Lemuel Lopez

Lopez Announces In Mayors Race

Lemuel Lopez has announced his candidacy for Mayor of the City of Sonora.

Lemuel was reared here in Sonora. He attended and graduated from Sonora High School. After graduation, Lemuel attended North Texas State university. He worked two years in Austin for the Internal Revenue Service before returning to Sonora. Lemuel now owns and manages his family's business, the Commercial restaurant.

In 1976, Lopez was elected to serve on the City Council. During those four years on the council, he has learned much about the City's government. He recently stated his main reason for running for office, "I think there should be some continuity in city government. With the change of command and the vacancy left by Doyle Morgan, I believe that, by virtue of being on the Council for four years, I can bring that continuity to our city's government." He added, "I know the problems and successes of the Council for the past four years, and I believe that my knowledge will benefit the city."

"In my four years of the council, I have worked with Norm Rousselot and Doyle Morgan, Sonora's last two Mayors, and I would like to maintain the high standards set by them." I urge everyone to get out and vote - it is the most important that we have a good turnout. I would appreciate the consideration of every citizen of the city of Sonora, and I will also appreciate their vote," he commented.

Gesch Assumes Duties As Chief Of Police

Raymond Brent Gesch was named City of Sonora Police Chief in action of the City Council last week. This action came following the resignation of Police Chief Jerry Kemp earlier in the month.

Gesch has worked for the city police department since 1977 and served as sergeant and assistant to the chief.

A native of San Angelo, Gesch graduated from Lake View High School in 1967 and attended Southwest Texas Junior College in Uvalde majoring in law enforcement. He is also certified with the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standard and Education; attended Texas A&M studying criminal investigation; took a course in homicide investigation at Concho Valley Regional Education Agency, and holds an intermediate certificate with the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and Education.

Prior to coming to Sonora, Gesch worked for the Edwards County Sheriff's Department in Rock-springs, where he was a deputy.

Gesch is married and his wife Abby, is a dispatcher for the local sheriff's department.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Younger and Dr. Mary Kay Sparks from the journalism Dept. at ASU join Paul Terry, Ed Carrasco and Lou Thomas in choosing the winning slogan.

Mary Adams Wins First Prize In C Of C Slogan Contest

Rev. Paul Terry announced that Mrs. Mary Adams, at 708 5th St. is the winner of the $25 prize for the slogan 'Shine Sonora'. Terry stated that this slogan will be used on posters and new releases to identify the citywide efforts of the Sonora Chamber of Commerce Beautification project.

When Mrs. Adams was told she had the winning entry on Tuesday morning, she replied, 'I want to turn this back to the Chamber of Commerce, to use for planting a tree, or for whatever is needed'. Congratulations, Mrs. Adams!

Honorable Mention was given for the following slogans: #105: 'Make Sonora A Scenic Showplace' by Jackie Johnson; #32 'Take pride City-Wide!' by Jim Dover; #137: 'Be Beautiful In Sonora' by Effie Harle; #36: 'Sonora Her Beauty Abounds In the People Who Care!' by Pam Merrill; #151: 'Why Live Anywhere Else? Sonora Has Everything' by Cody Manning and #41: S.O.S.

Shine Onward, Sonora!' by Lou Thomas.

Terry noted appreciation to all the entrants and added that some additional slogans would be printed in next weeks issue.

"The response was very good and the judges were impressed by the slogans" remarked Terry.

The three out-of-town judges were given a tour of Sonora that included schools, churches, new jail several businesses and residences.

These twelve employees of Hudspeth Nursing Home received pins during a special ceremony held Friday.

Aides Receive Special Pins

Twelve Nurses Aides at the Hudspeth Nursing Home were presented with pins of appreciation upon their completion of training and inservice classes held at the nursing home. Presenting the pins to the nurses aides were Eva Perez, Director of Nurses, and Sherrill Dooley Inservice Program Coordinator.

The classes attended by the Aides included instruction in the physical and emotional care for the nursing home residents. Each aide can perform a list of 34 skills that the State of Texas requires, and many more.

The Nurses Aides at a nursing home hold the prime responsibility for the care of the residents. They are very important to the nursing home system, both here in Sonora in other communities across Texas. These ladies are greatly appreciated by the nurses and, best of all, by the residents who receive the love and dedication that these nurses aides put into their work.

Commissioners Pass Ambulance, Park Board Proposals

A special meeting of the Sutton County Commissioners Court was held Friday, February 29 to review the ambulance situation and to hear comments and plans from the Sutton/Sonora Community Park Board. Other items were on the agenda, but with the absence of two of the Commissioners, the items were tabled for discussion at the March 10 regular meeting of the Court.

The Hudspeth Memorial Hospital Ambulance Service was represented by Dennis Robertson, administrator and by Mike Stallard, ambulance attendant.

The present ambulance service has reached crisis proportions. The chassis on the existing vehicle is completely wornout. The Court agreed earlier this month in their regular meeting that they would replace the worn out chassis with a new one. The new chassis will cost the county $8,300. The cost of switching the module to the new chassis is $5,000. The changeover from the old chassis to the new one will be done by the Superior Ambulance Service of Grand Prairie, Texas.

While the changeover is taking place, the Sutton County emergency service will rent an ambulance at the cost of $75 per day. This cost will total out to $2,250 as the ambulance will be here for one month.

According to Dennis Robertson, there is a good chance that the ambulance will be back in three weeks. The commissioners voted to approve the bid by Superior Ambulance Service and to send the ambulance to be repaired immediately.

Tryon Fields, spokesman for the Park Board presented the Commissioners with several proposals that were agreed upon at the February 25 meeting of the Park Board.

Members of the Board proposed to close the community park to all thru traffic. Gates at the south and east entrances of the inner park will be closed and locked and traffic will be prohibited in the inner park area behind the rodeo area and in front of the baseball diamonds. All persons entering the park area will be asked to park their vehicles outside the innerpark area and walk to the baseball diamonds. The purpose for the proposal is to insure the safety of all persons in the park area. The traffic congestion in the spring and summer months has grown immensely in the last several years with the organization and expansion of the women's and men's softball leagues. The proposal by the Park Board will make the risk factor for children and adults in the baseball area much less severe.

The Park Board also presented a proposal to the Court for the future pavement of the proposed parking area which will extend from the fence line of the 4-H Center east and north around Field 1. The commissioners agreed that the proposals by the Park Board were relevant and offered their support in future activities by the Board.

C Of C Industrial Committee Report On Austin Seminar

Members of the Sonora Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee agreed that the seminar held in Austin by the Texas Industrial Commission was both successful and informative.

The TIPS (Texas Industrial Planning Seminar) was well represented by both TIC personnel, experts in the field and our industrial allies.

duction to Industrial Development' and 'Assisting Existing Industry'; Danny Choate, Manager, Research & Data Services, 'Research and Analysis'; Rick Vaughn, Director, Community Development, Lone Star Gas Company, 'Evaluating, Securing & Presenting Sites'; Don Weber, Industrial Development Consultant, 'Industrial Training'; Mike McAndrew, Business Finance Consultant, 'Industrial Financing' and Joe Ferran, Senior Industrial Development Consultant, 'Where to Find Prospects'.

Doyle Morgan

Morgan Has Served Us Well

by Becky Ponsetti
Doyle Morgan and his family moved to Sonora some twenty years ago. During those two decades, Sonora has undergone some very radical changes, and has survived them with the help of dedicated individuals like Doyle Morgan. I promised not to throw a lot of bouquets to Doyle, so I'll make this short and sweet.

Doyle served on the City Council of Sonora for six years, two of those years, he spent as Mayor. In 1974 when Doyle was first elected to serve on the Board, Sonora was faced with severe problems due to its rapid growth. The water and electrical systems had to be reworked, and housing needs, although still more than housing are not what they were six years ago. He gave due credit to the people who brought prosperity to our community many times, and was present at the many ribbon cuttings, special ceremonies and such that took him away from his business and his family.

Doyle was born and raised in Madison County, Texas. It was there in a cotton patch that he picked up his famous dry sense of humor. "I had a lot of time to think", he stated. He attended college at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville where he earned a Bachelor and Master Degrees in Business Administration.

He moved to Sonora in 1960 to assume the duties as high school Principal. In 1967, after he resigned from the high school staff, Morgan went into the insurance business. With the success of his business, he expanded his capital with the purchase of the Devil's river News, which he bought from John T. King in 1970. He ran the newspaper with the assistance of his wife, Fae, until they sold to Gus Allen, the present publisher in 1975.

Doyle has added much to our community. Through his influence on the City Council, many of the needs of Sonora became realized. I'm sure that I speak on the behalf of the entire council, city employees, and residents of Sonora when I say that he will be missed in City government. Here's wishing him an even brighter future and lots of good sales.

IRS Gives Aid To Working Parents

Working parents whose earned income and adjusted gross income for 1979 was less than $10,000 and had a child living with them, may now be eligible to receive up to $500 in earned income credit. In order to claim the credit, those eligible must file a return even if they owe no tax. The credit is based both on their earnings and adjusted gross income. For incomes over $6,000, the credit declines on a sliding scale and phases out completely once a person's income reaches $10,000. The new change also allows individuals to receive advance payments of the credit each payday. Qualifying persons should ask their employers for and fill out Form W-5 "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificates." Page 2 of the federal tax instructions has details about how to claim the earned income credit. Taxpayers with questions should call the IRS toll-free number listed in the local telephone directory.

West Texas Gadabout

by Sam Pendergrast

DEL RIO—First off, let me take back nearly everything I used to think about this colorful old town "Of the River".

I had visited "the town this side of Cuna" only once before, as a columnist for a San Angelo newspaper, and (although I recall writing warmly about some of her people) I think I was not at all that impressed by the town itself.

Now I'm happy to be able to credit my malaise to my own ignorance. (Happy because editorial opinions are transitory and usually wrong but really unique cities are hard to find—even in West Texas.) I just spent my time judging parades and beauties and shaking Chamber of Commerce hands and missed the heart and soul of Del Rio.

Until I spent a week at the Del Rio News-Herald late last year writing a little book called "ZEN CHILL: The Real Terlingua and Other Boondoggles", I didn't know, for instance, that the actual bones of the storied "Law West of the Pecos" are not buried at the Roy Bean Museum at Langtry up the river or the "Jersey Lilly" replica at Pecos but right here where the 78-year-old pioneer died in 1903.

The "Lilly" likeness at the historically breathtaking Whitehead Museum-Park a few blocks from downtown Del Rio is another replica, but the tombstones of Judge Bean and his son mark the real graves to which the bodies were moved by the indomitable lady who heads up the Whitehead exhibit developed in recent years around the solid, two-story stone building that was for years the Perry Store and considered the biggest place of business between San Antonio and El Paso.

And knowledgeable guide Macedonio Aguilar isn't too knowledgeable about English, so it's fun to practice your Spanish while touring the block-square complex of log cabins, 1850's clothes, Indian artifacts (and bones) and traces of Jefferson Davis's Camel Corps that camped up the creek until the Union secretary of war became the Confederate president and lost track of the ungainly beasts that might have revolutionized the locomotion of Western America if it hadn't been for the Civil War.

San Felipe Springs (I think there are seven of them) produce billions of gallons of water now adapted to a golf course and miles of wonderfully developed picnic sites, ball-parks, fishing holes, and just plain loafing edens around historic San Felipe, where the community began and where many of the Latin natives still live in old-time charm and dream of finishing the restoration of the "Old Town" plaza.

I'm eager to experience it first-hand, but Publisher J. Tom Graham says the best entertainment anywhere takes place when they hold a "Night in Old Town" and open the historic sector to neighbors and the thousands of tourists who have been discovering this city busting out all over since the U.S. and Mexico built the big dam to create Lake Amistad ("Friendship") from the waters of the Rio Grande and the Pecos.

Everybody knows (or used to know) about the "goat gland man" who turned Del Rio into a miracle health spa in the palmy 30's, but I had missed both his palatial estate (now being restored by new owners) and the nearby Valverde Winery with its venerable grapefields along one of the ancient acequias (irrigation ditches) which provide more water than anybody ever needs for the lush lawns and tropical greenery of banana trees and wild pines.

They tell me it's the oldest winery in Texas, and

I can report at first hand its three specialties (from dry white wine to sweet red) would be hugely competitive in liquor stores anywhere if the one-family winery ever had an excess beyond what neighbors and visitors snap up fresh out of the barrels.

Texas schoolboys have always been more interested in the nightlife of Acuna (now a ciudad of some 50,000 population with two more-or-less daily newspapers and thousands of factory jobs in the growing system of international commerce built on American dollars and Mexican manos). Biggest disappointment for me was to find they haven't built the suburban bullring that was supposed to replace the old downtown corrida they were tearing down during my first visit.

But one of my favorite places is the little plaza downtown with giant busts of the heroes of the Mexican revolution including the handsome teenaged poet-martyr after whom the town was named and one of my heroes, Benito Juarez, whose inscription still speaks volumes in noting the only guarantee of peace between nations is a healthy respect for the rights of others.

Boycotting The 1980 Olympics

From The Offices Of Tom Loeffler

The President in January imposed a firm deadline on the Soviets to withdraw their troops from Afghanistan. If they ignored the ultimatum, the United States would seek to boycott the Olympics in Moscow this summer.

That deadline has come and gone.

Soviet troops and Soviet mechanized divisions continue to roll into that country. According to recent reports, there are now some 100,000 troops amassed along the eastern border with Iran, and on the southern border leading to the Straits of Hormuz.

If the Soviets have any intention of withdrawing their troops, they are keeping it a closely guarded secret.

This country must respond accordingly.

Diplomatic and economic pressure must be intensified. No serious avenues should be overlooked in our effort to make it clear that Soviet actions in Afghanistan will cost them an ever higher price.

The extent of Soviet geopolitical ambitions should no longer be in doubt. And I hope the lessons of the past few months are not lost on those who would have this country initial an arms agreement with the Soviets. The proposed SALT II treaty, temporarily withheld from Senate consideration because of Soviet actions, is apparently still a high-priority item by this Administration.

Soviet actions in Afghanistan, make a mockery of their words. Peace is important to them, only if it does not infringe on larger aims.

That is why this country must pursue every means at its disposal to let the world know the United States will not tolerate Soviet interventionism.

In my view, boycotting the Olympics is a correct expression of this country's condemnation of the Soviet's blatant aggression.

It is not a position I take lightly. As an athlete growing up in the Texas Hill Country, sports were a major part of my life. I can well understand the sacrifice that we will be asking our athletes to make. I can fully appreciate the many, many hours-even years-these young Olympians have devoted to one objective—a slot on the United States team this summer. For many it has been a lifelong dream.

The issue of this country boycotting the Olympic games this summer has raised serious questions.

Does boycotting the games have more than symbolic value? Is international competition the proper forum to register political condemnation of a country? Will it have any impact on the Soviets?

I believe the answers are clear.

Our Olympians will be making a sacrifice. But the cause is larger than sports.

The Olympics stand for many things. But foremost among these things is peace. The real issue is whether the games should be held in a country which is itself committing a serious breach of international peace. This is the argument presented to the United States Olympics Committee. It is persuasive, in my view.

For this country to participate in the Olympics in a country that is warning against another is, in the words of the Secretary of State, "to lend the Olympic mantle to that Nation's actions."

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

Ed Gottschalk of Ballinger keeps a rod and reel on the dash of his pickup and a rifle behind the seat. "No, I can't remember the last time I wet the hook on that thing," he laughed as we headed for the coffee-shop. "But, I have it if I get finished with my feed rounds a little early one of these mornings and just happen to be near the river."

Gottschalk says the recent moisture has put his terrain in good shape. I have good grazing on my grain fields. Matter of fact, if we get a little moisture along and about a week or so of warm weather that grain is going to shot up and we will have all kinds of grazing and make a crop as well."

He says he puts blocks out for his sheep. "I believe I will continue to put out the blocks out until spring even if we have some grazing in the pastures later on. It is expensive but I just believe they will pay it back in the long run."

Fred Case, Eldorado Hereford breeder, predicts a good spring forthcoming. His ranch was located in a dry strip last year that seemed to miss every shower that came through West Texas passing within a few miles of his fence line. Edsel Newsom, with Producers Livestock Auction in San Angelo, thinks cattle runs will be lighter from now until June because of the unexpected winter moisture over much of West and Central Texas. "There is going to be a little more picking the pastures and ranchmen will hang on to their stock a bit longer if they don't have to feed them every day," he added.

Newsom is optimistic about the cattle market. "I just believe it will remain strong since there are not as many numbers in the country," he commented.

A Saturday or so ago when sleet and some snow blanketed the Texas Hill Country, Logan and Gay Stevens, who ranch near Fredonia threw a roping in memory of Smokey Kuykendall. The event, along with a goat barbecue benefited the West Texas Rehabilitation Centers.

This writer went down to Mason County to take part in the show which went on despite the 26 degree temperatures. Calf ropers mounted their horses, entered the arena and roped their calf, and hurried back to the fire until their number came up again.

Well, they kept up the pace until 1 a.m. "We warmed our insides with barbecue and beer about dark and sort of got our second wind," smiled Logan. "We raised over $1,500 for Rehab while having fun."

Charlie Johnston and John Dublin of San Angelo got to talking about those kind of cold days and nights and "how soft all of us old ranch-types have gotten over the years."

"I just got to thinking the other day how we would be out on the range with a fence building crew, sleep in a bedroll on the ground, cook meals over an open fire... just out there with the elements," reminisced Johnston.

"Well, you know," grinned Dublin. "When we were living on the ranch out at Barnhart, I got up day after day at 4 a.m., worked hard all day long and never thought anything about it. I believe if I tried that now... about the third morning and this old bird wouldn't be getting up."

Remembering the "good old days" provides a good bit of entertainment to all of us, but few of us would really want to go back to them entirely.

TS & GRA Meeting Celebrates Progress In Predator & Screwworm Control

If sheepmen could bottle the atmosphere they created at the recent Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association winter directors meeting in Brownwood, the proceeds could carry them through drought, pestilence and even bureaucratic scourges.

It was the kind of upbeat mood that most folks would pay good money to enjoy. Why was it that way? There were many reasons, but none of them alone can explain it.

Take predator control. Things have been dreary on the coyote front the last few years, each year a little drearier than the last, in fact. This hasn't really changed appreciably, but there are indications now that it may.

At least a growing number of stockmen think it may change, and therein lies the jewel. Tired of continually giving up crucial ground to the environmentalist, stockmen show every sign now of rearing back on their hind legs and pressing the attack. There was talk at the Brownwood meeting of seriously pushing a switch of the ADC program from Interior to USDA, even of snatching the miserable little starling away from the feds altogether and nurturing it at home in Texas. In the meantime, U.S. Senator John Tower has introduced a bill that would put a few teeth back into the federal predator program.

Then there was the case of the off-again, on-again toxic collar study. Interior Secretary "Anrus" vow to end 1080 research brought an order to cancel a toxic collar test underway at Meridian, but what must have been surprisingly heavy pressure from friendly forces managed to reverse that order.

In other developments, Association people heard at Brownwood that the golden eagle trapping program may be showing good signs and—wonder of all wonders—the eagle team even has authority to relocate bald eagles when necessary.

There were other areas where things appear to have a positive glow. Folks have been fretting for some time about the possible impact of federal rules on non-point source pollution, but a representative from the Texas Water Board told the TS&GRA that almost all Texas rivers and streams meet federal water quality rules not even in effect yet.

As for the future, he said he doubted the rules would get much tougher because even the feds are beginning to realize that quality improvements above current levels are going to cost too much money for too little gain. That should ease the non-point source problem some.

This "point of diminishing returns" situation is becoming more and more clear to more and more people, according to Texas state representative Lynn Nabers, Brownwood. Both Nabers and legislative colleague Gerald Geistweidt, Mason, warned that rural Texas voters will lose more representation after the 1980 census, but Nabers added that even many of the urbanites who'll profit from that loss are beginning to get fed up with the types of liberal philosophies their country cousins fear they'll favor. Environmental regulations in particular, he said, are more and more being viewed as excessive and counterproductive.

Then there was the fond farewell to screwworms. Mission Screwworm Director Dr. James Novy told association members that the destructive parasite has essentially been eradicated from the U.S., at least sufficiently to begin considering a phase-out of the U.S. sterile fly plant.

There was still more. Though actual market prices are high enough to make it an academic point, producers were encouraged to hear that the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service has raised mohair incentive levels 15 percent, forming an effective floor against any future slippage.

Another positive sign was an indication that Texas A&M may soon establish a branch veterinary diagnostic lab at the San Angelo Research and Extension Center. This branch would concentrate on sheep and goats, such as an Amarillo branch VDL is geared toward beef cattle.

Of course, there were a few clouds, such as the one over the Knox City SCS Plant Materials Center and other such centers across the nation. Rhett Johnson, SCS spokesman, told TS&GRA that USDA is considering plans to do away with the plant research system that has brought many of the improved forage varieties now in wide use across Texas. Johnson also said that Great Plains Conservation program is set to expire by 1981 unless extended by federal legislation.

Sutton Co. 4 - Hers To Hold Meeting March 10

Six Flags To Feature Judge Roy Scream

Six Flags Over Texas begins its 20th season Saturday, March 1.

Highlighting the day's activities will be the grand opening of the park's new, 2.1 million dollar, wooden roller coaster known as "Judge Roy Scream, the Awe West of the Pecos."

The park's general manager, Ray Williams said, "The Judge is the biggest addition in the park's history." It covers almost eight acres along the shore of the Entryway Lake.

"Our initial tests quickly confirmed that we have one great ride on our hands. Guest are particularly going to like the first drop. You get the feeling that you're falling vertically," he concluded.

Riding in the first car of the inaugural train on the Judge Roy Scream, will be Miss Texas, Les Ann Haughey, and Theresa Pool of Arlington.

In 1961, Ms. Pool, then five years old, was the first guest ever to step through Six Flags' gates.

Adding to the excitement and color of the coaster opening, will be a special appearance by the Apache Belles and Apache Band from Tyler Junior College.

Scream is the centerpiece of Six Flags' additions for 1980," Williams said. "one of the most ambitious renovation projects in the park's history has been underway throughout the entertainment center."

One of the larger projects has involved a virtually total revamping of the Caddo Canoe lake area. During the summer months it will be the site of a nightly fireworks spectacular.

There are literally hundreds of subtle changes everywhere in the park. Beautiful rock walls have appeared where there were once concrete blocks. Pools beneath decorative fountains, once painted, are now covered with colorful ceramic tiles. The list goes on and on. We think our guests will be very, very pleased with both the quality and freshness of the park.

Six Flags Over Texas will be open Saturdays and Sun days, only, during the spring. The lone exception will be the Easter holiday period, March 29 through April 10, when the park will operate on a daily basis. Daily operation for the summer months will begin May 17.

Poerner Claims Petroleum Era Won't Halt Abruptly

While pointing out that the present United States policy of "cheap energy now-nothing later", must change, Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner today said that the petroleum era is not coming to an abrupt end.

"Oil and gas are expected to provide more than half of the free world's energy through the end of this century," he said in an address before the Weatherford Rotary Club.

"What is coming to an end is the age of constantly expanding petroleum supplies," Poerner explained, while the "era of cheap energy has vanished."

Noting predictions that petroleum production in the free world will probably peak out between 1985 and 1990, the RRC chairman continued, "there will be increasing pressure to both conserve energy and to more rapidly exploit coal and other alternative energy sources."

"The development and utilization of alternate energy supplies will make possible the increasing use of petroleum for more desirable purposes--as a basis for producing transportation fuels, petrochemicals and lubricants," Poerner added.

He explained that such activities will be directed more toward "efficiency and the production of products of higher value and less toward volume."

While he is "confident" that the U.S. can make this transition, Poerner said that we must make certain important decisions right now.

"This nation will meet the future with flying colors if we accept the changes necessary to accommodate a shrinking resource base," he said. "We must provide the investment climate necessary to maximize resource development and accept the fact that a certain degree of risk is inherent in developing adequate resources to meet future needs."

The RRC chairman said there are a number of steps we can take immediately to help meet our future energy needs:

"First, we must make serious efforts at conservation," he said, explaining that the Japanese in 1977, used only 4.4 million barrels of heavy oil--less than the U.S. imports daily--to generate electric power for their "bullet train." He said that if all of the train's passengers that year had used private automobiles, they would have consumed 10 times as much energy.

"Second, the only way to break OPEC's stranglehold is to step our supply of domestic energy," he added. Price controls have kept us in a "non-competitive posture" in the world market, Poerner stressed. He said that Americans need to accept the fact that profits from old oil are crucial to pay for finding new oil or enhancing production from old reservoirs.

Third, we must make better use of federal lands," Poerner continued.

"About half of all known remaining energy reserves in this nation are on federal land--yet fully 60 percent of the onland federal estate has been formally closed or severely restricted to exploration and development for ecological reasons."

Poerner described federal lands as a multiple use resource that should be "leased, explored, drilled and produced, but in harmony with other ecologically desirable uses."

"Finally, I am firmly convinced that the most valuable contribution the federal government could make would be to encourage a healthy climate in which the free market system could operate," Poerner said.

"In addition to decontrolling prices, the most positive step would be a reevaluation and rationalizing of environmental policies," he explained, pointing out that incredibly complex and lengthy" federal permit and siting procedures have

"in reality" done little to enhance the environment.

Permian Basin Energy Quiz

Practically every job in the Permian Basin is related directly or indirectly to the petroleum industry. Without oil and gas a fair number of the towns in the Basin would not even exist, and the population would be less than 25 percent of what it is today.

How much do you know about this vital industry that is the basic bread and butter for most of the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico? The Permian Basin Petroleum Association has prepared the following mini-quiz to test your knowledge of the oil and gas industry.

Give yourself one point for each correct answer. If you miss only one or two questions, consider your knowledge of the oil industry superior; three to four misses and you're still pretty good; five or six misses gives you a fair knowledge of the industry, but seven or more incorrect answers indicates a need to better inform yourself.
