Emergency declared for city, county

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

City and county officials joined forces Tuesday morning and declared a local emergency with the state of Texas for Sonora and Sutton County.

The declaration, signed by County Judge Carla Fields and Sonora Mayor Billy C. Gosney, effectively asks the state of Texas for emergency funds to help repair damages caused by flooding Monday.

More than 8 1/2 inches of rain in a 36-hour period spurred the worst flooding in Sonora since 1936.

only go toward public buildings, roads and bridges.

Pool said help from the state is not assured.

"Because of the smaller amount of damage, usually it is up to local civic organizations to help," said Pool.

According to Pool, the county and city are in the process of gathering information of damage to public and private building and roads and bridges in both Sonora and Sutton County.

The Red Cross was in Sonora Tuesday doing a windshield survey. Pool said the survey is of private homes to see if other organizations are needed.

Police Department, Sutton County Sheriff's Office and Department of Public Safety officers.

The water reached down to U.S. Highway 277 which was closed for about 2 hours and shut down Glasscock Street east of 277. St. Ann's Street was also closed. U.S. Highway 277 north was also closed for about 1 hour.

For more than two hours traffic had to use I-10 to get east of Main Street and west of U.S. Highway 277.

Sheriff's officers and volunteer firefighters evacuated several families by boat on flooded Chestnut Street. They were taken to emergency shelters at the high school and 4-H center.

No deaths or injuries were reported said Pool.

Pool said firetrucks and ambulances evacuated more than 20 people near the draws. Evacuations included some bed-ridden people who were taken to the hospital, and eight children at Busy Bee Day Care Center on Railroad Street.

City officials reported temporary utility losses to some areas. Most utilities were restored late in the afternoon.

Polocek: dams did their job

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

Virgil Polocek of the Soil Conservation Service heard the concerns of the public Monday while Sonora was being flood.

"A couple of women came up to me and said the dam behind the hospital was a couple of feet from the top," said Polocek. "I knew it wasn't the case, but it was worth checking."

The concerns of the public were about the possibility of 13 dams, which were built in the late 1950s through the 1960s to help stem flooding which had plagued Sonora, not holding out.

"They are sound," said Polocek of the dams. "They were far from breaching."

Polocek went one step further, "The dams did the job they were supposed to; they retarded enough water to keep the big flooding from Sonora."

There were some impressive numbers to back Polocek's position. Polocek said the six dams, 5, 6, 9, 10, 12, and 13, counted as of Tuesday had over 45 1/2 square miles of drainage acres. The spillway elevation for those six dams showed 10,030 acre/feet of water.

Polocek said it is the spillways which are the keys to how the dams work. Spillways simply are how the water gets past the dam.

Polocek explained each of the dams has two spillways.

The first spillway, Polocek said, is a concrete conduit through the dam which lets water out at a given rate.

"It's a controlled situation," said Polocek.

The other spillway is the emergency set of one or, in some cases, two around both ends of the dam.

The dam spillways are, "Dam safety tools or precautions", said Polocek. They are there so the dam does not breach.

"We had so much rain, the emergency spillways functioned and that is what caused the flood," said Polocek. "That is (also) probably the reason the water stayed up for (about 2 hours) then went back."

Polocek said the flood was almost a controlled flood.

When asked how bad the flood would have been if there had been no dams, Polocek said he could only estimate.

"I would say the water would have gone on Crockett Street to the Dry Devil's River," said Polocek. "It was already heading that way when it receded....On the east side it could have gone past Foxworth-Galbraith to (First Street) where it would have flowed down to the Wool House....It would have taken those homes, they would have been under water."

Polocek wrapped up the estimation with, "There could have been loss of life. We don't know that either."

While the cost of damage is going to be high, it is apparent it will be nowhere near what it would have been if the dams had not been there.

That was the case in 1936 when a flood did over $1 1/2 million in damage to Sonora.

Polocek said the 13 dams were built at a total cost of $1.9 million. Of that total, the local people paid just $272,656 with the soil conservation service picking up the rest of the tab.

If the $3,000 per year for maintenance is added in (Polocek said this was an estimated cost and actually the maintenance has been practically nil for many of the years), the total is still under $400,000. With this week's flood, it stands to reason that the dams have already paid for themselves.

It is not the cost factor of the dams which concerns Polocek, it is the public's perception of their safety.

"If we could take you and all the women in the office up (to the dams), they would understand better."

The Bronco defense, led by senior tackle Eric Galindo, forced Junction to punt the ball on their first five drives of the game. During that stretch, Sonora held the Eagles to just two first downs.

Commenting on the play of Eric Galindo, Sonora head coach Bob Bellard said, "His improvement from the first scrimmage to now is tremendous. We need him to keep playing strong for us."

Galindo had help on the inside from Robert Gallion, Trini Sentena, Johnny Terry and Tate Fincher.

Sophomore tackle Wil Trainer, called up from the junior varsity due to the injury of William Burch, got extended playing time and looked strong.

Sonora was able to capitalize on the strong defensive performance. The Broncos put together drives of 75 and 23 yards to jump to a 14-0 first quarter lead.

Fight continues for Ann Hill

By Joan Latta
DRN Contributing Writer

The tiny lady with the big smile who has been taking your money for license plates for the past 15 years or so, may be Sutton County's answer to the Steel Magnolias-- but since Ann Hill is a native Sonoran, "Steel Mesquite" might be more appropriate.

Ann is now a patient at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, undergoing experimental bone marrow treatment in a last-ditch stand in her fight to beat a malignant abdominal tumor.

The cancerous growth first became evident last fall, and has proved resistant to both chemo and radiation treatment. This courageous lady, with the support of her family, has elected to take part in the eight to 10 week course of treatment not only to help her own case, but to provide medical data which will be invaluable in the treatment of future patients.

Ann and her husband, W.H. "Whiskey" Hill, have a son Wayne, a 1990 graduate of the University of Texas in Austin. Her parents, Robbie and Bob Teaff, and her brother, Carl, all are long-time residents of Sonora. She has a sister, Truba Derrick, who lives in San Saba with her rancher husband and three children.

Ann was born in Sonora and graduated from Sonora High School in 1957. She has been an elected county official since 1978.

As a result of her course of treatment being considered "experimental" in nature, there is very little chance that her group insurance carrier will pay anything on the rapidly escalating medical bills. Several fund-raising events are in the planning stages, and more will appear about them in the near future.

In the meantime, those wishing to help may do so by contributing to the Ann Hill Fund, Sutton County Community Trust, First National Bank of Sonora, or to the Ann Hill Fund at the Sutton County National Bank.

All donations are tax deductible.

Local man wins shooting title

Using a borrowed rifle, Ed C. Duncan won the Class A Silhouette Championships held in Raton, N.M. Sept. 7-9.

Duncan, a deputy with the Sutton County Sheriff's Office, borrowed the rifle from a local rancher after lending his rifle to his son-in-law for the event. Duncan shot 31-80 targets over two days with the borrowed gun to win the National Rifle Association event.

"I tried to buy (the rifle) off him," said Duncan, but the rancher didn't go for it.

Just Chatting

A funny thing happened...

Hanging around sporting events has allowed me to see some very funny things. The funniest of them all occurred last Friday night in Junction.

I wish I could write about it, but unfortunately it really isn't fit for print. All I will say is, if you are curious just ask anybody who was at the game. I doubt if they missed what happened, since it occurred in the end zone and 50-yard line.

Since I can't write that story I'll just relate some other things I've seen in the sporting world.

My high school basketball team won just two games in each of my junior and senior years. That in itself is pretty funny (though they didn't think so), but it's not the funniest.

Just like at the high school football games here, my high school basketball team would run through the banner at the start of each game.

The cheerleaders would draw up a nice banner and then put it in a round holder made of wood. This one time a player did not pick up his feet in time and tripped over the holder sending him sprawling through the banner and then skidding along the floor.

I can still see the player bursting through the bottom portion of the banner head first and the other players still behind it laughing their heads off.

During the basketball season I would also watch the local college team. They were better, but sometimes funny things would still happen.

Like the one time when a guy who wasn't used to dribbling the ball all of a sudden found himself with the ball and the court wide open in front of him.

He took off like a shot down to the other end where he then stopped at the top of the circle and started making like a fullback. He just stopped dribbling took about four huge steps jumped and tried to jam dunk it.

He not only missed the dunk but he landed right on his rear end as the ball landed four rows up in the stands.

It was at this same game (I was about 12) that the cheerleaders were selling something or rather so they could buy new uniforms.

I was having to yell to my friend because it was so loud. So I started screaming something at the top of my lungs so that only he could hear it. Just at that moment time was called and it got real quiet so everybody in the gymnasium heard me yell. "The cheerleaders don't need new uniforms, the players do."

Even at that age I could be very critical of a team's performance.

The topper of them all (before what happened Friday) was at a Milwaukee Brewers' baseball game.

My senior year in college a bunch of us went to the game as part of a special media day. The deal included free tickets to the game.

It was an exciting game. In the bottom half of the ninth inning Ted Simmons smacked a grand slam to win the game against the Tigers. Naturally everybody left at the game went crazy. This included one of the guys I was with.

He started jumping up and down on his seat, giving high fives to everybody and just plain going nutsoid. It was on one of his jumps that he landed too far back and the seat folded up on him.

He landed in the funniest position I have ever seen. It was kind of like somebody tried to squish him into a paper sack against his will.

That's when my friend and I really started going crazy. We were on the ground we were laughing so hard.

So, I guess the lesson to be learned from all this is; don't take sports too seriously, it's only recreation anyway.

scoring for the Broncos when he scampered 48 yards on a trap play to cap the 75 yard drive. The 48-yard run was one of five runs for more than 20 yards in the game for Sonora.

"All backs are average until you get them in the secondary," said Bellard. "Our backs ran determined tonight."

The Broncos showed a strong running game for the second week in a row. Sonora gained 336 yards on the ground with Eric Espinosa the leader with 97 yards on just nine carries.

Danny Mata contributed 79 yards on eight carries and Oscar Perez 73 yards, including a 62-yard run, on nine carries.

Less than three minutes after the Youngblood touchdown, Espinosa scored the first of his pair of touchdowns when he went over from five yards out.

Sonora had to move the ball just 23 yards for the score after a controversial clipping call wiped out an apparent punt return for a score by Larry Chalk.

Junction had the wind taken out of their sails when the Broncos moved the ball 70 yards at the end of the first half and scored on a 55-yard toss from David Mirike to Chalk with 20 seconds remaining.

The Broncos wrapped up the game with a pair of touchdowns in the third quarter. Espinosa scored his second TD of the game and third of the year when he went 48 yards for a score and Perez punched over from the one four minutes later.

Bellard said the defense was outstanding, especially in the second half when they completely dominated the line of scrimmage.

"Junction was big and strong and it was important to shut down the inside (running) game," said Bellard.

Eagle's full back Nate Smith did gain 118 yards, but it took him 31 carries to do it. Smith gained 72 yards in the second half, most of that after the game was already out of reach.

Healthcare

By M. Scott Gilmore
Hospital Administrator

Our changing population

Hospitals are often criticized because our costs rise faster than general inflation. But inflation is just one of many factors in the increase. Another is drastic changes in the population we serve. Every year, more of our patients are in categories whose needs are expensive. The direct cost of serving them is above average, and their presence adds to overall cost of hospital operations. Year after year, more of our services are provided on an urgent basis around the clock. Staffing must be heavier, more special equipment is needed, new legal requirements must be met, and administrative overhead climbs. These costs fall largely on private payers.

*Our population is aging, with more people over 80, increasingly frail, dependent and difficult to serve.

*More of our patients are poor and uninsured. Often their health care needs are costly because of delay in seeking care, poor nutrition, lack of home resources, teenage pregnancy, inadequate prenatal care and premature birth.

*Alcohol and drug abuse is an alarmingly frequent reason for hospitalization, not just for addiction treatment. Many injuries from highway, job and home "accidents" actually are the result of drugs. Drug use causes and complicates a wide variety of physical and mental illnesses; the medical surgical care of these patients is compromised. Much of the enormously expensive need for infant intensive care is due to drug abuse during pregnancy. Addiction is a key factor in the spread of AIDS and other blood-borne infections.

*The presence of AIDS, hepatitis C and other immune deficient contagious diseases in the population is another societal source of "hospital cost." The cost impact merely begins with the services these patients use when they are hospitalized. The much larger cost is for preventing the spread of their infection - the year-round extensive "universal precautions" programs to protect employees, physicians, patients and the public from the potential that any patient could be infectious. This risk subjects hospitals to extensive occupational and environmental safety regulations. Blood product safety standards change constantly, requiring new tests and elaborate "look-back" programs, all costly in effort and adding legal liability.

*Hospital costs rise because more of our patients are admitted through the emergency department, with no opportunity to schedule their care. Elective admissions have been reduced by new insurance coverage rules that require advance approval for admission, with proof that in-patient treatment is vital. Also, as more persons are uninsured, care tends to be delayed until needs are urgent. In our mobile population, fewer people have a personal physician - they go to the hospital when needs arise. The number of people taken to hospitals by emergency ambulance systems continues to climb.

*Emergency admissions require hospitals to staff more services around the clock and have extra stand-by capacity, adding to hospital overhead. Proper facilities for treatment of trauma (critically ill and injured patients) are extremely expensive to staff and equip, many of these patients are unable to pay for their care, and the liability risks are prohibitive.

Lillian M. Hudspeth Memorial Hospital must constantly absorb new problems related to the population - with little help from the government. Your help in contacts with legislators would be valuable.

How valuable is your watch?

A disturbance arose from within the doors of a bar in downtown Pleiku, South Viet Nam one afternoon. I was aimlessly walking along the opposite side of the street from the establishment. As usual, the sidewalks were full of people and the noise was high. Still; a scream, an American swearing and a horrified Oriental voice was plainly audible.

Suddenly, the front door burst open and a teenage Vietnamese boy lunged out and fell flat of his face onto the concrete. He got up in a flash and ran in the direction from which I came, as though his life depended on a quick escape. Indeed it was, for right behind him was a huge Army master sergeant wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

The American fired two shots into the air as soon as he was outside. Every living soul in the area fell to the ground. After running about twenty five yards in the direction of the boy eluding him, he stopped, took aim and fired a shot that hit the boy in the right arm near the shoulder. The boy went down and laid crying in pain.

It was difficult to accept the fact of what I was seeing and I just watched in amazement as the hulk of a man went to the boy. When he held the gun to the boy's head I grew nauseous, expecting to see a kid get his head blown off. Instead, the sergeant frisked and rifled through the youngster's pockets until he withdrew a object. He gave no indication of remorse for what he had done nor compassion for the badly wounded and bleeding youth; just holstered the weapon and returned toward the bar.

While walking back, he noticed me staring at him in disbelief, smiled a viciously proud smile and nonchalantly tossed the object into the air. Before it fell back into his hand, I saw it was a wrist watch.

"All that for a watch!" I thought. "Something is terribly wrong here." Even today I find it impossible to fit into a suitable place among my memories and past experiences, which are used to guide my actions during appropriate situations. In short, there was no lesson learned.

I've recorded and shared it, lest it slip into the void of forgotten happenings and thus serve no purpose. Maybe you can use the experience later or simply be entertained by it for a moment.

Not too long after the shooting, I had a similar experience. While walking near that same bar, I felt the pressure of two fingers on my left wrist, slipping under my watch. I reached over with my right hand and grabbed the arm of a ten or twelve year old boy before he could do his deed.

I was intently angered and swung the boy around and in front of me with such force, it dislocated his shoulder. When I realized what I'd done, the thoughts of my 'precious' watch disappeared and I felt really bad. Seeing the pain in his young face nearly killed me. He ran into a mass of people and didn't give me a chance to help.

Maybe I was a sucker and maybe I still am, but all that is dear to me, tells me that a human is far more consequential than a time piece. There was a lot that happened over there to desensitize us toward people and even children, but who really looses when compassion is gone? What will we do when we finally realize that we need each other?

Cartridge Rifle Silhouette Matches. These matches are quite different from the normal target shooting in many aspects.

First, the rifles must be made before 1896 or be a replica and must shoot cartridges of that era. The rifles must have an outside hammer.

That presents an interesting twist, since no cartridges of that era are factory made, all ammunition must be hand-loaded, with blackpowder. Bullets must be lead cast also.

Hitting targets takes true marksmanship. Shooters have four stages of 10 targets each from distances of 200, 300, 385 and 500 meters.

Targets are made of steel and are shaped as chickens, pigs, turkeys and rams about 33 by 28 inches in height.

When asked how he could see the targets from that distance, Duncan said, "That's what everybody says, but you can."

To have the target count on the score it has to be knocked down.

The national record currently stands at 27 of 40 targets, which shows just how difficult this sport is.

Joining Duncan for the trip to Raton was not only his son-in-law, but his daughter and wife.

Duncan said his wife is going to take up the sport after seeing the woman victor and figuring she could do as well if not better.

In 1964, Norman L. Manley scored two holes-in-one, back to back, at the Del Valle Country Club golf course in Saugus, Calif.

WIC participants urged to return to clinic

State health officials are urging the women, infants and children who were cut from the Texas WIC nutrition program earlier this year to contact their local health clinics. Several thousand of those who were cut are once again eligible for free food, medical screenings and nutrition counseling.

Legislation passed by Congress and signed by President Bush this week allows the Texas WIC program to restore services to 15,000 of the 27,000 participants who were cut. WIC currently serves 330,000 people every month, down from 357,000 in January.

"We urge all those, especially pregnant women, who were cut from WIC during the past few months to return to their WIC clinic," said Maria Carrasco. "It is imperative that pregnant women eat healthy foods and have their health monitored. Otherwise, their babies' health could be in jeopardy."

The newly passed legislation allows for the participants' return by enabling the Texas WIC program to borrow up to 3 percent of the funds earmarked for next year's food costs.

The rising cost of WIC-authorized foods--milk, cheese, juice, eggs, beans, cereal, peanut butter and formula--forced the participants to be cut.

The Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) is administered with federal funds totaling $150,004,058 which accounts for 96.4 percent of the program's annual budget.

Flooding in Sonora is CROCKETT STREET BRIDGE — This picture of the Crockett Street bridge was taken from the roof of Bits and Pieces at about 10:45 a.m. At the time, the bridge was closed to traffic. The bridge remained closed until after noon.

FLOOD DAMAGE — This house located on Crockett Street, at one time had a beautiful fence surrounding it. Flood waters demolished the fence and did damage to the yard. Notice the depth of the water the unidentified man is standing in.

DEBRIS MOVING ALONG — This picture was taken looking west from the Sinaloa area. Flood waters carried debris such as trees, garbage, and fencing down the Dry Devil's River and Lowrey Draw.

TRAFFIC CONTROL — These officers watched traffic at the corner of Crockett Street and U.S. Highway 277. Volunteer firefighters, Sutton County Sheriff's Office, Sonora Police Department and Department of Public Safety officers were called at about 10:15 a.m. for traffic control. Many roads in Sonora were closed for about 3 hours.

RAGING WATERS — Charlotte Gilmore looks north along the Lowrey Draw from the roof of Bits and Pieces. In the background is the Concho Street Bridge which was already closed to traffic. Also, it is easy to tell just how fast the water was running by the choppy waves. Water just about surrounded Bits and Pieces, but very little damage was sustained.

KNOCKING AT THE DOOR — Flood waters Monday advanced toward the front door of this house, but did not enter. The house is located at the corner of Crockett Street and U.S. Highway 277. No damage estimates have yet been made available.

the worst since 1936

HIGH WATER — Ernest Barrera sashes through knee high water at the apartments located on Railroad Street and Mesquite Avenue. Barrera said the water was about 1/4-inch deep in his home before it receded. Also notice the depth of the water compared not only to Barrera but also to the mailboxes.

PECAN STREET FLOODED — This picture is taken looking north up Pecan Street from the corner of Pecan and Crockett. Businesses located in this area, including The Jug, suffered some of the biggest damage in Sonora. The depth of the water can be measured by the sign.

FROM HIGHWAY TO RIVER — U.S. Highway 277 south turned into a river with the flooding on Monday. Along with this area, further south the highway was also closed for about 3 hours.

SLOW GOING — It wasn't just slow going on Sinaloa, it was more like no go as the flood waters raged thru. This road continues to be cut off as the draws will most likely be running for the next week or so.

WATER TAKE OVER — Normally this area has no water in it. On Monday though, the entire area was basically a river. Note the houses in the background which appear to be flooded. If the photo is looked at carefully, a truck can be spotted with just the top portion of the cab able to be seen. It is located in the upper middle portion of the picture.

STALLED — If this truck was running before it won't be moving for a while now. The truck is parked at a house on Railroad Street. The water reached to the top of the wheel wells before finally receding.

NO GAS, PLENTY OF WATER — The Exxon station at the corner of Pecan Street and Crockett received it's share of water from the flooding on Monday. Many businesses closed for the day due to the flooding. Also, some home lost utilities but most utilities had returned by the late afternoon

JV team wins

The Sonora junior varsity scored three touchdowns to break open a close game in the third quarter and defeat Junction 31-16 at Bronco Stadium Thursday.

Sonora led 13-8 at halftime thanks much to Tracy Crites who scored a pair of touchdowns on runs of 36 and 6 yards.

The Broncos started their third quarter romp by taking the opening kick off and driving to the Junction 19. Wade Spain concluded the drive by scoring on a 19-yard reverse.

Less than two minutes later Max Gamez grabbed a Junction fumble at the 41-yard line and raced to the end zone. Gamez also intercepted a pass in the game.

Crites concluded the Sonora scoring with a 7-yard run with just 33 seconds remaining in the quarter.

The Broncos' defense played well through most of the game. They gave up a 59-yard touchdown run by Eddie Gonzales in the first half and a 5-yard run by Frank Uribe in the fourth quarter.

The victory evens the JV's record to 1-1. The Broncos will host Ozona Thursday. Game time will be 6:30 p.m.

YOUR HEALTH

The word "depression" can refer to an illness as well as the normal symptom that's part of the human condition.

Anyone can get "the blues." Those whose grief disrupts their lives for more than a few weeks may benefit from medical help.

The latter, ordinary sadness or normal grief, is usually brief and allows for normal functioning. People with clinical depression frequently have sleep and appetite disorders, weight loss, changes in physiological functions and various kinds of physical distress. An innate vulnerability determines severity.

Any grief reaction or unexplained "blues" lasting more than a few weeks can be considered a clinical depression and may require professional help. At any time, one in 20 Americans suffer major depressive illness.

Treatment can include drug therapy, life-style changes, and psychotherapy.

can give you something few banks can...

A good night's sleep.

Now AmWest has "DreamSaverSM", a savings program designed to bring peace of mind to all those who worry about saving money.

Here's how it works: You tell AmWest how much you want to save every month, (as little as $25 if you like) and they'll deduct it automatically from a free checking account (that's right, free checking) and put it into a CD account.

Keep your money there for a full 12 months and it will earn a high-interest CD rate. Take it out early, and you'll get a penalty — three months interest or $50. So "DreamSaverSM" not only helps you save money on a regular monthly basis — it helps you keep your hands off it too. And with a little money in savings, a good night's sleep will come a whole lot easier.

Redistricting hearing to be held

The Senate Select Committee on Legislative Redistricting, chaired by Senator Bob Glasgow of Stephenville, and the House Redistricting Committee, chaired by Representative Tom Uher of Bay City, have held 13 hearings throughout the state since March of this year. The hearings are to receive testimony from interested individuals in preparation for drawing new district lines for congressional, legislative, and State Board of Education districts.

The Austin hearing, to be held Friday, September 28, 1990, at the LBJ Auditorium, 26th Street and Red River, is the last of the currently scheduled interim hearings being held before the next regular legislative session.

For the Austin hearing, the committees will be seeking testimony regarding statewide redistricting issues as well as information concerning Austin and the surrounding area. The hearing will begin at 10 a. m., with regional issues to be addressed in the morning and statewide issues to be taken up after a lunch break between 1 and 2 p. m. If you would like to address the committees about issues regarding either the Austin area or redistricting in Texas in general, please plan to attend. In addition, the committees welcome written comments as testimony submitted either as a supplement to oral testimony or as an alternative to appearing before the committees in person.

The actual census numbers that will be used by the state for redistricting purposes must be provided to the legislature before April 1, 1991. At that time, the legislature will be requesting additional comments and more specific suggestions regarding new district boundaries. Your continued interest in redistricting is an invaluable addition to the success of the process.

Most rabbits are nocturnal creatures, preferring to eat and play from dusk until dawn. During the day they rest and sleep.

The young of rabbits are known as kits or kittens.
