System has safeguards

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: I would like to comment on what I see as a growing area of abuse in the unemployment compensation system. More and more people are working temporary jobs these days, some because that's all they can find, some because they do not want to be tied to a full-time job. The unemployment insurance system is not structured to distinguish the former from the latter and, consequently, many people who have no desire to hold down a full-time job use unemployment benefits to supplement their occasional earnings. I do not think it is fair for taxpayers to pay the bill for someone's flexible lifestyle...a lifestyle they have voluntarily chosen. What, if anything, can be done to close this loophole?

Richardson, Texas

DEAR W.J.: I think it is helpful to understand the relationship between unemployment insurance and wages. Benefits do not provide more than a 50% replacement of a person's average earnings for a maximum of six months. The duration, for example, six weeks or system is designed to assist people temporarily without eliminating the incentive for them to return to full employment. People who normally work only very sporadically will not qualify for much in the way of benefits and they will have to report any money they make while filing claims. This will in turn further reduce an already small benefit amount.

There have always been individuals who will abuse or take advantage of a system designed to assist large numbers of people. Fortunately these individuals are in the minority. Even so, some states have regulations requiring an individual to name not just his last work but his last work of a specific more. The Texas Unemployment Compensation Act does not require this, but it does have several safeguards which attempt to prevent the form of abuse you describe. Under Texas law a person receiving benefits must be able, available for, and actively seeking full-time work. A person who restricts his availability will be held ineligible to receive benefits. Also, if suitable work is offered and refused, the claimant will be disqualified from receiving further benefits. The increase in the number of people who prefer to work temproary or part-time jobs is indeed an interesting phenomenon. About 11 percent of all temporary workers are now professional level workers including engineers, attorneys, managers, and computer specialists. I think it is a trend worth watching.

Harva Cooper

As you probably know, I am home from the hospital again and thank all of Sonora for their thoughtfulness to me-especially for their prayers.

The nurses were especially nice to me and one of them gave me something about prayer that I'd like to share with you and your readers.

While getting acquainted, she told me she'd be praying for me. I thanked her and told her that people in all the churches in Sonora were also praying for me so I was sure everything would be alright. Then she said this: "You know I think prayer is sort of like an orchestra. One instrument makes nice music, but all of the different instruments playing together is much, much more beautiful. Just as the prayers from one church are effective for God hears them all-so when prayers from all the churches unite on one thing and appear before God's throne as a mighty orchestra, He really listens!'

I had never thought of it this way, but think it is worth sharing. Whether or not it's true, it would be well for all of us to stay "tuned," don't you think? Thanks Ann!

Sincerely, Rena Elliott

New length limits set for several sport fish

Modifications of length limits for black bass and new minimum length limits for three other sport fish species highlighted fishing regulation changes authorized by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission Thursday (May 12) in Austin. All changes will go into effect Sept. 1.

The commission placed all black (largemouth, smallmounth, spotted and Guadalupe) basses under the 14inch minimum length limit, except on lakes with special regulations. This will include the Panhandle region where currently the minimum length limit on largemouth bass is 12 inches. The minimum length limit on smallmouth, spotted and Guadalupe bass currently is 10 inches. The daily bag limit would remain at five black bass in the aggregate.

All slot limits for largemouth bass were changed to a standard slot of 14-21 inches. Under this limit bass between 14 and 21 in length would have to be released, but three lakes affected are Calaveras, Fork, Monticello, Fayette Power Project, Gibbons Creek, Houston County and Nacogdoches.

Another change created a statewide 18-inch minimum length limit on striped bass and hybrid striped bass. The current bag limit of five per day was not changed, but the possession limit was increased from 10 to 15 fish in the aggregate. Staff members said the length limit on striped bass will promote more reproduction by allowing more fish to reach spawning age. Hybrid stripers would better utilize available forage and provide better quality fishing under the limit.

Also established was the firstever bag limit and minimum length limit for white bass. The bag limit will be 25 per day, the minimum length limit is 10 inches. The change is intended to increase survival to reproductive size, thereby increasing natural reproduction and yield, staff members said.

Several changes involved the use of fishing devices other than rod and reel. Trotlines, juglines and throwlines may be used to take non-game fish only, except catfish may be taken. Trotlines may have no more than 600 feet maximum mainline length, be re-dated every 30 days instead of the current 90 days and be fished under water. Trotlines are prohibited in that portion of streams or rivers within the boundaries of a state park or within city limits, or in lakes less than 500 acres in size.

Dip nets and gaffs are to be used bass per day shorter or longer than only to aid in landing of legally the slot size could be retained. The caught fish. The regulation no longer allows taking bait fish with dip nets.

Homemakers Update

by Micki Miller

The hot temperature of summer often reflects the "hot temperatures" of children. "Free" time and increased interaction during summer holidays provide many opportunities for youngsters to find themselves at odds with friends, brothers and sisters, and parents.

Instead of giving up or losing patience with children, try following these suggestions from the National Institute of Mental Health:

*Find children's positive behavior and praise it.

*Provide physical outlets for children's abundance of energy. *Plan surroundings and situations

*Accept children's angry feelings and offer appropriate ways for them to express their anger.

Hot weather problems can lead to health hazards

After an unusual spring and early unusually aggressive and loss of blood, in heat exhaustion, ammer, it looks as though combative. With these features, it sweating not replaced by water and summer, it looks as though summer is really going to come to West Texas after all, and with it comes health hazards from the hotweather. Heat stroke is the most serious complication of hot weather and is classically a diagnosis assigned to someone who "has stood too long in the hot sun without a hat". It is most often seen in people who have tried to ignore the heat, to keep a stiff upper lip, and believed too strongly inthe strength of one's inner conviction that the power of positive thinking can overcome all of lifes obstacles, including heat. We see these folks in the emergency room with a body temperature of over 103, warm and severly delirious, confused, or even may be unusually hard to pick up in late summer football practice with full uniforms on a hot day when the players are encouraged to be aggressive and combative. Aside from football practice in full uniforms, the elderly, those with chronic diseases, and very young children with their greater body surface area and higher rates of heat production, are more susceptible to heat stroke and to the less severe form of heat injury known as heat exhaustion.

From first aid classes, most everyone is acquainted with fainting and shock accompanied by the symptoms of pallor, moist, clammy skin, rapid and thready even hot, dry skin, and the more pulse. Whereas the simplest form of fainting and shock comes from sweating not replaced by water and electrolytes along with normal breathing with the loss of moisture from the lungs in evaporation, is responsible for the loss of blood volume. On a hot day, a healthy adult can easily lose 5% or so of his body fluid amounting to about two quarts of water. If not replaced by fluid, at 7% fluid loss, the sweat glands may discontinue their activity and the person, still in the open, experiences a rapid increase in temperature and the progression into heat stroke. Replacement of fluids with water generally does not replace the feeling of well-being unless the fluid is in the form of fruit juice, soft drinks, or something like Gatorade, which was the first commercial product to emphasize potassium replacement. On bicycle rides of over 60 milesafter considerably study and experimentation, I finally settled on a mixture of apple juice and water, half and half, choosing that over expensive bicycle frame. Lastly, there are heat cramps that usually involve large muscles, generally of the legs, but sometimes including the abdominal muscles. They frequently occur very suddenly when exercise has stopped, and from personal experience, when an exercise session was discontinued because the muscles in question seemed about to turn into water of jelly, they felt extremely weak-and then they cramped! Sometimes the abdominal pain and rigidity of the abdominal muscles can be so severe as to suggest appendicitis or other abdominal illness. Heat cramps in large muscles usually respond to time, muscle stretching, and salt other fruit juices only because it did not leave unsightly stains on my containing fluids. The weather of the High Plains makes us more susceptible to heat exhaustion from fluid loss, while heat stroke with cessation of sweating occurs perhaps more frequently in the more humid climates; but in any case, when there has been too much activity in the heat, sweating stops and temperature starts up. If temperature climbs above 103 without vigorous exercise, hospitalization immediately with use of whatever means possible to lower body temperature is essential, as this amounts to a life-threatening condition.

Protecting the investor security regulations established by The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 protects you as an investor, much of the stock exchange activity, both listed and over-thecounter, functions under voluntary regulations. The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange strictly controls the activity of its member firms while the National Association of Security Dealers, NASD, closely monitors both the over-the-counter markets and investment companies.

The privilege of self-regulation has always been sought by the securities industry. The NASD, for example, points out it "... is not an organization which was imposed upon the investment banking and securities business by Congress or by The Security and Exchange Commission." However, without legislative authority, self-regulation would be difficult.

The Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 is the underlying authority in the securities industry. It brought national securities exchanges under federal control and authorized the creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

An offspring of The Act of 1934 is the Investment Company Act of 1940, which affects almost 40 million mutual fund shareholders. The legislation had two main purposes: 1) full disclosure and 2) prevention of speculative abuses by management. To accomplish this there are several main provisions of The Act. Substantial minimum capital is required before the stock of any investment company may be offered publicly. Full disclosure gives investors adequate information on the managers of the operation. This is why a prospectus must be delivered by a mutual fund before an investment is accepted.

The Act of 1940 exceeds the

Although the vast network of Acts of 1933 and 1934 in establishing management standards by holding management legally responsible for violations of The Act. In addition, management is probated from inequitable compensation. This provision is somewhat general, so you'll find considerable difference in the cost of management. This cost is disclosed in the prospectus. As a rule of thumb, management-fees shouldn't exceed one-half of 1 percent annually. That amounts to about $5 for every $1,000 you've invested, a very reasonable charge for professional management.

> The Act of 1940 also protects investors from domination of a loaded board by limiting the number of directors connected with investment banking firms or with the investment company or its distributor. Complete and accurate financial reports must be submitted regularly to both the SEC and stockholders. A prospectus stating the investment policy of the fund, along with condensed financial statements and a list of asset holdings, must be given to every investor offered new stock. Further, the fund cannot change investment policies without the consent of its stockholders. This is generally accomplished by mailing each shareholder a proxy.

The proxy contains a brief description of the changes management would like to introduce at the upcoming shareholders' meeting. The time and place of the meeting is announced, and shareholders are invited to attend. If unable to attend, they're asked to vote that proxy for the absent shareholder.

There are numerous laws and regulations that aid and direct the securities industry in its effort to self regulate and police its members, but the final responsibility is yours. Use the tools that are offered to protect you and your investments.

Wait if check is late

A person whose Social Security check does not arrive on the day it is expected should wait for two more mail deliveries before contacting the San Angelo Social Security Office, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently.

This will take care of a good share of delayed checks. If the check still has not arrived after two days, the people at the San Angelo office can begin action.

The most common cause of failure to receive a check is failure to report a change of address. Many people fail to notify Social Security when they move, even though they rely on their Social Security checks as their primary source of income.

Some people think it is enough to report their change of address to however, will forward mail to the person's new address for just one year. After that, they will send the check to the U.S. Treasury.

If the person's check is returned and the new address provided, it usually takes about four or five days for a new check to be sent. If the check was not returned, a stop order will be put on it, and the matter will be transferred to Washington, D.C. to see if the check has been cashed.

If it has not been cashed, a new check will be sent right away. This process can take up to three weeks. If it has been cashed, a new check cannot be sent until the person who cashed the check is identified.

Even though a person's check is deposited directly into his or her account in a financial institution, he or she should notify Social the post office. The post office, Security of any change in address.

Earning additional benefits

after beginning to get Social Security retirement benefits may qualify for higher benefits because of the additional earnings, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently.

It is not necessary for the worker to take any action if his or her earnings would result in higher benefits. Social Security automatically refigures the benefit rate after the earnings are credited to the worker's record.

People should, however, notify Social Security if they expect to earn more than the annual exempt amount. Earnings over the exempt amount result in the withholding of

A person who returns to work a person's benefits. In general, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. The exempt amounts are $6,120 for people under 65 for all of 1988 and $8,400 for people 65 through 69. There is no limit on earnings for people 70 and over.

> In addition, a worker's benefit can be increased by 3 percent a year (1/4 of 1 percent a month) that the worker does not get benefits after 65. Starting for people who reach 65 in 1990 and later, the credit will be gradually increased until it reaches 8 percent in 2009. The credit also applies to widows and widowers.

Reporting responsibilities

People who receive Social Security checks have an important responsibility to report any event that could affect their right to or the amount of their check, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently. A report can be made by telephone, mail, or in person and should include the following information: name of person, what is being reported, date it happened, signature, address, and the claim number under which benefits are being paid (a nine-digit number followed by a letter).

Upp said the following events should be reported:

*Change in mailing address.

*Earnings of more than the annual limit -- $8,400 for people 65 through 69, $6,120 for people under 65. People getting benefits because of disability should report

*A person goes outside the United States.

*Imprisonment for commission of a felony.

Dependents and survivors should

*Divorce or annulment of

*Marriage.

*Adoption of child.

*Child leaves the care of a parent. *Child nearing 18 is full-time high school student or disabled.

*A person becomes unable to manage funds. *A person dies.

More information about reporting can be obtained at the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608. Free booklets are available which explain reporting responsibilities in greater detail.

Spouse should know picture

If your spouse always pays the bills, fills out the tax forms and handles other family finances, you could be seriously uninformed about your financial picture.

"While it used to be that many wives were in this situation, it's now just as likely to be a husband," says family economics expert Nancy L. Granovsky.

"Although having each spouse specialize in certain chores can be a time-saver, finances are important enough that both should have a working knowledge of their situation," she adds.

"It's very difficult to consider the possibilities of divorce or the death of a spouse, yet these two events cause the most financial devastation for a family," observes the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service specialist. She suggests that both spouses review their financial picture and have answers to the following question:

· Are family assets, including bank accounts, available to both spouses, so they won't be tied up in probate in the case of a partner's

· Do both spouses have current wills that take into account guardianship of minor children in the event both of you die?

· Do each of you have adequate life insurance protection to ensure the maintenance of the household?

· Do you each have credit established in your own names, so that you won't be caught without a credit rating?

· What are your rights to group health insurance continuation through your spouse's employer?

Problem drinkers have big troubles which effect others

Problem drinkers have big troubles and they directly affect the lives of at least four other people; these friends, families and coworkers are in trouble too.

"Everything was going wrong; there was never enough money; the kids were ashamed to bring home friends; I was beginning to hope my husband wouldn't come home at coming home from school to a all," says one wife to another at an Al-Anon meeting.

"I know how you felt," a near-by male agrees. "When I couldn't read a paper, never mind pull a report together at work, because I was always torn by the thoughts of the house burning down or the kids drunken mother I figured it was time to admit I needed help for myself. I found the help I needed here in Al-Anon.

Several people speak about their change in attitude after they joined the program of Al-Anon or Alateen where there is an air of. understanding and friendship. People use first names and are cautioned not to divulge what they hear inside the meeting room. They are relieved to learn there is a place to go and unburden themselves without fear of judgment.

Some members are referred by a by a member of AA; all, come with fellowship of men, women and teenagers who have friends or family members with a drinking problem. Members of this unique program meet regularly to share their experience, strength and hope in dealing with the frustration's and feelings of helplessness caused by living with the disease of alcoholism.

Al-Anon members stress the need to live purposeful and satisfying lives by helping themselves with the help of this positive program.

For information write to AFG, P. O. Box 305, Sonora, TX 76950. "I was filled with hate and selfpity, I even hated people who didn't seem to have any problems. I've doctor, some see the TV spots or learned everyone has problems and I look up the number in a telephone can handle mine, one at a time, if I book, and some are advised to go do first things first." says a smiling teenage boy.

"I thought my kid was a bum

Al-Anon/Alateen is a world-wide until I came and found out alcoholism was a disease and he was sick," admits a father who had covered his son's bad checks. "Now, I know he has to face the responsibility for what he does and that I can't beat him up to get him

> "Right!" chimes in a young woman. "I covered up too. I can't tell you have many times I called the boss and said my husband was sick with a virus; I called because I was afraid he'd lose his job and I have babies to feed. Was I surprised when he got sober after joining the company alcoholism program! And there I was with all the phony excuses staring me in the stopped seeing people I loved because I was ashamed of my wife's behavior. Now I plan my days and ask my wife to join me; if she doesn't care to, then I go ahead and do what makes me happy without feeling guilty."

"Guilt, that's what I dropped here at Alateen," adds a teenage girl. "I thought I made my parents drink because I was a bad kid. I know now that I didn't make anyone drink. Alcoholism is a disease."

"Fear was my big hang-up," volunteers another member. "I was afraid to breathe for fear of making my guy go back to drinking. The Serenity Prayer helped me; God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change; the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

ASCS recommends help for 38 counties Sutton County included in those for aid

The state committee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) has recommended approval for 38 drought-stricken Texas counties to authorize and implement the emergency feed program (EFP).

State ASCS committeemen also asked for authority to add other qualifying drought counties in the future as they document rainfall data and their eligibility.

The committee, chaired by Jerry Harris, a farmer and ginner at Lamesa, also requested that eligible livestock producers of the 38 counties be permitted to graze their animals on land in the acreage conservation reserve, or set aside program, and on conservation use

The recommendations were forwarded to Deputy Administrator for State and County Programs Earle Bendenbaugh, who is with the ASCS in Washington D.C. Earlier requests for producer assistance have gone forth to the U.S. Department of Agriculture from Gov. William Clements.

The emergency feed program (feed cost-sharing program) allows the ASCS to share a portion of the costs of feed with eligible livestock owners, at an established rate, for purchases of feed normally grown on the farm. The producers must have suffered a substantial loss of livestock feed and find it necessary to purchase feed in quantities larger than normal to be eligible.

"Serious consideration of the programs are critical now in view of the state's worsening drought situation," said Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural regular updates on the crop, livestock and weather situation in

Other state ASCS committeemen include Dale Hunt, Garwood; George Eller, Panhandle; D.V. Guerra, Jr., Linn; and Terry Harmon, State executive director, College Station.

Producers in five other counties that were severely affected by recent wildfires have already been approved for the grazing and emergency feed programs. The qualifying counties are Shackelford, Callahan, Coleman, Haskell, and Coleman, Throckmorton.

To be eligible for assistance, a livestock owner must have suffered a 40 percent loss of feed production on the farm because of a natural disaster which resulted in a need for

Extension Service, who provides the purchases of feed in larger quantities than normal for eligible livestock. The maximum quantity on which assistance is provided is 10 pounds of grain equivalent per day per animal unit. The "feed grain equivalent" relates the feed value of the various livestock feeds to the approval in the program include: Coke, Concho, Crockett, Dimmit, Duval, Edwards, Frio, Goliad, Howard, Irion, Jim Hogg, Jim Wells, Karnes, Kimble, Kinney, and Zavala.

Textile and Apparel Trade Act of 1987 (H.R. 1154 and 5.549). In 1 980 only 16 countries shipped wool textiles to the United States. Today more than 40 countries are shipping to the U.S. "Since 1980, 500 textiles mills and apparel companies have closed down in this country, resulting in a loss of 350,000 jobs and 700,000 job opportunities," Currie said. "This legislation would set global quotas to limit imports of textiles and apparel products into the United States and thus help save the livelihoods of working Americans across the country," Currie added. Currie, from Paint Rock where he and his brother-in-law run over 700 sheep on their 2379 acre ranch, added, "While I am seeking the office of State Representative, District 67 probably has more sheep producers than any state house district in the country. If elected, I will not simply speak out in Austin for the sheep and goat industry but will also join my fellow producers in trips to Washington to lobby for our industry and to personally lobby my friends in the Texas delegation."

Students and future students in need of supplemental funding for college were urged to write to The Scholarship Bank for a free financial aid planning calendar and information on private scholarship

According to the director of this national, non-profit foundation, an estimated half-billion dollars is available to high school and college students, many of whom may not know that they are eligible. Funds are contributed by corporations, trade, civic and non-profit groups and are normally awarded on such basis' as academic standing, college majors, geographic perferences, areas of special interest and even on the student's willingness to consider a special research project. Parental factors such as union, employer or past military experience are also considered by some donors.

The Scholarship Bank works with financial aid counseling offices throughout the U.S. to assist in distribution of the information on the approximately 3,500 scholarship sources. Each scholarship has a value of at least $1,000 and many are renewable yearly. Graduate level grants with values of up to $25,000 are also available. All students receive from 20 to 65 different aid sources for which they are potentially eligible. For the 1988-89 school year, a number of new aid sources are available to students majoring in law, business, health, engineering, computer sciences and the humanities. Three national organizations are funding older women returning to school.

High school, college and future students should send now for their free planning calendar and information on the scholarships by sending stamped, self addressed envelope (business size) to The Scholarship Bank, 13944 E. Amar Rd., La Puente, Ca. 91748. For faster service, call toll free 1-800-332-4432 outside Calif. and 1-800-523-6831 in California.

to make a choice between swerving off the road to the right or veering to the left and running into a group of people walking down the road. He choose the right, plunged down an embankment and was killed; he choose to do his duty. All great deeds do not make the headlines; if we knew of all the people who have helped their fellowman, all the good deeds, it would make great history.

Each of us, if we choose, can fill a place. There was a preacher who was trying to complete his sermon on Saturday night. His seven year old son was in his study asking the many questions that only a seven year old can think up. The preacher saw a newspaper on the floor. On it was a picture of the world. He felt he had found a solution to his problem. He took his son to his own room, cut the picture into pieces and suggested his son put the picture together again and prepared for forty-five minutes of uninterrupted work. In seven minutes the boy was back with the picture put together again. The father asked, "Son, how on earth did you do it?" The boy said, "Well, Dad, there was a picture of a man on the back; when I got the man right, the world was right."

When all men become like the Lions in Sonora, the world will be alright.

Sonora Lions Club contributed generously to the establishment of the Crippled Children's Camp. There is a story which comes from a club in the Panhandle to illustrate this: A small boy was to go to Kerrville to the Camp. The person who was to take him was unable to go; other members were called. One had planned to play golf, one was going fishing, another was too tired. Finally reluctantly one man said he would go. In the early dawn he and the little boy's mother lifted him from his wheel chair into the car. For awhile they drove along in silence. After about ten minutes the little boy looked at the man and asked, "Mister, are you God?" "No," replied the man. They drove for another ten minutes in silence when the little boy inquired again: "Then do you work for God?" The man, rather shaken asked why the boy was asking these questions. The little boy replied that the night before when he and his mother were saying their prayers they had asked God to send someone to take him to camp. The man replied, "Son, I don't work for God regularly but after this I will work a lot more regularly." 43,000 Lions in Texas worked and helped sponsor a camp that 18,000 children like this boy can and have enjoyed.

Australia is planning a similar camp. They came to the United States and after visiting and examining many camps, they chose our camp in Kerrville for their model. Our idea has traveled 10,000 miles to help children in Australia!

And where do the profits from these fundraisers go? They go back into our community through the Lions contributions to the Girl Scout, Boy Scouts, 4-H projects including the Wool Show and National Judging Contest, the Game Dinner, the Annual Speech Meet, Little League, the Sutton County Library, the Sutton County Senior Center and the Lions pet project-funding for sight.

The Lions contribute toward seeing-eye dogs and they also pay for eye exams and glasses for those with a need. Each year, the Sonora Lions spend a minimum of $2000 on eyeglasses for children or senior citizens. There is concern this year that there may not be enough money for all the needed eyewear. If you would like to make a tax-deductible contribution toward the purchase of eyeglasses, you may do so at the Lions bar-be-que on June 5 or you may give your contribution to any member of the club.

The Lions also collect used eyeglasses which can be recycled as well as being active in the area of eye donors. Several years ago they purchased the needed equipment to make eye donation possible in Sonora. Donor cards are available from club secretary, Hershel Davenport.

And if this isn't enough, tour the Texas Lions Crippled Childrens Camp in Kerrville sometime this summer. Children with all forms of disabilities attend the camp where they not only have a positive experience while they enjoy themselves but they are helped toward independence through education of their disabilities. This is one excursion which is guaranteed to "warm the cockles of you heart."

Until recently, Lions Clubs were made up solely of male members. The first female member of the Downtown Lions Club was Clayann Cates joining the club in January of this year. She has since transfered her membership to Austin. Micki Miller became the second female when she joined the Club in April. Why do women wish to join the organization? Ms. Cates explains, "I wanted to become a Lion because as a group, they are working toward a better community, nation and world. I can be proud of my membership in this organization."

When one follows the deeds of the Lions Clubs in Sonora and across the world, one finds that anyone can be proud to be called a Lion!

Address at the 50th Anniversary Observance of Sonora Lions Club

by Ebb Grindstaff

I like small towns--real Lionism is found in smaller towns; in Ballinger we don't have a United Fund--we just exchange gifts!

exchange gifts!

In 1790 Abraham Davenport was involved in some deliberations with his fellow townspeople when bats began flying, chickens were crowing. That great astronomical phenomenon caused some of the members to excitedly decide the Judgment Day had arrived and they began praying, crying and generally engaging in hysteria. But Mr. Davenport solemnly said, "If Judgment Day is here I choose to be found doing my duty." These four Charter Members (Dan Cauthorm, B.H Cusenbary, John Eaton, Jr, and George H. Neill) have been found doing their duty; they believed in a principle; the principle of service to their fellowman.

In 1890 a saleman approached a general store; on the porch the porch four men were playing dominoes while one man was sitting at the other end of the porch in his rocking chair, enjoying his favorite chewing tobacco. A dog lay near by. The young saleman remembered the way to a man's heart is through his dog; he asked the man if his dog bit. The man replied that he did not. As the saleman leaned over to pat the dog, he was attacked. It took all the domino players, the storekeeper and others who happened by to rescue the salesman. A bit shaken, the salesman turned to the man in the rocking chair and said, "I thought you said your dog didn't bite!" The man spat off the porch and replied. "That ain't my dog." It would have

Lions

What does it all mean?

When speaking of the Lions Club the word Lions are the initial letters of the words Liberty . Intelligence . Our . Nations · Safety.

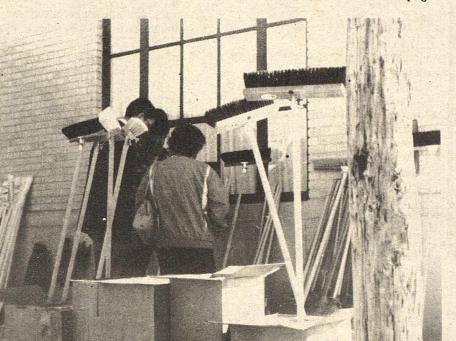

While we benefit most from the work of the local organization, Lions Clubs are certainly not limited to Sonora nor Texas nor even the United States. The Lions Club is an international organization with members contributing to the well being of their communities from Curitiba, Brazil to Bombay, India to Camps Bay in the Republic of South Africa.

A slogan used for membership drives states "It's great to be a Lion . . . Why not share the greatness with someone else?" And where there is a need within a community, you will see the greatness of the group at work.

Dues for the Sonora Lions Club are $12 a month. A portion of the dues goes to International Headquarters, a portion goes to the Texas Lions Crippled Childrens Camp, the balance is used within the community as are monies raised from various fundraising activities.

One such fundraising activity is the Lions Broom Sale held each year in March. At this time, the community is offered quality cleaning products at reasonable prices. The club derives profit from the sale as does the manufacturer-Light House-and the making of the products employees non-seeing persons.

The major fundraiser for the Sonora Lions Club is the Annual Auction which is held each year in September. This years con't. on page 6

Though the weather is usually cold, windy or rainy on the March day selected for the Lions Club Broom Sale, business is always brisk as the local townspeople have come to trust the quality products which the club offers. DRN file photo.

Each year the Lions Club holds its Queen Contest in February. The candidates are selected by their peers and judged by a panel of club members who live outside the area. This year's Queen, her court and their escorts are (seated) Mary Ross, Queen; (standing l. to r.) Mike Fullen, Michele Adams, first runner-up, Justin Condra, Rachel Merck, second runner-up, and Robert Harris. DRN file photo.
