

"MY TURN"

By Carol Ellis

PERHAPS SIGNS OF old age are creeping up on me. They say that you get mighty set in your ways when that happens.

Frankly, I am resisting the new slogan, "The Friendship State" which was recently approved as the new state slogan for Texas license plates. So what's wrong with the "Lone Star State"? Texas has been known, down through the decades, as being just a little bit different from the other states, and "Lone Star State" sort of sets us apart. Besides, everybody knows Texans are friendly.

Of course, if all of us resisted new suggestions all of the time, we'd still be reading by kerosene lamps and driving the horses to town to buy our groceries.

Evidently there has been a trend afoot all across the country to make all state license plates look about as interesting as the walls in the hospital waiting room. Bill mentioned something about this in "Star Lites" last week.

What ever happened to putting the recognizable shape of your state outline on license plates? It makes a great geography lesson for the kids when you are traveling from place to place. And I seem to remember that geography was one of the major areas where our present-day school youngsters are falling far short of the mark in education.

If you are a little bit fogged over, as I am, about the proposed wimpy new license plate slogan for our state, you may voice your opinion by phoning 512-463-8610.

I am not alone in resisting change in another area, also. There have been many recent comments made about the trend toward bills which come due just any old day of the month.

There was a time when a person could sit down sometime between the first and the tenth of each month and write out checks for all their bills at one time and have the unpleasant chore over with for another thirty days. The idea was to sort of budget around that first week of the month, then you could loosen up the purse strings a week or so later. Now we find insurance is due on the 8th, house payment on the 15th, department store on the 17th, Visa on the 27th, electricity is due on the 4th, gas bill on the 13th, car payment on the 20th, etc., etc. Each household needs one full-time bookkeeper checking to see which bills need paid each day of the month.

It's as irritating as trying to live within your means while keeping up the Joneses.

Several people have told me that they just go on and do up all their bills around the tenth of the month like they always did, and if the bills are overdue then so be it. Others solve the problem by having the bank automatically draw a draft on their account on the day that said bills are due. That's nice, but then you are never sure how much is left in your account at any given time and those of us who don't have very much, want to pinch onto it just as long as we can.

If you would like to see us return to the system of having all bills come due on the first with grace period until the 10th of the month...I have no idea who to call or what to do about it. If you have any suggestions as to how we can start a movement to get this accomplished, let me know and I'll try to help get out some publicity on it.

When all is said and done, we usually wish we had done more and said less.

New Doctor Joins Staff At PCCH

By HOLLY SNEAD
Bovina Blade Feature Writer

An apple a day may keep some doctors away, but it will not stand in the way of Parmer County Community Hospital's newest employee. She's young, talented, friendly, and dedicated to her job.

Dr. Tracey Toten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Toten of Copperas Cove, Texas, brings to Friona not only a vital profession, but also a delightful personality. "I'd like to be a good doctor, and I hope people like me. I want to do a good job here in Friona," said Toten.

Toten has quite an interesting background. Since her father was in the United States Air Force for twenty-eight years, Toten moved around throughout her childhood as her father was transferred from base to base. "Moving from place to place was hard, but it gave me the chance to meet a lot of people," said Toten. Not only has she lived across the United States, but she has also lived in Japan, Bermuda, Hawaii, and the Philippines, where she graduated from high school.

In 1977, she began her four year stay at the University of Texas in San Antonio. After graduating with a Bachelor of Science degree, she spent the next year working in a lab.

In 1982, she started medical school at the University of Texas Galveston Branch. Specializing in Family Practice, Toten spent her three years of residency in San Antonio's Bexar County Hospital District. Now in Friona, she is beginning her first practice opportunity.

When asked what inspired her to become a doctor, she said, "Ever since I was seven years old, I've always wanted to be a doctor. When I was seven, I had my tonsils out, and as strange as it may seem, I loved hospitals from then on. I always thought it would be neat to help people."

Some people may wonder what it is like to be a woman in the medical field. However, she says that with the rise of women in medical professions, it's becoming easier for others to join the medical family. "I personally have not had much of a problem being a woman in the medical profession," she said.

She has several concerns dealing with her position as a doctor. She hopes to develop not only a doctor-patient relationship, but also a strong friendship with all the people she treats.

Toten is also hoping to appeal to the women of Parmer County. "I'm concerned that women aren't getting yearly check-ups. One in ten women get breast cancer. That scares me, so I hope more women will come in for check-ups," she said.

She has a strong message for the young people of the area: "If you want to do something...do it! You can do anything. You just have to find what it is and go for it. You have to be ready to work for it, too, but whatever it is...you can do it!"

Toten is glad to be in Friona, and she has been very pleased with the response she has received so far. "Every person I've met has said very nice things to me. I'm excited to be here and everyone seems glad that I'm here, too. I'd

Department Answers Fire Call

The Bovina Fire Department answered a call Saturday, August 5 about 10 p.m.

The department extinguished a fire in a vacant structure on the Joe Wilson place eight miles north of Bovina.

While battling the blaze, the firemen spotted a fire which burned another vacant structure three miles west of where they originally were called.

Fire officials are theorizing that one or both of these fires were deliberately set, and issued a warning that arson is a serious offense with severe penalties for those convicted.

City Urges Clean-Up Program

The Federal law that goes into effect August 30 will prohibit any further burning at Bovina's landfill. This will cause a hardship for the city because of limited space at the landfill site.

Mayor Keith Knight urges everyone to clean up around their property so that trash can be burned before the August 30 deadline and help conserve space at the landfill.

Commodity Distribution Is Slated

Surplus commodities will be distributed on Thursday, August 17 at the American Legion Hall in Bovina.

Commodities will be distributed beginning at 8:30 a.m. and senior citizens will be served first.

Those who will be receiving the commodities are asked to bring their own paper bags to package them in.

like to thank everyone for the support and welcome I've received, and for making me feel at home," said Toten.

Area Gets Very Light Rainfall

The Bovina area received only light rainfall during the past week, which also featured high winds Sunday evening as a fast-moving cold front moved through.

The moisture came on three different evenings: Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and the total was just .3 inches, according to Maggie Moore, weather observer.

Sunday's wind was pretty bad for awhile, but no large instances of damage had been reported. The Amarillo area reported winds up to 85 miles per hour as the front ripped through the area.

Blade publisher Bill Ellis reported sighting a funnel cloud trying to form at about 9:15 Sunday evening. He was driving along Highway 214 in the Rhea community at the time.

The sighting was about 13 miles northeast of Bovina in open country. The fledgling funnel stirred up the dirt considerably for a short time but never was fully developed.

Equipment will be issued for the prospective football players on Thursday, August 10 from 8 a.m. until 12 noon, according to Coach Terry Bean.

On Monday, August 14, two-day workouts will begin for the footballers.

Coach Bean lost some talented performers from last year's six-man district champion team, but is expecting a good turnout of players for the 1989 team.

A scrimmage will be held here August 25 against Whitharral, with a second scrimmage on September 1 at New Home.

The Mustangs open their regular season with a game against Jayton at Smyer.

"Swim For Life" Slated August 14

A "Swim For Life" special event is being sponsored by the Parmer Unit of the American Cancer Society. The event is set for Monday, August 14 from 12 noon to 7 p.m. at the Friona Swimming Pool, it was announced.

Leland Hart will serve as chairman of the event, which is expected to raise funds toward the Parmer Unit's crusade goal.

To participate, swimmers ask sponsors--family, friends, neighbors, businesses, etc.--to pledge a specific amount for each lap of the pool the swimmer completes. An average swimmer can complete about 30 laps of an Olympic-sized pool.

If a sponsor pledges $1.00 per lap completed, he will make a contribution of $30 if the swimmer completes 30 laps. The aim is to get as many sponsors to sign up before the event as possible, Leland Hart said, urging swimmers to sign up soon.

Ribbons will be presented in the different age groups, and it will be a fun time for all entrants. Refreshments will be served at the pool. Swimmers from age six through high school are invited to participate.

"The Swim For Life" is such an appropriate event to raise funds for the American Cancer Society, since it emphasizes fitness as well as breathing. We all realize the society's work to combat cigarette smoking, the major cause of lung cancer," Leland Hart said.

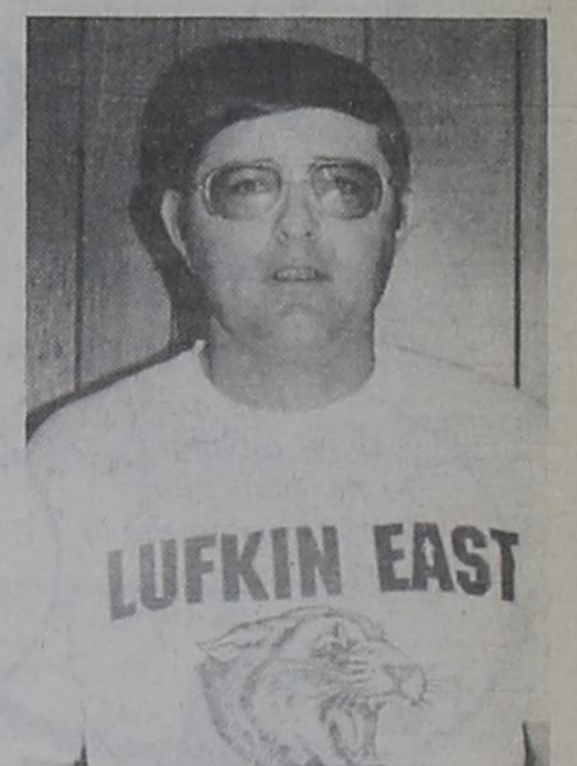

"Of course the American Cancer Society is involved in many, many activities to assist cancer patients, as well as in education to the public and health professionals regarding cancer treatment, early detection, and prevention. Today, almost fifty per cent of all cancer patients will survive and the odds get better every day as ACS-funded research continues to make strides toward new treatments and cures," he continued.

Leland Hart explained that ACS programs are administered by volunteers in the community and therein lies the strength of the Society--community members helping other community members. All fund-raising efforts, including special events such as the "Swim For Life," are conducted by volunteers, he said.

To sign up for the "Swim For Life" pick up pledge cards from the Friona Pool or the Friona Public Library. Participants will need to bring the completed pledge card with them to the pool the day of the event in order to enter. They will then collect the pledges after the event.

For more information regarding the American Cancer Society, call Parmer Unit president, Becky Riethmayer, 265-3562.

Brenda Pierson, Dwayne Yarbrough Are United In Church Ceremony

Brenda Pierson and Dwayne Yarbrough were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony June 9 at 7 p.m. at Bethel Assembly of God Church in Clovis, New Mexico.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. V. Ray Allen. It was a garden setting with ferns, baby's breath and teal bows adorning a gazebo, with spirals of candles to each side. The setting also featured a unity candle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Pierson of Farwell.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Yarbrough of Cunningham, Tennessee.

The bride wore a gown designed and made by her mother. The gown had a strapless, fitted underbodice of cream luster satin. The lace bodice overlay was fashioned with a princess style waistline with portrait neckline. The puffed lace upper sleeves ended in slender satin tapered to a point at her hands. The full length skirt was made of cream satin with a chapel length train with drape and designer bow in the back. The skirt and train were edged in six-inch double edged lace and seed pearls.

She wore a wide brimmed tulle covered hat with tulle and pearls cascading down the back. Her hat was fashioned by her sister, Jo Eubanks. She carried a cascading bouquet with roses and baby's breath accented with strands of pearls.

For something old, she wore a locket given to her mother by a great-aunt. For something new she wore a string of pearls, a gift of the groom. She wore a blue garter and a penny minted in the year of her birth.

The maid of honor was her cousin, Annette Crabtree, who wore a dress of teal luster satin. Bridesmaids were her nieces, K.C. and Ella Eubanks, whose dresses were of medium turquoise and light turquoise. All the attendants' dresses, also fashioned by the bride's mother, were tea length, princess style with cascading ruffles down the back of the skirt. The bodices featured puffed sleeves and sweetheart necklines.

They carried lace fans with a single teal and cream orchid with streamers of ribbon and pearls. They wore cream pictured hats accented with teal flowers and ribbon streamers. The hats and fans were made by Jo Eubanks, sister of the bride.

The ring bearers were Rachel Williams, second cousin of the bride and Jon Eubanks, nephew of the bride. Rachel wore a gown identical to the one worn by the maid of honor and Jon wore a tuxedo identical to the one worn by the groom.

The groom wore a cream formal tuxedo with cream tie and vest and a single rose boutonniere. His best man was Charles Abernathy. Groomsmen were Bryan Baggett and Jeff Good. They wore black tuxedos with teal ties and cummerbunds to match the girl attendants' dresses. They had teal carnation boutonnieres.

Music was provided by Sharon Eubanks, sister of the bride, who sang "Twelfth of Never" and "Always." She was accompanied at the organ by Hazel Granada.

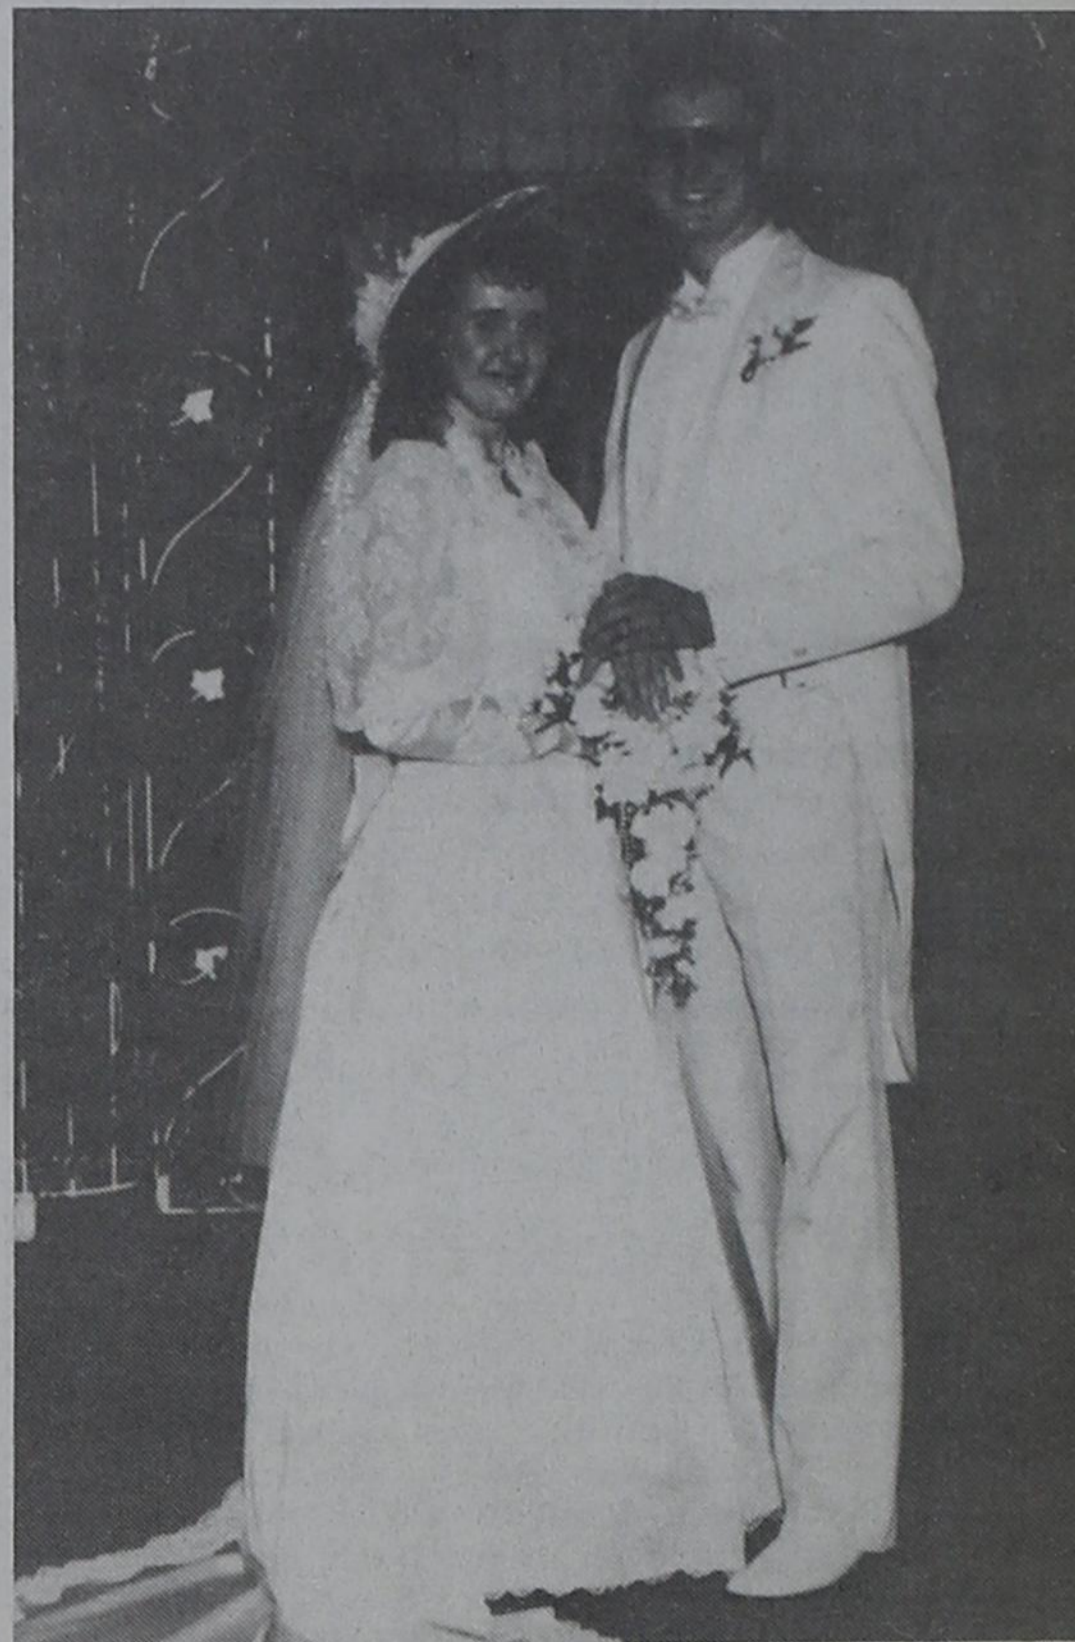

Ushers were Wayne Pierson and Troy Eubanks, nephews of the bride. Junior groomsmen were B.J. Eubanks and Cary Eubanks, nephews of the bride. They wore black tuxedos with teal ties, cummerbunds and boutonnières.

The guest book was attended by the bride's sister-in-law, Bobbie Pierson.

A reception followed in the church Fellowship Hall.

Servers were Ruth Baggett and Sharon Dixon. The bride's sister, Jo Eubanks, catered and hosted the reception.

After honeymooning in the Great Smoky Mountains of Tennessee, the couple will make their home at 1112 Calhoun in Clovis, New Mexico.

The Guadalupe Society held their monthly meeting on Sunday, August 6.

Nine members were present, and one visitor, Dalia Villarreal. Father Timothy Dran also joined the group.

Opening prayer was given by Mrs. Villarreal. The group was making plans for their annual Mexican dinner.

The dinner is to be held on September 17. Closing prayer was given by Tina Uriegas, society president.

The PTA will use the money for different projects to help our school. Even though they are a new organization, they have been busy on projects.

If you have been by the schools you may have seen the bright playground equipment or pretty flowers in front of the school. The PTA was responsible for this.

They would like to have many other projects to help the school, but must raise money for these projects first.

So if you have any items you don't need and want to donate you can call either of these ladies: Ella Jo Stormes, 225-6313; Alice Stone, 238-1186 or Connie Garza, 238-1102 and they will be happy to pick the donated items up.

Counseling Center Stresses Importance Of Prevention

By HOLLY SNEAD
Frona Star Feature Writer

As frustrating as it may be, Americans are being forced to come to terms with the growing drug problem in the United States. Each day when the newspapers hit the front porches, people are finding it a rarity if they can read the entire paper without running across some drug related story.

In Parmer County, however, a group of people are doing something about the drug problem. They are those who work at the Parmer County Counseling Center, 506 Cleveland, Friona. In an effort to combat the potential for an enormous drug/alcohol problem in the county, these people are participating in a program that deals mainly with prevention and intervention, rather than treatment, concerning drugs and alcohol.

As a part of the Central Plains Comprehensive Mental Health/Mental Retardation Center (MHMR), the Parmer County Counseling Center is able to receive the benefits of the much needed state and federal grant money used to fund the project.

In 1985, a survey was conducted in nine Texas counties to determine needs the residents had which their local counseling centers could provide. Teachers, doctors, lawyers, judges, police officers, and hundreds of other people in Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Swisher, Hale, Floyd, Motley and Briscoe Counties provided information through the survey that pointed to a need for youth services. These youth services needed a focus on drug and alcohol education, prevention and intervention.

After discovering these results, the Central Plains MHMR Center began applying for state and federal money to fund the needed youth program. For the fiscal year beginning September 1, 1987, the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (TCADA) granted the agency $70,000 which helped to implement the new program in Parmer, Castro, Hale, and Lamb Counties. The program was called Adolescent Substance Abuse Program (ASAP).

In the next fiscal year, TCADA renewed and expanded the grant to $140,000 which allowed the program to add Floyd County.

It's A Boy For Springs

John and Christie Spring of Canyon are the parents of a baby boy born Friday, July 28 in High Plains Baptist Hospital, Amarillo.

Named Travis Louis Spring, he weighed seven pounds, fourteen ounces and was twenty inches long at birth.

Travis is the first child for the couple.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Buddy J. Wiseman of Friona. Paternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Paul L. Spring, also of Friona.

Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Turner of Friona and Mrs. Charles Wiseman of Hereford.

In April of 1989, the Central Plains MHMR Center applied for a grant through the United States Department of Education under Drug Free Schools, and received $102,000 to implement the Youth Substance Abuse Prevention Program (YSAP) in Parmer, Castro and Hale Counties.

With the grants that the agency received, it was able to begin these new youth service projects in several counties. YSAP and ASAP are two similar services. YSAP is geared more in the direction of children from kindergarten through the eighth grade. ASAP, however, is available to children age 12-18.

ASAP was the first of the two programs to come into existence. The two services, though, are almost identical in format. The programs are designed with three components. Those are drug/alcohol education, alternative services and intervention counseling.

Through the drug/alcohol education, program officials hope to teach the participants decision making skills, social skills, coping skills, and the importance of positive peer pressure.

Alternative services is a component which allows the participants to join in some community based group activities. The children have the opportunity to utilize what they have learned in the education component. Judy Ichtertz, education/alternatives counselor, said, "With some kids, therapy didn't do anything. Alternative services made that change. Then therapy was able to help."

Intervention counseling has the family based approach. A spokeswoman for the center said, "It is difficult to help a kid without involving the whole family."

With the YSAP and ASAP programs, the centers deal with high risk children. In other words, these young people do not yet have serious drug or alcohol problems, but the potential for those problems does exist. Center officials estimate that only 25% of their clients have even experimented with drugs or alcohol. The centers are not designed to treat, but to prevent serious drug or alcohol problems.

The full ASAP and YSAP programs are not available in all nine counties served through the Central Plains MHMR Center. All nine counties do, however, have counseling programs readily available to anyone in need.

In deciding which counties qualify to receive the YSAP and ASAP programs, the Central Plains MHMR Center looks at the relationship it has had with the local school system, how the county is utilizing current programs available to local people, and which counties have the greatest need for these specialized youth services. Fortunately, Parmer County has met these qualifications and has available to its residents the ASAP and YSAP programs.

"Parmer County is lucky!" said Rhonda Wilkins, supervisor of ASAP/YSAP. "Many Texas counties don't have any services at all. Some have treatment programs, but we're fortunate because we have prevention and intervention."

Larry Keltz, intervention counseling specialist, said of the ASAP and YSAP programs, "I feel it is vitally important to intervene in the lives of young children that are involved in destructive activities that tend to lead to future drug and alcohol abuse. We need to take a more positive approach to the problem than we have before through proactive involvement with at-risk children rather than reactive involvement."

The Central Plains MHMR Center has a message that everyone needs to hear. There is a problem out there, and it is the job of society to solve it. Not only do those who have a drug/alcohol problem need treatment, but those who have potential for problems need prevention and intervention programs. Fortunately, there are some local people who are making these available. The unfortunate aspect is that many people do not know about these services, and they do not know that they are free of charge. It is careless of society not to use the resources it has available to it especially when it costs nothing.

"According to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, as many as one out of every four children in the U.S. come from an alcoholic or chemically dependent family. That scares me! I didn't realize it would be that high. Based on that, think about how many kids are learning that drowning their problems in drugs or alcohol is a solution," said Mrs. Ichtertz of her personal concerns.

The problem is there. Anyone can pick up the paper on their front porch and read about it. Maybe society cannot stop it in its entirety, but society can support and encourage the work of people like Judy Ichtertz, Larry Keltz and Rhonda Wilkins in their efforts to prevent and intervene in the lives of children who have the potential to carry the drug/alcohol problem even further.

If anyone would like any information concerning services, qualifications or would simply like to get involved in any programs offered by the Central Plains MHMR Center, they should contact: Parmer County Counseling Center, 506 Cleveland, Friona, Texas 79035 or call (806) 247-3522.
