FRANCO WINS USAA AWARD

submitted

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Brett Sutton Franco has been named a United States National Award winner in history and government.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American junior high and high school students.

Brett, who attends Ft. Stockton Middle School, was nominated for this national award by Jane E.

Woodward, a teacher at the school. Brett will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USSA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Brett is the son of Janice and Simon Franco. The grandparents are Maida and J.W. Sutton of Sonora, and Lucila and Simon Franco of Ft. Stockton.

PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING LOCAL CABLE TELEVISION

On Monday, June 5, 1995, the City Council will hold a public hearing regarding the recent channel changes made by Classic Cable, Inc. on the locally franchised cable television system. Steve Smith, President of Classic Cable, will be on hand to address questions regarding these changes and future services.

The meeting will take place at 7:00 p.m. at the Intermediate School Auditorium (Old High School) on Prospect Street.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend and participate.

Editor's Note: The following letter was written to Mayor Cascadden and the City Council on March 7, 1995.

Dear Mayor and Council:

As you may have noticed, the transmission quality of the WFAA broadcast signal received in Sonora has steadily deteriorated over the last two years. Over this period the cable system serving Abilene has discontinued carriage of WFAA while the system serving San Angelo has been forced to reduce carriage of WFAA to only a few hours per day.

We have been concerned that the effective loss of these, the two largest customer's on the microwave link delivering WFAA to Sonora, would affect the maintenance of the more than 300 miles of transmission path. Maintenance that is critically important given the nine transmit and receive stations under three different owners, located between Dallas and Sonora.

Our customers rely on us to deliver the best possible picture on all of their channel selections. Unfortunately, we are not providing the best possible ABC network programming as a result of these difficulties with the microwave. In order to improve the quality of this signal, we will switch to the ABC signal delivered by KTXS from Sweetwater/Abilene this Spring.

While unfortunate in some respects, this switch will also provide many benefits to our customers. The news and weather provided by KTXS will be more relevant to the Sonora area. KTXS featured the 1994 Fox package of National Football Conference games and is optimistic about carriage of the 1995 games.

We know that there will be some initial concern about the new signal but are also confident that, once they have experienced the improved reception of their favorite ABC network shows, our customers will be happy the change was made. Thank you for your patience during this transition and for your service to the City of Sonora.

Sincerely,
Stephen S. Smith
President, Classic Cable

Editor's Note: The following letter was written to Mayor Cascadden and the City Council on May 12, 1995.

Dear Mayor and Council:

Mr. Carta asked that I supplement my letter of March 7, concerning our recent substitution of KTXS for WFAA. I appreciate the opportunity.

As explained in my earlier letter, the WFAA signal was delivered to Sonora through more than 300 miles of high frequency microwave. The equipment used in this path is more than 25 years old. This, coupled with the fact that the Abilene cable system has dropped WFAA and the San Angelo system carries it only part-time, virtually ensures the continued degradation of the picture quality of WFAA.

We would certainly have preferred to continue carriage of the WFAA signal through a more reliable delivery method such as satellite transmission. We will make every effort to return WFAA to the Sonora system should such reception become available.

With competition increasing in the delivery of home entertainment, we cannot afford to provide anything but the best quality signal to our customers. We are also encouraged by the optimism expressed by KTXS that they will carry the NFC football package as a supplement to KIDY's (channel 6) coverage in Sonora.

Thank you for your patience during this transition and please feel free to call with any additional questions regarding this change.

Sincerely,
Stephen S. Smith
President, Classic Cable

Dear Editor,

Dear Editor,
Regarding the May 25th printing of "Education Reform" by Pat Wright, I would like to know specifically who (by name) is "one of the revisionist historians" who "wrote a Declaration of Independence" which called for the end of America's national sovereignty." I would also like to know where it (with all these reported signatures) is recorded and how she acquired such information if it was not published in any national news. I just can't believe that our alarmist national news media would squelch a goodie like that! I want to read it for myself.
Sydonia Wilson

Editor's Response

by Stephanie Campbell
Pat Wright states the Declaration of Interdependence was written by Henry Steele Commager. He is now a retired professor of history from one of the large universities in the eastern United States. Mr. Commager wrote many text books before his retirement. During the Iran Contra hearings, Mrs. Wright tuned in to a radio program to listen to Bill McCullum, a Florida congressman, whom she had viewed during the hearings. Congressman McCullum announced on this radio program that he would make available a packet of liberal documents that he felt were of harm to the U.S. Government. In that packet of information was the Declaration of Interdependence, among other documents. Mrs. Wright also states the declaration can be found in Globalism: America's Demise by Bill Bowen and the Freeman's Digest.

Ask The Historical Society

Because this has the same backdrop as some of his other pictures, we think this is a Noah Rose picture of A. J. Swearingen and his family taken in the 1890's.

by Jo-Ann E. Palmer, Secretary Sutton County Historical Society

Do you have any information about a ghost at W.W. Lewis' place in Menardville sometime around the turn of the century?

Devil's River News of 1900 had no ghost stories from Menardville. We finally found the story in the Devil's River News of April 20, 1901 under the title "Farmhouse Haunted".

In a special to the Dallas News, dated Menardville, Tex., April 11-- On the farm of W.W. Lewis, two and one half miles east of Menardville, there is reported to be an old woman, with long, streaming hair and arms of extreme length, which she waves in a peculiar manner, seemingly to frighten those bold enough to invade her premises and at the same time beating the walls and roof of her dwelling with some invisible instrument, supposed to be a tomahawk. The spook is believed to be the squaw of some departed brave. She has a particular love for men and boys, caressing and embracing them while asleep, and when the victim of her fond embrace would wake up and attempt to return the compliment he would find that the ghost was gone and he was there are folks who firmly believe in hobgoblins it might be well to set this story right. Six years ago Mr. Lewis was in the dry goods business; when he retired he took home a bizarre form of a very tall lady. This was placed in the 'haunted' room and a large white mosquito bar placed over it. One night a certain Menardville carpenter was down there at work and like all carpenters was very hungry. At supper he got around nine slices of ham; three boiled eggs and seven biscuits. Some time during the night he found the ghost of a woman nine feet high in his room. Well the supper and the bizarre form together had him rattled; but from that time on there have been various rumors of ghosts; and lovers of the weird have drawn far and wide on their imagination to make the tale as ridiculous as possible. -- Menard County Enterprise.

I think what they are trying to say is the ghost is the product of nightmares from an attack of acute indigestion and slightly overactive imaginations. It must have been a pretty good yarn though because some people are still telling it.

1901 Humor:
Tommy (after looking very hard at his mother's guest)-- "Why, you drink all right after all."

Astonished Guest-- "And why not?"

Tommy-- "Oh, I don't know. Only mother said you drank like a fish."

Wife: Cousin Clara has just answered a letter I wrote her a year ago.

Husband: "That's queer."

Wife: "No, it isn't. You probably didn't mail it until you got out your winter overcoat this week."

First Man: "You referred to your friend as a dead game sportsman?"

Second Man: "Yes he always buys his birds in the market house. Dead game is his specialty." (I think I have known a few men who fish like he hunts.)

I think the advertisement next to this column should have been included in it. It read: "Wellington Club Whiskey is the finest article that has ever sailed over the San Angelo bars. No headache guaranteed. For sale only at the Corner Saloon in San Angelo" I guess they didn't have truth in advertising laws back then.

Don't forget it's time to mail your dues attention Al Elliott, treasurer. We need to get that general fund built back up to pay the insurance and upkeep on our property. Donations are always welcome.

HOUSE ARRESTS NEW YORK STABBING SUSPECT

Editor's Note: The following article is being reprinted from the Saturday, May 20th edition of the New York Times. by Roger Clendening II, Times Staff Writer

David Schafstall said he was in bed asleep the night of April 28th when he heard screams coming from his living room.

When he came out to see what was wrong, he got a knife in his chest for his trouble, he said.

"I just (recently) got the stitches out," said the 42-year-old Hudson man. He grabbed the knife from his attacker and threw it into the canal near his home on Duley Avenue. The man ran out of the house and got away.

"I chased him, but I was bleeding pretty badly," Schafstall said. "I just about gave out."

On Thursday (May 18th), authorities say the man who stabbed Schafstall was at the county jail in Land O'Lakes in lieu of $100,000 bail and charged with armed burglary and aggravated battery.

Thomas Frances Bassett, 39, of Hudson, was brought back to Pasco County from Sonora, Texas, according to court records and a Pasco County Sheriff's Office report. After leaving Schafstall's home, he allegedly stole a 1983 Chevrolet Celebrity from an elderly New Port Richey woman. He was apprehended by Texas authorities on May 7th.

"They caught him in Texas, and they extradited him back," Schafstall said. "I hope he goes to jail... If I hadn't have come out and got in the way of that knife, he would have cut her throat."

Schafstall was referring to Tracey McDowall, Bassett's ex-girlfriend. She and Schafstall's girlfriend were in the living room that night watching a videotape of "Forrest Gump" while Schafstall slept. That was when Bassett allegedly broke into the house.

"He snuck in through the back door and attacked Tracey," Schafstall said. "He snatched a bunch of hair out of her head."

Bassett also was charged with battery and grand theft auto. Officer Mike House of the Sonora Police Department said his antenna went up when he saw a suspicious-looking man driving a car with out-of-state license plates. "We live in a small community," he said. "I ran a check on the vehicle, and the vehicle came back stolen."

Bassett, an unemployed mechanic, has a previous conviction and has been sentenced to state prison, according to court records. On May 24, 1993, he allegedly caused a disturbance at the Burger King restaurant in Hudson and struggled with sheriff's deputies during his arrest.

He pleaded no contest to charges of trespassing, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest with violence and battery on a law enforcement officer, and was convicted in August 1993, court records state. The arresting officer also said in his report that Bassett had numerous felony convictions on his record since 1981.

Valiant Effort

by Marti Valliant McLain

We have returned from "the trip," and it certainly was a trip to remember. We traveled 5,685 miles, through 13 states, in 18 days. It sounds grueling, and at times it was a bit hard, but we saw the things that you can only see if you don't fly. Except for Caesar's Palace in Lake Tahoe, we stayed at Best Western's. They were all very different, and ranged from great to fantastic. We had a plan and we followed it fairly well. Not once was anyone late for loading in the mornings or for any of our events. We are all still friends and would travel together again if possible. The food was wonderful everywhere. We only had two bad meals on the entire trip. George and Dean had the bad food, but almost everything worked. Weather was good, and no one got a ticket or had an accident. It was a wonderful trip.

Eureka Springs, Arkansas is a fascinating town. Everything clings to the side of a hill. You enter one church through the bell tower of the steeple, and go down stairs to the chapel. The Passion Play is spectacular, using poetic license, the producers cram almost all of the vents of Christ's life into the period between Palm Sunday and Easter, and why not? It is a beautiful show with camels, sheep, Romans in chariots, and a permanent set that seem quite realistic. The stage floor is dirt and dust flies as the sheep cross the stage. Some things never changed.

The resurrection was done with a huge crane and laser light beams. He rose above the tree-tops on the side of the hill. The crane that flew him was totally concealed. It was a very realistic effect. The production used scrim curtains with special lighting to allow Christ to appear suddenly and disappear instantly. From a theatrical point of view it was brilliant, and of course, the script was wonderful. Everyone knew what to expect, but there were tears in most eyes. I am glad that we saw it.

The Passion Play is presented in an outdoor theater with comfortable seats. It is near the huge statue of Christ called "Christ of the Ozarks." The statue was sculpted by one of the men who worked at Mt. Rushmore. We saw it earlier in the afternoon, but the best view was the shadow of the cross made by the statue and seen from the theater as the sun went down.

There is nothing like Branson, Mo. I had been told how much fun it was, but I really didn't realize what wonderful shows are done there and how responsive the audiences are. The McLain's, the Wallace's, and the Savell's were among the young people in the audiences, so you can imagine the average age of the others.

It was our kind of place! We heard the Lennon Sisters (yes, they are still alive!) perform, and they are as good or better than before. They told us that 21 Lennon families moved to Branson. The school system almost declared an emergency. Many of their children are performing with them now. They must be at least 60 something, but they are great looking women. Of course, they sang the music that we grew up hearing, and we loved it.

We heard Shoji, the Japanese violinist and fiddler. I use both terms because he does all kinds of music. He plays "Danny Boy" so beautifully that you want to cry, some classical numbers, "The Music of the Night" (from "Phantom of the Opera" and "The Orange Blossom Special." He says that he was inspired by a tour of Roy Clark in Japan as a child. His American wife produces the show and is very talented.

We saw Mel Tillis do his show, and he is funny and fun. He did most of the old cowboy songs, ones that were sung by the "Sons of the Pioneers." Isn't it nice to hear songs that you know all the words to? He is a wonderful performer.

Bobby Vinton has to be getting on up there in years, but he is still one of the most energetic performers that you will see. He puts his heart and soul into his music. His show is a family show; his mother does a number and two daughters are performing. He performs with the Glen Miller band, so you can probably hear the music in your mind. Maybe you have to be over 50 to remember it. I think that if you have never heard that sound, you will like it when you hear it.

Dean and George got up early and went to a breakfast show, "Valerie in the Morning." She is a dancer and singer. One lady on the elevator said that she thought that Valerie had the prettiest knees that she had ever seen. Dean and George refused to comment on her knees, but they loved her show.

There are breakfast shows, lunch shows, afternoon shows, evening shows, and a few late night shows. We even had "wannabee" singers waiting tables in the restaurants and singing into your ear. There is music everywhere and a great variety. Prices were lower in Branson for motels and food than in most of the other places. We were there one week before "the season", and I think that everything goes up then. The theaters were all full, as were the restaurants and motels. I don't know how there could be room for many more "in season." I am glad that we didn't wait for the crowds.

If you go to Branson, be sure to check out all of the restrooms. They have spared no expense for your comfort.

After Branson, we went to our nation's National Monument, Mt. Rushmore. It is a staggering achievement. It is hard to think that someone had the vision, determination, and talent to produce something that magnificent. We saw it first in the rain and at dusk. If showed the presidents to be sad and worried. The next morning, we saw them in the midst of a gentle snow, and somehow you felt the hardships that they had endured leading the country. Before we left, the sun was out and the granite mountain was almost dry and they looked like stately heroes. I was surprised at how much detail is carved into the mountain. Teddy Roosevelt's glasses and mustache are easily seen. Lincoln's high collar and craggy face seems just right. Jefferson is quite handsome, and Washington is just like his profile on the coins. I am so glad that we saw it. I have wanted to see it since childhood.

The Crazy Horse Monument is not complete, in fact it is barely begun. The man of vision who started it is now dead, but his family is continuing the work. The statue of what he has planned is beautiful. He refused federal funds for the completion of the work twice. He thinks that the monument should be done by donation only. He was a rare man to put his principles first. He wants this monument to represent the people's respect for the Native Americans. I am convinced that it will happen. He left ten children to continue his work. I feel that they will see it to completion.

We were in Reno for a night, and it felt like a little gambling town. I felt that even though it was very old, it could all disappear tomorrow if gold was discovered elsewhere, or if gambling disappeared.

Lake Tahoe was the bluest blue that I have ever seen. We stayed in Ceasar's Palace at Lake Tahoe, our fanciest motel, but the glitz at the casinos could not compare to the beauty of the high lake country. At Ceasar's Palace, we ate at Planet Hollywood with all of the movie memorabilia. I remember seeing Marilyn Monroe's brush, comb, and pill box, but I don't remember what we ate.

We went into Yosemite National Park and saw the giant Sequoias, The "Sierra Redwoods." They are magnificent. I was surprised at the wonderful waterfalls in the park. They have had a lot of rain, and they were really performing. I felt like I was on the set of a "Tarzan" movie. I knew that there were waterfalls like that in Africa and South America. I did not know that we had falls so spectacular. Pictures do not do them justice.

We saw our daughter graduate. She sang at Baccalaureate during communion, and the choral group that she directs sang. The speaker for the service was Bear Ride Scott, PhD and Presbyterian minister. She is the older sister of Sally Ride, the first woman astronaut. Her name is really Karen, but when Sally was small, she couldn't say her sister's name. She called her Bear and she is still Bear. She was wonderful. If you have a chance to hear her speak, she is definitely worth it. My favorite example that she used was about watching children play on a teeter-totter. They love to go way up in the air, and they hate the big bump that they get when the other child goes up. She said that you only have to watch children to know that the joy in their play comes from the ups and downs. She said that sometimes we try to live lives that are all level, with no ups and downs. She believes that many churches end up trying to prop up both ends of the teeter-totter so that everything is level. According to Bear, that isn't possible and it takes all the joy out of life. She was most inspiring.

We headed home driving long days, with tired stiff muscles. Driving across the country is hard work and at our age, a little painful, but it is well worth the effort. And by the way, I still have not seen the Grand Canyon. That will have to be for a later trip.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Celeste Prugel and Johnny Fields for speedy recoveries. I will be back in the "loop" by next week with local news.

SOUTH AFRICAN MARKET NEWS

At the fifth summer sale of Mohair, held May 16, 1995, 2092 bales were offered - 78% sold. Offering consisted of mixed quality. Compared to previous sale, prices for adults were unchanged. Good young goats and good kids were in buyer's favor. Average kids and average young goats were 5% - 7 1/2 % lower.

Prices quoted by the south African Mohair Board converted to US. currency and adjusted for second yield are given below. Please note that the prices quoted are based on market conditions in South Africa and should not be considered to reflect market conditions in any other producing country. Please note also that fluctuation of the South African Rand causes minor (+/-) movements in the conversion to U.S. dollars. Prices do not include price adjustments for stained mohair.

Calculations for US. dollar/lb. is made using the (average) S.A. rand/kg.

South African Fifth Summer Sale

Offering	Sold	Type	Micron	Price Range	(Avg.)	70%	76%	80%
2092 Bales	1632	Avg. Adult	35	25.80/33.40	29.60	$ 2.99	$ 3.24	$ 3.41
690360 lbs	538481	Young Goat	33	26.00/35.00	30.50	$ 3.08	$ 3.34	$ 3.52
		Good Yng Goat	31	29.00/45.00	37.00	$ 3.73	$ 4.05	$ 4.27
		Average Kid	29	36.00/52.00	44.00	$ 4.44	$ 4.82	$ 5.07
		Fine Kid	25	50.00/91.60	70.80	$ 7.14	$ 7.75	$ 8.16

BALES=330/lbs S.A. RAND 0.2732 (commercial rate) S. YIELD 86%

The next sale will be held on June 6, 1995 when approximately 1,550 bales will be offered. Supply and Demand are pieces of the equation that make a market ad prices. The results of the 5th South African Sale quoted all classes as unchanged. The 5 sales have offered 750,000 to 800,000 pounds each time. The 6th and 7th sale will only offer 230,000 kilos or 500,000 pounds each sale. This offering indicates a 10 to 15% reduction in summer production in South Africa. Mohair production in the U.S. when comparing 1993 production with 1994 production is down. Reduced production in South Africa and the United States certainly means a reduced world-wide supply of mohair.

WEST TEXAS RABIES SEMINAR HELD IN ALPINE

submitted

Complacency and misdiagnosis are the most common reasons why domesticated animal handlers come into contact with the rabies virus.

That was the main message coming from an educational seminar on rabies held at the Alpine Civic Center last Saturday, May 27th. The community forum was sponsored by Big Bend People and Goats (BBP&G) and hosted by the city of Alpine.

Once an animal is diagnosed as having rabies, the danger to it's handler is actually minimized, according to Kevin Coker. The virus is deadly but also fragile. Coker is a Texas Department of Health rabies control specialist stationed at El Paso. He told participants that the greatest danger occurs when animal raisers are complacent about the seriousness of the disease, or when they deny the possibility of rabies and treat symptoms as if they are caused by something else.

Leo Uher, BBP&G President, said that a lesson he learned from the recent loss of a key animal in a meat goat breeding program is that once a diagnosis of rabies is made, even if tentative, for safety sake it is best to proceed as if the animal does indeed have rabies.

Coker stressed that there is not a rabies epidemic in his west Texas district. He did say, though, that laboratory confirmed cases vary from one county to another and that some patterns can be detected in the district.

A question raised was whether current cases of rabies represent a "natural" condition requiring little or no intervention, or an "abnormal" condition needing new awareness or prevention strategies. Some situations to prompt intervention might be a decline in wildlife populations, or disappearance of packs of domesticated animals once roaming an area. The spread of rabies in local neighborhoods may be killing them. Also to look for on a larger scale are shifting patterns that indicate a movement of the disease from one region to another or from one specie of animals to another. Coker admits that rabies will never be completely eliminated, even if educational programs overcome complacency and counteract existing threats to health.

A Canadian intervention plan, now being tried in Texas, involves systematic airdrop of rabies vaccination packages. This program targets foxes in some areas and coyotes in others. Innovation is aimed at protection of health, rather than merely following regulatory procedures.

Critical to counteract any health threat, said Coker, is good information. Reporting incidents of rabies -- by the public -- is extremely important as well as any local changes in animal populations.

Presenter Dr. Paul Weyerts, Sul Ross State University Range Animal Science Director, said that detection of any abnormal behavior in animals is most important in the earliest stages of the disease. During this critical period, animal handlers are most likely to be exposed to the virus, before the diagnosis of rabies is made.

Weyerts' lecture reviewed unfounded beliefs about rabies, outlined stages in the disease, illustrated the behavior of dogs, cows, and other animals that become infected, the capacities of skunks and bats to serve as carriers, and vaccines that are available today.

Leo Uher gave a report of a case in which a key animal in establishing repeatability in a meat goat cross program became infected by a rabid skunk, was shunned by all other animals in the herd, and was finally diagnosed as having rabies. The diagnosis was not made until all members of his family had had some exposure to the animal.

Seminar presentations were recorded and videotaped by the Texas Department of Health.

Children from 3 years through 6th grade gathered for a week of fun, Bible stories, games, crafts, recreation, refreshments, and music. The church held a "Bring a Friend" contest which resulted in 48 children attending Vacation Bible School by personal invitation.

Attendance peaked on Wednesday morning with 131 present. Parent's night was held on Wednesday evening. Parents visited the classrooms, met the workers, and attended a worship service and program. Refreshments were served after the program.
