Edwards, Stepp give big finish to CWDT

Edwards a big hit with fans

By Griffin B. Cole
 DRN Editor

It did not take long for the closing night crowd of over 200 at the Covered Wagon Dinner Theater, to show their appreciation of Don Edwards. The crowd responded with repeated ovations at the beginning of songs they recognized and at the end of each song.

The Cowboy and Western singer has been a favorite at the Dinner Theater the past couple of years.

Following his performance Saturday night, Edwards signed autographs for more than an hour and talked with his fans. Many times it was heard that Edwards was an inspiration to them.

What they may not realize is exactly why he is an inspiration.

There is no doubt Edwards has a fantastic voice. His voice is so natural it sounds like it has been strained for any impurities.

Yet the key to Edward's show is not the singing itself but his knowledge of what he is singing about.

Edwards said he is not a scholar or an historian, "In that respect I'm not formally trained," but he has spent an exhaustive amount of time studying and collecting information about the songs he sings.

"I learned what I liked and read as much as a scholar," said Edwards.

So, before the audience hears the song, Edwards shares information that he has gathered. This action allows the audience to appreciate the song much more.

Time after time Saturday, Edwards shared bits and pieces which, if not outright astounded the crowd, then made them think a little more.

For instance, many of the cowboy songs were of Irish, Scottish or English origin and changed to fit their surroundings.

This is the case for the popular Whoopie Ti Yi Yo (Get Along Little Dogies) which was based on an old Irish lullaby dating back to 1660.

Edwards also shared the fact cowboys did not really play the guitar. The most common instrument was the banjo. (Edwards said the myth that cowboys played guitars was something created by television

Stepp provides exciting story

By Griffin B. Cole
 DRN Editor

Donna Neal Stepp was the featured story teller at the final performance of the Covered Wagon Dinner Theater Saturday night. Stepp spoke on the 1986 Texas Wagon Train which traveled around the state for more than 3,000 miles.

Stepp not only participated in the six-month journey but also captured the trip in her book, From Sulphur Springs to Cowtown, The story of the Texas Wagon Train.

Whether listening to her speak on stage or interviewing her one-on-one, Stepp's basic message is the people who participated in the wagon train completed something which hardly anybody thought would be possible.

Stepp said those not involved felt there were many barriers to complete the task. Reasons poured out, so many people on a long trip, people would not put up with the halts in traffic, too many hardships, "Because you can't, you can't, you can't," said Stepp.

Two people died while the train was in process, one of a heart attack and another in a car accident while getting supplies. "You learned to live with it and go on," said Stepp. "Just like they did when back when." Stepp mentioned weather which turned against them. Temperatures being above 100 degrees in Kingsville when it should have 2 Please see Wagon Train, page 2 which has been a big creator of myths about cowboys.)

There is also the myth that all cowboys were white. Not so, said Edwards, there were many black cowboys.

As a matter of fact, many of the cowboys came from overseas.

"It's a natural thing," said Edwards. "There is a certain gift. Many of these guys just wanted the adventure. They would go up the trail once and be done. Others

Wild Bunch rivalry flares up, again
 By Griffin B. Cole
 DRN Editor

Shots were fired Saturday night at the Covered Wagon Dinner Theater and this time blood was drawn.

As a large crowd gathered at the Caverns of Sonora, looking forward to a nice evening of singing, it was obvious that trouble would occur as the outlaws the Wild Bunch roamed around.

While the crowd enjoyed some fine ditties and Scott Gilmore and John Zimmerman sang, the outlaws started to get rowdy. At first it didn't seem as if anything bad would really happen. The gang members just started dancing with some of the beautiful local women.

Then shouting broke out as Tom Payton, leader of the Payton Gang, and Virgil Polocsek of the Garrett Gang disagreed about who should get to dance first with the beautiful little red-head Miss Loretta.

Despite pleas from Miss Loretta that the boys not fight over "little ol' her" the guns started blazing.

All 10 members were involved in a matter of seconds as the gangs chose sides, Payton drawing back to the right side of the stage and the Garrett Gang to the left.

Before it was over, Payton was down with a shot to the left portion of the chest and Freddy Benson was down with a wound which has not been determined.

Luckily both gangs were chased out of the area by the law who just happened to be there for a pleasant evening.

It was four years ago when the two gangs started their rivalry over the same thing, a woman.

That has to say something about just how pretty Sonora women are.

New era of Sonora Bronco football gets started

By Griffin B. Cole
 DRN Editor

With the opening of practice Monday, the Sonora Broncos started not only a new season of football but also a new era.

Broncos players began the two-a-day sessions Monday under new head coach and athletic director Bob Bellard who was hired in January to take over for Jerry Hopkins who retired after 29 years of coaching.

Two-a-day sessions will continue thru the end of next week with players putting on pads next week. Bellard said with in-service scheduled for next week the morning practices will be abbreviated from two hours to 1 1/2 hours.

The two-a-days have been segmented into 24 5-minute periods so that the coaches and players can keep on schedule.

Prior to the players even going on the field, the coaches spend at least an hour planning the practice. Bellard said it is written down exactly where each coach and player should be at certain times and what they should be working on.

"We have to get get specific," said Bellard. "It's like the classroom."

The short segments are designed to also keep all the players as active as possible through the practice.

Bellard said he prefers to have the players working hard in practice and keep conditioning to a minimum at the end.

"The idea is to get the most out of them during drills," said Bellard. "It's not a whole lot of fun working, working, working and dying at the end."

Bellard said kids tend to not go all out during practice if they know there will be a lot of conditioning at the end of practice.

The Broncos are currently working without pads as is demanded by the University Interscholastic League. Bellard said during this time he is getting the players to learn more of the system and on execution.

Once the players start in pads the coaches will start stressing the fundamentals.

Bellard said the coaches agreed the first workout was as good as

Don't miss this book

Whenever I write a review of a book it is difficult to figure out exactly what makes the book so great. (I have absolutely no problem when the book is bad enough to bury.)

As I dove into Biscuits O'Bryan's Book of Beans, Bread, & Other Bull by the Reverend Monte Jones, I was instantly pleased with what was between the covers.

I knew I liked what I was reading because I got very little sleep Saturday night. That's why I was late for the cowboy breakfast Sunday morning.

I made the mistake of starting the book Saturday night while laying in bed. I thought I would just start it and finish it the next day while lounging around the ol' homestead.

Wrong. It's not that the book is particularly long. It's not even 50 pages including the introduction and foreward.

What kept me going were the excellent stories Jones includes in the first couple of chapters and the receipts in the proceeding chapters.

That's all the book really is. Then again, what more is needed?

I can't cook worth diddly, but I kept wanting to get out of bed and start cooking. I would have too, if it hadn't been so late and my refrigerator (like any good bachelor) practically empty.

What the book does so effectively is throw the reader back in time to when the west was young and the chuck wagon was the center of all activity.

This book should be a "don't miss" for those who live in Texas and a must for yankees (such as myself) to learn what cooking should really be like.

To see exactly what is in the book visit the book signing to be held at Tedford's Jewelry Saturday.

For your information...

by Lolabeth Jones, County Extension Agent-Home Economics

Sutton County's Centennial celebration year is an exciting time to begin a news article for the Devil's River News. The "Extension News Update" will provide a space for upcoming events in the community, 4-H club news, and educational information provided for Sutton County by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

As your new Home Economics agent for the county, I will enjoy sharing current events.

Sonora is dressing up for the 100th birthday celebration. If you have not noticed the window displays popping up all over town, slow down, and take another look. The downtown area and several buildings along the highway streets are beginning to shine with interesting displays.

Sonorans will have ample time to appreciate the windows. The displays will be kept in place through the end of October.

By the time the Centennial parade begins on Thursday, August 23rd, local artists Ron Nicholas, Patti Strauch and Barbara Earwood will have some more treats in store for Sonora. Replicas of Sonorans from the past will begin to make appearances around town.

An exciting mural depicting Sutton County's beginnings is in the planning stage. Sonorans can enjoy the mural during the Centennial year, and remember our humble beginnings.

What fun it is to witness the Old West coming to life right here in Sonora. The rough and rowdy Payton and Garrett gangs are striking often (when we least expect it). Have you recognized Travelin Tom (Payton), Jealous Jim (Garrett), Preacher Preston (Faris), Killer Kerbow (Bruce), Braggin Bob (Brockman), Vicious Virgil (Poloczek), The Kid (Spiller), Scandalous Scott (Garrett), Prowlin Preston (Love), Rowdy Rocky (Jones), or Desperado David (Patton)? These tough gangs have entertained local citizens and really surprised out-of-state travelers. Look for more appearances from some of the "hairiest" and toughest gangs in Sonora until the end of October.

Please fly the American flag (Texas flag is welcome too) during the week of Sutton County Days. Downtown Sonora will be more impressive if many flags are visible. Flag kits are available immediately through Sears, Foxworth-Galbraith, and your local County Extension Office.

Sonorans are asked to fly the flag until October 28, 1990, which is the final day of the Centennial celebration. Buildings can be enhanced by the use of several flags for decoration, especially if the building is large. Please take your flag down each night if possible.

If all businesses, as well as homes, are flying the American flag during the months of our celebration, visitors will view a county which is proud of its heritage.

Along with displays, gangs, and flags, Sonorans are busy planning their Centennial clothes. Everything from cowboy clothes, buckskins, hightop hats, prairie dresses, bonnets, and "Sunday-go-to-meetin" clothes are in the making. If you have not planned your own attire, remember that you will have several opportunities to wear them in August: trail ride, community box lunch, parade, rodeo, and Sutton County Days. Then more opportunities are available in October: Centennial celebration on courthouse lawn, Centennial play performances, and the community church service with lunch served by the Women's Club on the courthouse lawn.

Watch the newspaper for the dates, times, and places of Centennial activities. Get in the Centennial spirit. And celebrate!

The first known mention of a game resembling table tennis is as a miniature lawn tennis game in a London catalog.

Ramblin'

By Jim Fish
Contributing writer

Badlands Bill came wondering

Several years ago, an old cowboy by the name of Badlands Bill came wondering out of the upper watershed area of my mind. He was leading an old sway-back, Paint horse which he called Malo Suerte. Pickins must have been mighty slim, because their bones were held together with little more than the hide that covered them. They weren't ready for the refinements of modern day society, nor our society for them. Badlands was a mean and bad mannered son-of-a-gun, didn't know how to act around women and children. I've been keeping them at my house and teaching them a thing or two about the social graces.

It seems Badlands was captured by Comanche Indians when he was ten or eleven years old and raised to work for the squaws. His mother was a widowed German immigrant, turned dancehall girl. His daddy was a half-breed Apache, known only as Bill. Due to the fact they weren't married, he concluded he didn't have 'real' parents and he never tried to escape from the Indians. Besides, anybody that went to the trouble to steal him, must have wanted him pretty bad.

He left the tribe when he was twenty five and went to San Antonio to try to live as a white man. After a couple years he got into a fracas over a card game and left a man sucking air through a couple extra holes in his chest. It was about then he came back to the Devil's River country to live off the land. Over the years he just wondered, going from town to town for fun and "firewater". He'd rob a bank or two every now and again, and got to leaving dead men just about every where he went. Finally, he was reduced to raiding settlers and ranchers for what he could get, something he learned from the Comanches.

I saw right quick, he was a gold mine of stories. Being a writer, I've been keeping a journal of all the tales he has been telling. The following is an experience he had during his wondering years with the sire of Malo Suerte. It has a lesson we all can learn from.

Bad Luck and Bill

Let me tell ya a story 'bout Badlands Bill. Nobody knows how many he killed. He's a mean outlaw with a bad reputation, And was feared by most, in civilization.

He'd a glass-eyed Paint that was prone to buck, An his name said it all, it was jus Bad Luck. It was said that the mare that gave 'im birth, Was the craziest creature on God's green Earth.

Now Bill got a itch fer some fun one day, So he found 'em a town fer a scratch 'n a stay. When he went through the doors, 'bout half passed noon, Not a word could be heard in the whole sa-loon.

There was a man at the bar who was quiet 'n lean, An' he gone by the name o' Loco Gene. He'd a pair o' guns a hangin' from 'is hips. They's Colt 45's, with pearl handle grips.

Well, Bill had a laugh at 'is fancy clothes, An' shot a hole in the floor by Loco's toes. The dude cowboy didn't move a bit, So he fired some more, til one nearly hit.

Then Loco drew, an' a hail o' lead, Kept a comin' at Bill, right by his head. When the bullets stopped, and the smoke simmered down, Not a word could be heard, all over the town.

Badlands Bill didn't itch no more, Cause he turned and he ran, right outta the door. When he jumped in the saddle and was in the road, Bad Luck pitched, and Bill was throwed.

Well the horse found quick that the act wasn't wise, Cause Bill put a hole in each o' his eyes. Then he saw blood, all over his shirt! It was the first he'd knowed that he'd been hurt.

It seems that the guns o' Loco Gene, Had done their job, real swift an' clean, Fer they cut the lobes right offa each ear, And when he looked down... He's made a steer!

Well Loco left 'n wasn't seen again, But Badlands' fate'll make ya grin. In a year or so, as the story goes, Bill got a job an' some fancy clothes.

He was seen at the bar of the old sa-loon, Just a dancin' an' a prancin', an' a singin' a tune. It was plain ta see that he wasn't very mean, Cause 'is tight fittin' dress made 'im look like a queen.

Well the moral to the story, it ain't been wrote, But ya might oughta heed this little bitty note. If ya gotta scratch an itch in town, Wear bullet-proof shorts, or keep yer sidearms down.

stayed. It's just a natural thing."

Depending on where he is performing Edwards will change the style of his show.

In Sonora, Edwards leaned toward the entertainment side, sharing only enough facts to keep the crowd tuned into what the song is about or little special tidbits. When performing at, say a college Edwards will lean toward the education side.

It is a matter of giving the crowd what they want to hear.

Edwards is a big believer in that things go in cycles. Which is exactly what has happened with his career.

Edwards said when he was just starting out his career, he was getting in on the waning period on the popularity of western music. (Which he stresses is completely different from country music. Western music led to country music contends Edwards.)

After his first job at Six Flags Over America, Edwards made the trek to Nashville.

been much cooler. Then temperatures below freezing in Lubbock when warm spring weather should have taken hold.

These were the type of hardships the wagon trains went through when the nation was being formed.

Stapp said it is important for people to remember what it was like back then.

"People forget about the past," said Stapp. "We should take seriously what was done before us."

Stapp said, "This is the type of historical event that needs written reference."

That is what led to her writing the only book which recounts the wagon train. The good and the bad.

It was not easy writing the book, Stapp said. Each day after being on the road for easily more than half the day, she would have to write down the events.

"It would have been easy to say, 'I'll just write it tomorrow,' but then I never would have written it," said Stapp.

Stapp recounts in her book, when the wagon train rambled into Abilene there seemed to be a change of heart among the public and the participants.

It was at that time it appeared the wagon train would complete its mission.

Stapp believes the wagon train will not be the last of this sort to occur.

As Stapp said, "The old west is only to those who think it's lost."

Payton and Garrett gangs begin the fight/from page

But when, oh when, will something be done about these dastardly outlaws who think they can just run this town?

When will the law decide enough is enough and take these men down?

When will the public say this has gone on long enough and get a posse together to help keep this town peaceful?

It may never happen, but it is known the gangs will strike each other again.

They've promised each other they will get revenge.

X-Rays: The Inside Story

Although almost everyone has several X-rays taken in a lifetime, few know the inside story of this fascinating invention.

THEN: X-rays were discovered in 1895 by William K. Roentgen, a German physicist. Roentgen called them X-rays because at first he did not understand what they were. X is a scientific symbol for the unknown. Scientists now know X-rays are a kind of electromagnetic radiation, which also includes visible lights, radio waves and gamma rays.

Within a few months after Roentgen's discovery, doctors were using X-rays to examine broken bones. In 1896, Thomas Edison improved the fluoroscope so it could be used to view X-ray images. More efficient X-ray tubes were invented over the years. In the 1970s, radiologists began to use new processes for recording X-ray pictures, including CAT scanning.

NOW: New X-ray technology developed here on earth can bring out-of-this-world benefits to the U.S. space program. The Federal Systems Division of Eastman Kodak Company has been awarded a $30-million contract to develop a prototype medical X-ray imaging system to be used aboard the United States' Space Station scheduled for operation in 1995.

This Diagnostic Radiographic Imaging System (DRIS), compacts an entire X-ray system into a space of about 5.5 cubic feet and weighs less than 200 pounds. The equipment will let doctors on the ground assess disease or injuries that might occur to those working in space. It could prevent early termination of the mission or a costly rescue mission.

Autograph party to be held

An autograph party has been scheduled for Saturday, August 18 from 10 a. m. until 1 p. m. at Tedford Jewelry to celebrate the publication of Biscuits O'Bryan's Book of Beans, Bread and Other Bull: (Fictional Tales with Factual Receipts), written by the Rev. Monte Jones, Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church. The book, published by Record Stockman Press, Wheat Ridge, Colorado, contains many of the stories told by Biscuits during appearances at the Covered Wagon Dinner Theater, The National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration, The Texas Folklife Festival, and The Texas Cowboy's Reunion. There are also many of Monte's favorite recipes that are for dishes found either on bunk house tables or served from the chuckwagon. The book also includes an Introduction by Elmer Kelton and a Preface by Stella Hughes, who writes a column for Western Horseman.

Monte is very grateful for John and Dell Tedford's graciousness in hosting this event, and he hopes to see all his friends that day.

The date and time, again: Saturday, August 18, 10 a. m. until 1 p. m. at Tedford Jewelry.

The umbrella is believed to be over 3,000 years old.

ADVANCING Your Career
Helpful Ideas From The World's Top Managers

Q. What's a good way to get noticed by top management?

A. "Declare victory," says Robert Dilenschneider, head of the world's largest public relations firm, Hill and Knowlton.

"Look for opportunities to declare victory," says Dilenschneider in a startling new book. "If your boss has a weekly activity report, find a way to mention fine work. About to solve a genuinely tough problem? Let management know that the problem is a real 'bear.'"

"Update your bosses periodically. Then, when you finally lick the problem, they can share in the win."

The new book, "Power and Influence," is at some bookstores but not all, so it's a good idea to call around before going to a store.

ICA convention held Aug. 9-11

"Issues facing the modern cattlemen" was the theme for the 16th annual ICA convention held at the College Station Hilton in Bryan, Texas, August 9-11.

The topics discussed were animal welfare, water quality, water rights, beef production and global warming, along with government policy on beef production.

Dr. Zerle Carpenter, Director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service was moderator. Roger Mikeska of the National Cattlemen's Assn. started the morning off with his talk on controversial animal welfare issue. Dr. John Sweeten who has conducted many water quality studies for the Texas Cattle Industry is an agricultural engineer with the TAES discussed the issues of water quality and water rights. Dr. Floyd Byers, who was recently seen on USA Today, addressed the group on Beef Production and global warming - facts and fallacies. Dr. Lawrence Lippke discussed the government policies that will impact cattle producers in the coming year, as well as the Farm Bill of 1990.

The "headline luncheon" featured as guest speakers, Rick Perry-candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture- and Clayton Williams, candidate for Governor, who was introduced by Ruth Espy. These candidates received a standing ovation-and with their leadership in these respective offices-Texas can again claim her rightful place in the nation.

The traditional Presidents reception was followed by Jerry Clower, from Yazoo City, Mississippi - humorist, who is a nine time winner of the Country Comic of the Year award. Clower combines his strong religious belief with an enthusiastic and humorous look at life to create inspirational yet enjoyable presentations.

Friday afternoon, Dr. H. Russell Cross was moderator for a session looking at the state of the beef industry. Cross was principal researcher in the National Consumer Retail Beef Study. This research led to the 1/4 inch trim on beef cuts by supermarkets and the change of "good" quality grade name to "select" by USDA.

Richard Wortham, director of industry relations for the Texas Beef Industry Council gave an overview of recent activities funded by the beef check-off program. His talk also included programs designed to increase foreign demand for U. S. produced beef.

Dr. Dennis Herd - a beef cattle specialist in nutrition at A&M - discussed the effects of trace minerals on the health and reproduction of beef cattle.

Friday's general session was concluded by Dr. Barron Rector, who maintains an active applied research program related to forage quality and rangeland production.

Whether one was a veteran of Las Vegas tables, or a novice for fun games of chance, "casino night" was enjoyed by all. Blackjack, craps, roulette and chuck-a-luck were enjoyed by all. The proceeds of this event will all go to the Texas 4-H scholarship fund. Most interesting for all members who wished to participate, were live animals judged on Thursday - and then compared to actual carcass statistics on Saturday morning. Ray Riley, manager of the Rosenthal Center was on hand to evaluate the carcasses to show producers some of the problems with correlating live animals to quality grades.

Dr. Davey Griffin, Dr. Dan Hale and Dr. Jeff Savell discussed value based evaluation of beef carcasses. Also, new technologies for instrument grading of cattle and carcasses and finally; was discussed existing and new markets for beef exports.

The trade show was represented by thirty-eight booths, with exhibitors displaying squeeze chutes, research findings and ideas and medications to help everyone in agriculture.

Friday evening entertainment also included dancing music by "The Western Express."

Attendance was extremely good; and the convention was considered the best yet, and; the most successful.

ICA holds monthly business meeting

The Independent Cattlemen's Association held its monthly business meeting and Dutch-treat dinner on Monday, August 6 at the Sutton County Steakhouse.

Present were: Mrs. Ruth Shurley, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, Chairman-Larry Finklea, Johnston Holekamp, Dr. Mike Keller, Mrs. Adele Wilson and Mrs. Ruth Espy.

Discussion of the 16th annual ICA Convention was the topic of the evening. The convention was held on August 9-11.

Clayton Williams, candidate for Governor and Rick Perry, candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture were featured at the headline luncheon on Friday.

Due to the Labor Day, the monthly meeting will not be held in September. The next regular meeting will be held on October 1, same time, same place.

The annual calf sale will be held the end of September again this year. All members are urged to send a donation to the ICA office. Or better still, send a calf to your auction and send the money the calf brings to the ICA office at 704 East Wonsley, Suite 202, Austin, Texas 78753. For other information call Susan or Charles at 512-836-1321.

Now AmWest can give you something few banks can...

A good night's sleep.

Now AmWest has "DreamSaver"—a savings program designed to bring peace of mind to all those who worry about saving money.

Here's how it works: You tell AmWest how much you want to save every month, (as little as $25 if you like) and they'll deduct it automatically from a free checking account (that's right, free checking) and put it into a CD account. Keep your money there for a full 12 months and it will earn a high-interest CD rate. Take it out early, and you'll get a penalty — three months interest or $50.

So "DreamSaver" not only helps you save money on a regular monthly basis — it helps you keep your hands off it too. And with a little money in savings — a good night's sleep will come a whole lot easier.

Put Your Money on Texas.

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Interest paid quarterly. Rates subject to change without notice.
