Gramm's visit highlights small business

U.S. Senator Phil Gramm, as part of an economic development tour, was in Sonora this past

Saturday afternoon to pay tribute to the small businesses' commitment to the economy of Sonora and the state. Gramm told the crowd of business leaders, civic leaders, and employees at Commercial Restaurant that a business such as Commercial Restaurant is the main stay of the American economy.

The week of July 1 through July 7 has been declared "Small Business Week" by the mayor and City council.

Addressing the group, the senator stated, "What is unique about this small business as part of the American free enterprise system is that it is not unique, that there are literally thousands of small family businesses that make up the backbone of the American economy."

"I have spent a lot of time the past three years trying to help develop new industries in the State. But it is even more important to recognize the businesses and industries we have. It is the small businesses, such as Commercial Restaurant, that have built and sustained this country and they need our support," the senator added.

The senator had been meeting with business and civic leaders across the state to highlight competitive examples of economic growth.

While in Sonora the senator met with Mayor Bill Gosney and Chamber of Commerce President Seco Mayfield.

In the senator's closing remarks to the group, he stated, "The best thing we can do for small business in Texas is to get our economy growing, attract more business to the state, get interest rates down, and keep taxes down. That's the important thing we can do."

Gramm holds a Ph. D. in economics, a subject he taught at Texas A&M University. He serves as a member of the Senate Budget, Appropriations and the Senate Banking Committee. He was elected to the Senate in 1984 after serving three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives.

A national leader in budget matters, he co-authored the Gramm-Latta I and II federal budgets in the House and the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced budget legislation in the Senate.

New legislation that affects you!

DEAR EMPLOYERS:
Employers who are late paying their taxes or filing their quarterly reports stand to pay more in penalties and interest than before. The legislature passed into law the following changes to the penalty and interest sections of the Texas Employment Compensation Act:

Commissioner

Mary Scott Nabers

Texas Business Today

PENALTIES FOR FAILURE TO PAY TAX

The MAXIMUM penalty amount which can be assessed for failing to pay taxes due is increased from 27.5% to 37.5% of the amount due. Because the penalty charge adds up at the rate of 1.5% per month, an employer has to be severely delinquent to incur the maximum penalty charge.

Whenever the maximum penalty of 37.5% is reached and the employer's liability is reduced to judgment in court, the taxes included in the judgment will bear interest at the rate of 1% per month instead of the current .5%.

PENALTIES FOR FAILURE TO FILE QUARTERLY REPORTS

The flat rate penalty for failing to timely file Wage Reports (Quarterly Reports) is increased to $15 for the first 15 days or fraction thereof. . .

$15 for the remainder of the month or fraction thereof, plus 1/20th of 1% of wages paid but unreported. . .

$30 for the second month or fraction thereof, plus 1/10th of 1% of wages paid but unreported. . .

$30 for the third month or fraction thereof, plus 1/5th of 1% of wages paid but unreported.

As a note of interest, the currently penalty rates for late filing—$5 and $10—were set in 1967.

Employer are urged to file their quarterly reports EVEN IF THEY CANNOT PAY THE TAXES

DUE. In doing so, they can at least avoid paying late filing penalties and interest. Also, failing to report wages can have a detrimental effect on an employer's next tax rate calculation.

Since 1985, the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act has required the mandatory transfer of unemployment claims experience from a predecessor to a successor company in the event of a total acquisition. This provision has been amended by the 71st Legislature. The transfer of experience will now apply ONLY if . . . as of the date of the acquisition, a shareholder, officer, or other owner of a legal or equitable interest in the employing unit that is transferring the organization, trade, or business, or the spouse or a person within the first degree of consanguinity or affinity of such an individual, is a shareholder, officer, or other owner of a legal or equitable interest in the acquiring successor employing unit, or holds an option to purchase such an interest.

Further amendment provides that, "An employing unit whose experience tax rate was adversely affected by the application of (the mandatory transfer of experience provision) before the effective date of this Act may apply to the Commission in writing between September 1, 1989 and December 31, 1989 to have its experience tax rate recalculated in accordance with (the new provision explained above). The recalculated rate will be effective beginning January 1, 1990."

The important thing to remember about this last part is that it does not provide retroactive relief. The adverse effect of an acquisition on a business' tax rate may be discontinued as of the 1990 effective date, but the recalculation will not affect the tax liability for prior years.

Mary Scott Nabers represents all Texas employer. If you have any questions you want answered, please write Commissioner Nabers at: TEXAS BUSINESS TODAY, 614 TEC Building, 15th and Congress, Austin, Tx. 78778.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

by T. Driskell

The trouble with turning over stones at random is that sometimes unexpected things that emerge from beneath them, it seems that the beings which provide great esthetic pleasure are invariably short-lived while the obnoxiously unpleasant ones just seem to continually be rejuvenated and keep popping up.

Such an obnoxious being is the suit brought by the city of San Angelo (with Midland and Lubbock as "friends" of the court) against the Hickory Underground Water Conservation District (HUWCD). It is rather ominous because of the implications it has for the water supplies on the ranches, the farms and small towns on the Edward Plateau, and above the other aquifers in Texas for that matter. Each time it reappears, the nature of the suit becomes clearer, but the clarity can hardly be a contributor to complacency to small towns an ranches and farms that depend on those aquifers.

San Angelo seeks by their suit to prevent the HUWCD from limiting the water they can remove from the Hickory Aquifer lying in Concho, McCullough and Menard Counties in times of reduced rainfall.

The hazy definition of the overall problem is emphasized by the suit brought by the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority to classify the northern Edwards Aquifer as an underground river. San Antonio objects to this classification because it would deny the city the opportunity to buy, sell, or lease rights to pump water from the aquifer which is the principal drinking water supply for Hays, Comal, Medina, and Uvalde Counties.

We know the Edward Aquifer beneath the San Antonio area is running very near its fifty-year low, and San Antonio's planning sins of not spending money for the past fifty years in developing an adequate water supply reserve to meet the needs of projected growth is hanging out. Put this under the blanket of the unreality of the Federal advisors who recommend storage in surface reservoirs on the semi-arid? boundary of the Chihuahua Desert and you have compounded the level of questionable practicality that should make us shudder.

We see these dams being constructed on all the rivers in the Western half of Texas, to store the water for rapid evaporation and increasing salinity, in all probability reaching a level of salinity upon arrival at the coast in a time frame a quarter-century hence, desalination will be required before it can be used for human consumption, or agricultural purposes. We can only regret that we did not listen. Man, we must suppose, is like the Arkansan's proverbial jackass; before you give him any instructions, you beat him over the head with a two-by-four to get his attention. We had a visionary tell us forty-four years ago, but we had no catalyst to get our attention.

The visionary was a native Sonoran, Rex Cusenbary, who would lay out a precise program for aquifer recharge to anyone who would listen, and had we heeded we would enjoy far greater security than we do today. It was quite simple, begin with a study of existing aquifers, and then create small header tanks in each header, adequate to hold the runoff until it could be drained into the aquifer. It was employed on a large scale in our flood control dams on the Dry Devil's River branches which protect Sonora.

I have never had a chance to observe a man so far ahead of his time, nor so unappreciated as Rex Cusenbary was, and now unnecessary the floods that go down the Nueces, Medina, Guadalupe, Devil's Rivers are and how much cleaner the water in the Colorado River would be if we could accomplish aquifer storage. Instead, we are left with the necessity of recycling water, which the aquifer does better and cheaper.

A sign sticks in my memory from fifty-three years ago. It was in Las Cruces, N.M. and it said, "Please, flush this toilet, El Paso needs the water". Examination showed me that nine villages, two towns, and three cities had used the water before it reached Las Cruces, so I never drank water in El Paso again, somehow I did not trust recycling.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In early June, a truck driver tried to miss a deer and wound up jackknifing his truck. He wound up at Hudspeth Hospital. After more than a week here, his company sent an ambulance for him so he could recuperate closer to home. Shortly thereafter, one of the nurses realized that he had left behind $30.00 in cash and sent it to his home address. I'd like to share his response with Sutton County:

To: Hospital Director and All Employees:

First, I want to thank you and your hospital organization for the care that was given me after my accident in your area. Not having spent but very little time in any hospital, I was very much impressed and appreciative of your services. I would recommend your services to anyone, anytime.

Secondly, when I received your registered letter, that was icing on the cake, so to speak. I was sure I had a bit of cash with me at the time this all came about, and when I couldn't find it, I didn't worry about it, simply because of the mental shape I was in when I came to your hospital.

As you know, I didn't even know what day of the week it was, so I quit worrying about it.

You can imagine my surprise when your letter came. If in the future, I am in your area at the proper time, I would like to swing by your hospital, and take you all to lunch; two or three at a time, of course. At any case, I will never forget any of you.

Again, I thank you, with all my heart.

Respectfully,
Robert W. Dymond

P.S. If you should see the Sheriff's office and the D.P.S. officer that brought me in. Tell them that the same goes for them. Thanks, again.

Dear Citizens of Sutton County:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to each and every citizen of Sutton County and the surrounding area who supported me as a contestant for the Miss Texas Pageant. It was a memorable experience that will be long remembered and could not have been possible without your help and support.

Thank you all again,
Precia Miller

Fifty attend orientation at Sul Ross

Linda Quattlebaum of Sonora was one of fifty prospective college students, accompanied by about fifty parents, attending freshman orientation sessions at Sul Ross University last week to prepare for the fall semester at Sul Ross.

Orientation sessions were designed to acquaint students with the university and to give them a preview of college life and an opportunity to meet other incoming freshmen. Students met with their major advisors and registered for fall classes.

Parents, including Vicky Quattlebaum, learned about university programs and financial obligations and met university personnel. They were given a tour of Alpine and lunch at the Longhorn Cattle Company.

A barbecue dinner was held on the campus mall Thursday night to give those attending orientation an opportunity to visit with faculty and staff members. The evening ended with a dance at the Graves-Pierce Parking Lot.

The next orientation of new students will be held July 20-21.

Beating the heat for the Elderly

With the hottest months of the year now upon us, heat illnesses are major health concerns—especially for the elderly. About 4,000 deaths related to the heat stroke occur in the United States each year, with the majority of the deaths occurring in the elderly population.

Dangerous Weather Conditions

The most dangerous weather conditions for heat illnesses are extreme heat, high humidity and no wind.

"An elderly person however, can suffer from heat illnesses at temperatures as low as 80 degrees," says Dr. Katherine M. Jew, of the Division of General Internal Medicine at the Scott & White Santa Fe International Medicine Clinic. Dr. Jew is board certified in Internal Medicine and Geriatrics.

The three forms of heat illness, in order from the least to the most severe, are heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

Heat Cramp

"Abdominal heat cramps, the least dangerous form of heat illness, are usually experienced by young, healthy people who have over-exerted themselves physically, but these cramps can occur in older people as well," explains Dr. Jew.

The remedy for heat cramps is simply fluid replacement.

Heat Exhaustion

Symptoms of heat exhaustion include dizziness, headache, nausea and a low grade temperature. "When these symptoms occur and heat exhaustion is a possibility, the person needs to report to an emergency room for treatment, which consists of replacing fluids," advises Dr. Jew.

Heat Stroke

The most serious form of heat illness, heat stroke, can result in death if left untreated.

Signs of Heat Stroke

Heat stroke victims experience numerous symptoms including the following:

- *Severe confusion
- *Dizziness
- *Headache
- *Elevated temperature
- *Nausea and vomiting
- *Low or high blood pressure

In the advanced stages of heat stroke, a person may even have seizures or go into a comatose state.

"Heat stroke is more common and more life-threatening for the elderly," says Dr. Jew.

Why are the Elderly More Susceptible and Affected by Heat Stroke?

The elderly are more susceptible to heat stroke for several reasons.

Because of the changes that occur in the sweat glands with aging, elderly people do not sweat properly, which means that their bodies do not cool themselves down as well when they become overheated.

Abrupt Heat

Elderly people are generally not as acclimated as other people either. "They may stay inside for long periods of time; so when they go out in the sun, the abrupt heat puts too much stress on their bodies," explains Dr. Jew.

No Air Conditioners

Many elderly citizens do not have air conditioners, which is certainly another risk factor.

Medications and Substances

"Medications and substances which an older person may be taking, such as diuretics, alcohol, sedatives and antidepressants, can also affect his ability to sweat and his perception of how hot his environment really is," explains Dr. Jew.

Mental or Physical Disabilities

Mental illness can also affect the person's perception of temperature.

Because of either mental or physical disabilities, the older person may not be able to care for himself properly or protect himself from the heat.

Other Illnesses

Many older people have other illnesses, such as heart disease, lung disease and diabetes, which also put them at a higher risk for heat stroke. The combination of heat stroke with these other illnesses can be fatal.

What Can the Elderly Do to Prevent Heat Stroke?

Older people can take the following steps to protect themselves from heat illnesses:

- *Acclimate yourself over a one-to-two-week period by slowly and gradually exposing yourself to the sun instead of taking in a lot of sun and heat all at once
- *Maintain adequate fluid intake
- *Avoid heat in the middle of the day (between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.); plan outdoor activities and exercise in the early morning or late evening
- *Use air conditioners or fans
- *Wear light weight, light-colored and loose-fitting clothing
- *Be aware of medicines or illnesses that you are taking or have which put you at higher risk for heat illnesses
- *Increase your rest periods during the heat of the day

What can other people do to help the Elderly prevent Heat Stroke?

Friends, family and neighbors of elderly citizens should also be aware of the heat illness symptoms listed above so that they can easily spot problems in the older people who might be unaware of the symptoms or unable to care for themselves.

They should also be aware of the elderly people's lifestyles. Do they have air conditioning or fans? If not, friends, family and neighbors can help them get those services.

What to do when Heat Stroke occurs?

If an elderly person is experiencing heat stroke symptoms, the following steps should be taken by friends, family or neighbors:

- *Remove his clothing
- *Sprinkle him with water and turn on fans to cool him down
- *Take him or call an ambulance to take him to an emergency room immediately

Note of Caution

When overheated, elderly people should not try to replace their salt. Although this is a common practice for other age groups, it could be hazardous for older people who can experience complications.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

did they swap the bible for a prayer book?

Indeed not! From beginning to end, the Episcopal Prayer Book IS the Bible in some form or another. It's possibly the finest key available to understanding the Bible. The person who follows this book faithfully finds himself reading the New Testament twice and the Old Testament once in a year's time.

The Prayer Book is so arranged that the minister cannot depart from the Bible. He is discouraged from dealing in ideas that have no Biblical foundation... or from belaboring his congregation, over and over, with his own favorite passages.

Episcopalians are never required to accept any belief that cannot be proved from, or is not agreeable to, the teachings of Holy Scripture.

Your nearest Episcopal minister would be happy to explain why, for him and his congregation, the Bible will never be obsolete. It's all a matter of viewpoint... and there's no obligation on your part if you'd like to understand the Episcopal viewpoint.

Census figures show $136 billion in sales

Early data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture show that the U.S. had 2,087,759 farms, 1,059,573 of which had annual product sales of $10,000 or more. Land in farms totaled 964,470,625 acres, 86 percent of them in farms with $10,000 or more in sales, the Commerce Department's Census Bureau reported.

The Census showed that the U.S.'s farmers and ranchers sold $136 billion in agricultural products and that farms with $10,000 or more in sales averaged $125,187 per farm.

Other findings: $58.9 billion or 43 percent of total agricultural sales were for crops, while $77.1 billion of 57 percent came from the sale of livestock, poultry, and their products.

The agricultural census obtains information on all identified farm and ranch operations in the United States. The Census Bureau defines a farm as any place where $1,000 or more of agricultural products were produced and sold or normally would have been sold during the census year. Sampling is used to collect data for selected items and to account for nonresponding farm operations.

Reports for individual states may be obtained by writing the Information Office, Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, Washington, DC 20233, or by calling (301) 763-1113. The printed reports also are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Data on computer tapes and diskettes are available from the Census Bureau; call (301) 763-4100.

Coverage for workers changed

Important changes in the Social Security coverage of farm workers are in effect, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo stated recently.

The change affects laborers who live at home and commute to work daily during harvest season to pick fruit, or vegetables by hand. If work is paid on a piece rate basis and the laborers are commuters or local workers and employed less than 13 weeks the preceding year, it is only covered by Social Security if the worker is paid at least $150 in cash.

Farmers may pay Social Security taxes for any worker who is paid at least $150 in cash during a year. If the farmer's total expense for agricultural labor is $2,500 or more, all workers are covered by Social Security with the exception of piece-work laborers.

Beginning 1988, growers who spent $2,500 or more on agricultural labor were required to report for Social Security the earnings of all workers. Because the record keeping was very burdensome when large numbers of workers were needed for a harvest, Congress amended the law effective in 1988, Upp said.

More information for farmers and farm workers is available from Social Security, Upp said, by calling 949-4608. Ask for Fact Sheet #6, Crew Leaders and Farmers or Fact Sheet #8, Agricultural Workers.

The San Angelo Social Security Office is located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The office is open 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

1988 appraisals better according to study

Appraisal districts came closer to market value in their 1988 tax appraisals than in previous years, according to a study by the State Property Tax Board (SPTB), it was announced in Austin. The agency's 1988 Property Value Study showed that, statewide, the typical property on the 1988 appraisal rolls was appraised at ninety-six percent of its market value.

"Our studies have shown steady improvement in appraisal levels since 1985," said Ron Patterson, the SPTB's executive director. He noted that the 1987 study showed property was appraised at ninety-five percent of its market value.

"However," he added, "our study also indicates that appraisals of individual properties were less uniform in 1988 than the year before."

State law requires tax appraisals to be equal, uniform, and at market value. "In other words," said Patterson, "property should be taxed on what it's really worth, and different types of properties should get equal treatment. The goal is to ensure that all property owners pay their fair share of property taxes. Our annual study shows how closely county appraisal districts come to meeting these standards in their tax appraisals."

Patterson sees two likely explanations for the improvements in appraisal levels. "Some appraisal districts did better appraisals than they did the year before," he said. "In other cases, market values simply dropped closer to the appraisal district's values."

The study reported that appraisals in 213 of the state's appraisal districts were typically between 90 and 100 percent of market value. However, the typical appraisals in 8 districts exceeded market value. Appraisal levels in another 32 districts were below 90 percent.

The statewide appraisal levels for individual property categories in 1988 were as good or better than in 1987. However, appraisal levels in two categories--mineral properties and residential inventory--were higher than market value. Residential inventory is a new category that includes vacant lots and new homes that a developer has not yet sold. State law now requires these properties to be appraised on their value as inventory.

These two categories, together with utility properties, also showed the least uniform tax appraisals.

"This means that individual properties in these categories were more likely to be appraised at widely different percentages of their actual market value," said Patterson.

He explained that residential inventory, minerals and utility properties are difficult to appraise accurately. "The market value of these properties is based on the income they are expected to generate in the future, and these predictions often vary widely. In addition, minerals and utilities include many different kinds of property that don't often sell on the open market."

"Appraisal uniformity is important for taxpayers," said Patterson. "If one homeowner's property is appraised at 90 percent of its market value while his neighbor's home is appraised at 50 percent, the homeowner with the 90 percent appraisal level will shoulder a heavier burden of property taxes than his neighbor. However, if both homes are appraised at 70 percent of market value, the homeowners will at least get equal treatment even if their taxes aren't based on full market value."

The SPTB conducts its annual study of tax appraisals together with a study of school district taxable values. The agency analyzed sales and appraisal information for 185,000 properties from across the state in its 1988 study.

For more detailed information on the study results, contact the SPTB for a copy of the booklet, Report of the Findings of the 1988 Property Value Study of School and Appraisal Districts. The price of the booklet is $2.16, tax included.

There's no reason to advertise, if . . .

- Your customers aren't interested in reading about new products, services and prices.
- The economy is so good that it's a cinch to make a barrel of money by continuing to do the same old thing.
- Your present inventory is so good that you don't want it disturbed.
- You already net a million dollars a year (after taxes).
- Your growth factor is at zero.

... but you should advertise
if and when any of the above aren't true

And here's how to start
