The Texas Department of Commerce Business Development is in the process of attracting various industries for communities across the state. Your input is valuable in this endeavor as first it must be established as to what specific new or complimentary industries would fit into given areas. Importance is placed on the communities acceptance of a given Please answer the floowing question and return to the Devil's River News, 220 N.E. Main, by Friday, April 22, 1988.

"What new or complimentary industry to you feel would be best suited for the Sonora/Sutton County area and why?

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: I attended the recent Texas Business Council seminar in my area and was amazed to hear you urge employers to use the Texas Employment Commission to find qualified and even professional workers. I tried the TEC years ago and got mostly unqualified, unskilled, totally unsatisfactory applicants. I swore I would never again use the TEC. The computer exhibit you all had at the seminar was pretty impressive and that's why I am writing. Have things really changed that much at the TEC? Or can an employer expect to get the same old treatment.

McAllen, Texas

DEAR C.S.: You bet things have changed atthe TEC. We now have one of the most sophisticated computerized job matching systems in the United Stes and every employer in Texas has automatic access to this incredibly efficient resource. Thousands of professional people as well as skilled technicians are listed and many are willing to relocate.

An employer can call the TEC and list any job opening, specifying in detail what qualifications are required-how much education, what type of degree, what kind of specific skills or professional licenses, how much prior job experience, etc. In order to ensure that only the most promising applicants are selected for consideration, the employer should give as much information about the position as possible; for example, pay, benefits, work schedule, and description of job responsibilities.

Professional TEC interviewers will plug all of the requirements into the state linked, computerized job matching system and search the entire area or, if necessary, the state, for applicants that can meet the employer's needs. If the preliminary list of potential applicants is too extensive an employer can futher refine the requirements.

Texas Business Today

An employer that does not have time to interview fifteen or thirty people can specify a desire to have only top five candidates referred for interview. If non of the referrals are hired, we will send the next five and will continue until a match is made or the employer cancels the order.

I would urder all businesses to use this vital service. The job matching system is potentially the best and most cost effective resource available to the citizens of Texas, but it utilizes its full potential only when business and skilled job seekers are both looking to the TEC to find each other.

Dear Editor,

Budget preparation time is approaching for our various local tax supported organizations.

Each year, about this time, we hear discussions on various levels concerning the "true" financial condition of each tax supported organization. These discussions can be very helpful in overall financial

In this respect, Sutton County currently has almost $2 million in the bank as is evidenced by the Treasurer's Report published quarterly in this paper.

Also, Sutton County will probably have available to it over $1 million in unfunded surplus to begin the next fiscal year with. The next fiscal year begins on October

Therefore, county taxpayers can be aware of the fact that current levels of county taxation can reasonably be expected to maintain a surplus of at least $1 million.

I would want each taxpayer to draw his or her own conclusion; but I see Sutton County as being in very good financial condition as we, plan for the next year.

All budget deliberations are open to all members of the public and your interest are best served when you participate as much as possible.

by T. Driskell

One must take the media blast advocating "Buy West Texas First" as a means of holding West Texas money in West Texas with a grain of salt. I traveled that road twelve to fifteen years ago in the Devil's River News. A column 'Viewpoint" advocated "Buy American First" lest the Japanese own us. The same economic oversights which generated the odors in my advocacy of "Buy American First" are indigenous to "Buy West Texas First", so let us take some of them apart.

We, in West Texas, produce raw materials for out of the area processing. Our wool and mohair is not processed here but shipped to a point where the major profit from the manufactured product in derived. Our crude is principally processed in areas outside of West Texas. You can go on down the list until the sense that we are a third world country for the benefit of other areas, induces nausea only enhanced by the superimposition of the concepts of free enterprise.

How many West Texans buy raw materials? I can barely remember feeling homespun material as a child, or "borrowing" sump condensate to stretch smokey gasoline rations. The answer is West Texans want finished products which give a miniscule profit to the West Texas labor force. The net result is the advocation of the total support of local retailers, ignoring the question of whether or not they can provide a product at a better price. If you propose a program of that nature against West Texas' low wages for the bulk of its labor force, you should be enrolled along with me, in the Bakers of Pies in the Sky Union.

Why can we Texans not seem to grasp the necessity of climbing out of third world status and moving from vast wealth for a few into better existence for all instead of going into programs based only on verbiage instead of economic reality?

Why does Texas not process its own mohair? It is true Texans cannot process their own wool? What will the super collider do for Texas, and if it goes sour, what has the adverse courtship cost us? There are thousand questions and for fifty years we have been "couch potatoes" sucking a hind teat on the petroleum industry which appears erratic or dry-we need answers.

Adopting a wellness lifestyle

There's a quiet revolution going serious illness and death in adult on in health care, and it's called "wellness." Wellness is any number of stragetics for better living.

Traditional health care ends where disease leaves off. But wellness, starts with the absence of disease and continues on to various levels of well-being. It deals with those things, like exercise, good nutrition, stress reduction and safety awareness, that healthy people can do to help themselves feel better.

Wellness also deals with those things people can do to reduce the liklihood of a major illness. For example, the primary cause of Americans is cardiovascular disease. But the major risk factor, such as cigarette smoking, high blood pressure, blood cholesterol levels and diabetes can be controlled. People can also affect cholesterol fators such as obesity, lack of exercise and stress.

In other words, how we live has a very direct impact on our chances of suffering from heart disease. The same is true for cancer and other major health threats.

So remember that word 'wellness." It's not just a passing fad, but a way to a healthier future.

Fashion Unique

Sheila Harris is proudly wearing an outfit she made. The darling two piece, spring and summer outfit is made of cream colored cotton covered with soft, muted tones of drawings. Drawings? Yes, drawings done by SISD students in grades K through 2.

Devil's River News, Thursday, April 14, 1988

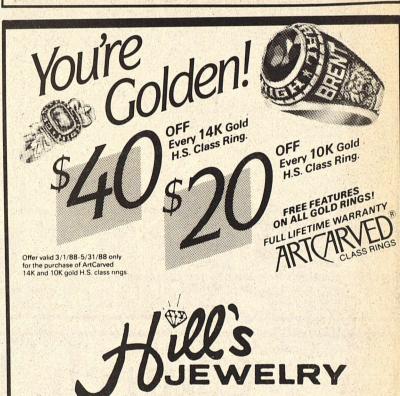

Mrs. Harris, who works with the children in the primary and intermediate library, came up with the idea and had the children draw pictures of their favorite book character or of the library using fabric crayons which she then transferred to the fabric.

Mrs. Harris said the children were delighted when they saw their artwork on her apparel. It certainly is a wonderful way to remember the young artists. Staff photo/Ann Cates.

For the many motorists in search of the best floral road show, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation provides a special service. Representatives in the department's 24 district offices can direct callers to the most actually growing with their root bountiful wildflowers in their districts. The department's 11 tourist bureaus also have this information.

With more than a million acres of roadsides to maintain, the highway department is the nation's largest landscape gardener, giving Mother Nature a little help through native plant and wildflower seeding programs.

The landscape programs, in all 254 of the state's counties, cut maintenance costs, save water, and control soil erosion on the roadsides.

"Wildflowers store nutrients in their root systems that grasses can use as a natural fertilizer. When grasses are dormant, in fall, winter, and early spring, wildflowers are systems protecting against roadside erosion," said Engineer-Director Raymond Stotzer.

The highway department annually sows 40,000 pounds of wildflower seed along Texas roadsides. "This program provides a source of pride and enjoyment for the citizens of Texas as well as the many visitors who appreciate our efforts to keep Texas beautiful," Stotzer said.

Workshop for management

are interested in learning about writing leases and saving taxes. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold 3-day workshops in Odessa, May 2-4, Wichita Falls, May 10-12, San Antonio May 17-19, and Houston May 24-26.

"Many Texas women find themselves thrust into land-owning situations for which they have very little training or background," says Wayne A. Hayenga, Economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Frequently a woman is in charge" of property upon the death of her husband or after inheriting land." The entire 3day workshop will be an opportunity for women to explore income generating and tax saving opportunties of their farms and

The first day of the seminar will be concerned with the outlook for agricultural land investments and how they compare to other investments. Also, since most women who inherit land don't want to operate it themselves, a special session on farm and ranch leases will be held. Items to include in a lease, both of an economic and legal nature will be addressed. Many folks are concerned about the "fairness" of a lease. A method to

Wanted-Women landowners who develop a "fair" and "stress-free" lease will be explored, as well as suggested guidelines and standards for women landowners to use to evaluate tenants.

> The second day will include such topics as: how to run your business-should it be a corporation or partnership? An individual's income tax and estate planning considerations have the majority effect on the answer to the question. Many farms can have income taxed at 15-18 percent if the owners want the farm to expand.

Estate planning is a special need for single people who own farm/ranch land, since one person could give away or pass on an estate of $500,000 in 1986 without gift or estate taxes. This amount went to $600,000 in 1987 so most women won't have a serious tax problem unles they own a farm or ranch or other investments. Estate tax rates on the amount owner the exempt amounts are from 37% to 55%. This indicates why many women that want to look at special tools to change farm valuation in

The last day will include a discussion of planning ideas to save on estate taxes and make estate administration easier.

Planning to sell part of the property on an installment is a consideration for many. It can be good, or bad, depending on the individual situation. Oil and gas interests can be managed for large income tax savings, and this is usually done in conjunction with estate planning.

The seminar leader will be Wayne A. Hayenga, of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He is an economist and attorney with extensive experience in tax planning as an advisor to farmers, ranchers and agribusiness firms.

The registration fee of $80.00 per person includes all seminar materials and lunches for all three days. The workshops will be held in Odessa at the Holiday Inn-Centre, 6201 E. Hwy. 80, on May 2-4, in Wichita Falls at the Sheraton Hotel, 100 Central Freeway on May 10-12, in San Antonio at the Hiliday Inn, Airport, 77 N.E.
