Junior Chef of the Year named in 4-H contest

Janea Crowder, 10, was named as Junior Chef of the Year Monday at a 4-H contest held at the Sutton County Steakhouse.

Janea won the award, along with the vegetables/salads competition, with a dish called South of the Border Squash casserole.

Other winners in divisions were Quirina Perez, 10, in the meats area with Spaghetti Vera Cruz and Erin Payton, 10, in desserts with Wellesly Fudge Cake.

Honorable mentions were garnered by Erin Marks, Sarah Cook, Thomas Schenkel, Sarah Marrs, Kim Geske and Ashley Browning.

David Fisher finished second in desserts.

All the contestants contributed to the evening as the assortment of dishes were auctioned off following the awards ceremony. The 10 items raised $425 which will be put back into 4-H.

The desserts were the big bucks drawers. Erin's Wellesly Fudge Cake went for $80 and Sarah's Cream Cheese Peanut Butter Pie drew a $60 bid.

All items were popular as none went for less than $25.

County commission goes through light schedule

The Sutton County commission ran through a light agenda Monday morning in about 30 minutes.

The commission approved the sending of a letter to the state Attorney General asking for an opinion concerning over $40,000 in confiscated money back in 1986.

The judgment in the confiscation case showed Sutton County to receive the money but a law-mandated audit showed the money went to the 112th Judicial District.

District Attorney J.W. Johnson Jr. contends the error is clerical.

In other action: the commission approved new rules and regulations for the Sutton County Library. Some minor changes were adopted.

Blood donors honored as "silent heroes"

At a time when many of us are searching for hero role models, we, in Sonora, haven't very far to look. It's true, in the health care field, they are very often referred to as "the silent heroes", but heroes they are nevertheless. Countless lives are saved or quality of life vastly improved by their unselfish acts of donating blood when United Blood Services mobile crew comes to our community. Four or five times each year from fifty to seventy-five "silent heroes," without fanfare or the expectation of receiving something in return, show up to give the gift of life. Many have given over a gallon and several have given three, four and even five gallons over a period of time.

Once a year Graham Resources sponsors the Top Gun Award blood drive at which time from one hundred seventy-five to two hundred people will donate blood, giving a tremendous boost to total number of units of blood given by our community in a year's time.

At a recent appreciation luncheon in San Angelo, United Blood Services recognized the Sonora community and Graham AWARD EARNED - The community of Sonora and Graham Resources were honored by United Blood Services of San Angelo as two of the top 10 "Out of Town" donor resource groups. The plaques were handed out during Monday's County Commission meeting.

Resources as two of the top ten "Out of Town" donor resource groups. Community service awards were given to each, and accepted on their behalf by Nelda Mayfield, Sutton County Bloodmobile co-ordinator. On accepting the awards she stated, "We are very proud of our community and these special people who care enough for others to "recycle life." I accept these awards knowing it is the silent heroes and many other loyal and hard working volunteers who are being honored."

The next scheduled blood drive will be December 19, from 1 - 7 p. m. at the First National Bank community room.

Article draws ire of D.A.

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

A Houston Chronicle article concerning towns in West Texas along Interstate 10 has drawn the ire of 112th Judicial District Attorney.

The article, written by Roy Bragg, extensively quotes Sutton County based District Attorney J.W. Johnson Jr.

"He misquoted me and took other things out of context," said Johnson.

The quote which drew the most fire from Johnson appeared at the end of the article. Bragg quoted Johnson, "I authorize and encourage my citizens to carry weapons in their vehicles. You carry a gun in Dallas or Houston and you'll get busted for using it. But you can't take chances out here. You put the scope on them and drop them."

The quote ended, "And our grand juries bless whoever did it."

Johnson said he did not say that. "What I said was: We do things out here according to the law....We don't let people carry guns. You live here, do you see anybody carrying guns?"

Bragg disagreed with Johnson's version, "I didn't misquote him, and I didn't take him out of context....I just didn't write it the way he wanted it written."

Bragg said the interview took place in Ft. Stockton in January over breakfast with several other people present.

Johnson added, "I'm not condoning people to carry weapons."

Johnson said the article does bring out some of the dangers that can occur in towns near I-10. He said the highway is responsible for a large percentage of the major crimes in the area.

Fortunately, Johnson said, the citizens in Sonora are not usually aware of calls on I-10 unless there is a major crime.

"I think that is a reflection on the law enforcement in our area," said Johnson.

Johnson said the context of the last portion of the article should have been to help keep thieves from Houston out of the area. Johnson contends Bragg missed that point.

"(Bragg) makes it seem like any innocent traveler in the area is in danger."

Johnson said tourism is extremely important to Sonora and asked why he would say anything to discourage travelers from coming to this area.

Bragg agreed the context was about keeping thieves from Houston away, but disagreed the context was not there.

Sutton County Sheriff Bill Webster also was quoted in the article. Webster said all quotes appeared to be correct on his part. Webster's quotes were about some of the other problems such as car thieves and fraud.

Webster said the main point concerned the number of calls into the sheriff's office from I-10. About 70 percent of all calls received in the office come from the highway.

Broncos stymied in 14-7 district defeat

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

Unable to take what they were given, the Sonora Broncos fell to Reagan County 14-7 in District 6 AAA action Friday night at Bronco Stadium.

Sonora was given six presents in the form of Owl turnovers, three interceptions and three fumbles, but were able to score just seven points off the gifts.

"Reagan County has 11 guys on defense that are fine players," said Sonora head coach Bob Bellard.

Sonora was held to a season-low 148 total yards. Of that total 147 came on the ground.

"They come off the ball real quick," said tailback Eric Espinosa. "As soon as you put your head up, they were there."

The game started terrific for the Broncos as they forced a pair of turnovers on the first two Reagan County drives.

David Mirike intercepted the first of three passes for him on the evening to end the first Owl drive. Sonora eventually gave the ball back on loss of downs.

The Broncos cashed in on the second turnover to grab a 7-0 lead with just over 5:00 remaining in the first quarter.

After recovering a fumble at the Owl's 20, Adam Youngblood covered the distance on a trap play. Oscar Perez kicked the extra point.

The Owls countered with the only score they would need, a 60-yard scoring pass from quarterback Jason Kohutek to Nuno Rivero. Rivero then passed to Allen Strambler for the 2-point conversion and an 8-7 Reagan County lead.

The first half ended with the same score as both defenses limited the effectiveness of the offenses.

The Broncos defense came through with a pair of strong stands in the second quarter.

The Owls took over at the Bronco's 28 after a nine-yard punt into a strong wind. David Mirike ended the short drive with his second interception of the game.

Reagan County had a second opportunity with under 2 minutes in the first half. They again took over at the 28 of Sonora after an eight-yard punt.

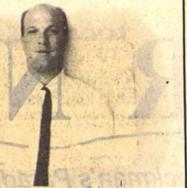

Strambler ran 24 yards to the four, then two more carries took the Owls

Go see the play

It appears the play April 2, 1901 will be the highlight of the centennial celebration this weekend in Sonora.

From all indications Marti McLain has written a play which lives up to the billing of being hysterical.

The play is based on John Eaton's book "The Shooting of Will Carver", but McLain has taken the liberty of changing a few facts around to make the play more interesting. McLain didn't miss the target on the changes. They only enhance what occurs.

One of the changes is that Steve Murphy, one of the first editors of the Devil's River News, is now Pat Murphy. The reason: see the play and check the epilog.

In my opinion, the Murphy brothers make the play. When they made their entrance I laughed so hard I had to duck behind the bench from disturbing anybody. The two men follow each other's lines so well it is impossible not to crack up.

Being a newspaper man I may be biased about the Murphys. The point is, everybody will be able to relate to somebody in the play and just lose it. It's what makes the play so fun.

Speaking of fun, it is obvious the actors and actresses enjoyed performing. I like it when an actor or actress can't help but laugh slightly when a funny line is thrown out.

It always reminds me of the Carol Burnett show when Harvey Korman almost always had to look away from Tim Conway or he'd completely lose it.

It's fun and the play is meant to be fun.

These are not professional thespians and it allows for some looseness.

Another strong point for the play is that it moves right along. There are three acts and none are too long that the audience becomes bored.

Some lines were missed during the dress rehearsal Monday, but that should be attributed to performing before an audience for the first time. It was only a small gathering, but an audience nonetheless.

I would suggest tickets be purchased immediately to see one of the four performances on Saturday or Sunday. If you don't, you'll regret it.

MAJOR EVENT - One of the biggest events to occur in Sonora during its' century of establishment was when the railroad came in. Here hundreds gather to watch the train roll in during July of 1930.

Healthcare

By M. Scott Gilmore
Hospital Administrator

Hospital bills are too high, but why?

To illustrate the effect of regulations and legislation on hospitals, here is a commentary originally broadcast by Paul Harvey.

There is a way to make grocery store prices much higher than they are. As is, food is one of the consumer's best bargains. The cost of living would be much higher than it is except for comparatively reasonable food prices.

But there is a way to skyrocket those grocery store prices if you want to:

Subject your grocer to the same regulations under which hospitals are required to operate. That means:

*The grocer would have to record the precise number of minutes each customer was in the store.

*The record must show which customers purchased only meat and nothing else, which customers bought both bread and meat.

*Separately the grocers' report must state which customers bought meat and milk. Also the number of customers who came in for one item and purchased more than one.

*Further, the grocery store is required to give away $50,000 worth of groceries each year and signs must be posted in the store in three languages telling customers that the store is required to do this.

*Records must be maintained on all customers and all groceries given away under this plan.

*Further, for one half of the customers, the store is not allowed to set prices. The Government will determine those prices. . . and if those prices are arbitrarily held down to "no more than last year's prices" then the store owner must pay his higher expenses by charging higher prices to the other half of his customers.

But for the other half, the store cannot collect cash from the customer, but must send a bill to the customer's employer.

*Further, the store manager is responsible for planning each customer's meals. If he errs in judging what's best, the customer may sue him.

*Also, the store must keep careful records of each can of peas sold - by brand name, size, customer age, and employer of customer. . . Similar reports are required on each product sold.

*The store must certify in writing that each customer needs groceries before permitting him to enter the store.

*The store must certify in writing that each customer needs groceries before permitting him to enter the store.

*The store must have a committee to establish a "shopping time limit" for each customer. Any customer permitted to shop longer than the pre-established time may not be required to pay for his or her groceries.

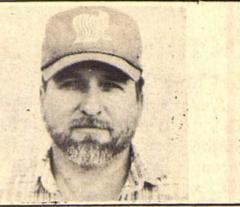

*The store must have the written approval of government authorities before adding or deleting any product or brand.

There are many more regulations to which hospitals are subject, but this is enough to help you to understand why the costs of medical care have gone up faster and higher than the price of groceries.

Again, my thanks to Paul Harvey for this timely bit of news.

Deviants are everywhere

In a small town such as Sonora, it is very difficult to accept people from other places. The reason being a greater gap between habits and standards that does not exist among our own. Most of us recognize the ability to accept others for what they are as a positive attribute, but we can't do that if we apply our own individual codes of ethics and behavior toward such acceptance.

Each of us views the surroundings as if we were centers of the universe. It is good that we do, but we seem to forget that every other individual perceives the environment in a like manner. There must be millions of universes out there. We use our perceptions to determine what is normal and what is not. Those that deviate, as everyone will, are judged as greater or lesser persons than we. Persons that seem to fall within the "norm" are regarded with good favor and they are the ones to which we feel akin. That group may be small but it is comfortable.

What if the factor formed the group suddenly became considered wrong or illegal by society at large? Well, studies have shown that most will withdraw and not associate with those they once did because they no longer view those individuals with acceptance; they are not normal. There is the folly of applying our own set of standards toward the reception of others.

Ideally, we should adhere to our own laws as we feel obligated and keep a broad mind in dealing with those who deviate from them. However, ideals seem not to function well due to the fickle and emotional nature of the human being. It is at this point most of us withdraw from other, in one way or another, and seek solitude for peace of mind. Then we learn we need the company of other people and find we must accept them by their terms or waste away in abject loneliness.

Mismatched clothing, disheveled hair, absent-mindedness and utter lack of mechanical sense accurately describes a significant person from my past. At first, these things kept me at a distance. When the Army forced us to become roommates and we subsequently learned more of one another, he became the closest friend I've ever known. Though he possessed some very undesirable characteristics, H. T. was a whiz at the computer, a top-ranked Modern Pentathlon athlete (track, horseback riding, fencing, marksmanship, and swimming) and shared with me an insatiable appetite for the philosophical.

We became such close friends, it was rare to see one of us without the other. We traveled Europe together and shared many, many laughs and sweet memories of youth and adventure. We even received Christmas cards addressed to the both of us.

Still we correspond, even though our lifestyles are radically different and violently oppose one another on some important political issues. H. T. is the chairman of a left-wing rights organization, traveling frequently to Central American nations for months on end. Recently, he afforded me the opportunity to travel to Nicaragua to witness the presidential election. I had to decline, however, due to the obligations put upon me by my present lifestyle.

Strangely enough, we live the other's dream. He would love to become a family man and live a more sedate and routine life but feels motivated to deprive himself of that, owing to his passions regarding human rights and American intervention. I would give my eye teeth for the excitement of travel and viewing world issues firsthand but feel obligated to my family to remain close to home.

I cannot remember a time when "right" or "wrong" was made an issue during any of our discussions where differences in belief and moral standards aroused our emotions. Those arguments yielded insight into an opposing view and the companionship provided a heartfelt friendship that transcends time. Otherwise, I might have spent my three years in Europe wallowing in self pity and solitude.

Certain gains can be made with every human interaction. In order to maximize the gain, neutral ground must be established where it is realized that "right" and "wrong" are qualities based solely on opinion; where problems become challenges to be discussed and overcome; where appreciation is the objective and mutual human respect is the vanguard leading into every human contact.

Formulate your "norm", your ethics and standards. Cling to them and let them represent who you really are. Those with corresponding ethics will be naturally drawn toward you. Remember, nevertheless, every person is different in varying degrees and there is no norm when considering the individuality of individuals. Accept them for who and what they are and you will reap the greatest gain.

Senior citizens attend retreat

by Carole Thorp

Senior Center Director, Carole Thorp, and six participants of the Sutton County Senior Center recently attended the Senior Citizens Retreat at the H. E. Butt Foundation Camp near Leakey. Joined by folks from Mason, Eldorado, Junction, Eden, Brady and San Angelo were Maria Dominguez, Eulojia Flores, Rosa Galindo, Rosario Ibarra, Dolores Salinas and Mandy Turk.

Activity directors for the three day retreat were Kathy Park of San Angelo and Carole Thorp of Sonora. Campers got acquainted on the first night by playing signature bingo, having balloon relays and joining in a sing-a-long of golden oldies. A devotional followed the morning meal and campers were free to enjoy the beautiful Frio River and all the camp facilities until evening. That evening entertainment came from the campers themselves, with each group performing skits, songs, dances or telling of jokes. The evening closed with an afterglow around the campfire.

A total of fifty-four campers attended the retreat. All campers left refreshed and motivated to make the very best of life. They also left with new friends and the promise to return again next year. Everyone encouraged camp organizers and directors, Sallye Teel of Junction to make reservations for the Fall of 1991.

A Good Night's Sleep

Lady MacBeth couldn't do it at all. Rip Van Winkle did it too much. Dorothy and Sleeping Beauty did it at the bidding of the wicked witch. "It" is sleep, the state of rest that naturally follows a day of activity—for some.

Unfortunately a large number of Americans identify closely with Lady MacBeth when it comes to slumber.

Insomnia, the inability to sleep, is a common sleep disorder that varies from patient to patient in cause, severity and duration.

Insomnia is by far the most prevalent of sleep disorders. It has been reported that approximately 32 percent of Americans are affected by insomnia and 15-20 percent of them consider their sleep disorder serious.

Now there is new hope for people with insomnia. Baker Cummins Pharmaceuticals, Inc. and Wallace Laboratories have introduced Doral (quazepam), a safe and effective prescription medication which treats insomnia. This new product has not been associated with the memory and behavioral problems reported with some other sleep medications.

Insomnia can be characterized by either difficulty falling asleep, intermittent awakening after falling asleep or awakening early and not being able to fall back asleep.

Insomnia occurs most frequently among women and elderly people. People suffering from insomnia are typically tense, anxious and ruminative at bedtime as they worry about health, death, work, personal problems and getting enough sleep. In fact, fear of sleeplessness is often so intense that it perpetuates the disorder.

When the inability to achieve sufficient sleep adversely affects feelings and behavior during the day, a professional should be consulted.

"Get the Hell Out!" -- Read Luke 16:19-31

Over 100 years ago, when the American Version of the Bible first came out, a man went into an English book store and asked for a copy of 'the new Bible without any hell in it.' He expressed the attitude of many people today who want to Get The Hell Out of Christian theology and the teachings of the Church. And although the idea of hell is offensive to many people, God's Word is clear in pointing to the reality of an eternal punishment and separation for those who reject Him. Some people today say: 'I just can't believe in a God who is supposed to be loving-yet sends people to hell.' The truth of the matter is that God doesn't 'send' anyone to hell. People 'choose' to go there themselves, by spurning His mercy and His orbit for their lives. In fact, the Scriptures tell us that God doesn't want anyone to perish eternally, but He desires all to be saved (1 Timothy 2:4, 2 Peter 3:9, etc).

Those who want to Get The Hell Out of the Teachings of Christianity probably have little idea of the enormous price God has already paid to remove the fact of hell from the lives of human beings. He did this when He became a Man in the Person of Jesus Christ-and suffered death on a cross to break the hold of sin, and its consequences upon the human beings He created. You see, there is such 'Amazing Grace' from God - and still there is hell. The Good News is that there is deliverance from this Hell. It begins when we acknowledge and confess our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

God wants us to accept His acceptance of us in Jesus Christ, and to commit ourselves to His rule and control of our lives. This means that we must dedicate ourselves to God's purposes as well, to be His servants and communicators of His love and power in the 'hellish' conditions that exist around us. All who trust in Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord can eliminate forever any fear of hell, for He endured what we deserved - and rose again as the Victor over our enemies of sin, death, and the forces of evil; for whom hell was prepared (Matthew 25:41). To Get The Hell Out of our lives, we simply trust in His promise of a glorious and everlasting life with Him in heaven - which is guaranteed by His death and resurrection on RAGING WATERS - Charlotte Gilmore looks north along the Lowrey Draw from the roof of Bits and Pieces. In the background is the Concho Street Bridge which was already closed to traffic. Also, it is easy to tell just how fast the water was running by the choppy waves. Water just about surrounded Bits and Pieces, but very little damage was sustained.

PECAN STREET FLOODED - This picture is taken looking north up Pecan Street from the corner of Pecan and Crockett. Businesses located in this area, including The Jug, suffered some of the biggest damage in Sonora. The depth of the water can be measured by the sign.

TRAFFIC CONTROL - These officers watched traffic at the corner of Crockett Street and U. S. Highway 277. Volunteer firefighters, Sutton County Sheriff's Office, Sonora Police Department and Department of Public Safety officers were called at about 10:15 a. m. for traffic control. Many roads in Sonora were closed for about 3 hours.

FLOOD DAMAGE - This house located on Crockett Street, at one time a beautiful fence surrounding it. Flood waters demolished the fence and did damage to the yard. Notice the depth of the water the unidentified man is standing in.

Emergency declared for city, county

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

City and county officials joined forces Tuesday morning and declared a local emergency with the state of Texas for Sonora and Sutton County.

The declaration, signed by County Judge Carla Fields and Sonora Mayor Billy C. Gosney, effectively asks the state of Texas for emergency funds to help repair damages caused by flooding Monday.

More than 8 1/2 inches of rain in a 36-hour period spurred the worst flooding in Sonora since 1936.

Sonora Wool and Mohair recorded 8.6 inches of rain between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday. Most of the rain fell late Sunday and early Monday morning.

Sutton County Emergency Management Services Director Lenora Pool said if monies were received from the state they can only go toward public buildings, roads and bridges.

Pool said help from the state is not assured.

"Because of the smaller amount of damage, usually it is up to local civic organizations to help," said Pool.

According to Pool, the county and city are in the process of gathering information of damage to public and private buildings and roads and bridges in both Sonora and Sutton County.

The Red Cross was in Sonora Tuesday doing a windshield survey. Pool said the survey is of private homes to see if other organizations are needed.

By 10:15 a.m. Monday, several Sonora streets were closed due to high water from the Dry Devil's River and Lowrey Draw. Waters flowed over Water Street and flooded the bridges on Concho and Crockett streets.

Traffic was controlled by volunteer firefighters, the Sonora Police Department, Sutton County Sheriff's Office and Department of Public Safety officers.

The water reached down to U.S. Highway 277 which was closed for about 2 hours and shut down Glasscock Street east of 277. St. Anns Street was also closed. U.S. Highway 277 north was also closed for about 1 hour.

For more than two hours traffic had to use I-10 to get east of Main Street and west of U.S. Highway 277.

Sheriff's officers and volunteer firefighters evacuated several families by boat on flooded Chestnut Street. They were taken to emergency shelters at the high school and 4-H center.

No deaths or injuries were reported said Pool.

Pool said firetrucks and ambulances evacuated more than 20 people near the draws. Evacuations included some bedridden people who were taken to the hospital, and eight children at Busy Bee Day Care Center on Railroad Street.

City officials reported temporary utility losses to some areas. Most utilities were restored late in the afternoon.

CROCKETT STREET BRIDGE - This picture of the Crockett Street bridge was taken from the roof of Bits and Pieces at about 10:45 a. m. At the time, the bridge remained closed until after noon.

SLOW GOING - It wasn't just slow going on Sinaloa, it was more like no go as the flood waters raged thru. This road continues to be cut off as the draws will most likely be running for the next week or so.

KNOCKING AT THE DOOR - Flood waters Monday advanced toward the front door of this house, but did not enter. The house is located at the corner of Crockett Street and U. S. Highway 277. No damage estimates have yet been made available.

WATER TAKE OVER - Normally this area has no water in it. On Monday though, the entire area was basically a river. Note the houses in the background which appear to be flooded. If the photo is looked at carefully, a truck can be spotted with just the top portion of the cab able to be seen. It is located in the upper middle portion of the picture.

Polocek: dams did their job

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

Virgil Polocek of the Soil Conservation Service heard the concerns of the public Monday while Sonora was being flooded.

"A couple of women came up to me and said the dam behind the hospital was a couple of feet from the top," said Polocek. "I knew it wasn't the case, but it was worth checking."

The concerns of the public were about the possibility of 13 dams, which were built in the late 1950's through the 1960's to help stem flooding which had plagued Sonora, not holding out.

"They are sound," said Polocek of the dams. "They were far from breaching."

Polocek went one step further, "The dams did the job they were supposed to; they retarded enough water to keep the big flooding from Sonora."

There were some impressive numbers to back Polocek's position. Polocek said the six dams, 5, 6, 9, 10, 12, and 13 counted as of Tuesday had over 45 1/2 square miles of drainage acres. The spillway elevation for those six dams showed 10,030 acre/feet of water.

Polocek said it is the spillways which are the keys to how the dams work. Spillways simply are how the water gets past the dam.

Polocek explained each of the dams has two spillways.

The first spillway, Polocek said is a concrete conduit through the dam which lets water out at a given rate.

"It's a controlled situation," said Polocek.

The other spillway is the emergency set of one or, in some cases, two around both ends of the dam.

The dam spillways are, "Dam safety tools or precautions", said Polocek. They are there so the dam does not breach.

"We had so much rain, the emergency spillways functioned and that is what caused the flood," said Polocek. "That is (also, probably the reason the water stayed up for (about 2 hours) then went back".

Polocek said the flood was almost a controlled flood.

When asked how bad the flood would have been if there had been no dams, Polocek said he could only estimate.

"I would say the water would have gone on Crockett Street to the Dry Devil's River," said Polocek. "It was already heading that way when it receded...On the east side it could have gone past Foxworth-Galbraith to (First Street) where it would have flowed down to the Wool House...It would have taken those homes, they would have been under water."

Polocek wrapped up the estimation with, "There could have been loss of life. We don't know that either."

While the cost of damage is going to be high, it is apparent it would have been if the dams had not been there.

That was the case in 1936 when a flood did over $1 1/2 million in damage to Sonora.

Polocek said the 13 dams were built at a total cost of $1.9 million. Of that total, the local people paid just $272,656 with the soil conservation service picking up the rest of the tab.

If the $3,000 per year for maintenance is added in (Polocek said this was an estimated cost and actually the maintenance has been practically nil for many of the years), the total is still under $400,000. With this week's flood, it stands to reason that the dams have already paid for themselves.

It is not the cost factor of the dams which concerns Polocek, it is the public's perception of their safety.

"If we could take you and all the women in the office up (to the dams), they would understand better."

FAST FLOW - Water in the Lowrey Draw pounds against the Concho Street bridge Monday afternoon. For a portion of Monday the Concho and Crockett Street bridges were closed due to flooding, the worst since 1936.

HIGH WATER — Ernest Barrera sashes through knee high water at the apartments located on Railroad Street and Mesquite Avenue. Barrera said the water was about a 1/4-inch deep in his home before it receded. Also notice the depth of the water compared not only to Barrera but also to the mailboxes.

NO GAS, PLENTY OF WATER — The Exxon station at the corner of Pecan Street and Crockett received it's share of water from the flooding on Monday. Many businesses closed for the day due to the flooding. Also, some home lost utilities but most utilities had returned by the late afternoon

FROM HIGHWAY TO RIVER — U.S. Highway 277 south turned into a river with the flooding on Monday. Along with this area, further south the highway was also closed for about 3 hours.

DEBRIS MOVING ALONG — This picture was taken looking west from the Sinaloa area. Flood waters carried debris such as trees, garbage, and fencing down the Dry Devil's River and Lowrey Draw.

STALLED — If this truck was running before it won't be moving for a while now. The truck is parked at a house on Railroad Street. The water reached to the top of the wheel wells before finally receding.

Holman's received excellence in grazing management award

At a recent meeting of the Texas Section Society for Range Management, Jimmy and Sharon Holman of Sonora were presented the Excellence in Grazing Management Award. The award is presented by the Society for Range Management, a world wide organization to foster the advancement in the art and science of range management. Its presentation is made only to a rancher who has demonstrated grazing management skills that deserve the distinction of excellence.

Jimmy and Sharon have demonstrated their excellence for over 10 years of practicing range management and the Texas

Section is proud to recognize this achievement. Jimmy and Sharon now join a select group of those few who have been recognized for this prestigious award. The membership of the Texas Section of the Society for Range Management congratulate Jimmy and Sharon for their achievement.

Focus on Education Halloween carnival

A long standing tradition of the Sonora I. S. D. is the annual Halloween Carnival preceded each year by the spook parade. The event, sponsored by the High School Student Council, begins with the parade at 4 p. m. and the carnival at 5 p. m.

The purpose of the carnival is to provide our students with a fun place to go on Halloween and at the same time provide an opportunity for our school organizations to conduct a fund raising event. Some organizations such as the Senior Class generally raise a great deal of money, but most of the fund raising projects provide meager compensation for the amount of work put into them.

The Halloween Carnival is a positive event for our school district and creates an excellent opportunity to get students, parents, teachers and community members together for an enjoyable evening. I am appreciative that long ago someone had the foresight to install this event as part of our school activities calendar.

Seventh grade team improves

The Sonora seventh grade Colts played an improved game of football Thursday, October 18 against Reagan County, although they came up on the short end of a 38-8 ballgame. The boys moved the ball accumulating 162 total yards, with 60 coming on a Michael House touchdown run. The offense also had good gains from David Hale, Jon-Jon Zook and Josh Burnham. The Colts defense had good effort from Levi Pool, Curt Dempsey, Ben Taylor and T. J. Thorp.

The Colts will take a 2-4 record into their seventh game Thursday, October 25 against Eldorado. The first game played in Junction was won by the Colts 20-6. The boys led by Marcus Montez were excited by their first win. The Col's second game in Ozona was a hard fought contest with Sonora the victor to the tune of 26-12. Montez was again the leading rusher with David Hale contributing at full-back. The Colts defense improved with good outside support from Adrian Mata and Josh Burnham.

Sonora lost the next three games against strong Mason, Ballinger and Del Rio teams. The Colts show improvement from week to week.

Thirty-six officers killed in the line of duty

Thirty-six law enforcement officers were killed feloniously in the line of duty during the first six months of 1990, according to preliminary national figures released by FBI Director William S. Sessions. This year's semiannual total showed a decline from January through June, 1989, when 40 officers were slain.

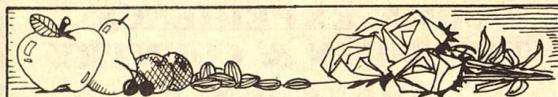

Firearms continued to be the weapons most used in the slaying of officers. During the first half of this year, handguns were used in 23 of the murders, rifles in three, shotguns in two, and unknown types of firearms in two. Two officers were stabbed, two were beaten with blunt objects, and two were killed with personal weapons (hands, fists, feet).

Geographically, 17 officers were slain in the Southern States, eight in the Midwestern States, and four each in the Northeastern and Western States. Three officers were killed in Puerto Rico.

Fifteen officers were slain during arrest situations. Among those 15, seven were attempting to prevent robberies or apprehend robbery suspect; one was involved in a drug-related situation; and seven were attempting arrests for other crimes. Six officers were answering disturbance calls when slain, and three were killed while investigating suspicious persons or circumstances. Five were slain while enforcing traffic laws, five were ambushed, one was murdered by a mentally deranged person, and one was killed while serving a search warrant.

Seven officers were wearing body armor at the time of their deaths, and three were killed with their own weapons.

Law enforcement agencies have cleared 33 of the 36 killings.

Apples, pears, plums, cherries, and almonds are all from the same family as the rose bush.

Most rabbits are nocturnal creatures, preferring to eat and play from dusk until dawn. During the day they rest and sleep.

Benefit for Ann Hill to be held on Friday

The fish fry will be from 4:00 p. m. to 7:00 p. m. The meal will be $5 per plate, and plates to go will be available.

All proceeds from the "Friendship Fish Fry" will go to the ANN HILL FUND. Other donations will be appreciated.

Tax deductible donations are being accepted at the First National Bank. These donations will go into the Sutton County Community Trust, located at the First National Bank of Sonora.

Advance tickets are available from Thorp's Laundry, Patsy Schwiening at Teaff Oil, Patsy Johnson, Nelda Mayfield, or pay when you join us to eat fish.

The first American student to work his way through college was Zechariah Bridgen, 14, who graduated from Harvard in 1657. He earned money by "ringing the bell and waytinge."

IT'S A NATURAL!

A bench made from recycled litter? In 1988, 9,000 pounds of plastic "lumber" made from used polystyrene foam coffee cups, food containers and other plastics collected in Portland, Oregon were used to construct park benches, wildlife signs, walkways, kiosks and other outdoor installations.

Plastics collected by the Chicago Park District are also coming back to area parks as benches and landscape timbers.

The plastic wood can be drilled, planed, sawed and nailed in much the same way as real wood, says The Council for Solid Waste Solutions. Yet, unlike real wood, it's impervious to weather, insects and the decaying effects of time. Look for more such recycling efforts.

Post office to supply some helpful hints

Post offices around the nation will be delivering cards to each household which will give hints on how mail can get delivered faster.

Sonora postmaster Jerry Landers said residents in Sonora should be receiving the cards on Saturday. Landers said the post office will finish delivering them by Tuesday. Some of the hints included on the card are: when there is an attention line put it first, put the zip code on the last line next to the city and state and use the ZIP+4 if it is known.

Post offices have installed high-speed electronic equipment and expect the fastest delivery yet if the complete address is put on the envelope and the guidelines are followed.

to the 1. On fourth down Kohutek fumbled the snap and the Broncos recovered.

It was the second time this season the Bronco's defense held an opponent at the 1-yard line for no score.

Reagan County scored on a 58-yard pass from Kohutek to Jeffrey Morris with 1:55 remaining in the third quarter to wrap up the scoring.

Sonora coaches tried to take what they were given in the second half.

Consistently working on the outside, Sonora was able to string together some drives with first downs, but never put the ball in the end zone.

Along with his three interceptions, Mirike was the leading Bronco ground carrier with 50 yards on nine carries. Mirike never could get the passing game going as he completed just 4-13 passes for 1 yard.

Mirike gave the Owls' defense a lot of credit.

"They stopped up the middle and we tried the outside, but it just wasn't there," said Mirike.

There was some good news for the Broncos. Johnny Terry was back in the lineup after missing three games with a knee injury. Terry saw limited playing time, but felt he was getting good movement both offensively and defensively.

The loss for Sonora drops them into a tie with Reagan County and Colorado City and Greenwood at 1-1. All four teams trail Crane who is 2-0. Kermit trails the pack at 0-2.

None of the Broncos felt they were out of the race for the playoffs.

"The key to get back in the race? "Colorado City, that's got to be our focus," said Bellard.

"We have to not make mistakes," said Terry. "We're capable of winning the rest of our

Coffee Mugs and Microbugs

The office coffee break: A time to relax and enjoy a hot, steaming cup of coffee—and bacteria? Surprisingly, many people don't realize that drinking from a reusable coffee mug instead of a clean, sanitary disposable cup, can be a good way to catch a cold or other illness.

Fact is, most people don't or can't take the time away from work to clean coffee mugs properly—they just give them a quick rinse. To properly sanitize a mug, it should be washed thoroughly and then rinsed for 30 seconds in water of 170 degrees or more. The tap water in office sinks and rest rooms rarely gets that hot.

A good detergent should also be used—something many offices don't have on hand. Sink areas in washrooms and office kitchens often harbor bacteria since so few workers bother to clean up after use.

Look what's lurking in your mug.

Over time—due to lack of proper cleaning—grime, residue and bacteria accumulate on the cup. Also, office workers often mishandle their cups, spreading germs from dirty hands. Cups are frequently used by more than one person and not properly cleaned. The result: You could be exposed to bacteria and viruses that cause colds and flu and even diseases like hepatitis A.

A better idea than using a reusable coffee mug at work is to use a disposable cup. Public health experts recognize the sanitary benefits of single service products. With disposables, you never have to worry about the bacteria problem or have to spend time away from your desk washing your cup in the sink. Disposables are clean because each cup is new and fresh. There's less chance of contamination from careless handling and poor washing.

For more information on food-service disposables and sanitation, contact the Foodservice & Packaging Institute, Inc., 1025 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036; (202) 822-6420.

HARVEY

Hilderbran

FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

protects our interests in the Texas Legislature

Looking out for taxpayers

In the current two-year budget, our state government will spend $43 billion of the people's money. So Harvey Hilderbran knows his first job as our State Representative is to make sure our money is spent wisely, keeping waste down to a minimum. For his efforts, Harvey was awarded an "A" rating by "Texans for Financial Responsibility," which is a coalition of over 5,000 Texans monitoring and pushing for better management practices in state government.

Helping to strengthen our economy's future

As someone who grew up on his family's ranch inside the District, Harvey appreciates the core strength of agriculture in the economy. As always, however, the future of our economy will greatly depend upon the availability of water. As an appointee to the Natural Resources Interim Study Committee dealing with the Edwards Aquifer, Harvey is working to ensure a fair resolution in any legislation which concerns that critical source of water.
