Covered Wagon Dinner Theatre begins summer season

The Covered Wagon Dinner Theatre kicks off its '97 season Saturday, June 21st.

Lewis Allen, local storyteller, will host the first night's event. And he may even tell a story or two. Also performing is the Gore Brothers Bluegrass Band.

The band formed in Lubbock, Texas in 1973 under the name of Cool Water Trio. It was made up of three brothers, Ron, Jon, and Gary Gore. Mainly a vocal band, the trio performed songs made popular by the Sons of the Pioneers, John Denver, The Ink Spots, and various country artists.

In 1976, with the loss of member Jon Gore, the band moved toward playing bluegrass music. After two years of hotel work, the band won the 1978 Southwest Bluegrass Band Championship in Kerrville, Texas.

The bookings to follow and other contest wins in Bufalo Gap, Oakdale Park, Glenrose and Duncan, Oklahoma formed a bond made to last. The Gore Brothers have performed with such names as the Statler Brothers, The Whies, Ricky Scaggs, Chubby Wise, and many others.

District extends invitation tour "cloud seeding" facilities

Residents of Sutton County are invited to tour the West Texas Weather Modification facilities at Mathis Field* in San Angelo on June 19 from 9 a.m.-12 p.m. and 2 p.m.-5 p.m.

Weather Modification, Inc. has installed new software which enables them to dissect a cloud as to the moisture content, temperature, etc. They can also determine a cloud system's movement in ten minute increments. This will allow the staff meteorologist to select the best clouds available before sending a plane to that particular area for seeding.

This will make the project more time efficient and cost effective. This radar equipment and its operation will be very interesting to those who wish to attend. If you have any questions about the cloud seeding effort, this would be an excellent time for your questions.

This season's cloud seeding project began May 15 and will continue through September 15. "We have already seen some results of our cloud seeding efforts this year and hope they continue to be successful," stated Mike Smith.

If you have any questions, please call 387-2369.

*Directions to the Cloud Seeding office: Go to Mathis Field, go past Terminal until road dead ends. Turn left and go to stop sign at Hangar Rd & Abell St. Go straight through double gates to white building with blue trim on right.

Ask The Historical Society

Mrs. Pat Lee, nee Medie Simmons

southern gentleman, who believed in upholding the honor of his name and his family. He was an excellent hunter and marksman and knew the surrounding area like the back of his hand. Humpy had a large family and many friends in the area. One of his children was a pretty teenage daughter named Narcissus.

Lanky Jim was an extremely progressive, for that time, mulatto soldier stationed at Ft. McKavett. His duties included working at the government sawmill near Humpy's place. Lanky Jim saw the young Narcissus passing by the sawmill on her way to and from school. He became extremely enamored of her. He wrote her a love letter telling her of his feelings and found a way to press it into her hand one day as she passed by. Little did he know the dire consequences this act would perpetrate.

Narcissus was only about 14 and didn't know what to do about the letter from Lanky Jim. She decided to show the letter to her father, Humpy. The innocent young girl had no idea the letter would cause years of trouble for her family and their friends.

Humpy took the letter his young daughter gave him and read it. Needless to say when he found out who it was from he became very angry. He brooded over the "insult" all night and became angrier as the hours passed. The next day he took his gun down and headed for the sawmill. Some say he hid in a stand of pecan trees and waited for his quarry to appear. One account says he simply walked up and shot the first Negro that ambled into his sight.

Anyway, Humpy drew an accurate bead, fired and took off into hiding. The only thing was he didn't shoot Lanky Jim; he killed a Private Boston Henry instead. The word of the shooting was carried to Ft. McKavett. On June 9, 1869, Lieutenant John L. Bullis was detailed to apprehend John

Jackson, who the military listed as a "horse thief and murderer."

Bullis mounted up and headed out after Humpy with six men. But Humpy knew the country well and had dodged Indians there for years. He could not be found. Bullis rode for four days and sixty miles and returned empty handed as did a party from Ft. Concho under Lt. George E. Albee that had covered over four hundred miles.

The chase continued for months. Humpy led the soldiers on a merry chase. He managed to return home from time to time and raised a good corn crop on the side. He even dug a cellar at his house and connected it by a tunnel with the river bank to aid his escapes from the persistent army. If they came upon the house suddenly, he just popped into the cellar, went through the tunnel, and came out along the river safe and sound.

Humpy's daughter, Henrietta, would ride around the country at times as a kind of picket and warn her father of approaching troops as he worked the fields. The soldiers started watching her closely. One day a large group of them chased her back to the corn field. Henrietta pulled up her horse, fired a warning shot for Humpy, who was ill and holed up in the cellar. Humpy heard the shot and managed to get away, but the soldiers found his hiding place and he was not able to return home as often after that.

The Real "Braveheart"

In the movie Braveheart, as William Wallace prepares to address the Scottish troops before the battle of Stirling Bridge, a soldier scornfully declares, "That can't be William Wallace - he's not tall enough!" Perhaps Braveheart's director and star Mel Gibson, who did an admirable job bringing Wallace's exploits to the screen, inserted the line as a self-deprecating acknowledgment of his relatively diminutive stature. According to the Scotichronicon, William Wallace "was pleasing in appearance but with a wild look ... a tall man with the body of a giant, broad-shouldered and big-boned" - six feet seven inches tall, during an era in which the average male was just over five feet in height. Wallace's claymore was as long as most men of the time were tall, and - like the legendary Ulysses - he carried a strongbow that he alone could draw.

"The Lord Was With Him"
Dr. James Alexander McKay, a noted biographer of Wallace and other Scottish national heroes, observes that "in the hands of a swordsman like Wallace [the Claymore's] whirling movement could hack and slash with a velocity and force which even the armor of the period could not withstand." Wallace's unimaginable ferocity on the battlefield was coupled with a tender solicitude for the innocent and an unshakable devotion to his Christian faith. Blind Harry, the 15th-century epic poet who celebrated Wallace's career in verse, recorded: "In time of peace, meek as a maid was he; when war approached, the right Hector was he."

Furthermore, testified Blind Harry, Wallace recognized Christian rules of warfare, sparing "none who were able for war," but ordering his followers "always [to] forebear to injure women or priests." Wallace carried his psalter with him at all times. The Scotichronicon records that he was pious and generous, "most compassionate in comforting the sad ... most patient when suffering, a distinguished speaker, who above all hunted down falsehood and deceit and detested treachery; for this reason the Lord was with him...."

McKay observes that Wallace, the "younger son of a minor Laird [noble] ... received the rudiments of his education at home, probably at his mother's knee." As a teenager, William Wallace contemplated a religious vocation and spent considerable time with his father Malcolm's enigmatic younger brother, a clergyman from Dunipace. Under the priest's tutelage, young William - who was even then a remarkable physical specimen - learned to develop a mind worthy of his frame. The Marquess of Bute testified that "Sir William Wallace at least knew how to read and write three languages - namely, his own, and Latin and French; and it appears also that he knew Gaelic. He knew the ancient and modern history, and the common simpler mathematics and science of his own day."

Dr. McKay points out, "This priest is given credit for instilling in William's soul that passionate love of liberty which was to be the keynote of his elevated character and his glorious career." From his uncle, William learned the Latin maxim which defined his life, "Dico tibi verum, libertas optima rerum; Nunquam servili sub nexu vivito filii: My son, I tell thee soothfastlie; No gift is like libertie; then never live in slavery."

Strokes - Misconception, Prevention, Warning Signs... and the Right Response

Strokes are the third leading cause of death in the United States, behind heart disease and cancer. Each year 500,000 Americans suffer from stroke, and of those about 150,000 will die from them. As many as three million Americans have survived a stroke, with more than two million of them sustaining some permanent disability. Strokes occur at all ages, in both sexes, and in all races in every country.

What is a stroke?

A stroke (sometimes called a brain attack) is a loss of blood flow to an area of the brain and may cause disorientation which might lead to injury or death. When blood flow fails, brain cells are robbed of vital supplies of oxygen and nutrients. Some strokes have very little recognizable effects, while others can quickly cause death.

There are two major types of stroke; those caused by blood clots that block an artery that carries blood to part of the brain (ischemic strokes), and those caused by bleeding (hemorrhagic strokes).

A treatable disease

New drug treatments are being tested that could help certain victims of stroke, but diagnosis and treatment must begin as soon as possible in order for these treatments to be effective.

In spite of their sudden occurrence, strokes can be prevented by managing the risk factors, heeding the warning signs, and acting quickly. Today, early diagnosis and treatment can dramatically improve recovery for stroke victims.

Misconceptions:

Strokes always result in serious disability.

Some stroke symptoms may last anywhere from a few moments to a few hours and then disappear. These brief episodes of stroke symptoms are called transient ischemic attacks or TIAs. Although TIAs usually are of short duration and recovery, you would not downplay their seriousness, but seek treatment immediately.

Operation Restore Trust (ORT) is a joint project of Federal, State, and community organizations to educate citizens about Medicare fraud.

This very important information will be divided in three segments. The first of the three is:

When should you suspect fraud?

*Providers who advertise free testing or screening.
*Offers of free medical equipment or supplies.

*Providers who offer to waive co-payments and deductibles.

*Offers of free groceries (or any other substitute) in exchange for your Medicare number or your Explanation of Benefits statement.

*Door-to-door/telephone solicitors offering free or discounted Medicare services or items.

*Advertisements that read: "Call 1-800-NUMBER; This item is approved by Medicare; No out-of-pocket expenses."

*When your Part B Medicare Explanation of Benefits statement shows items or services that you did not receive.

*Supplier that provide more expensive equipment than medically necessary (motorized wheelchairs, electric beds, lifts, etc.)

*Suppliers that provide lower cost equipment while billing Medicare for higher cost equipment.

*Medical justifications for equipment, items or supplies signed by a doctor who does not know you.

*Medical suppliers or providers that accept Medicare assignment but charge you more than the 20 percent of the Medicare-approved charge.

*Suppliers that bill Medicare for home medical equipment while the patient is in the hospital or nursing home.

*Suppliers that refuse to pick up rental items and continue to bill Medicare after you no longer need them.

From the desk of Dr. Fred

By Dr. Fred Cullens

As Administrator, I want to change the work day for the nurse's aides from 12 hours to the normal 8 hours. I can accomplish this goal by hiring 6 more people who would like to join this special group of health care providers. I am seeking applications from people who are willing to make the care of the elderly a part of their work career.

Why would you want to be a nurse's aide? The work is hard and constant...but...the work is also very rewarding. If you are looking for a job where you can make a difference...where you will be appreciated and recognized for your work, then you want to work with me. My staff does not work FOR me but always WITH me. As the new Administrator I am setting a new goal of continuing the good work started by those who have worked at the nursing home. I invite you to come by my office and share a cup of coffee or a coke and talk about the work we do. I need a few more nurse aides to ensure the continued success that this home has enjoyed. I can't promise you an easy job...but I can promise you a workplace that is friendly, loving, and a place where you will know that you are making a difference. You will be a team-member. Please come by and visit with me.

"By George! It works!" user crows.
Little-known 'vitamin' makes love grand

McKinney, TX--Little did Dr. Phillip Handler know, back in 1941, that his newly discovered nutrient "Vitamin 15" would one day have men and women all over the country smiling quietly to themselves.

Today, N,N-Dimethylglycine (DMG) is no longer classified as a vitamin. But it has changed the lives of thousands of men and their mates.

A naturally occurring nutrient sold under the brand name NutriSurge (but more often called simply "The Love Pill"), DMG works by increasing energy, improving metabolism, enhancing oxygen utilization and increasing the flow of blood to key areas of the anatomy.

NutriSurge has a cumulative effect: the more you take it, the better it works. Most users take two, but up to six tablets may be taken daily. Satisfaction is guaranteed.

See for yourself why thousands swear by NutriSurge. Send $29.95 plus $4.95 postage & handling for a 60-tablet supply to TDM Research, Dept. NSC31, 123 South St, Oyster Bay NY 11771. Or call toll free 1-800-645-9199 and ask for Operator C31. Use the whole supply; then, if you are not completely satisfied, return the box for a full refund.
