Trying to get the bucks: School administration watches funding issue with interest

By Griffin B. Cole
DRN Editor

With the funding portion of Senate Bill I being declared unconstitutional, the Sonora Independent School District could be left out in the cold.

"I cannot see anything that will be positive for our school system," said Sonora superintendent Charles Russell about the Texas State Supreme Court ruling which came late last month.

Funding for the public schools of Texas has been under attack for years as the differences continue to widen between the "rich and poor" school systems. This is the second time in three years the funding plan has been declared unconstitutional.

Russell said schools in Texas receive their money from local taxes and the state. Currently at 87 cents, the local tax levy collects 80 percent of the funds needed to run the Sonora schools Russell said.

There are schools in the state which have the opposite ratio. The solid tax base, which Russell attributes to the natural gas industry, helps put the school in the top 10 percent wealth-wise.

Some schools in the state get their majority of money from the state.

"A penny of tax in Sonora does not make the same as a penny tax in Eldorado, Junction...contention is it's not a fair system," said Russell.

Russell also said money is not a prerequisite for a strong school system. He said the city of Sonora takes an interest in the school system and wants to provide the best for its' students.

Last year Sonora spent an average of $4,500 per student Russell said. In an over-simplification of the problem, Russell said the state wants to equalize the funding.

Russell said if the state is going Please see Funding, page 2

According to Sutton County Clerk Bobbie Smith the trial of Bernal began 10 a.m. Tuesday and the state had presented all witnesses by 5 p.m.

Smith said the trial was to start up again Wednesday at 10 a.m. Representing Beto is Randol L. Stout of San Angelo.

Jury selection Monday took 5 1/2 hours and wrapped up at 8:30 p.m. according to Smith. Smith said the court was wrapped up in a civil case which delayed jury selection.

Electric rates could go up in next year

West Texas Utilities customers can look for an increase in their bills late this year or early next year.

A press release from WTU received Monday said, the company will file a request early next week with the Public Utility Commission to reconcile historical fuel costs and increase fixed fuel factors to reflect expected increases in the cost of fuel.

Earl J. Johnson, local WTU manager, said the new factors will increase the average residential customers' bill by 2 1/2 percent or $1.44 based on the consumption of 660 kilowatt-hours per month.

The specific date of the increase will be determined by the time it takes to complete the regulatory process.

"Our cost to residential customers is essentially divided into two major parts, the base rate and the fuel factor," said Johnson.

The base rate is 60 percent of the total cost to customers. WTU said they are requesting the increase for three reasons. First is the company has under-recovered retail fuel and purchased power costs through December 1990 by over $3 million.

Second, WTU fuel costs were last reconciled were last reconciled Please see Cost, page 2

BOUGHT AND PAID FOR - Past and present school board members act the burning of the note for the high school. The final payment on the high school was made Feb. 1. The new high school was passed in 1983 in a highly controversial election. Payments began then in February 1985. In giving credit to the past school board, current Superintendent Charles Russell said, "If the school board hadn't brought the plan up and voters passed the bond issue, we never would have gotten the new school."

Reservist answers call to duty

By Griffin B. Cole

After a little less than one year out of the service, Louis Olenick Jr. is now back in. Olenick, 22, received a notice from the armed forces Jan. 22 to report to Fort Benning, Geo.

"He said he was scared, but he was going to go do his duty," said Tino Martinez who worked with Olenick at Trend Furniture in San Angelo.

Martinez is also a friend of Olenick's. The two had perhaps the most important bond at this time; both were reservists and could expect a notice to come back anytime.

Both Olenick and Martinez served in the army for three years. They had just seven months between them for being out. Olenick eleven months and Martinez 1 1/2 years.

Olenick said Martinez would get the notice first because he was a medic. Martinez said he told Olenick, "I don't know. You're an infantry man."

As it turned out Olenick is now in Fort Benning, Geo. waiting for word where to go and Martinez is still waiting for his notice.

Olenick's father, Louis Olenick Sr., said his son called Tuesday morning, but still didn't know where he would be going. Word is supposed to get passed along in the next day or two.

Mr. Olenick also said his son wasn't happy to be going, but at Please see Off, page 2

The second round

Riva had puppies, again. It makes for interesting evenings. Like the other night when I was startled awake at 1:30 a.m. by an unusual noise. After a few groggy moments I, along with a good portion of the neighborhood most likely, realized Riva was barking like mad.

This was such a strange happening that instant action was impossible. Instead of checking what was going on, I layed in bed for a few moments trying to figure out why she was barking.

Or maybe I was trying to ignore her.

Finally forced out of bed, I sauntered outside, Riva was still going at it with the barking and all eight of the puppies had joined in. It was all very merry, except it was 1:30 a.m. Actually, by this time it was closing in on 1:45 a.m.

After settling Riva down, the puppies were next. Riva was led to the dog house where she could take care of the puppies, if you know what I mean.

Going back inside, a distant high pitched sound reached my ears. Instantly I turned around, had Riva move out of the dog house and sure enough there were only seven puppies in the house.

One of the little rascals was making a break for it. Fortunately, I was bright enough to wear shoes, but not bright enough to get a flashlight.

It was 1:30 a.m. after all. Actually almost 2 a.m. by now.

Being black, the puppy was most difficult to find. Just when it appeared I would find the darn thing by sound, it shut up. Amazing.

The puppy had headed for the back alley and was actually half-way there before I stumbled upon it.

The puppy was corraled and brought home to mama.

That wasn't the end of it. Now that Riva had all her puppies safe and sound, she decided she was hungry. And then thirsty. And then lonely.

As if eight puppies weren't enough company.

By the time Riva was through eating, drinking and having her tummy scratched, it was almost time for me to get up and go to work.

Correction

In the Jan. 31 edition of the Devil's River News we incorrectly identified the new Lions Clubs Queen as Tana Churchill. It should have been April Spiller who was elected as the Lions Queen for 1991.

In addition to being the newly elected Lions Queen, April was also chosen as the 1990 Homecoming Queen at Sonora High School.

Last August Tana was selected as Miss Sutton County.

to try equalizing the spending for schools it would take a large amount of money. Money the state is not willing to spend.

The Supreme Court has given the Legislature an April 1 deadline to come up with a plan that would be acceptable.

"I think that was unreasonable," said Russell about the deadline.

Russell said if the Legislature is unable to come up with satisfactory arrangements, the courts would make a decision. Something Russell does not see as a good idea.

"We would hate to see the program change because we're getting out from under the note (on the high school)," said Russell.

The final payment on the high school came Feb. 1.

There is also a stipulation for the schools to have a 25 cents/$100 tax for enrichment purposes Russell said. The schools would only be able to keep so much per penny per student, with the rest going to Austin.

Further, not only must the plan pass both houses of the

"That's not their area of expertise...They are not going to be concerned about quality education," said Russell.

Before the Legislature now is a bill introduced by Senator Chet Parker calling for a state property tax. Russell said every school would pay a set rate of $1/$100 which would go to Austin. From there the money would be evenly distributed among the schools.

Legislature, it must be passed by voters as a constitutional amendment. The issue could not be put on the ballot before May which means past the deadline.

"An extension (of the deadline) would help," said Russell.

No matter what plan is adopted or where the idea comes from, the Sonora schools may be hurt because they are already near the top on money spent per child.

the same time knew he would almost have to.

"I wasn't happy to see my son go," said Olenick Sr.

Still, Martinez said Louis is handling it well.

When Louis left, Martinez said he, "felt like my brother was going and I wanted to go with him."

Olenick wasn't just scared though, Martinez said Olenick was excited too.

"It kind of made me sad," said Olenick's supervisor J.L. Jones. "We had been kidding around with him (about a notice)."

Olenick left Jan. 31 for Ft. Benning and is expected to be gone for 12 months.

However long Olenick is gone, he can count on his job waiting for him when he is back.

Russell and Kristie Reed, owners of the furniture store, said Olenick was an excellent employee and they are proud of him to be serving.

So, for the next year Olenick's plans for college and anything else will be on hold as he looks to do his part in Operation Desert Storm.

Let tears bring healing and renewal

A little girl, dying of leukemia, asked a nurse for a crying doll. Puzzled, the nurse asked, "Why do you want a doll that can cry?" "Because I think Mommy and I need to cry," the little girl said. "Mommy won't cry in front of me, and I can't cry if Mommy doesn't. If we had a crying doll, all three of us could cry together. I think we'd feel better then."

I've found crying can make me feel better, too, when sorrow fills my heart. Tears aren't for women only. In Lament for a Son, Nicholas Wolterstorff relates that he found himself crying after his son died in a climbing accident.

Wolterstorff wrote: "Our culture says men must be strong and that the strength of a man in sorrow is to be seen in his tearless face. Tears are for women. Tears are signs of weakness and women are permitted to be weak. But must we always mask our suffering? I mean, may we not sometimes allow people to see and enter it? May men not do this?"

WORKING YOUR WAY THROUGH
Tears are not a sign of weakness but a sign of strength. Our tears testify to our love. And loving calls for great courage, for in loving we always risk getting hurt.

We cry -- women and men -- because we've lost someone or something precious. While every loss is an invitation to new life, growth is always scary. But the tears that spring from our love can help us find healing and renewal.

And with healing comes new courage, enabling us to say, "I am determined to honor myself and those I love by going on and living!"

*Let your tears alert you to problems you need to deal with. Sometimes we cry because we're angry, afraid, guilty, helpless, worn out, or just generally depressed. It's normal to feel this way when grieving a loss, but if you are crying excessively and time isn't bringing relief, you need to try to find out why by asking yourself some questions:
At whom am I angry and why? Do I need to forgive? Are my guilt feelings normal ones of regret or more serious? Is not eating properly, not getting sufficient rest or exercise, or not socializing accentuating my normal feelings of depression? What hidden unmet needs do I have?

*Go ahead and cry -- to relieve stress. A woman's husband was facing surgery for cancer. During the weeks awaiting the outcome, she agonized. What if he should die? The possibility caused her to begin to grieve.

Grieving is extremely stressful. In The Broken Heart: The Medical Consequences of Loneliness, James J. Lynch says that people can actually die from broken hearts. The good news is that crying can remove chemicals that build up during emotional stress, according to Gregg Levoy in a Psychology Today article.

He writes that the amount of manganese stored in the body affects our moods, and the body stores 30 times as much manganese in tears as in blood serum. Biochemist William Frey says the lacrimal gland, which determines the flow of tears, concentrates and removes manganese from the body. Frey has also identified three chemicals stored up by stress and released by crying.

The tears...streamed down, and I let them flow as freely as they would, making of them a pillow for my heart. On them it rested.
St. Augustine, Confessions IX, 12

Another study at the University of Pittsburgh School of Nursing has shown that healthy people cry more frequently and feel freer to cry than people who suffer from ulcers and colitis. Since both conditions are closely lined with stress, Frey suggests that tears might be a partial solution to relief of these problems. So to cry can be healthy!

Those that sow in tears shall reap rejoicing.

Fueling the fire

"It is about oil", in last week's Devil's River News, reflects the isolationist view of a hundred years ago and the frame of mind of those who place the value of the "almighty dollar" above that of life and human rights. In order to bring the out-dated view home to the reader, and lure Sonora into his trap, the writer dangled our natural gas assets in our faces.

If we were to cease purchasing the reserves the Arab countries possessed in over-abundance and paid ourselves "$50 dollars per barrel", what would we do when these un-renewable resources ran out?

Go purchase Arab oil for $200, I guess.

To quote the supporting article which appeared in the San Antonio Light two weeks ago.

"We're better off paying our domestic producers $50 a barrel than $20 to the Arabs," Mack Wallace, former commissioner of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Why? Wallace adds another $120 per barrel to the twenty actually paid the Arabs to allow for the cost of Middle East defense, before the recent escalation.

The former commissioner is putting apples and oranges in a basket and trying to pass them off as apples. His statement is not only irresponsible, but short-sighted.

In simpler terms; let's say I paid $5 per tape, for twenty videos, $700 for a television on which to view them and $400 for a VCR. Well, I need an entertainment center to maintain a modicum of organization, another $150. Gosh, I'll need a means to protect my investment, $60,000 should purchase a new house.

Mack Wallace would say that each of those video tapes cost me $3,607.50.

"It is about oil" goes on to say, "If the United States put more emphasis on domestic energy supplies it would be less inclined to be affected by Middle East political affairs."

First of all, the US is the world's greatest consumer of fossil fuels, ours would not last us for very long. Second, it behooves us, both financially and strategically to purchase the Arab excess. Oil is a commodity sold by Arab nations for the money to ensure their survival and raise the lifestyles of their people. Our resources become more valuable when foreign supplies are interrupted, and protects our economy from being held hostage in times of world crisis.

Most importantly, as the supreme world power we have an obligation to aid our allies and less fortunate nations when asked. I would hasten to help a friend in need and I expect no less from the country in which I live. Saddam is like a flame looking for fuel to burn, he will consume everything in his path if left unchecked.

This is not to say we should interfere with the international affairs of nations. However, when they are up against a bully or power greater than they have capability to address, we should be willing to "pin our ears back" and lend a hand when requested.

The only "gray area" concerning the war in the Middle East and the United States troops being present, is the gray matter a few are wasting with their lack of foresight. Like any problem we face in our daily lives, if we were to turn our backs on the dilemma facing Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, it will gather strength and momentum and really kick our butts tomorrow. Then Saddam Hussein would have control of more power, more oil, more people, more technology and nuclear devices.

Wouldn't you rather treat him like a germ now and keep him from infecting other vital regions, or wait until he is a full-blown cancer threatening the life of a free world?

Meeting scheduled for 4-H

All Sonora youth are invited to attend the Sutton County 4-H Club meeting on Monday, Feb. 11. The meeting is held at the 4-H Barn at 7 p.m.

Consumers frequently ask questions about eggs. These questions usually arise because of misunderstandings about egg quality or value of nutrition. However, most questions can be answered readily.

*Why are some hard-cooked eggs difficult to peel?

This condition is related to fresh eggs. As eggs are stored, they lose carbon dioxide and become easier to peel when hard-cooked. Eggs that have been stored for several days will usually peel easily.

*Is shell color important?

Some consumers prefer brown eggs to white, or vice versa. Actually, the only difference is in the shell itself. The color of the shell is determined by the breed of hen. If the hens have been fed the same type of ration, the eggs will be nutritionally equivalent, regardless of shell color.

*Why do some hard-cooked eggs have discolored yolks?

Sometimes there is a greenish coating around the yolk of hard-cooked eggs. Consumers want to know why. Usually, they have cooked the eggs at too high a temperature, or for too long a time, or they have not cooled them rapidly following cooking.

The greenish color comes from sulphur and iron compounds in the egg. These compounds form at the surface of the yolk when eggs are over-cooked.

Even though the greenish color appears, the eggs may be eaten - they are perfectly safe, and the flavor is unaffected.

Here is how to correctly hard cook eggs: Put the eggs on the range in cold water; bring water to a boil, turn off the heat and cover; allow eggs to remain in hot water for 15 minutes then cool them promptly in running cold water.

*Are yolks lighter in color than they used to be?

Sometimes. The color of the yolk is almost completely dependent upon the feed the hen eats. Birds that have access to grass, pasture or have yellow-corn or alfalfa in their diet, tend to produce dark-colored yolk.

Yolk color does not affect nutritive value or cooking characteristics.

in a rate case which covered a period ending with March 31, 1987. The PUC recently expressed the opinion fuel costs should be reconciled at least every three years.

Third, while WTU may be over-recovering during some of this year, the company expects that will change to some extent during 1992. At the proceeding, WTU will present information on all fuel and purchased power costs since April 1987 to demonstrate it has generated electricity efficiently, used effective cost controls and negotiated fuel-related contracts in a manner that produced the lowest reasonable costs for customers.

Local students make honors list at TTU

Anna Balch, Janet Barlemann and Heather Bunkley were among the more than 2,600 Texas Tech University students who qualified for academic honors based on final grades reported for the 1990 fall semester.

Prayers of peace to begin Feb. 13

Beginning on Wednesday, February 13 and continuing through the season of Lent (and possibly beyond), the Rev. Monte Jones, Rector of St. John's Church, will be leading a service of prayers for peace each weekday, beginning at 6:30 in the morning. Lent for Episcopalians and many other Christians is a time of penitence and reflection. This seems like the perfect opportunity to give the best kind of support to our servicemen and women in the Middle East during this time of war. The service will include prayer and Bible readings from the lectionary of Daily Morning Prayer in the Book of Common Prayer. Everyone in the community is not only welcome but encouraged to participate.

There are two reasons for the early hour of the service: First, it takes a sincere commitment to attend a service of worship at 6:30 in the morning, giving one some sense of sacrifice; and, second, it allows those who have to get ready for work or school the opportunity to participate, since the service will last less than half an hour.

If you are one who has concerns about attending a church other than your own, at least come once or twice before deciding whether this is something to which you might be willing to commit your time and energy. Since we can't join our brave troops on the front lines of battle, we can show our love and support for them, regardless of how we feel about the war itself, by joining as brothers and sisters in Christ Jesus, the one Lord and savior of the world, and praying for their safety and a quick end to the fighting.

Remember the words of the late Rev. Urban T. Holmes, who said, "Prayer doesn't change things, prayer changes people." It is difficult to say who benefits more from our praying for others, the people we pray for or ourselves, but either way, God's blessings on the world increase as those who love Him come to Him in prayer and fellowship.

If you are unable to attend these services of prayer, at least join us in your own time of prayer.

Edward Virgen chosen as young superstar

The following letter was sent to Mrs. Alice Virgen of Sonora from A. K. Cebrowski, Captain of the U. S. Navy, Commanding Officer:

Dear Mrs. Virgen, I am pleased to inform you that your grandson, Aviation Boatswain's Mate (Launching and Recovery Equipment) Airman Edward Virgen, was recently singled out by the Air Officer as being one of MIDWAY's young superstars.

Since reporting to the Air Department, Eddie has performed enthusiastically on the flight deck as a member of the catapult crew. His ability to perform maintenance on the catapults and associated equipment has been quite noteworthy. Eddie has easily distinguished himself as, number one of twenty-four Airmen assigned to V-2 Division, Catapult Branch. He has consistently inspired his peers through aggressive and devoted performance. His keen sense of duty and initiative have earned the respect and admiration of all his shipmates.

Contributions such as those made by your grandson are what make today's Navy a viable deterrent to aggression and a stable force for peace in the world.

This letter not only recognizes Eddie's dedication and hard work, but your continuing support for him as well. You can be justifiably proud of the fine job Eddie has been doing overseas. I hope that he finds the remainder of his tour aboard MIDWAY satisfying and fulfilling, both personally and professionally.

Sincerely,
A. K. Cebrowski
Captain, U. S. Navy
Commanding Officer

Congratulations to you Eddie, from all of us at the Devil's River News for your fine accomplishments.

Sonora swept by Greenwood in district basketball action

GREENWOOD - Playoff hopes for the Sonora High School basketball teams diminished over the weekend after losing to Greenwood Friday night.

Both Sonora head coaches were a little frustrated at the losses as they felt their teams played better than they have recently.

Boys Game

A six-point halftime lead dissipated steadily in the second half as the Broncos fell 61-51 to Greenwood.

"We played the best half we may have played all year," said Sonora head coach Doyle Carter about his teams opening two quarters performance.

Sonora hit 72 percent (13-18) from the field in the first half to build the six-point lead. Carter said the Broncos executed the offense as well as they have all season during that half of play.

The lead did not hold up though as Greenwood's size advantage finally started to wear down the Broncos.

"They controlled the boards," said Carter. "I would guess...half their points came off offensive boards."

Carter said the victory pretty well puts the Broncos out of the playoff picture, but they still have an important goal to reach for. Victories in the final three games, home against Reagan County and Kermit and on the road at Colorado City, will give Sonora a record above the .500 mark.

That is something the Broncos have not achieved in sometime.

"It won't be easy, but we can do it," said Carter.

Girls Game

For the second time this season the Lady Broncos dropped a heartbreaker to Greenwood.

Sonora head Coach Clyde Dukes said Heather Donnell hit on a short jump shot with seven seconds remaining to give Greenwood a 33-31 win.

Dukes said Greenwood was being patient on offense, passing the ball around when Donnell made a little fake, drove into the middle and with two Lady Broncos all over her, hit the shot.

Greenwood defeated Sonora 49-48 Jan. 11 in Sonora when Dana Wright hit a short set shot as time ran out.

Sonora's last chance came with three seconds left, but a pass toward halfcourt was thrown away.

Like Carter, Coach Dukes felt the Lady Broncos played better than in their win against Crane, except for shooting.

Sonora hit on just 29 percent from the field against Greenwood while nailing 50 percent in the victory over Crane.

"It makes a difference," said Dukes.

Dukes said the playoffs are a possibility, but now the Lady Broncos will need some help. The Lady Broncos need to pick up wins against Reagan County and Kermit this week and have Greenwood lose.

UIL team proves strong in meets

OZONA - Sparked by four first place finishes the Sonora University Interscholastic League team brought home the Team Science Award at the Ozona Invitational Literary Meet.

Adam Youngblood picked up first place overall by placing first in the physics and biology categories.

Helping Youngblood in the science division were Blake Adkins with a first in chemistry, Liza Allen with a fifth place overall finish and Robert Gallion who finished sixth overall.

Sonora also placed well in the accounting division with Shannon Escalera finishing first, David Mirike third and John Russell fifth. David Rother took sixth in calculator.

Allison Schwiening sparked in the journalism categories taking first in news writing and editorial writing, along with a second place finish in headline writing.

Other top finishers in editorial writing were Jody Castilleja fifth and Oscar Perez sixth. George Reyes placed sixth in feature writing.

Three Sonora High School students placed high in journalism competition Saturday in Rocksprings at a UIL journalism meet and workshop.

Oscar Perez won first in editorial writing, placed second in news writing and was third in headline writing. Allison Schwiening won first in news writing and second in headline writing. Jody Castilleja placed third in editorial writing.

After competitions, the students listened to critiques and discussed the different events in UIL journalism with Kirk Macon, Sonora High School journalism teacher and Joann Dalton, Rocksprings High School journalism teacher.

While the journalism team was in Rocksprings, the science, literary criticism and accounting teams competed in the 15th Annual Reagan County UIL Academic Tournament in Big Lake.

Shane Keller, Adam Youngblood and Liza Allen all took first place in various science categories, according to Macon.

Other top finishers in science included Blake Adkins, second; David Kemp, fourth; and Robert Gallion, fifth.

Tara Urbanski and Stephanie Roberts placed third and fourth respectively in Literary Criticism.

Strong finishers in accounting for Sonora included David Mirike, third; Vicky Anderson, fifth; and John Russell, sixth.

Scouts compete in Pine Wood Derby

By Kathy Hardgrave
Contributing Writer

One of the most anticipated events of the Cub Scout year took place this past Saturday, Feb. 2 when scouts from grades one through five gathered at the Junior High School for the Pine Wood Derby.

The boys spent many hours in preparation for the big race, working with parents, grandparents or friends on simple blocks of wood, turning them into the best race cars they could imagine.

Everyone raced in at least two heats and everyone was presented with a ribbon for finishing first, second or third in the first heat. Additional ribbons were presented to each car in recognition of its most outstanding feature such as most patriotic, most unique, best paint design and Bronco spirit.

After the smoke cleared, trophies were presented to the three finalists: Alan Nicholas (third-grade cub scout), first place; Austin Youngblood (second-grade), second place and Shane Mathews (second-grade), third place.

Pack 19 would like to thank the people who served as judges: Reverend Don Jones, Bill and Margaret Cascadden, Chief Brent Gesch and Wade Fitzgerald.

For this pack meeting the second-grade Wolves led the opening ceremony and drinks and cookies were provided by the third-grade Bears and fifth-grade Webelos.

During February, Cub Scouting in America will observe its 61st birthday. Cub scouts are invited to wear their uniforms to the church of their choice on Sunday, Feb. 10. Traditionally each pack celebrates with a special "Blue and Gold" banquet during the month.

Since the next scheduled pack meeting falls on Monday, Feb. 25, which is spring break in Sonora, the "Blue and Gold" banquet will be held the following Monday, March 4, in the 4-H Center.

Preparations are already underway to make this banquet a reflection of the "love of country" which is so important in scouting at any time, but especially in view of the current world situation in the Middle East.

In second-grade cub scout news; at the pack meeting Feb. 2 three Bobcat scouts were presented with swimming beltloops, in recognition of skills learned and developed within the past year. The three were Ryan Hardgrave, Pete Samaniego and Bryce Williams.

The focus of meetings lately has been the environment. The boys are discussing ways in which the town gets dirty and ways to improve the neighborhoods. During one meeting the boys gathered litter in the area of the scout hut, putting what they have learned into practice.

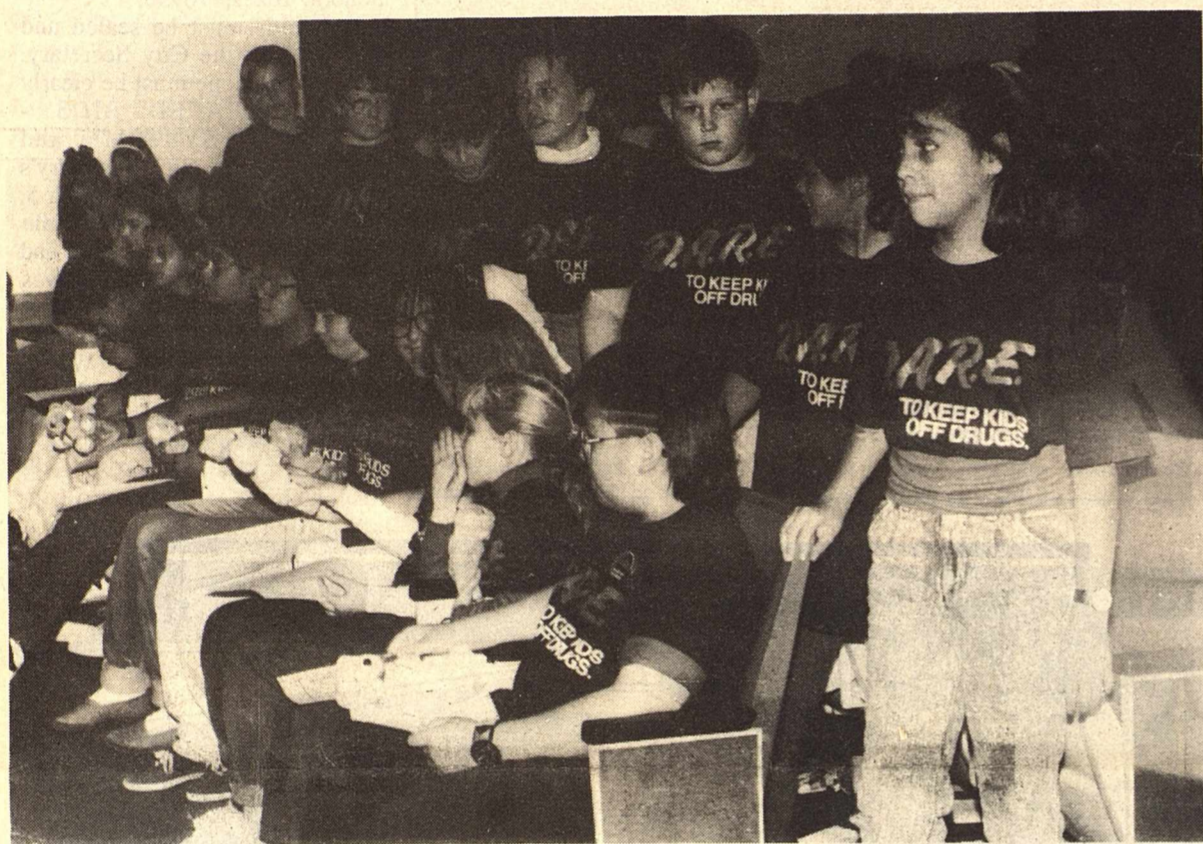

Ways to conserve energy have also been discussed. Doing these things helps the boys work toward earning their Wolf badges.

The boys participated in a planning session for an upcoming cook-out, sharing ideas with parents and leaders on foods to prepare and places to consider holding the cook-out.

ENERGY SAVING IDEAS

Facts From The Home Energy Experts At Honeywell

There are a lot of small things you can do around the house to save big. From the attic to the basement here are some simple steps homeowners can take to increase efficiency and lower costs.

•Put timers or photocell controls on outdoor lighting to eliminate wasting energy. It makes energy sense to install timers on indoor lamps, too.

•Believe it or not, a dust cloth can save you money. The dust on a light bulb or dirt on a glass fixture can reduce the light it gives off by ten percent and make it seem you need a higher and more expensive wattage bulb.

•Dimmer switches are available for both overhead and portable lamps and can save about 50 percent of the energy when turned on "dim." Install them wherever you only need bright light occasionally.

•Fluorescent ceiling fixtures give more light and use less energy; the tubes are three to five times more efficient than an incandescent bulb. Compact fluorescent bulbs that screw into regular bulb sockets are now available. They're more expensive than regular bulbs, but use so little energy they can pay you back for the purchase cost in less than two years.

Americans buy an estimated 2.7 million light bulbs a year just to illuminate porches and backyards. Put timers on these lights so you don't waste energy.

•During the winter, you can save as much as three percent of the energy your furnace uses by lowering your thermostat one degree F. Recommended winter setting: 68 degrees F daytime, 55 degrees at night.

•Don't waste money heating up the whole house if you just want to warm up one room. Get a space heater. It's cheaper to run than a furnace.

Remember, it makes energy sense to make the best use of your energy.

FACTS ON FIGURES

by Fred Adkins

Two hours of cross-country skiing burns more than 1,500 calories -- nearly as much as running a half-marathon. Do eat enough (especially carbohydrates) and drink enough fluid to keep going.

Keeping weight off is easier if you diet for no more than 12 weeks, and then rest and give the body a chance to get used to its new size. Maintain the loss for six months, then consider losing more, say researchers at Harvard Medical School.

Best outdoor surface for runners: dirt or wood-chip trails. Watch out for hard-on-the-legs concrete or uneven ground.

High-fiber diet cuts colon cancer risk up to 40 percent, a new study confirms. Research reported in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute found fruits and vegetables as good as grains and legumes.

Pregnant women can exercise if their doctor approves. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists advises moderate activity three times a week, avoiding jarring motions or exercising flat on the back.

Lady Colts lose tight game to Wall 17-14

With both teams having cold shooting nights, the Sonora eighth-grade Lady Colts were edged by Wall 17-14 Monday night.

Sonora coach M.L. Martin said the difference in the game was free throws. Sonora was able to hit on just two of 14 free throw attempts.

Wall led through out most of the game. The Lady Colts were behind 4-2 at the end of one quarter, but sliced the lead to 8-7 at half time.

Wall had their best quarter in the third, scoring six points in regaining its three-point advantage 14-11. Both teams managed three points in the final frame.

V. Richardson was the leading scorer for the Lady Colts with seven points. S. Reston added three and B. Covington and C. Sessom each had a bucket.

Others to see action in the game were, K. Burge, M. Galvan, J. Cumpian, S. Gonzales, J. Covey and R. Gloria.

Sonora to be final stop on Bad Company's "Survivor Tour 91"

The six rodeo circuit of Bad Company's "Survivor Tour 91" will wrap up Aug. 22-24 with Sonora's Sutton County Days Rodeo.

Partners in the "Hot Rock Series" met in Odessa in January to decide on important issues for the upcoming season.

The six rodeo series will begin in Mineral Wells May 8-11 with the Palo Pinto PRCA Rodeo. That will be followed with the Silver City, N.M. PRCA Rodeo May 31-June 2, Big Spring Cowboy Reunion June 26-29, West of the Pecos Rodeo in Pecos July 3-6 and Lea County Fair and Rodeo in Lovington, N.M. Aug. 14-17 before wrapping up in Sonora.

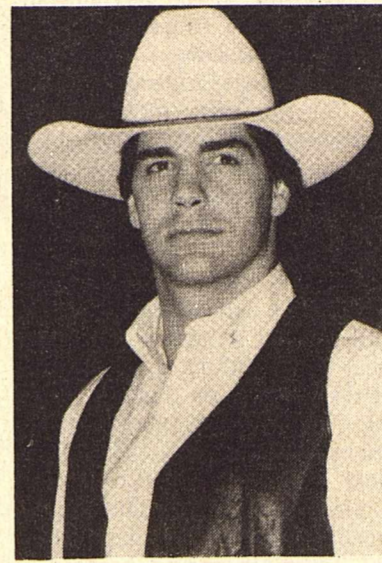

Representatives at the January meeting voted bonus money of $1,000 will be awarded to the winner of each contest event and $2,000 to the winning team in the team roping contest. Contestants must compete in each rodeo of the series where the event is offered to be eligible for the bonus.

Series producers are stressing the fact that while this year's schedule includes six rodeos, the future is not limited to that amount. In additions to the series will be approved by the existing board.

Mack Altizer, Bad Company Rodeo producer, also announced the hiring of Boyd Polhamus, 25, as the pro rodeo announcer for the Sutton County Days Rodeo. In a short five years Polhamus has built up a resume which includes alternate announcer for the National Finals Rodeo in 1990, two time Texas PRCA Circuit Finals Announcer and Master of Ceremonies for the Miss Rodeo America Pageant in Las Vegas in 1990.

Altizer said it is the first time the rodeo will have a horseback announcer.

BOYD POLHAMUS

"His ability to motivate and carry an audience from start to finish sets him apart from most other announcers," said Mack Altizer.

The A team picked up a 30-19 win, while the B team scored a 9-6 victory.

In the A game, Sonora pulled away in the second half as they outscored Wall 10-4 to build a 26-15 lead after three quarters. It was just part of what Sonora coach Carol Sessom called her team's best game of the year.

In addition to shooting
