CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Texas farmers in 1982 exported more than $2.5 billion in agricultural products. This clearly is of extreme importance to the Texas economy, and to the nation's economic health. Thus, it is imperative that we maintain and expand foreign markets for our state's agricultural goods. During the past few weeks, I have been involved in several initiatives toward this end.

One of the potentially most effective is an amendment I introduced in the Senate Banking Committee to give the United States leverage in dealing with countries who receive loans from the International Monetary Fund. The amendment would require the Administration to consult with the appropriate Congressional committees before voting for any International Monetary Fund program or a nation that has import restrictions in violation of international agreements which would damage U.S. exports and employment.

This amendment was accepted by the committee, and I am confident that the full Senate also will agree to retain it in the IMF bill. Since the United States has enough voting shares in the IMF to veto any major action, this provision would give the U.S. the basis from which to negotiate effectively an end to many of the import restrictions which have hampered the ability of the American farmer to compete fairly in the world market.

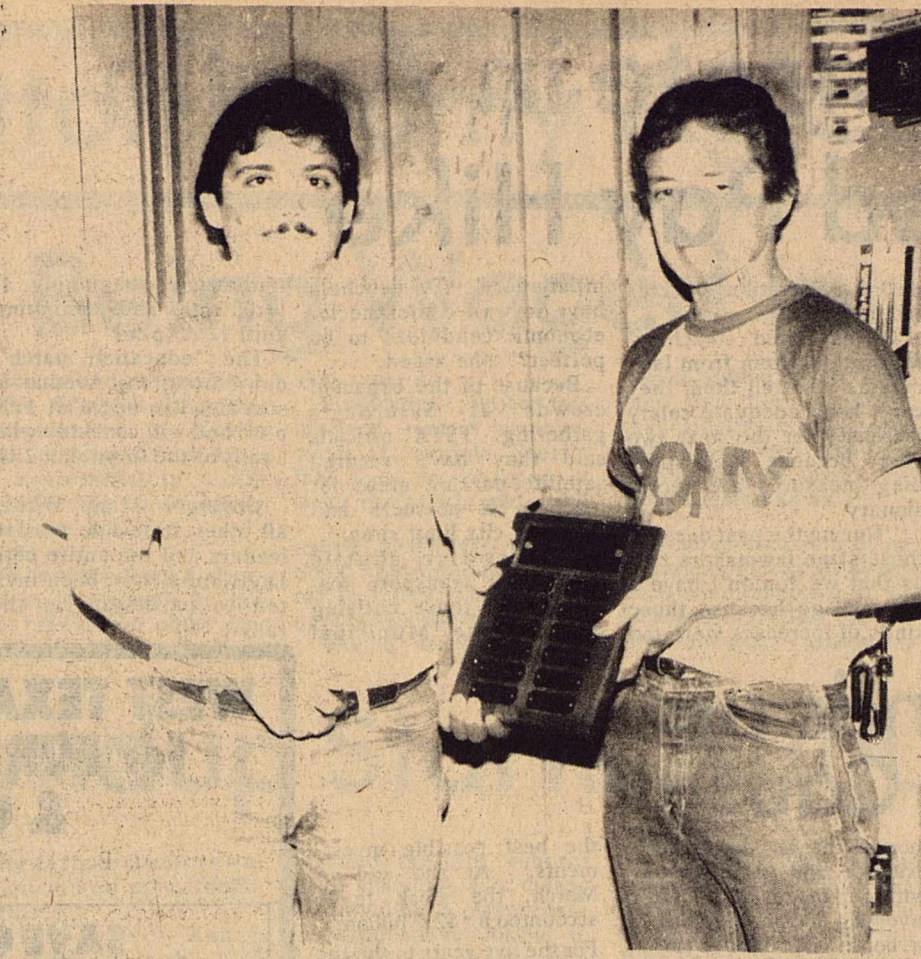

An additional major market for U.S. agricultural products is the Soviet Union. I discussed with senior Administration officials early in April the need to enter into a new long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union. The Administration expressed its desire to do so, and last week the Soviet Union agreed to enter into these negotiations. It is my hope that they can begin in early June.

A new long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union will go a long way toward re-establishing the reputation of the United States as a reliable trading partner.

Another recent Administration action will have a direct impact on the market for Texas cotton this year. The Senior Interagency Group for International Economic Affairs approved a $50 million credit package which will allow Korea to buy U.S. cotton at favorable interest rates. The Senior Interagency group originally had turned down the proposal, but changed its position after I asked the President to reconsider the earlier position.

Korea is a major purchaser of short-staple cotton, the type most commonly produced in Texas. This credit package will enable the U.S. to maintain its position as Korea's primary supplier of cotton, and Texas farmers will be among the major beneficiaries.

Our agricultural industry, though it is the most efficient in the world, still faces many problems because of unfair trade barriers erected by foreign governments. The actions I have outlined here will help us solve the problem, but there is much yet to be done. I plan to discuss the need for fair trade policies with European officials next week. And I will continue to work through every available channel to remove barriers to the sale of Texas and U.S. agricultural products.

Testing Date set for Nursing School

Preadmission testing for Hermann Hospital's School of Vocational Nursing will be held on June 4 and 18, and July 9.

The tests will be given on Saturdays at Hermann Hospital in Houston to those men and women interested in joining the class that begins in August.

People applying to the school must be high school graduates or have successfully completed each part of the G.E.D.

Teachers Demonstrate in Austin for Promised Pay Hike

Thousands of angry and frustrated Texas teachers gathered in Austin, Saturday, May 21, to demonstrate that they are "deadly serious" about a significant pay increase this year, according to officials of the 95,000 member Texas State Teachers Association.

TSTA this week urged members throughout Texas to come to Austin next weekend for an "education march" down Congress Avenue and a subsequent rally on the Capitol grounds.

TSTA President Barbara O'Neal said that early field reports indicated that thousands of Texas teachers and education supporters are responding.

"We want to make sure that the people of Texas realize that a very few wealthy men in the Texas House of Representatives are willing to sacrifice the educational needs of this state simply for political expediency," she said.

"That's outrageous and totally unacceptable to the majority of Texans."

"Education is at a critical crossroads. If we do not begin to address its needs during this session, we won't be able to halt the serious decline in quality education before the end of this century," the former Waco teacher added. "An entire generation of kids will be lost."

O'Neal said teachers' frustrations stem from lawmakers who tell them they can't have adequate salary increases for the next two years because such spending measures are recessionary.

"During the past decade, those same lawmakers told us that we couldn't have a living wage because those kinds of increases were too inflationary. Do teachers have to wait a lifetime for economic conditions to be perfect?" she asked.

Because of the expected crowds at Saturday's gathering, TSTA officials said they have secured satellite parking areas for teachers at northern and southern city limits.

Twenty-five shuttle buses will transport teachers from these outlying sites to the Municipal Auditorium, beginning at 11:00 a.m. and continuing until 12:45 p.m.

The "education march" down Congress Avenue is scheduled to begin at 1:00 p.m. and will conclude with a rally at the Capitol at 2:00 p.m.

Governor Mark White, all other statewide elected leaders and the entire 68th Legislature have been invited to participate in the rally.

Income Tax Refunds up IRA's Credited as Cause

Individual federal income tax refunds averaged a record $740 for 1982, up from $712 for 1981, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Tax-deductible contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) were part of the reason.

At the beginning of 1982, everyone who works for a living became eligible to invest up to $2,000 a year in an IRA, and the IRS says about 11 percent of taxpayers cut their 1982 tax liability by doing just that.

Eventually, of course, taxes are paid on IRAs, but not until withdrawals begin—usually after retirement, when most people are in a lower tax bracket.

Until then, contributions and earnings can grow untaxed, which can make quite a difference in the size of a retirement nest egg. (If you didn't put another penny in, a $740 tax refund check paying 10 percent a year for 30 years would grow to $12,913.

The same amount placed in a taxable investment paying the same rate would grow, over the same period to $5,633, for someone in the 30 percent tax bracket.)

According to Money's IRA Money Guide, there's "a strong argument for putting your IRA into a mutual fund family." Why? Flexibility. A family of funds encompasses several different types of mutual funds managed by the same organization; once you've put money in one, you can switch it to another virtually as often as you like, with just a simple phone call—and generally for as little as $5 per switch.

That means if you're in a money market fund, for example, and would like to put your money in a fund investing in common stocks or bonds, it's easy to do.

More and more people are switching—or putting in new money—to the common stock funds, taking advantage of the rise in the stock market. At the end of March, the stock funds accounted for $2.7 billion of the $7.4 billion invested in mutual fund IRAs.

Indeed, over both the long and short term, common stock mutual funds have proven to be among the best possible investments. At the end of March, the stock funds accounted for $2.7 billion. For the five years to the beginning of 1983, for example, such funds returned, on average, 17.1 percent annually—with all dividends and capital gains reinvested and all charges taken out. During the same period, the stock market as a whole—as measured by Standard & Poor's index of 500 common stocks—rose 14.1 percent each year, and the cost of living increased 9.5 percent a year.

Battle Being Waged in Mexico

Due to the successful screwworm eradication program in the continental United States, a large joint program has been implemented in Mexico to overwhelm the insect pest, emphasizes Dr. Clifford E. Hoelscher, entomologist based at Texas A&M University.

Hoelscher, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, says the success of the U.S. program was achieved by a cooperative effort of individual livestock producers, various livestock organizations and agencies and the dedicated work of program scientists and personnel. The Mexican program, headquartered in Mexico City, involves a work force of approximately 1,800 Mexican and 50 American scientists.

"The technology and expertise developed in the U.S. eradication effort was helpful in Mexico," Hoelsher reports. Eradication procedures involved several management strategies. Sterile flies were air dropped in large numbers to mate with native fertile fly populations. These matings resulted in the development of eggs which did not hatch. Wound treatment, improved animal health conditions and the use of an insecticide impregnated bait system were also used to eliminate the target pest from infested areas.

"The combination of eradication procedures all applied simultaneously to an area accomplished the desired results," Hoelscher says. A barrier zone eventually will be established at the Isthmus of Tehuantepec to prevent re-entry of the fly into areas to the north where the insect pest has been eliminated.

The tropical areas of central and southern Mexico provide a year round habitat for fly development--special problem for program operations.

The sporadic infestations of screwworms in south Texas and northern Mexico in the past few years have been quickly eradicated once they were identified. "Watchful" is the key work for Texas livestock producers to enhance surveillance for the screwworm," Hoelscher adds. Continued checking of all animals by owners for the pest is of prime importance, Hoelscher adds.

He urges owners to send a sample of at least 10 larvae found deep with in wounds of pets or livestock to the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Laboratory for identification. The complete address is P.O.

Ranchers Roundup Starts August 1-5

Ranchers from 25 states and several countries are expected here August 1-5 when the 3rd Annual International Ranchers Roundup convenes in this West Texas ranching hub.

Recognized as the largest, most comprehensive educational function ever organized for southwestern ranchers, the IRR will feature general sessions of interest to all ranchers and landowners, plus three days of intensified concurrent sessions in beef cattle, sheep and goats, grazing management, wildlife, marketing, business management for the ranch family, and a computer workshop. Thus far some 85 ranching experts have been confirmed to speak during the five-day event with about two dozen speakers yet to be selected. Several internationally known ranch experts are to be on hand for concurrent sessions.

Keynote speakers for the opening day general session include Dub Waldrip, president, National Cattlemen's Association; Hon. Tom Loeffler, U.S. Congressman; Cas Maree, prominent South American rancher; and Dr. Arthur G. Hansen, Chancellor of the Texas A&M University System, a key sponsor.

Other keynote speakers will be announced upon confirmation.

"Innovative Ranch Management" is the 1983 theme, according to IRR coordinators Dr. Larry White, Texas Agricultural Extension Service range specialist, Uvalde; Dr. LeRoy Hoermann, District Extension Director and formerly Extension livestock specialist, Uvalde; and Robert H. Kensing, Extension farm management specialist, San Angelo. Eighteen agricultural specialists from across the state serve on the IRR steering committee. Hoermann and White originated the IRR concept three years ago as a means of providing a comprehensive educational format to aridland ranchers who share common problems. Since its introduction in 1981 the multi-facet program has effectively served over 1,100 ranchers and has been favorably compared with the Texas A&M University animal science curriculum for its variety and quality of instruction.

From the outset the IRR has been held in the border area of Del Rio, Texas, with overwhelming success. Yet, in an effort to make the programs accessible to more ranchers throughout the Southwest, the coordinators opted to move the IRR to the San Angelo Convention Center for the 1983 event which promises to be much larger and more extensive.

Conference participants will have their choice of four separate ranch tours on August 5 featuring West Texas ranches noted for innovative management practices in beef cattle, sheep and goats, grazing systems plus a two-day overnight wildlife tour in the scenic Texas Hill Country near Kerrville.

Registered participants will also receive a copy of the 480-page bound IRR proceedings book containing most of the talks presented. This book has proved very useful by ranchers as a handy reference guide by many who have ordered extra copies of both

ICA Working with Brucellosis Support

The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, through President Roy G. Wheeler, came out swinging May 20th against the U.S. Department of Agriculture's efforts to intimidate the Texas Senate into passing brucellosis legislation which Wheeler said amounts to "a kick in the teeth to the smaller Texas cattlemen."

A flurry of letters and telegrams recently from three USDA officials have implied that they would place the Texas cattle industry under a federal quarantine unless H.B. 701 is given final approval by the Senate. Under H.B. 701, the Texas Animal Health Commission — rather than state legislators accountable to the public — would be given almost unlimited power to write brucellosis regulations.

"Throughout the entire brucellosis debate the smaller cattle raiser has been ignored and kicked around, and now certain federal officials are trying to intimidate out legislature into passing one of the most controversial and poorly thought-out bills that's ever come out of the hopper," Wheeler said. "It doesn't matter what kind of happy face they try to put on it, H.B. 701 is about as popular as a snakebite to the commercial cattle raiser."

Wheeler added that serious questions have been raised about the propriety of federal officials using their power to interfere in state affairs. "The philosophy of President Reagan regarding states' rights and his directive to reduce the budget of the brucellosis program and eventually phase it out are being trampled on by some of his appointees," Wheeler said. "We have asked that he immediately put an end to this abuse of power."

"It is absolutely wrong for federal bureaucrats to try to pressure, bluff or intimidate our state officials into passing legislation over which there is so much negative sentiment and unanswered questions," he said.

Wheeler said there is no legitimate reason to justify the Texas cattle industry being placed under quarantine. The state is complying for all practical purposes with the Uniform Methods and Rules (UM&R) and with the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) on the national brucellosis eradication program, even though the state program is being challenged in state court.

"What H.B. 701 would do is say to our cattlemen, 'We've got a bad program, but let's put it in the statute books anyway so it will be harder for our cattlemen to challenge it,'" Wheeler said.

Wheeler added that ICA has been portrayed as opposing any type of brucellosis program, although this is far from the truth.

"Certainly the ICA membership supports controlling this disease, but in a practical, economical manner emphasizing individual herd management," he said. "A successful program must put tremendous emphasis on calfhood vaccination and allow vaccinated adult female animals to move on their own negative test," Wheeler explained.

Livestock Inventory to Begin in Mid-May

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state in mid-May for 1983 crop information and mid-year livestock inventories.

State Statistician Doug Murfield emphasized that information from the crop surveys will be used by county ASCS offices to set yields for the farm programs. "A good response on these surveys means that we can return more accurate acreage and yield figures back to the counties," Murfield said.

"This information is more important than ever in 1983, especially with the many production options available to farmers and ranchers," Murfield added.

The confidential interviews, conducted by mail or in person by field enumerators, can also help producers in planning their production and marketing programs for the coming year.

To reduce survey costs, Murfield is urging farmers and ranchers to return the mailed questionnaires as soon as possible. The reported information will be combined for state and country estimates.

Annual county estimates are published for livestock, dairy, poultry, cotton, field crops, small grains, fruits and pecans, vegetables, and cash receipts from the sale of farm products.

Copies of these bulletins can be obtained by contacting the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, P.O. Box 70, Austin, TX. 78767.

Oil and Gas Statewide Hearing

The Railroad Commission today set the Texas oil production rate for June 1983 at the market demand factor of 100 percent for the 76th month in a row and the 132nd time since the Commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioner Jim Nugent directed the continuance of the maximum statewide allowable after receiving and reviewing purchaser nominations for Texas oil in June totaling 2,454,007 barrels per day, a decrease of 14,508 barrels daily when compared with May buyer requests. June 1982 nominations totaled 2,473,297 barrels daily. Next month's permissible rate of output is calculated to average 2,919,781 b/d with actual production estimated at 2,373 million b/d. The maximum allowable applies to all but 10 fields in Texas that are assigned lower legal rates of flow for conservation purposes. Actual production in June 1982 was 2,380,779 barrels daily.

Neither breast milk nor formula is a "perfect food" for Baby. Most infants need extra vitamin C and D, and iron.

Always ask the doctor what kind and how often to give vitamin supplements. Fruit juices are widely used sources of vitamin C. All Gerber juices are specially processed for infants, with carefully measured amounts of vitamin C.

When Baby weighs 11 to 13 pounds, chances are you can start feeding a Gerber iron-fortified cereal. This way, Baby learns to enjoy solid foods and gets a good supply of iron, too.
