Ward to perform this weekend

If you haven't had a chance to hear the wonderful storytelling of Cynthia Ward you will have an opportunity on Friday, July 8 as she will top the bill at the "Covered Wagon Dinner Theater." Cynthia will tell of ranch life from a woman's point of view and her story will be sprinkled liberally with delightful humor.

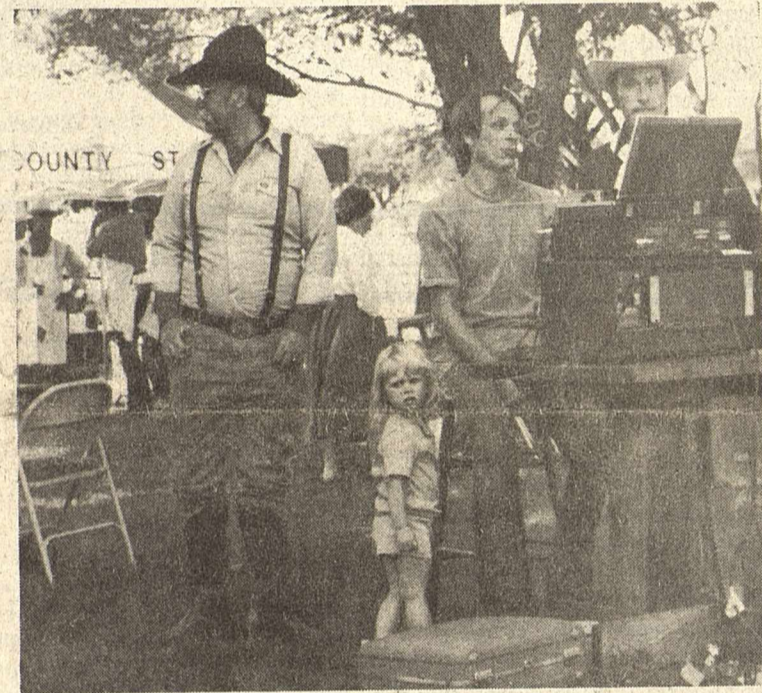

Musical entertainment for the evening will be provided by Kent and Jenni Finlay of the "Get Along Ranch" in Martindale. Kent has been a standard country act across the country for a lot of years and has appeared on The Today Show and Good Morning America. He wrote the Official Chili Anthem entitled--Biscuits O'Brien, this song is for you--"If You Know Beans About Chile, (You Know That Chili Has No Beans).

Jenni, Kent's nine year old daughter, joined the act in 1987 and has dazzled crowds with her fiddle playing and singing. Jenni appeared on national television several months ago as part of CNN's coverage of the World Champion Chili Cookoff in Terlingua.

Those songs were the best one I ever heard,
That's why "AH-HA!" was my first word!

Jon Guthrie will be the storyteller on Saturday, July 9. Guthrie heads up the Guthrie Institute in Austin and is a noted orator and author.

Little Mo and the Israelites, a group of young musicians from San Angelo, will provide music for the evening. Their satirical renditions of popular songs should please the audience.

Each evening will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the Cowboy Hootenanny followed by dinner and the show. Cost of the show is $4 for adults with children six and under free.

Sutton County Steakhouse caters the delicious dinner served in two sizes at $3.75 and $5.50 each.

Fireworks, with the exception of the occasional pop of a firecracker, may have been absent as citizens of Sutton County celebrated the Fourth of July however, there seems to be something majestic in a Texas sunset which also inspires a feeling of patriotism. Staff photo/Ann Cates.

Webster called on to brief Senator Gramm

Sutton County Sheriff, Bill Webster was invited to brief Senator Phil Gramm regarding the national war on drugs on Gramm's recent tour through small Texas towns. The meeting between the two took place the evening of July 1 at the Kimbell County Courthouse in Junction.

In Webster's main thrust of the meeting, he informed the senator that by virtue within the Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotic Service, Drug Enforcement Agency or the U.S. Customs interest was in larger seizures, thereby leaving the smaller communities without the assistance they once counted on from the agencies.

"The agencies simply don't have the manpower to go into small towns to work undercover," Webster said and he suggested to Gramm that a pool be instituted by the agencies from which small areas could draw for undercover work which Webster feels is an essential part in the fight against illegal drugs.

The second point Webster made during the briefing was to stress education which he feels is an important portion of the war on drugs. "If, by teaching youngsters in fourth and fifth grades of the dangers in drugs, we can take away the demand for drugs, we have made important inroads in the battle," Webster said.

Also talking with the Senator was Ron Sutton, District Attorney in Kimble, Kerr, and McCullough County who told the senator of the heavy caseload many District Attorneys have to contend with.

Webster said, following the meeting, that he looked for good things to come from the briefing. "This is the first U.S. Senator to come into our rural areas seeking problems and suggestions of solutions from us. I feel it was a very beneficial meeting."

Lower phone rates set for elderly disabled Texans at poverty level

Reduced telephone rates went into effect July 1 for older disabled Texans who live in poverty, according to state officials who worked out the plan with telephone company representatives in response to recent legislation.

Under Tel-assistance Service, phone companies offer a sixty-five percent reduction in the basic monthly local charge. The reduced rate does not apply to installation, touch-tone, custom calling, long distance or similar charges.

"The program was established by the Legislature, which required all sixty-six telephone companies that serve Texas consumers to participate," said Marlin W. Johnston, commissioner of the Texas Department of Human Services.

The Texas Public Utility Commission is responsible for rules governing participation by telephone companies. The human services department will take applications for the service and determine eligibility. The department will furnish telephone companies with a monthly list of eligible Texans.

To be eligible, a person must live on Texas, be the head of a household, be at least 65 years old, be disabled and have income at or below the federal poverty level. The 1988 poverty level for a one-person household is $480.83 per month. The income limit for a two-person household is $644.16; a three-person household, $807.50; a four-person household $970.83. For each additional person, add $163.33 per month.

A person may have only one telephone line and may not have optional extended area service. People without telephone service must pay installation charges.

Johnston said application forms will be mailed to potentially eligible Texans in the department's files. Telephone companies will mail information about Tel-assistance service to all customers starting in September.

Application forms and information are available by calling a toll-free number, 1-800-343-8353

Polygraph law will have widespread impact

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: Is it correct that businesses can no longer do polygraph testing?

C.W.
Buffalo Gap, Texas

DEAR C.W.: If President Reagan does as expected and signs the Employee Polygraph Protection Act into law, private employers will be very restricted in their use of polygraph testing.

The law would bar almost all pre-employment testing with the limited exception of security guards and employees who would have direct access to controlled substances. The bill exempts drug companies and federal, state, and local government from its provisions.

Commissioner

Mary Scott Nabers

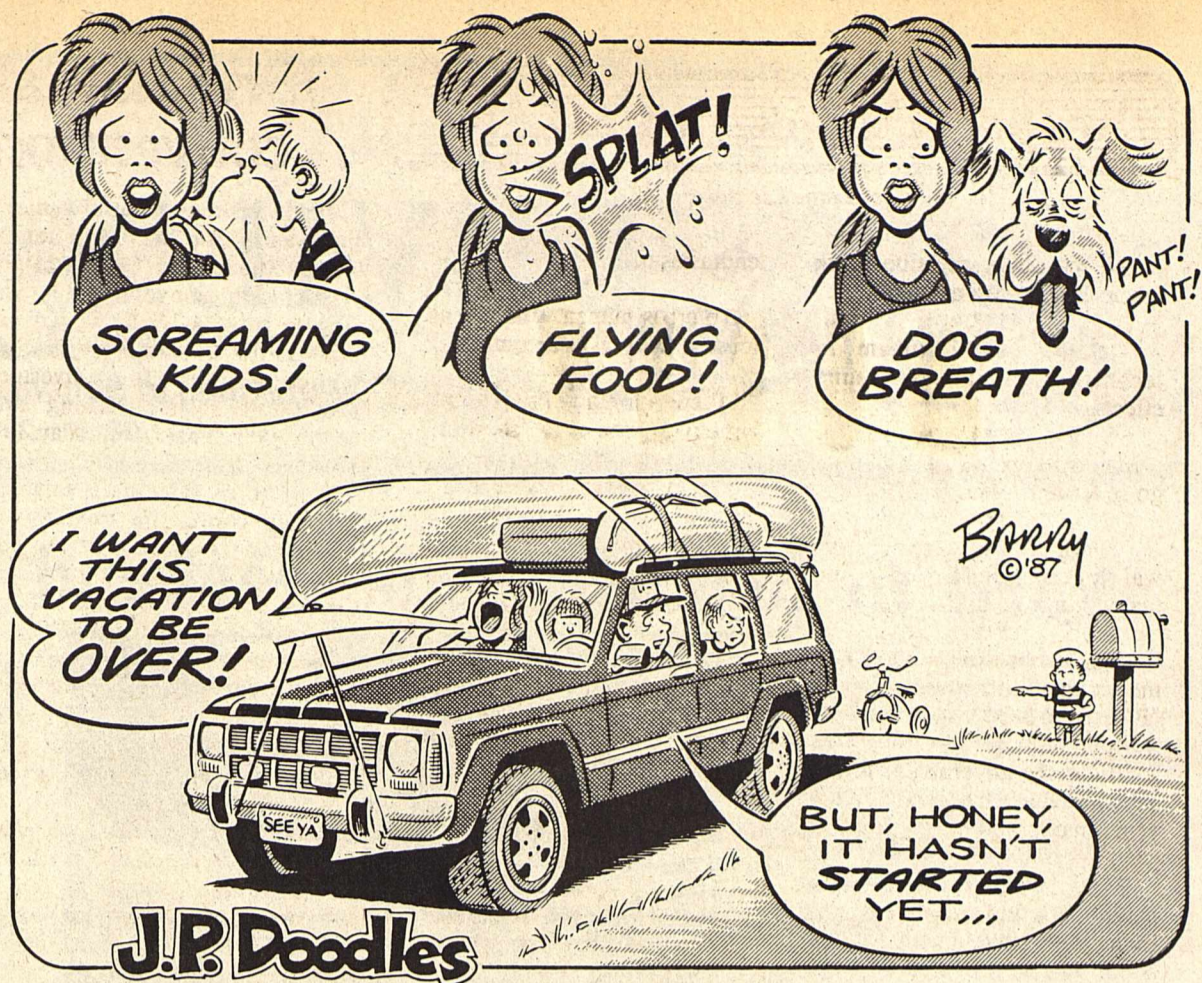

Texas Business Today

Concerning current employees, employers would be able to administer polygraph examinations to those reasonably suspected of workplace theft or other incidents causing the employer economic loss.

For purposes of unemployment insurance, the Texas Employment Commission has never considered failing a polygraph exam to be proof of work connected misconduct. This will not change. But whereas it previously could be considered misconduct to refuse to take a polygraph exam if this was a condition of employment, now whether such a refusal is misconduct will probably depend upon the employer's ability to show that the person tested was reasonably suspected of theft.

Ms. Nabers represents 336,000 employers throughout Texas. If you have any questions you want answered, please write Commissioner Nabers at: TEXAS BUSINESS TODAY, 614 Texas Employment Commission Building, 15th and Congress, Austin, Texas 78778.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Marriage, divorce may stop most benefits

Most Social Security benefits to dependents or survivors of retired, disabled, or deceased workers end if the person divorces or marries, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently. But, benefits to disabled widows and widowers 50-59, and to widows and widowers 60 or older, can continue upon remarriage.

This same rule applies to disabled surviving divorced spouses 50-59 and to surviving divorced spouses 60 or older, Upp said.

Benefits to a child getting checks because he or she is under 18, or 19 if a student, or disabled will generally end if the child marries. Checks to a spouse getting benefits on the record of a retired or disabled worker will end if the marriage ends in divorce unless the spouse is 62 or older and the marriage lasted 10 years or more.

Checks for a widowed mother or father getting benefits because she or he is caring for an entitled child will end if the parent remarries.

There is an exception of these general rules, Upp said. If an otherwise eligible person receiving benefits as a widow, widower, or adult disabled in childhood marries a person also getting one of these benefits, she or he can continue to get benefits.

Benefits will also continue if a person receiving benefits as a widowed mother or father or adult disabled in childhood marries a person getting benefits as a retired or disabled worker. A retired or disabled worker's benefits are never affected if he or she marries or divorces.

More information about how divorce, marriage, or remarriage affect Social Security benefits can be obtained at the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608.

Former Rocksprings resident initiates history video

The Red Carpet Committee, Edwards County Chamber of Commerce in Rocksprings recently completed a project, "History in the Making", of eighteen citizens 75 years old or older. They were videotaped and the video was shown four times to the viewing audience on local TV by Layne Herring, producer of the video and co-owner of the Rocksprings-Canyon TV Company. The video will be preserved for posterity and was narrated by Edwards County Judge Neville Smart, Jr.

The video was filmed in three sessions by Mrs. James (Darlene) Epperson in the home of Mrs. Johnnie Davis. Music was provided by Mayor Mary Simone. The script and project origination was by Lou Thomas, editor of The Texas Mohair Weekly, the Hill Country Rustler and Chamber of Commerce director.

Persons interviewed were asked questions that ran from "What are your memories of the devastating 1927 Rocksprings tornado?" to

"What advice would you give today's teenagers?"

Assisting Thomas in the project were Herring, Epperson, Simone, Judge Smart, Helen Fred, Rose Cerda, Mrs. Carson (Bobbie) Gilmer, Pat Arebalos, Sally Carpenter, Lila Faulkner, Herbert Gallegos, Sarah Hankins, Dorothy Hatley, Virginia Harrison, Tyne Lomax, Lupita Navarez, Esmeralda Reyes, Martha Rios, Johnnie Sweeten and Marjorie Whitworth of Rocksprings and Dorothy Shipman and Dale Nance of Barksdale.

Those filmed include Ouida Kast, Kathryn Smart, Brooks and Johnnie Sweeten, Sarah Hankins, Nellie Kirchner, Benigno Villarreal, Inez Cloudt, Kathryn Brown, Marjorie and Jack Whitworth, Marjorie Smart, Faye Feynn, Ida Mae Babb and Hadie Seale of Rocksprings and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lockhart, Sr. and Lena Burleson of Barksdale.

"We think it will be a one-of-a-kind project and any town could do likewise, for a nominal cost plus many manhours," said Thomas.

Vacation offers are too good to be true

A post-card arrives in the mail stating: "You have been specifically selected to receive a free trip to Hawaii! Call this toll-free number for details."

You have visions of beach combing on an exotic isle. But is this offer too good to be true? According to the Federal Trade Commission it probably is.

When you call the toll-free number, you're likely to be told you must join a travel club to be eligible for the free trip. Sometimes, a credit card number is requested so that your account can be billed for the membership.

With these offers, it's likely you'll be sent the vacation information package only after you have joined the club. Usually your reservation request must be accompanied by yet another fee. New charges are added at every step.

The final catch is that you may never get your "free trip" because your reservations cannot be confirmed or you can't comply with hard-to-meet hidden or expensive "conditions."

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Little League season has drawn to a close. Only the All-Stars have games to play. I think every child who played this year is an "all-star" and should be proud of the trophy he or she received Monday night.

It's a shame the same cannot be said for a few of the parents, coaches, and board members. Most of the coaches and parents deserve trophies too, but the entire organization is tainted when one or two exhibit unsportsman-like conduct.

Sponsors who think they are team owners; parents who think their child should be singled out even though that child is not selected by his or her peers or coaches; and administrators who overlook rules and the wishes of coaches in order to appease an irate parent are missing the point. To have fun; to learn a game; to become a team player (win or lose). These and good sportsmanship should be the goals of Little League.

I'd like to say thank you to all of the coaches who gave their time freely to teach our kids. I always let them know what they were doing wrong from the safety of the stands!

Parents should follow their children's examples. After all, they played every game and came out to shake hands, win or lose, with their opponents. Next year, let's back off and let the coaches and players do their jobs.

Sincerely,
Carole Thorp

Absence of Mischievous Pranks here Holidays

Sonora children, it would seem, are reared with the proper care and attention, to judge by the absence of mischievous pranks here during the holidays.

Usually Christmas and New Year are times with the youngsters simply cannot keep their spirits in checks any longer, with the attendant result that some one usually suffers.

70 New Ford Cars sold by Local Dealer

When the new Ford sedan rolled into Sonora last Wednesday afternoon, hundreds of people flocked to the show rooms of the Sonora Motor Company to get a glimpse of the car that has taken up nearly as much newspaper space as Lindbergh, Red Grange, crossword puzzles and other notable news stories.

Although many residents of this section had seen the car in San Angelo before it came to Sonora, these, together with those who had not yet seen the car, took the opportunity of seeing the car, sitting in it, examining it closely and giving it their most unanimous approval.

Sam R. Hull, one of the proprietors of the Sonora Motor Company, stated early in the week that as yet no information had been given out by the factory as to when the buyers would start receiving their cars. A magazine and newspaper article of recent date, however, predict that deliveries will commence on a large scale early in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Otts of Rankin visited here this week with Mr. and Mrs. Eaton also had as their guests, W.E. Eaton and family of Rocksprings.

Dan, Mac and John Cauthorn spent several days in San Angelo during the holidays. They returned with a new Packard sedan.

73rd annual Texas Sheep & Goat Raiser's Association convention scheduled for July 14-16 in San Angelo

Producers may want to gather a little early for the 73rd annual Texas Sheep and Goat Raiser's Association convention in San Angelo July 14-16. TS&GRA has arranged for the Texas Department of Agriculture to offer a livestock protection collar training and certification course Wednesday, July 13.

The training program is a natural adjunct to convention activities and will begin at 10 a.m. at the San Angelo Research and Extension Center. It was not on TDA's original schedule of courses, but is being offered because of increased interest in the collar as license users have begun reporting a string of successes against problem coyotes.

Collar developer and manufacturer Roy McBride, Alpine, will be one of the featured speakers when the TS&GRA convention gets under way at the Convention Center, addressing the Predatory Animal committee at 1 p.m. Thursday, July 14. McBride will discuss the collar, its record so far and his recommendation for getting the most out of the device.

State Damage Control program supervisor Don Hawthorne is also on the Predatory Animal Committee agenda. Hawthorne will provide an update on the ADC program and outline future plans.

The Health & Product Development Committee will meet earlier Thursday, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Scheduled speakers include Dr. Howard Whitford of the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, who will discuss ram epididymitis. This disease can severely reduce lamb crops and yet exist unrecognized in a given herd if enough uninfected rams are present to mask its effects. It has long been a topic of concern in other areas but is seldom given much attention in Texas.

The Texas Department of Agriculture is expected to provide a speaker for the Health & Product Development Committee to discuss the controversial issue of animal patents. TDA has taken a position against patents on living organisms, contending that livestock producers may someday be forced to pay royalties to patent-holders for natural-born livestock descended from genetically-altered seedstock.

Thursday's third committee session will convene at 2:45 p.m. when the Natural Resources Committee hears from Texas Parks & Wildlife spokesman Wilson Dolman. Dolman will discuss recent land acquisitions by TP&W as well as changes in the hunting seasons. Both of these topics have their supporters and opponents.

Yet another controversial issue is the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's proposed plan to limit pesticide use under "endangered species" labeling. TDA spokeswoman Ellen Widess will deal with that subject for the Natural Resources Committee. The EPA plan in its first incarnation included extensive areas where a broad range of common pesticides were to be prohibited to prevent supposed threats to obscure plants and animals. That proposal was delayed in the race of massive nationwide opposition when it was discovered that protected areas in many cases were expanded beyond any reasonable semblance of need. The plan is still lurking in the wings, however.

School finance is legislature's business, not courts

by Governor William P. Clements Jr.

In 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court responded to San Antonio ISD vs. Rodriguez with a majority opinion that found the Texas education system to be rationally based. In its decision, the high court also held that public education policy and finance are issues for the Legislature to oversee, not the courts.

The justice stated that: "The consideration and initiation of fundamental reforms with respect to state taxation and education are matters reserved for the legislative process of the various states..."

"...The ultimate solution must come from the lawmakers and from the democratic pressures of those who elect them."

That ruling is especially appropriate today as Texans weigh the possible consequences of Edgewood vs. Kirby.

In that case, state District Judge Harley Clark declared the state's public school system unconstitutional. What's more the Austin judge gave us a Sept. 1, 1989, deadline for changes--otherwise, Judge Clark says he'll do it himself.

In effect, the judge is assuming the Legislature's responsibilities. And that is just what Texans will not tolerate.

Texans do not want state courts dictating what their children's education should be. Yet, Judge Clark suggests that he can intervene and set the terms for education reform. Texans believe that is wrong, and the highest court in the land says it's wrong.

Without a doubt, education is the basic foundation of our society and an essential part of our state's economic progress. It is the key to a bright future for our children--the next generation of Texas leaders.

But Judge Clark's decision has the potential to endanger our education system. The ruling, if upheld as written, threatens to consolidate the state's more than 1,100 school districts into a handful of mega-districts, with centralized control from Austin. It threatens the local input or control we now enjoy over our children's education. And, yes, it threatens to create a public school system that drags its pupils into a bureaucratic mass of mediocrity.

Make no mistake about it, there are inequities in our public school system, but they must be corrected by the Legislature, not by a state court. And, yes, additional funding is part of the needed legislative action.

To ensure that Judge Clark's court, or any court for that matter, stays out of the Legislature's domain, I support a constitutional amendment reaffirming the responsibility of legislators and local school districts to provide for public education in Texas.

The constitutional amendment does not solve the inequities in the current system, but certainly it will keep the courts from directing the Legislature's business.

The people of Texas have had expensive and, yes, painful experiences with federal court intervention in the state's prison system. Texans will not stand for any intervention by the state courts in the education of their children.

In fact, our legislators, working with Texas governors, have a long record of achievement in education reform. In this decade alone, several major education-reform packages have been passed, including the "Back to Basics" package in 1981 and the reforms under House Bill 72 in 1984.

"Ronnie Cox would like to be your pharmacist"

Examining legislative action on funding through the years reveals a steady and consistent increase in tax dollars for public education. For example, during the 1978-79 biennium, total funding for public education was $4.59 billion. In the current biennium, 1988-89, it has almost tripled and now stands at $12.9 billion.

Has the Legislature solved every problem? No. Has the Legislature removed all the inequities? No. Has progress been made? Yes. Has quality of public education statewide constantly improved? Yes. Should lawmakers continue to carry out their responsibility to provide for quality education? Yes. That's what the people of Texas want.

In our state, the local, independent school district runs its schools. Parents, teachers and the community all have direct roles in shaping their schools and the education their youngsters receive.

School board members are elected locally. The board is then charged with assessing property taxes. Texans do not want that taxing authority removed and centralized in a bureaucracy in Austin.

We need a renewed commitment to the basics in education. Teachers must be adequately compensated and their morale must be boosted. Parents and families must get involved in their children's education. School boards must focus sharply on performance and achievement. The higher education community must train the best possible teachers. The Legislature must consider funding inequities and constantly monitor the entire system.

The answers lie within the school districts, school boards and our homes, with parents, PTAs, teachers and guidance counselors, concerned state legislators, the speaker of the Texas House, the lieutenant governor and governor--all working side-by-side for quality education.

The answers do not lie within our state courts.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

by T. Driskell

The week past has provided us with an unprecedented insight into the dark depths of the Russian chess game of what passes for an eco-political system. The first game was played by a paralyzed Lenin and a checkmate cost him his life.

Our view is far better than the one we had of Khrushchev's game in which a checkmate cost him virtual exile. It is reminiscent of some of the writings of Shakespeare about Caesar although no depth was achieved.

Cesar came to power riding on the strength of his legions, well supported by plebian votes. Once in power, he set about establishing a program to benefit the ordinary citizens (plebians). The patricians felt that Caesar was threatening their security and their birth-given prerogatives. Cassius "conned" Brutus and company to checkmate Caesar.

Gorbachev, playing the same game in Russia, came to power riding on the votes of young communists and backed by the hard to quantify support of the KGB. He has, with meticulous care built his power base through small well integrated personnel changes and instituted a program of openness and a program of progressiveness, both resisted tooth and nail by the staid bureaucracy.

Last week, Gorbachev either evaluating his position as secure, or acting out of a frenzy of desperate urgency called the Supreme Soviet together (the first meeting since 1941). He then proposed a sweeping revision of the entire Soviet political structure, including destruction of the conservative bureaucracy.

The Communist bureaucracy (in place since the 1920's and 30's) is threatened with the necessity to face elections every five years. They are threatened with the loss of privileges and economic and social security. Does the bureaucracy contain a Brutus? You can be sure of it.

Gorbachev has protected himself to the best of his ability and if he fails we go back into a cold war. If he succeeds we have witnessed one of the greatest socio-economic revolutions in the earth's history as we know it, and television coverage seems to be part of Gorbachev's armor, so we should get a good look.

Richard M. Lopez is among twenty-six Texas social studies teachers who have been attending a summer institute on teaching the U.S. Constitution this summer on the Southwest Texas State University campus in San Marcos. Funded by a grant from the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, the program runs through July 1. SWT Political Science Department lecturer Cynthia Slaughter (left) is co-director of the project. Lopez teaches in the Sonora Independent School District. Contributed photo.

Lopez attended summer institute on teaching the U.S. Constitution

Since June 13, 26 high school and junior high social science teacher from 17 Texas school districts have been taking a closer look at the U.S. Constitution.

Southwest Texas State University is the site of summer institute on teaching the Constitution at the secondary school level which is funded by a grant from the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The program runs through July 1. Project directors are Willard Stouffer, chairman of the SWT Political Science Department, and Cynthia Slaughter of the SWT political science faculty.

Participating secondary school teachers have had the opportunity to study intensively the U.S. Constitution and to develop curricular materials that will help them teach constitutional principles. Small seminars are being taught by experienced institute faculty. Participants also engage in formal debates over Constitutional issues and discuss and critique audiovisual materials that might be useful in their classrooms.

The institute, designed to encourage an active exchange of ideas, emphasizes the Bicentennial Commission's theme for 1988--the creation and development of Congress and the debates and writing critical to the ratification of the Constitution. Important Constitutional principles such as federalism, separation of powers and the Bill of Rights are studied and those principles that have actually been applied to create the American political system of today are reviewed.

Participants also have the opportunity to become published authors. Essays, critiques and other documents produced by the participants will be published in an institute booklet, "Teaching the Constitution." The booklet will be available for distribution to school districts throughout Texas.

Guest lecturers and presenters have included Paul Armistead of Baylor University; David Pringle, University of Texas at Austin; Phillip Bobbit, University of Texas School of Law; and Randall Bland, Patricia Caperton-Parent, Joyce Dorrycott, Paul Kens, Robert Norwell, Frank Rich and Alfred Sullivan, all from SWT.

For more information about the institute, call the Department of Political Science at (512) 245-2143.

Drought management tips for cattlemen

Texas cattlemen facing drought conditions need to assess their option quickly in case needed rains don't come in the next few weeks.

"Many ranchers have already been hurt financially by drought condition, particularly in south and southwestern Texas," said Dr. Barron Rector, a range specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "Most of them have been feeding their herds since last winter because there has been no rainfall to boost forage growth on pastures and ranges. Many also have culled their herds to relieve some of the pressure on feeding."

Although some good rains between now and the middle of June would do wonders for the Texas livestock industry, the opportunity for forage production in the spring has been lost, Rector said. Grass and other forage plants in the drought areas have suffered from a lack of rain, and rains now won't provide a "quick fix."

So what's a cattleman to do at this point?

Evaluate Forage, Cull Herds

"The main thing to do is to constantly evaluate forage supplies and to try to balance livestock numbers with available forage or feed," said the range specialist. "That process must continue even if rains come. A good rain will

Boarding homes for seniors to be registered with state

State law now requires many board and lodging homes for the elderly to register with the Texas Department of Aging by Sept. 1, 1988.

This law was passed to give social service agencies at the state and local levels a resource for referring senior citizens or disabled persons to facilities in their area.

Homes that are required to register include all establishments which provide room and board to four or more senior citizens or disabled persons unrelated to the proprietor.

Senior citizens are defined as anyone 60 or older. Disabled persons included anyone with physical or mental impairments that substantially limit their major life activities.

Facilities licensed, inspected and regulated by the Texas Department of Health are exempt from registering with the Department on Aging, as are adult foster homes certified by the Texas Department of Human Services.

All establishments registering as board and lodging homes must add the following statement to their advertisements: "This home is registered with the Texas Department on Aging, but is not inspected, licensed, or otherwise regulated by the State of Texas."

Licensed custodial care and personal care homes may register as board and lodging homes on a voluntary basis. No advertising disclaimers or limitations apply to facilities that are licensed, inspected and regulated by the Health Department.

The Department on Aging registration is good for one year and costs $10. This amount may change in future years, but the amount can never exceed $15 without approval by the Texas Legislature.

For information on the registration procedure, contact Ola Kidd of the Texas Department on Aging at 1-800-252-9240.

SOCIAL SECURITY

It is generally understood that to apply for a Social Security number or Social Security benefits, the first thing to do is to get in touch with a Social Security office. Yet, there are many people who ask where to go and what to do to apply for benefits, request a statement of their earnings record, apply for hospital insurance protection or medical insurance, lump-sum death payment, food stamps etc.

Moreover, for people who live far from the city or town where the office is located, there are contact stations where they can go. A schedule of when these stations are open may be obtained by calling the nearest Social Security office or by asking a friend living close to the Social Security office to get that information for you.

If you are confined to your home because of illness or disability, you can call your local office and a Social Security representative will visit you in your home.

Following is a brief list of services you can get from any Social Security office and of documents you may have to submit when applying for a Social Security number or benefits.

Social Security Number -- You have to fill out a Form SS-5 which you can get from any Social Security office as well as post offices and banks. Together with Form SS-5, you must submit evidence of age, identity, and U.S. citizenship or alien status. Social Security representatives can tell you the kind of documents that are acceptable. Individuals 18 or over and those foreign-born must apply in person for their Social Security numbers.

Duplicate of Social Security Card -- If you have lost your Social Security card, you can apply for a duplicate by filling out another Form SS-5 and giving the same information shown on the original application for a Social Security number. The new card will have the same number as the one that was lost. Evidence of identity must be presented when requesting the replacement card.

Change of Name -- A change of name (for example, upon marriage) must be reported and proof must be shown of both the old and new names. If the individual is foreign-born, evidence of current citizenship or alien status is also required.

Checking Your Own Social Security Earnings Record -- A request for Statement of Earnings (Form SSA-7004-PC) is available at any Social Security office. You should fill it out, mail it, and in a few weeks, you will receive by mail a statement of the total wages or self-employment income credited to your earnings record. If some earnings have not been credited or the amounts in the statements don't match your own record, you should get in touch with a Social Security office as soon as possible in order to have your earnings record corrected.

Social Security Benefits, Supplemental Security Income, and Medicare -- To claim any of these benefits, you make applications at any Social Security office or by telephone. You will be supplied with the application and enrollment forms. The employees can help you to fill them out.

Every person is responsible for submitting the necessary evidence to support a claim. If the claimant is dissatisfied with any action taken on his or her right to monthly benefits, a lump-sum death payment, or entitlement to hospital or medical insurance protection, the Social Security office will assist in appealing the decision.

If you have any questions or want more details about these issues, call or visit the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608. All services are available free of charge.

Covered Wagon Review

Did you ever miss a good show if you were not there Friday night!! Our own Biscuits O'Brien entertained us with his tales of chuckwagon cookin' out on the range. Chris Neal shared some special historical information about the city of Wentworth. Ed Mayfield, on his trusty steed, Darby, delivered the "Glad You're Here" bag. Devil's River D aka Jimmy Cahill shared a priceless story about one of Sonora's pioneers, John Cauthorn.

It was great having Sheila Harris helping with the sing-along while Patti is away attending a music workshop. And speaking of music, the Country Squires headed by Mayor H.F. Ritchie of Big Lake were fantastic. We almost moved them off the stage so we could use it for a dance floor. That is a group we want back again!! And the crowd was great, about 150 attending with folks from Big Lake, New Caney, Bastrop, Lubbock, Hallettsville, Weatherford, Odessa, Menard, Houston, Abilene, Midland, Juno, and Seattle, Washington as well as Sonora. Patti McKinney from Seattle, Washington won the bag of goodies given each performance by Sonora merchants.

Saturday nite was another one of those "close encounters" as a crowd of about fifty gathered on the porch of the Caverns office to get out of the rain and to hear Gus Clemons tell a little different version of the Battle of the Alamo. This time we got through the sing-a-long and dinner though and everything packed up before the rain came. Maybe it's good luck to go to Dinner Theater. At least no one complains when the show gets rained out. Again we had folks

New "800" number for Texas travel information

New magazine advertisements promoting Texas as a "whole other country" began appearing in national and regional publications last week, and Texas Department of Commerce officials are impressed by the results they and the accompanying month-old television campaign are producing. More than 9,500 calls were received last week on the toll-free telephone number featured in the ads.

"These advertisements, both television and magazine, are generating more interest than any other tourism campaign in the state's history" said Bill Lauderback, Executive Director of the Department of Commerce. "Our increased travel promotion funding is enabling us to get the Texas message out to many more potential visitors, and this should result in increased travel spending statewide, and ultimately, more jobs."

The new print ads are in various sizes and formats, and feature the state's new theme, "Texas. It's like a whole other country." One full-page four-color ad depicts a mouth-watering plate of barbecue, and the headline states, "Stay in a country where the art is tasteful and the masters still work with brushes." Another ad shows an amiable-looking Texan in a hat and says, "Visit a country where the natives are friendly and the language barrier is easily overcome."

A third ad shows a close-up view of a sand dollar on the beach with a wave breaking over it. Its headline reads, "Come to a country where the currency is familiar and dollars wash up on the beach."

A ten-page insert appearing in Newsweek and Conde Nast's Traveler magazines opens with the statement, "This year, thousands will take off for the world's great vacation destinations." As the insert is unfolded, a beautiful beach picture appears with the legend, "To the south of France. Where the beaches stretch on for eternity."

The next fold shows a rugged mountain scene, and the comment, "To the Australian Outback. Where Nature's splendor abounds. The following fold shows a tranquil riverwalk scene and the caption, "To Italy. Where the canals of Venice are legend."

The final fold pictures a smiling Texan and the punchline, "And to Texas. Where all of these pictures were taken." On the back of the insert is a giant coupon to be cut out and mailed in for a Texas travel package. The toll-free telephone number is also listed prominently to encourage respondents to phone for a free travel package, which includes a colorful 68-page book Texas, The Friendship State and a state highway map. The toll-free number was established in February to encourage out-of-state responses.

Although it's too early to a thorough evaluation, the new advertisements appear to be significantly boosting the number of callers using the Texas toll-free telephone number to request the free travel package. The 9,597 calls completed last week far exceeded any previous week's total. More than 2,000 calls were received on both May 24 and 25.

The number of callers has been steadily increasing throughout May in response to the Texas television advertising campaign that was launched April 26. In the first week of May, 2,867 calls were recorded, the second week 4,190 and the third week 6,809.

Governor Bill Clements and his wife Rita, chairman of the Texas Tourism Advisory Committee, unveiled the new print and television commercials on San Jacinto Day at the State Capitol. Both praised them as the cornerstone of the biggest and boldest advertising campaign ever mounted by the state.

The Commerce Department will spend approximately $5 million this fiscal year advertising Texas as a travel destination, compared to $970,000 last year. About $2 million more is allocated for other tourism promotion programs of Commerce's Tourism Division.

The increased funding resulted from legislative action last year that dedicated one-twelfth of the state's hotel/motel occupancy tax collections specifically to tourism promotion and advertising.

The print campaign will run nationally in publications such as Travel & Leisure, American Way, Vista, Americana and others. Regional editions of Newsweek, Time, People, Sports Illustrated, Better Home & Gardens and Modern Maturity will also carry the Texas message. Regional publications will include Southern Living, Sunset, American West and others.

Nationally, California and Florida lead the travel expenditure race, with Texas and New York vying for third place. The Texas travel industry is one of the state's leading employers, supporting 294,000 direct and spin-off jobs in 1986; with $17.29 billion in total travel expenditures. These figures reflect pleasure and business travel combined.

The mission of the Texas Department of Commerce is to build and maintain a diverse and dynamic economy for Texas and stimulate job creation. The methods the Department of Commerce uses to achieve these goals include focusing and leveraging the state's resources, building public and private partnerships and instituting programs and activities.

improve grazing conditions in two weeks to a month, but for more long-term range improvement, grazing should be delayed up to two months. Grazing perennial plants too quickly and too heavily after a rain can damage plants as well as the soil.

According to Rector, the best step for cattlemen to take in the face of a drought is to reduce stocking rates so as to reduce forage demand. This reduces damage to range plants from overgrazing, allows for more rapid recovery of plants once the drought is broken, reduces supplemental feed costs and reduces livestock losses to toxic plants which often are grazed when desirable plants are lacking.

"Often it's best to sell part of the herd, particularly cows that are older, late calving and generally less productive," Rector said. "To feed cows during a severe drought is to mortgage them; if you lose, you have spent the cow."

In addition to heavy culling of the cow herd, other alternatives are to wean calves early to reduce the stress on cows, to sell yearlings early and to skip one year of keeping replacement heifers. Also, look for alternative sources of good quality feed for calves and make sure that cows are kept in good condition during calving and breeding. Making sure the bulls are fertile is another key management practice.

"Current conditions aside, cattlemen should always manage their operations as if a drought is just around the corner," Rector said.

Prepare Drought Plan
Since droughts are inevitable, every rancher should have a drought plan that deals with flexibility in forage use, livestock numbers, livestock classes, marketing strategies and other matters that will allow for improved decision-making. Such a plan should include a timetable for decision on stock numbers, improvement practices, supplementation and marketing in relation to seasonal forage production and quality. Cattlemen need to realize, Rector said, that forage growth initiated at the midpoint of the growing season will go mostly to a plant's reproductive processes while leaf growth for livestock consumption will be reduced. Future forage production is dependent on rain and current management practices.

"Keeping a part of the livestock herd in a readily marketable state such as stocker animals is a good drought management practice," said the range specialist. "If no more than 60 percent of the grazing livestock units are in the reproducing herd, a cattlemen has much greater flexibility in his marketing scheme in event of a drought."

"By all means, have a destocking policy and adjust the stocking rate to meet useable forage on hand," Rector said. "Also, be sure to allow for adequate stock water in the drought management plan."

Use of a drylot all-concentrate feeding operation to maintain livestock during a drought will reduce needless exercise and energy expenditure in search of food and water and also allow forage to recover more rapidly once rain does come, the specialist said.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on August 1, 1988.

- SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule A prices will be reduced 1.5% during the initial 30-second period. Schedule B prices will be reduced 16.4% overall. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.2% overall.
- WATS 80 service prices for both the initial 80-hour usage period and the additional usage period will increase 5%.
- The monthly prices for some of AT&T's Analog Channel Services will increase between $7.05 and $25 per channel termination for Analog services.
- The monthly prices for some Dataphone Digital Service (DDS) will decrease up to $9.65. Other DDS monthly prices will increase up to $18.35. Overall, AT&T's DDS monthly prices will increase less than 1%.

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $3.4 million in annual revenue, which is approximately 0.3% of AT&T's annual revenue for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding these price changes, please call your AT&T Account Executive, or our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on July 1, 1988, with an effective date of August 1, 1988.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deaf.

PUBLIC NOTICE

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

"Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

"Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest: if your home or water system has lead pipes or if you home has copper pipes with lead solder, and if the home is less than five years old, or if you have soft or acidic water, or if water sits in the pipes for several hours.

For more information regarding Section 1417 of the Federal Safe Drinking Act you may contact James McLaughlin, Water Superintendent, at City Hall, 387-2558.
