Sinaloa to Benefit From City Annexation Proposal

Sinaloa residents have been informed that the petition which circulated through their community for the annexation of the Sinaloa Addition has been accepted by the Sonora City Council.

The City Council has set the date for the election on June 7, 1980. The residents of Sinaloa must make note of one stipulation in this election. Only registered voters who are inhabitants of the addition will be able to vote on the annexation proposal.

This proposal includes the construction of a sewer system to serve this addition along with many other benefits from the incorporation with the city including the services of the City Animal Control Officer, City Police protection, street maintenance, the placing of traffic signs, and fire insurance credit for homes and property for the residents of Sinaloa.

The Sinaloa residents will, of course, pay city taxes if their addition is annexed into the corporate city of Sonora. These taxes would balance out to equal the total yearly cost of city utility services paid now by the Sinaloa residents.

According to City Manager, Jim Dover, the average property owner will pay $20 to $30 in city taxes each year.

"The benefits in service, maintenance, and protection offered by the city would outweigh the taxes to be paid by the addition residents," Dover commented.

A special meeting of the City Council will be called for members to set the location of the polling place, time the election will be held, and the election officials for this election concerning the annexation of the Sinaloa Addition into the City of Sonora.

The Class Of 1980 Commencement Exercises Held For SHS Class Of 1980

Sixty-seven students graduated from Sonora High School during commencement exercises held Friday evening at Bronco Stadium.

School Board President, Sam Perez, along with Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Joe Andrews, and High School Principal don Jones, presented the students with their diplomas signifying the completion of twelve years in the public school system.

The graduation exercises were different this year as they were not held on the school campus. Instead, they were held at Bronco Stadium, affording adequate seating for all the friends and relatives of the graduates.

Ed Martinez and the Mighty Bronco Band provided the traditional

"Pomp and Circumstance" and Susan Allen, vocalist for the band, led them in a beautiful piece entitled "Looking Through the Eyes of Love."

Addresses were given by Salutatorian, Jamie Condra and Valedictorian, Debbie Perez.

Awards were given to those students graduating with high honors. These students included those who retained an average of 90 or above during all four years in high school. Those students are Alissa Adkins, Paige Pollard, Mary Jo Lynch, Linda Sue Smith, James Kent Cagle, Carla Rene Lee, and Nora Lee Galindo.

Also awarded for scholastic achievement were those students who had a grade average of 90 or above throughout their senior year. Those students included Rae Ann

Bible, Diana S. Green, Michelle Marie Mooney, Maria B. Gonzales, Carl Bruce Bartz, Stephanie Short, Samuel Lee Renfro, Emily Kathryn Elliott, and Enrique Torres Sanchez Jr.

Not pictured but receiving an award was Elodia Galindo.

Senior Center Honors Older Texans

Pedro and Rosa Galindo Sr. were awarded the certificate for the outstanding Older Texans. This award was presented in appreciation for leadership and unselfish service along with appreciation for the volunteer service of these to persons by all the individuals who participate in the Sutton Senior Center program of the Concho Valley Council of Governments.

The Sutton Senior Center serves the senior citizens of our community through the volunteer services of many of our local citizens. These persons, as well as the paid employees of the Sutton Senior Center, deserve a big thanks for providing social activities for the senior citizens of our community.

Ordinance 180 Revisited

Each spring, the rabies cases in Sutton County seem to mount despite all efforts to the contrary. This year is no exception. The Sonora Animal Hospital has reported nearly twenty cases of rabies in Sutton County alone with the greatest number of cases being diagnosed in foxes.

Sutton County Health officials would like each pet and animal owner to know that all pets must be vaccinated against rabies under State Law.

The City of Sonora has been at war with the rabies epidemic since the city came into existence. Several ordinances concerning the keeping of animals within the city limits have been drawn up specifying the needs of animals toward the elimination of rabies from Sutton

County.

Ordinance 180, passed by the City Council in May of 1979 specifically identifies the rights and guidelines of pet owners who have pets inside the city limits. Following is a capsule version of the ordinance.

All dogs and cats harbored or maintained by their owners in the City shall be tagged, vaccinated, and registered.

It shall be unlawful for pet owners to allow their animals to roam at large beyond the boundaries of the premises of the owner.

The Animal Control Officer or the Police Chief is designated to have the right to catch, collect, or pen any animal found running at large, and it is also the right of these officers to confine these animals for three days at the city pound until the owner showing proof of ownership shall pay a pound fee of two dollars.

If the animal has not been picked up in this designated time, the Animal Control Officer has the right to destroy the animal, or if the animal is particularly vicious, to destroy the animal on sight, without notice to the owner.

In the case of rabies, the Animal Control Officer is designated to have the authority to destroy any or all animals displaying vicious propensities and infected with the disease.

If you haven't had your pets vaccinated against rabies, and do not have them tagged, you are in violation of this ordinance.

Attempted

Assault Reported

At approximately 3:36 a.m. on Wednesday, May 21, the Sonora Police Department received a call concerning a woman who had been the victim of an attempted assault.

The woman, unidentified for reasons of privacy, was reportedly outside moving her car because of the rain when she was grabbed from behind and warned to go along with the assailant or she would be injured. After struggling with her assailant, the woman escaped and ran into her home, locked the door and called the police.

The assailant has been described by the victim as white male with dark brown bushy hair and a beard and mustache wearing a dark brown long sleeved shirt and jeans. He was approximately 5'11" to 6'3" and weighed between 185 and 200 pounds.

The woman was examined by a local doctor and the Physicians report reveals that the victim received multiple contusions and superficial lacerations.

No suspects have been found in the case. Sonora Police are still investigating the attempted assault.

Margarita Trevino Little League Looks Forward To Season

by Bill Harle

Three games have been played in the major league of the Sonora Little League. If the first three games are an indication of the rest of the season, we are in for a wild and unpredictable race.

However, there are several concrete facts which are readily ascertainable to any fan. One, for instance, the pitching of several youngsters is absolutely outstanding. Two, the fielding by in large of all teams seems to be above average. Three, not many boys are seen taking four pitches. Most are up at the plate swinging for that base hit - and that looks good.

We would encourage any baseball fan to come out to the Little League park on Tuesdays and Thursdays and see these Sonora youngsters play the game. They really do it justice.

Also every one in town should be aware that all boys who are in little league this year will be selling ballpark pens.

These pens are extra nice and well worth the one dollar ($1.00) each that the boys are asking. Be sure and buy one or as many as you can.

We would like to make note of three other things.

1. If any of you moms and dads can spare the time, we could sure use some more volunteers for base and plate umpires.

2. Attention the above for scorekeepers.

3. The concession stand is being headed up by Jo Ann Jones. If any of you dads and moms can find the time or help out in some other ways it would be appreciated. You can contact Jo Ann on Tuesdays or Thursdays at the little league concession stand.

Also, we would like to say a special thanks to Mr. Saul Palos, owner of Triangle Tire Service for the use of one of his trucks. He provided an air compressor truck for two days to paint the fence around the little league park.

Mr. Reuben Samaniego and Manuel Parades have almost finished painting the bleachers and they look really good.

Thanks also to the City employees who got the lights ready and those who helped with the field.

Don't forget that the minor league boys get started practicing this weekend the first game will be Monday June 2.

A T-Ball Game will precede each Minor League game with four players each from the Astros and Rangers playing four players from the Indians and Cardinals. This game begins at 5:30 p.m. and has a 1 hour time limit.

See you at the game!

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

At the regular monthly meeting of the West Texas chapter of Professional Agricultural Workers Society, subject on the agenda was the current farm program. However, with usually good May rains going on outside, conversation focused on the weather.

Good general rains have blessed ranchmen for the past several weeks. However, most of West and Central Texas is in bad need of some runoff water. Stock tanks are dry, many rivers and creeks are either very low or dried up.

Chester Kenley, who ranches in Crockett County, says some accumulative amounts of "maybe two and a half inches have brought some green grass and stopped feeding, but we really need to wash out some water gaps."

In Menard County last week, particularly in the Fort McKavett area, some water gaps got wet after different amounts of scattered showers resulted in nearly four inches at several gauge measurements. But other parts of the county didn't get so much.

Stanley Lackey of Junction finished seeding his last field two days before a good rain near Roosevelt.

And P.P. Ewald, San Angelo headquartered cotton buyer, was out checking cotton in Concho County following last week's rain. Many of the cotton farmers are following a new planting schedule this year, hoping to get around the boll weevil infestation. So, as a result much of the cotton in Runnels, Concho, and Tom Green counties may not be planted until mid-June.

With shearing of sheep and some Angora goats yet, many ranchmen have started watching the wool and mohair market. A two day sale was in progress in Del Rio at this writing. Generally, trading has been going on during May but a lower price across the board from this time last year.

According to one of my sources, Rocksprings Wool and Mohair Co. sold some 47,000 pounds of mohair recently, 25,000 pounds of choice adult for $3.022, 7,000 pounds of young goat for $3.427, and 15,000 pounds of kid at $4.127.

Also in the Angora Goat Capitol of the World, Priour-Varga Wool and Mohair Co., Rocksprings, sold around 50,000 pounds of 12 months wool for 97 cents a pound up with the bulk from $1.08 to $1.10.

Glen Fisher, manager of Sonora Wool and Mohair Co., has pretty well sold any accumulation of wool and mohair along for market prices.

Well, here I am at the end of another column of which I started talking about one subject and end up way off track. To clear the focus, let me add: That's pretty much the way we decided the USDA farm program was much to deep for a bunch of ranchmen to discuss anyway!

Managing Game Birds For Profit

Management practices to benefit game bird species can net landowners significant returns per unit of capital input. Throughout Central Texas the wild turkey, bobwhite quail, scaled quail and mourning dove are the species found on most farms and ranches. Although each species has different habitat requirements, landowners can apply management practices that will be beneficial for these species. Quite often a single applied practice will benefit several different wildlife species.

The most basic habitat requirements for any wildlife is adequate food and cover. Turkeys need brush cover for feeding and large trees or other tall structures for roosting. Except for roost cover, the turkey's habitat needs are almost parallel to those of the whitetail deer. Small grains, planted for winter grazing for deer are also used by turkeys.

Brush management planned on rangelands should provide for strips and motts to be left for wildlife. Large mast producing trees such as oak, hackberry, pecan, and plum should be preserved, as well as vines such as grape and green brier. Brush around turkey roosts should be left undisturbed for a minimum radius of 100 yards.

Bobwhite quail prefer denser woody cover than scaled quail. They are found on croplands and adjacent wooded areas more often than scaled quail. They also prefer weedy fence rows and odd areas that have become overgrown. Scaled quail prefer dryer, shortgrass rangelands that have scattered spiny species such as prickly-pear, lotebushes, agarito, scrub mesquite and an occasional juniper. One or two of these per acre are sufficient for scaled quail.

On croplands in grain crops, extra food and cover can be provided by leaving narrow strips unharvested. Unharvested grain strips are especially beneficial when left adjacent to protective cover such as weedy fence rows or brushy motts. On rangelands, extra natural food can be provided by discing or shallow chiseling small areas 1/2 to 2 acres in size.

This promotes native weeds such as crotton, snow-on-the mountain, buffalo-burd and ragweeds. The seeds of these species are highly preferred by quail and doves as well as many of the song birds.

Water requirements for the game birds vary greatly. Turkeys need free water daily. Hens will not nest more than 1/4 mile from an available water supply. Mourning doves require water at least twice daily. However, doves are highly mobile and will fly great distances from feeding grounds to available water. Water is not a critical habitat requirement for quail. Quail will readily take water when it is available, however, insects and seeds in the quail's diet and their unique digestive system, provide sufficient water to allow them to thrive under very arid conditions.

Rainfall is probably the most important climatic element that determines the reproductive success of a game bird population from year to year. Spring and early summer rains generally provide good weed growth and insect populations. Insects are especially important to turkey poults and quail chicks because their diet for the first 2 to 4 weeks is almost entirely insects. During periods of severe or prolonged droughts ground nesters may not attempt to produce a brood.

Little can be done by landowners to relieve the effects of a prolonged drought on the game bird population. During normal conditions, management practices that provide additional food and cover will allow game bird populations to increase and provide additional resources for the hunting public.

In central and north central Texas, landowners are leasing their lands for bird hunting at rates ranging from a few cents per acre to $2.00 per acre. Day hunting for dove and quail in areas with excellent hunting, ranges from $5 to $20 per gun.

Management practices to improve habitat and subsequent increase in numbers of game birds can bring landowners cost/benefit ratios ranging from 1:2 to as high as 1:5.

Landowners that do not manage or harvest their game birds are losing a significant part of a renewable resource that could become an annual cash crop. The demand for hunting is increasing each year and it is up to the enterprising landowner to fill that demand and in so doing, realize a nice profit for his efforts.

Farm Bureau To Stimulate Ideas

Texas farmers and ranchers are searching for energy ideas. Through the Texas Farm Bureau, a general farm organization of 255,000 members, a program has been designed to surface ideas to conserve and produce energy for agriculture.

The Farm Bureau Energy Idea Search program was recently announced to the membership of the organization, and FB leaders expect to surface some innovative ideas and technology which will save energy in farm buildings, farm operations, or produce energy needed for agriculture.

Ideas will be judged by a panel of qualified judges, and ideas selected will be published in Texas Agriculture, the organization's publication. TFB will pay $25 for each published idea. Each idea selected by the state organization will be sent to the American Farm Bureau Federation headquarters in Chicago, Ill., where a number will be selected for publication in AFBF's publication, Farm Bureau News, for $25 each. Up to ten ideas will be selected for presentation as symposium papers with awards for $500 each, and up to ten entrants will receive $5,000 research grants to continue work on their ideas.

The idea search is designed to stimulate Farm Bureau members to share their energy-saving ideas and to encourage them to participate in further research and development of ideas that could benefit agriculture the most.

The Energy Idea Search is open to all Farm Bureau members and their immediate families, except Farm Bureau employees. Entry forms are printed in Texas Agriculture, (May, 1980) and additional forms can be obtained at country Farm Bureau offices.

Ideas will be accepted through September 1, 1980.

Rain Brings Relief

UVALDE---May 20, 1980 ---The region received more rainfall during the past two weeks than had been received during the previous ten months, since June 1979 when the area received the last significant rainfall. Some flooding, erosion and hail caused crop damage, but overall, the moisture will have a very beneficial effect. Pastures are greening up rapidly and surface stock tanks are full again. Live-stock liquidations have been temporarily suspended, but ranchers are afraid to re-establish sold herds until more sustaining rainfall is received in the southwest. The hay crop outlook improved substantially with the rainfall, but these late rains will not save many other dryland crops which were lost due to the severe drought.

Oil Import Fee Killed By Congress

In March, President Carter proposed a $4.62 a barrel of conservation fee...also known as the oil import fee. The fee would have raised about 10.3 billion dollars a year for the Federal Government. It also would add at least ten cents a gallon to the price of gasoline. On Tuesday, May 13th, a U.S. District Judge ruled that President Carter lacked the legal authority to impose the fee in a way designed to raise gasoline prices. The price increase will not go into effect while the federal government is appealing the Judge's ruling. Action by the Appeals Court is expected to take several weeks at a minimum. If President Carter wins the case, the will probably make the retroactive date 60 days before the fee finally takes effect. A coalition of Congressmen, consumer groups and oil distributors filed the suit challenging the president's authority to impose the fee.

One Department of Energy official said it was an uphill legal and political fight to begin with. He commented that it started out 50-50 and has been breaking the wrong way since.

The administration says the oil import fee is strictly designed to conserve energy rather than raise revenues while many members of Congress argue that the fee imposes a new tax on the people. Others say the tax might also include home heating oil as well as gasoline. Estimates range from a savings of between 30 and 100,000 barrels of oil a day if the fee is approved.

In addition, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 17 to 4 to kill the fee. The vote to stop the fee was 13 to 3 in the Senate Finance Committee. If Congress votes against the import fee, President Carter is expected to veto that action. Congress would then have to have a two-thirds majority to override the veto.

Tight Gas Sand Formations Presented At RRC Hearing

Representatives of more than 25 gas operators presented evidence at a Railroad Commission-called hearing today that 10 gas reservoirs in Texas should be designated tight gas sand formations.

The hearing, conducted as an informal conference, was called to assist the Commission in determining which formations in the state qualify as tight sand under guidelines of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The RRC will forward to the federal agency recommendations on the designation of these formations in Texas.

Oil and Gas Examiner Priscilla Hubenak, assisted by Examiner Andy Fritz and Assistant Director James E. Herring, conducted the proceeding.

The industry representatives presented the RRC panel with data on all or parts of these formations: Amacker-Tippett, Canyon, Cotton Valley, Edwards, Midway, Reklaw, Travis Peak, Vicksburg, Wilcos and Marble Falls.

Data obtained from studies of these formations indicate that the areas meet the FERC permeability and production criteria for tight sands, they said, and should be so designated.

In general, testimony by the industry representatives indicated that flow rates for the well depths involved and in situ permeabilities in each of the formations are well below the minimum FERC guidelines for tight sands.

Frank Douglas, representing Champlin Petroleum Co. and several other operators, said that some of the formations in the Cotton Valley Formation of East Texas are so tight that commercial production has been possible only with enhanced recovery techniques developed in the last 10 years.

Guy T. Buell, representing Amoco Production Co., added that more than half of a group of 80 wells in the same formation had flow rates too small to measure before enhanced recovery operations were completed.

George Page, representing Kling, Inc. said that four wells in the Reklaw formation had no production before fracturing techniques were used.

In a closing statement, Examiner Hubenak said that the RRC staff would require at least a month to prepare a report for the FERC. She added that she did not yet know what form the report would take, or how the industry representatives' comments would be included, but that the Commission would reserve the right to correspond with the witnesses for additional information if needed.

Representatives for these companies presented evidence at the hearing: Hunt Oil Co., Anadarko Production Co., American Petrofina, Amoco, Champlin, Exxon, Shell Oil, Stone Oil, Superior Oil Co., Ensearch Exploration Co., Cities Service Co., Kling Inc., Grace Petroleum, Forest Oil Corp, Tenneco, Chevron, USA, Conoco, Inc., Consolidated Oil & Gas producing enterprises, Inc., Good Hope Refineries, Gulf Oil Exploration, HNG Oil Company, Moore-McCormack Production, Pogo Producing Co., and Greer Petroleum Co.
