, and supporting the local soil conservation district. It is based on cooperation, reporting news, attending field trips and publishing special editions geared towards the agricultural production of the county.

The plaque was presented at a banquet held May 10 at the Houston Harte Ballroom of Angelo State University.

Don Holdridge, who was editor of the paper at the time of the announcement, received the plaque, representing the Devil's River News. Holdridge is now publisher of the San Saba News.

Virgil Poloczek, district conservationist, submitted the information responsible for the local newspaper receiving this award.

I 27 Connector Project Moves Ahead

The I27 to I10 connector highway effort is alive and well in Sonora said a report to Jack Kerbow, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce from a committee headed by Charlie Graves.

Coordination has been effected with interested groups operating under the auspices of the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce, the Eldorado Chamber of Commerce and the Ozona Chamber of Commerce.

A tentative date for a hearing of the case for the Sonora terminus has been set with the Texas Highway Commission for later this summer. The principal thrust of the petition to the highway commission will be based on economy of construction, $33 million dollars less than the next most economical route and on economy of maintenance, $310,000 less per year than the next most economical route.

Further, visitations to Lake Amistad are estimated to reach 1.5 million in 1979, the majority of which come from West Texas. The industrial benefits would be tremendous. The Sonora gas field is served administratively by regional and home offices in Midland. Most of the field service is centered on Sonora, but the nearest major service center in Odessa, some 200 miles distant. The future demands for drilling, servicing and delivery of petroleum products indicates an on going need for first class transportation for at least twenty-five years.

By making the terminus of the interconnector at Sonora the report said, a new western port of entry to Mexico would be opened. Extensive bridge, culvert and alignment of US 277 have been done in the last three years. At a time when the United States is making every effort to better its trade relations with Mexico, a connector between the western part of Mexico would promote tourism on the one hand and enhance the ability for US firms to transport products from the interior of Mexico without funneling through the existing ports of entry at Eagle Pass or Laredo.

When all the facts are considered, the report continued, the task force is confident that the Sonora route for the projected 4-lane highway will prevail.

Mrs. Dolly Glasscock presents the Rev. Paul Terry with a pen for his efforts and outstanding service to the Sutton Senior Center at a luncheon held May 9. The banquet was held at the Center in observance of May being Older Texan Month. The Rev. Mr. Terry has volunteered to work with the Center and senior citizens of Sutton County for a number of years. He is presently serving his second term as president of the Sutton County Committee on Aging.

City Council Meets

The City Council met Tuesday for their May regular meeting. The agenda included, (1) Oliver Wuest, swimming pool agreement, i.e. swimming pool insurance. The Council voted to have the operator of the pool increase his liability insurance and for the city to reimburse the operator for the additional cost for a maximum of $50.

Item two on the agenda was the discussion of the S-K Engineers Consulting firm's report on their work on increasing the city electric capacity, and the present position of the sewer facility project. The Council voted to pay the cost of the electric plan presented by S-K engineer Myrl Sudduth.

The problems with the slow development of the sewer facility were discussed with the council by Randy Rector. The major bottle neck to the project is the problems of getting State and Federal approval of the project plans, according to Mr. Rector. It seems that government bureaucracy wants plans submitted for all alternate types of sewer facilities that will require more work and expense than S-K and the council felt necessary. S-K Engineers were given the approval to go ahead with revision of the plans to meet Federal and State requirements.

The Council approved a resolution to support the committee working on the extension of I-10 from Lubbock. The committee is attempting to get the interstate highway built so that it will come through Sonora.

Also on the agenda was the request for the council to ratify the support of the Summer Recreation Program. The request was approved.

The Council also gave their approval for Home Help Care, Inc. to continue using the Senior Citizen Center for their hot meals for the elderly program.

The amended city dog and cat ordinance #99 was discussed and accepted. The ordinance was revised to be in accordance with state judicial codes. The ordinance will have three major clarifications. A violation of the ordinance will be a class C misdemeanor. The Municipal Court will have authority to prosecute offenders. The three offences under the ordinance are (a) leash law, that is a pet must be under the owners control when off the owners property, (b) dog that creates a nuisance, and (c) requirement of quarantine for a dog that bites anyone.

The final item on the agenda was a request by Mat Adams to remove the buttons on Sutton St. that are in front of his property line. The buttons cause undue problems in entering and exiting his property. The buttons to be removed are the ones next to his property and not the ones in the street.

Clint Langford Announces Retirement

Clint Langford, county agent for almost 31 years, was on hand at the regular meeting of the County Court Monday to submit to them, his retirement intentions, effective August 31.

Langford told the court, "If I had it all to do over, I'd do it right here." Langford's supervisor was also at the meeting and told commissioners that in the next 30 to 60 days personnel at A&M Extension Service headquarters will begin reviewing applicants to take over Langford's job here. He also told commissioners that the recommended person would appear before the court and they would have the right to approve or reject the applicant.

Steve Elliott of Rusk Security was in attendance at the meeting and told the court that he had arranged for securities of obligation to be sold through the local First National Bank at 5 1/2 interest. Elliott expressed his pleasure to the court on the interest rate offered by the bank and the court's decision to accept was unanimous.

Rodney Knight, representing Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, made the court aware of two changes that will affect Sutton County. Gobbler season proposed to be extended from the regular nine days to 16 days with the court's approval. Knight also told the court that a new law was going into affect regarding fur bearing animals. In the future it will be unlawful for any persons to have in their possession, a fur bearing animal or its pelt, except in trapping season.

County Attorney Al Elliott, who had been asked by the court to investigate the ambulance problem and the request to pave some streets in the area of the stock yards and city disposal grounds, appeared in court to reveal his findings.

Elliott had contacted the car dealership regarding the ambulance and been informed that the vehicle had been repaired and was working in its full capacity. As to the paving of streets, Elliott stated that the property in that area was either privately owned or under city easement.

County Commissioner Juan C. Gonzales was asked by Judge Charles Sherrill to tell the court what progress had been made regarding the traffic signal on Highway 277 and St. Ann's Street.

Gonzales stated that on April 26 he had met with highway personnel who told him the traffic count on the street was not enough to warrant the signal but did express their desire to cooperate with the county by scheduling another count.

Following that meeting Gonzales travelled to Austin where he was granted an appointment with Senator Pete Snelson. Snelson has since written to the highway department and applying some political clout to assist the county with this much need traffic signal.

Also appearing at the meeting were Tommy Thorp and Charlie Graves representing the new Live Oak Sub Division. They gave commissioners an estimate regarding the cost of the culvert and drainage ditch needed to help alleviate the water problem at the cemetery. Following more consideration by the commissioners Thorp and Graves requested a place on the June 11th agenda.

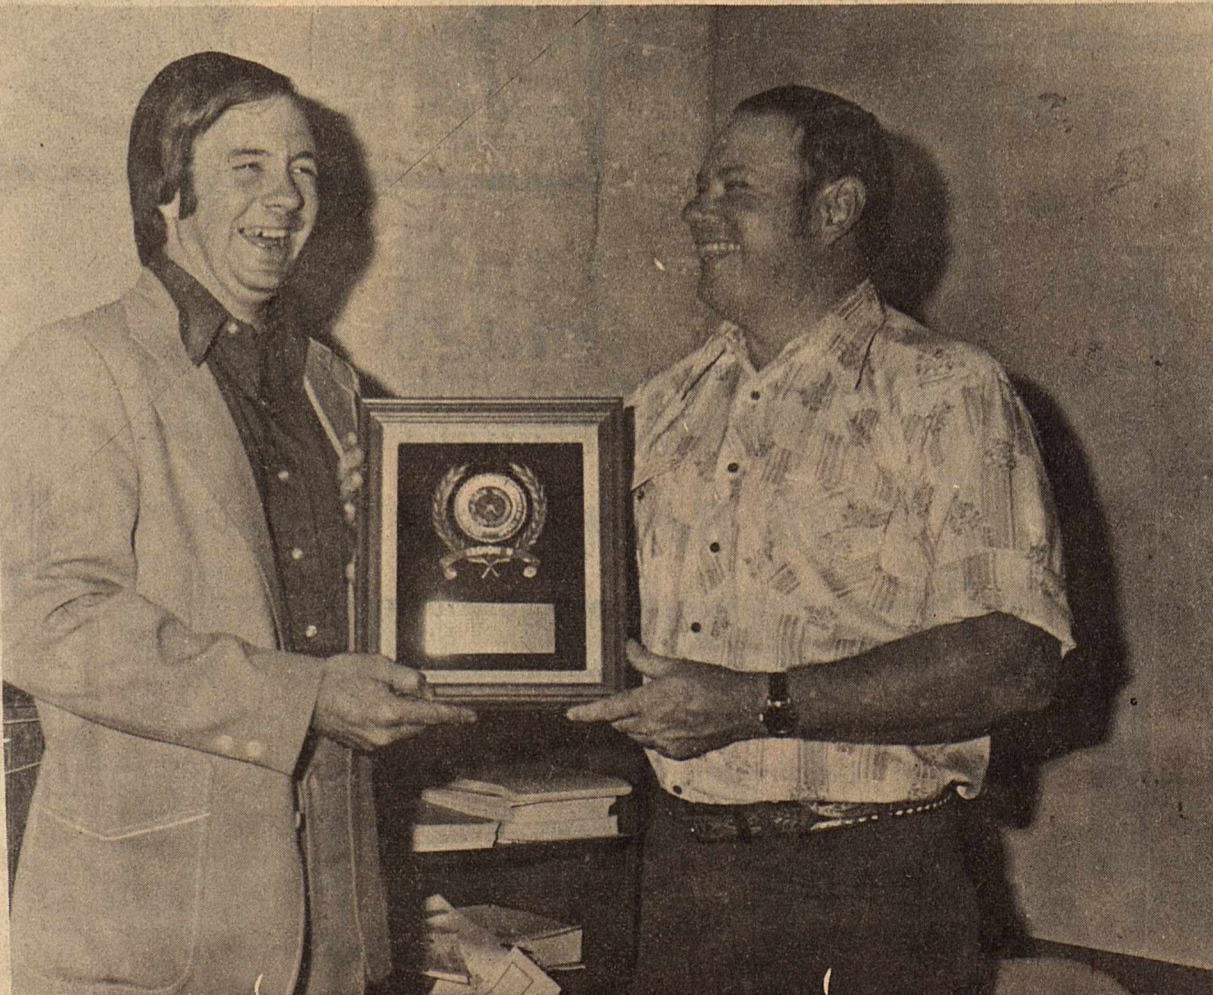

Bruce Kerbow asked commissioners for summer help at the cemetery for the regular caretaker. This was approved and Kerbow was asked to find a school youngster who needed summer work for the 40 hour per week needed. It was also approved to raise the regular caretaker's car allowance $25 per month.

Commissioners also okayed a donation of $600 to help with the summer recreational program. This money will match that promised by the city and the Lions Club.

Judge Sherrill proposed a resolution to commissioners regarding the intersection of a four lane highway to intersect with IH 10 north of Sonora. The four-lane highway is more commonly called IH 27 and the resolution was passed by the court.

A short report was given by County Auditor Charles Graves. He told commissioners he was in the process of moving into an upstairs office at the courthouse.

City Manager Jim Dover appeared at the meeting and was complimented by Sherrill for his cooperation with the county.

Don Holdridge, past editor of the Devil's River News, and Virgil Poloczek, local Soil Conservationist, look over a plaque awarded the newspaper for their efforts in publishing agricultural news of Sutton County. The plaque was presented at a banquet held May 10 at Angelo State's Houston Harte Ballroom.

STAR Program To Celebrate 50 Years, June 1

To celebrate their fifth anniversary, participants in the Southwest Texas Agricultural Resources

(STAR) program will embark on a tour of many of the region's highly diversified agricultural enterprises June 1.

"We have been working for the past five years to build diversity into the agriculture of this region, and the tour will offer STAR participants a fine opportunity to review that diversity first hand," said Lewis Watson of Uvalde, chairman of the STAR program.

STAR was organized in 1973 as a volunteer development group interested in agricultural and family living problems and potentials in the 19-county area generally known as Southwest Texas. Working through task forces, the organization is dedicated to improving and increasing agriculture's contribution to the total economy.

This year's tour will begin at 12:45 p.m., June 1, when chartered buses depart from the Uvalde Civic Center. Following the bus trip, participants will return to the Southwest Livestock Exchange is one of the most modern livestock marketing facilities in this area of the state.

Stops on the tour will include commercial vegetable, row crop, swine and beef cattle operations in the area. "One of the highlights of the tour will be a stop at the famous 'remuda' demonstration on the Chaparrosa Ranch near La Pryor," Watson said. The barbecue and a short business meeting will climax the day's events.

Agricultural producers, agribusinessmen and their spouses and others interested in STAR activities are encouraged to attend.

"Due to bus arrangements, we are asking people to make reservatons," Watson said.

"Those interested in attending can reserve bus seats by contacting their local County Extension Agent. Reservations also can be made at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Uvalde by writing P.O. Drawer 1849, Uvalde, Texas or by calling (512) 278-9151.

"We expect this tour to be one of our finest events ever, and we are all eager to check on the progress our region's agriculture and agribusiness has made in the past five years since STAR was organized."

Judge Sherrill Proclaims May Older Texan Month

One of our county's finest natural resources is its older citizens. During the course of their lives, these older Texans have contributed greatly to the growth and progress of our community, our state and our nation.

In the month of May, designated as Older Texan Month, we find it appropriate to salute those older citizens of our county who have shared their talents and knowledge to enrich the quality of community life for all.

The County of Sutton urges its older citizens to remain vital forces in community affairs which affect their well-being and independence and to become more involved in their government. All citizens of Sonora are urged to provide opportunities for older persons to continue to use their talents and their wisdom.

Therefore, I, as Judge of Sutton County, do hereby proclaim the month of May, 1979 as Older Texan Month in the County of Sonora and urge all citizens to honor those older men and women who have contributed so much to building our society, and to provide opportunities for older citizens to give of their time and talents in the decision making process of their government and to remain on the main street of community life.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature and seal of said county this 1st day of May, 1979.

Charles Sherrill

Loeffler

Proposed

Alternative

To Rationing

Texas Congressman Tom Loeffler proposed an alternative to gasoline rationing during House debate on the Carter Administration's rationing proposals.

Speaking against rationing, Loeffler called upon the Administration to "pursue utilization of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to supply additional crude oil during possible time of severe supply interruption."

Loeffler noted that the SPR is distinctly different from the Naval Petroleum Reserve and other reserves which would supply the military in times of need, and that "the SPR is already in place and can supply sufficient crude to meet projected shortfall requirements for a least a year and a half, until increased exploration efforts can bring on-stream additional reserves."

"The gasoline rationing plan proposed by the Administration will cost $2 billion a year to administer, require over 20,000 governmental employees, and will take nine months or longer to implement," Loeffler said. "The SPR exists today with some 80 million barrels of crude sitting there, and these supplies could be brought on-stream much quicker and certainly at a far lesser burden to the taxpayer than would the rationing plan."

Loeffler, a member of the Energy and Power Subcommittee of the Commerce committee, testified against rationing before the Rules Committee yesterday.

Harvest Of White-Tailed Deer Declines

A steady decline in the harvest of white-tailed deer during the past six years continued during the 1978-79 hunting season in Texas, according to harvest survey statistics compiled by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Compared to the previous year, the 1978-79 season was down slightly both in number of hunters and total kill. The past season's estimated figures were 272,076 deer killed by 517,692 hunters, compared to the 1977-78 totals of 287,232 deer taken by 524,895 hunters.

This represents an approximate five percent decrease in the harvest when the two years are compared, but what concerns department wildlife officials is the decline in the harvest since 1972-73 when an estimated 362,179 deer were harvested statewide.

Glenn Boydston, technical programs coordinator for the Wildlife Division, said the annual harvest shows some variations from year to year, but the six-year period viewed as a whole shows a steady decline.

"On a statewide basis," Boydston said, "we can see during the past six years that hunter numbers declined five percent, the antlered deer kill dropped 20 percent, antlerless kill dropped 30 percent and the total kill is down about 25 percent."

Not surprisingly, much of the decline in harvest has occurred in the two major white-tailed deer hunting areas of the state—the South Texas Plains and the Edwards Plateau.

Boydston said South Texas, which usually accounts for about 20 percent of the statewide harvest, has seen a 25 percent reduction in harvest of antlered deer in the past six years. The total kill has declined by 20 percent, and kills per hunter dropped by 15 to 20 percent during that period.

The situation in the Edwards Plateau, an area which usually accounts for about half the statewide harvest, is even less encouraging. Boydston estimated that during the same six-year period the Plateau antlered deer kill declined between 25 and 30 percent; the antlerless kill dropped 35 percent, and the total kill by 30 to 35 percent.

Hunter numbers declined about 10 percent and hunter success dropped, also by an estimated 10 percent. These figures were matched closely by the Post Oak Savannah region of East Texas, another important deer hunting area, during that six-year period.

The only major ecological region of Texas which showed a harvest increase in 1978-79 over 1977-78 was the East Texas Pineywoods, with an approximate 10 percent rise.

Boydston said there probably are a number of reasons for the six-year decline in harvest, and the department is continuing to study the situation. "Texas' white-tailed deer population still is the highest of any state in the nation," Boydston noted, "and our hunter success rate percentage still is relatively high at about 45 percent, but nevertheless there are signs that deer hunting in Texas is facing some difficulties."

Coyotes Blamed For Loss Of Lambs

As if coyotes aren't hard enough on lambs already on the ground, now researchers have shown the wily critters capable of preventing many livestock births entirely.

A Montana study of feces from 169 coyotes has found that 52.7 percent of the samples contain a microscopic parasite known to cause abortions and death in sheep, cattle, pigs and deer.

Different species of the parasite, Sarcocystis, infect different species of livestock. Because of similarities between types of the disease organism, the current practice is to identify the parasites' species by infesting test animals with suspect sarcocystis sporocysts, then watching to see which species of stock contract the disease. Symptoms include high fever, anemia and lack of appetite. Death, of course, is a relatively drastic symptom.

Sarcocystis parasites require two types of host in their life cycles—carnivores and herbivores. The carnivores ingest the cysts by eating the remains of infected prey. Protective membranes surrounding the parasitic organisms break down in the predators' digestive systems and the parasites reproduce in the hosts' intestines.

Myriad new generations exit in the carnivores' droppings to infest pasture and rangeland, where they are ingested by grazing livestock. It is these herbivores who actually suffer from the disease, induced as the parasites travel through the bloodstream to eventually lodge and become cysts in organ membranes. The process is repeated if another carnivore eats the remains of the diseased victim. The Montana studies, headed by Montana Veterinary Research Laboratory scientist Dr. J.P. Dubey, echo other studies done in Utah, Idaho and Colorado. The Montana work used sporocysts from coyote feces to produce disease symptoms in test sheep. Test cattle remained healthy up to slaughter, but necropsies showed sporocysts in their body membranes. By contrast, the previous Utah and Idaho studies induced the disease in test cattle, fatally in one case, but not in test sheep.

Research has already proven that coyotes can harbor and spread brucellosis, and these Sarcocystis studies reveal still another bad, side of the destructive livestock predator. The Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association has long urged stronger control measures for coyotes and other predatory animals. Such studies simply reinforce the need for control. TS&GRA hopes the powers that we will eventually recognize the importance of that need and act accordingly instead of persistently working at cross purposes with the realities of food and fiber production.

Refer To Wildlife Service For Eagle Problems

West Texas ranchers with golden eagle depredation problems have been asked to contact the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for help.

The FWS notified the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department they are developing a plan to manage the eagles in Texas and New Mexico, "balancing concerns for livestock losses with laws protecting eagles."

The plan will involve research on the population status of golden eagles in the West and identification of livestock losses. Once the problem birds are identified, FWS personnel will attempt to live-trap the eagles and relocate them away from sheep and goat areas, the federal agency said.

A team of federal biologists has been selected to work in the field with ranchers and eagle researchers.

Ranchers with depredation problems may contact the following: Vernon Cunningham, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 10304

Glenn Fisher's Wool & Mohair Report

The wool market is holding steady and wool is moving rapidly. The Sanderson and Del Rio sales were held last week with over 1 million pounds of 8 months wool moving at prices mainly from $1.10 to $1.15. Several lots were higher with a few bringing close to $1.20. Their 12 months wools brought around $1.10 with bids being rejected on some large lots.

We will have a sale this Friday, the 18th, and several others are scheduled this week. Ozone, yesterday the 15th; Paint Rock, today; and San Angelo Wool Growers Central tomorrow.

The mohair market is off somewhat with adult at the last South African being down about 5%. Kid and young goat were down about 2 to 5%. A small weight of adult did sell at Del Rio last week at $5.80 but competition was extremely light and buyer interest is almost nil.

South African still has about 1.2 million pounds to sell and we probably have around 600,000 to 750,000 pounds left in Texas.

Independent Oil Men Honored At Exposition

For the first time in the history of the International Petroleum Exposition, independent oil men will be honored as a part of the Show.

Representatives of the Independent Oil Men's Associations, state and regional, including the nationwide IPAA, will be hosts in a special Independent's Lounge, according to John M. Houchin, IPE president.

"Independent oil men drill approximately 83% of all oil and gas wells, approximately 90% of wildcats, discover 75% of all new reserves, and operate most of the "stripper" wells, which comprise better than 60% of all producing wells in the United States," says Houchin.

"Another major change in the IPE is the calling it an onshore show. It has been such since it was started in the 1920s, since at that time, and up until recent years, all oil industry activity has been onshore.

"With 90% of all rigs running in the United States onshore, more than 90% of the producing wells being onshore, 98% of the pipelines being onshore, and all of the refineries being onshore, the land operation is the biggest end of the Oil and Gas Industry.

"In addition, 65% of all drilling and producing budgets are onshore."

"The IPE, in taking on the shore activity from an exhibition standpoint, is on its way back to being the most influential oil show in the world, a position it held from the 1920s until the last few years," Houchin said.

"The Tulsa Oil Show has had representation from every state of the Union and over 60 nations of the world at its last five events, and expects equivalent attendance in 1979. No other U.S. oil show gets such broad attendance," Houchin said.

In line with the independent's activity in the onshore areas at the IPE will be an Enhanced Recovery Hall of Science. This is directed by John S. Ball, retired director of the Department of Energy's Bartlesville Research Center.

A symposium, headed by Dr. E.T. Guerrero, former Dean of the School of Engineering at The University of Tulsa, will be held the first three days of the show. Timely panel subjects concerning the exhibits and the oil situation in the United States will be handled by panels of speakers.

A showing of films pertaining to the Oil & Gas Industry, which will be selected by a committee formed by the Oklahoma Petroleum Council, which will screen and select the films for showing, will be held.

The Exposition will be held in the world's largest air-conditioned exhibit building without center posts, covering 10 acres. This exhibit building is large enough to house seven regulation football fields. In addition to this, there will be about 5 acres of outside exhibits.

The Tulsa Show is the only oil show in 1979 to be promoted by the U.S. Department of Commerce. The Department of Commerce Foreign Buyers Section will be represented at the IPE to aid and to provide information and assist buyers and sellers.

Tower Comments On President's Plan

Approval by the Senate recently of the President's standby gasoline rationing plan is, "Just another step in the capitulation to a condition we need not endure," and, "another instance where neither the Administration nor the Congress has shown any initiative toward solving the problem," according to Senator John Tower (R-Tex).

"It appears that the Administration has concluded that the best way to win acceptance of its position on energy is to continue to create the conditions which will assure a shortage of that energy," Tower added.

"First we tried to deal with an ineffectual National Energy Plan. Then, after long delay, a reluctant decision to de-control domestic crude oil prices, but with the hooker of a 'windfall profits' tax to degrade the benefits; and now, a 'standby' rationing plan which, in all likelihood, is the precursor of its implementation. We have yet to see anything from the White House which indicates any willingness to examine ways to increase population as a means of solving the problem."

Tower said the Department of Energy estimates the direct program costs of gasoline rationing would amount to over $3 billion a year, including over $1 billion of oil industry costs, most of which would be passed on to the consumer. In addition, the estimate of federal personnel required to administer the plan runs as high as 15,000.

"We already have a Department of Energy which employs over 20,000 at an annual cost to the taxpayer of more than $10 billion. Now we are being asked to accept these added prospective costs, with still no plan to drill one single additional well. The industry could go a long way to solving our energy problem with $13 billion a year," Tower stated.

Tower said the best solution to the gasoline shortage, aside from steps to increase supplies in the long term, is to let the individual states, like Texas and California, come up with their own plans which would meet their own requirements.

"Although the President's plan is based on so-called 'historic' usage of gasoline, we still don't know how much will be available to each state after priority requirements are met. That should be left to local decision, not federal bureaucratic interference."

Changes Will Be Made For Regulating Drilling Mud

Senator Lloyd Bentsen on Monday said changes will be made in a set of proposals for regulating drilling mud that could add as much as $10.8 billion a year to energy costs in the U.S.

Bentsen, at a congress-sional hearing in March, asked a series of sharp questions about the proposed regulations of officials of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"I have been advised by EPA that they will issue a 'clarification' in the FEDERAL REGISTER," Bentsen said Monday.

relation to actual drilling operations."

Drilling mud is used at wells to bring up pieces of rock ground up by the drilling bit. The mud also cools the bit. After use the mud is dumped into pits and allowed to dry.

Under the original regulations proposed by EPA the cost of building and operating the pits would be increased by requirements that holes be drilled around the perimeter of the pits to test for possible drilling mud pits. By way of comparison, only $9.9 billion was spent for oil and gas drilling throughout the U.S. in 1977.

In a letter to Bentsen, Thomas Jorling, Assistant Administrator for EPA,

Texas Reports New Wells

Texas operators reported 38 gas and 19 oil discoveries during the April 16-30, 1979 period, the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division announced recently.

In the year-earlier period, 22 gas and 11 oil discoveries were filed with the state's energy regulatory agency.

Through the first four months of 1979, Texas operators have reported 462 gas and 151 oil discoveries, against 302 gas and 145 oil discoveries in the year-earlier period.

Successful exploratory and field completions in the four months of 1979 total 2,482 oil and 1,849 gas, against 2,577 oil and 1,705 gas completions in the same period last year.

Gas discoveries in the second half of April 1979 included 11 in deep South Texas, six each in the San Antonio and Refugio areas, five in Southeast Texas, four in East Texas, two each in West Central Texas and North Texas and one each in East Central Texas and the San Angelo area.

Oil discoveries included six in North Texas, four in the Midland area, three in the Refugio area, two each in deep South Texas and East Texas and one each in the San Angelo and Lubbock areas.

In the April 16-30 period, operators reported 136 exploratory and field tests wound up as dry holes.

New applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests totaled 825 in the second half of April, compared with 786 in the same period of 1978.

Applications to drill, deepen, plug back and for service wells in the April 16-30 period amounted to 940 against 939 a year earlier.

Operators filed 193 amended applications to drill. A year earlier they submitted 173 amended requests.

There have been 5,987 applications to drill new oil and gas tests this year, against 6,358 in the same period of 1978. Applications to drill, deepen, plugback and for service wells so far this year total 7,064, against 7,622 in the first four months of 1978.

"I will withhold judgement on the changes that they make until I can see and analyze them."

"At a time of growing national concern over an energy shortage and the rapidly rising costs of energy it is ridiculous to contemplate government regulations that designate drilling mud as a 'hazardous waste' when it is no more hazardous than most ordinary dirt," Bentsen said.

"The problem is that EPA had proposed testing requirements for determining the hazard associated with the mud that have no contamination of subsurface water, that fencing be installed around the pits, that reports be filed with regard to the status of the pits and that, in some areas, extensive dikes be constructed to protect the pits against possible flooding.

The American Petroleum Institute estimates that it would cost $10.8 billion a year to comply with EPA requirements for building and operating the drilling mud pits. By way of comparison, only $9.9 billion was spent for oil and gas drilling throughout the U.S. in 1977.

In a letter to Bentsen, Thomas Jorling, Assistant Administrator for EPA, said "It is unfortunate that API and others have misinterpreted EPA's proposed regulations. To be sure there are no lingering doubts as to our intent, EPA will publish a clarification in the Federal Register."

Tourist Bureaus Show Increase

Texas tourist bureaus, already serving the highest volume of travelers in their 43-year history, experienced a 14 percent jump in demand this April compared to the same month last year. Most of the surge according to the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, results from inquiries about gasoline availability.

Tom H. Taylor, director of the department's division that operates the tourist bureaus have been swamped with inquiries about where to buy gasoline.

"Actually," he said, "there's been no real problem so far, and our bureaus are able to advise travelers about any number of operating service stations in each bureau locality. However, there's no doubt that auto travelers are becoming more fuel conscious."

The bureaus' director noted a trend toward greater travel efficiency, he said motorists are seeking short-line routes and more detailed highway information. Saying those are the areas in which Texas Tourist Bureaus can be of greatest service, Taylor speculated that the pleasure-driving public may be ready to accept a concept his department has been suggesting for years.

"We've been urging more of a vacation and less of a trip," Taylor said, "and I think the public may be catching on." He said the concept, while especially useful for Texans, can be beneficial to visitors from out of state, too.

"The typical motorist visiting Texas from the Midwest," said the tourism chief, "can squander an enormous amount of fuel by aimless driving around Texas. With some trip planning from our tourist bureaus, we can save him time, money, fuel, and virtually guarantee a more pleasant visit to boot."

The state operates 11 tourist bureaus throughout Texas, with a twelfth to be built soon in the popular Lower Rio Grande Valley.

OIL PERSPECTIVE

By John M. Houchin

The Oil & Gas Industry has been criticized in some influential circles because it cannot give exact figures on reserves of oil in the United States. Most of the criticism probably has been due to ignorance, although there are signs that some of it is malicious. Certain groups which would like to see the petroleum industry nationalized in this country are using such situations to promote their cause.

Oil is in the ground at various depths, and with so-called "pools" extending in various directions for various distances; and, then, too, the thickness of the oil-bearing sands or rocks is another variable. In addition, there are such variables as porosity and permeability of the rocks and sands containing the oil and the viscosity of the oil itself, some oil being almost as thick as tar or asphalt.

With so many sub-surface variables, the geologists and engineers whose responsibility it is to estimate how much may be in these pools must rely on seismic and test data, core samples and previous wells for their calculations.

Another variable with respect to the extent of reserves is the constantly improving technology in getting more oil out of the reservoirs through "secondary," "tertiary," and other aspects of enhanced recovery.

So reserve estimates of two or three years ago may be out of date today, due to the technology advances, and also due to additional drilling in existing pools to establish that they don't extend as far as technicians had previously estimated, or that they extend further.

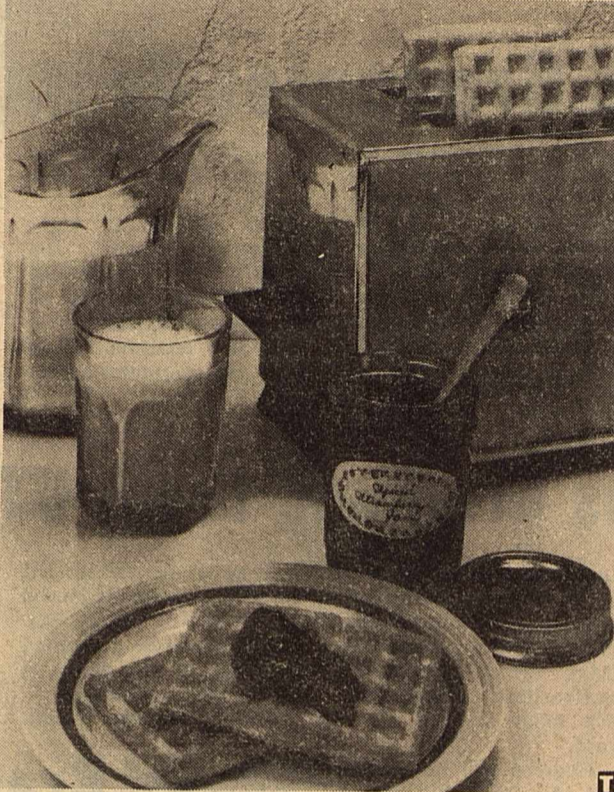

The American taxpayer should be happy that these complex problems relating to oil reserves are being handled by private enterprise, since if the extent of our reserves is underestimated, or if it is harder to obtain the oil than anticipated, and hence more costly, the added burden will be borne by private enterprise, and not by the taxpayer. If the government was in the act, we would certainly see more money being spent in recovering these reserves and resolving the variables by technology than would otherwise be the case.

One of these has been worked out by the Department of Energy through its Bartlesville, Oklahoma, Center. The government furnishes part of the money and private enterprise furnishes the remainder for experimentation in enhanced recovery from existing oil fields. There are some 70 to 150 such projects now being carried out all over the country.

The results of this enhanced recovery program, so far, will be on display in an "Enhanced Recovery Hall of Science" at the onshore International Petroleum Exposition, to be held in Tulsa, Oklahoma, September 10-13, 1979.

THE JAM AND MILK SNACK

Waffles in the toaster, milk in a glass and fresh homemade Spiced Strawberry Jam begging to be sampled. It's a wholesome snack for youngsters to share with friends. Spices and fresh strawberries combine in this recipe with Sure-Jell fruit pectin, which assures a good "set." The one-minute boil helps retain fresh fruit flavor and peak berry color.

SPICED STRAWBERRY JAM

4-1/2 cups prepared fruit (about 2 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
 1/2 teaspoon allspice
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 teaspoon cloves
 7 cups (3 lb.) sugar
 1 box (1-3/4 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the jars. Wash, scald and drain jars and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with very hot rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts strawberries. Measure 4-1/2 cups into a very large saucepan; add spices.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Ladle quickly into jars, filling to within 1/8 inch of top. Wipe tops and threads of jars with clean damp cloth. Cover with two-piece lids, following manufacturer's directions. Process in boiling water bath 5 minutes, timing when water returns to boil. Cool, test for seal and store. Makes 8-1/2 cups or about 8 (8 fl. oz.) jars.
