LONDON, Mar. 1. (P)—At least 19 persons were dead today as one of the worst storms in recent years lashed the British Isles, the coast of western Europe and North Africa. The gale reached 98 miles an hour at Holyhead, Wales, and over 75 miles at other points. Twelve deaths were recorded in Britain, mostly due to exposure and exhaustion. Twenty-foot snowdrifts halted transportation and isolated many villages. Three were killed in Brest, France. Sections of the Dover cliffs, estimated at 300 tons, crashed into a closed factory but no casualties were registered.

VIDAL RESIGNS JOB AS HEAD OF U. S. AIR FORCE

6 Governors Urge FR Hear Statements By Them

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1. (P)—Eugene L. Vidal, director of the Air Commerce Bureau, Sunday submitted his resignation, effective Monday.

Vidal's resignation as head of the Commerce Department's air unit came after months of both unofficial and congressional discussion of possible personnel changes in that agency.

Vidal said he was resigning to re-enter the aviation industry, with which he was associated before coming to the bureau.

In a letter to Secretary of Commerce David Roper, Vidal said he had desired to leave the bureau for some time to take advantage of some attractive offers from the aviation industry.

"I have remained in the government service this long because I was eager to accomplish a number of objectives which I established for myself when I entered the bureau nearly four years ago," Vidal said.

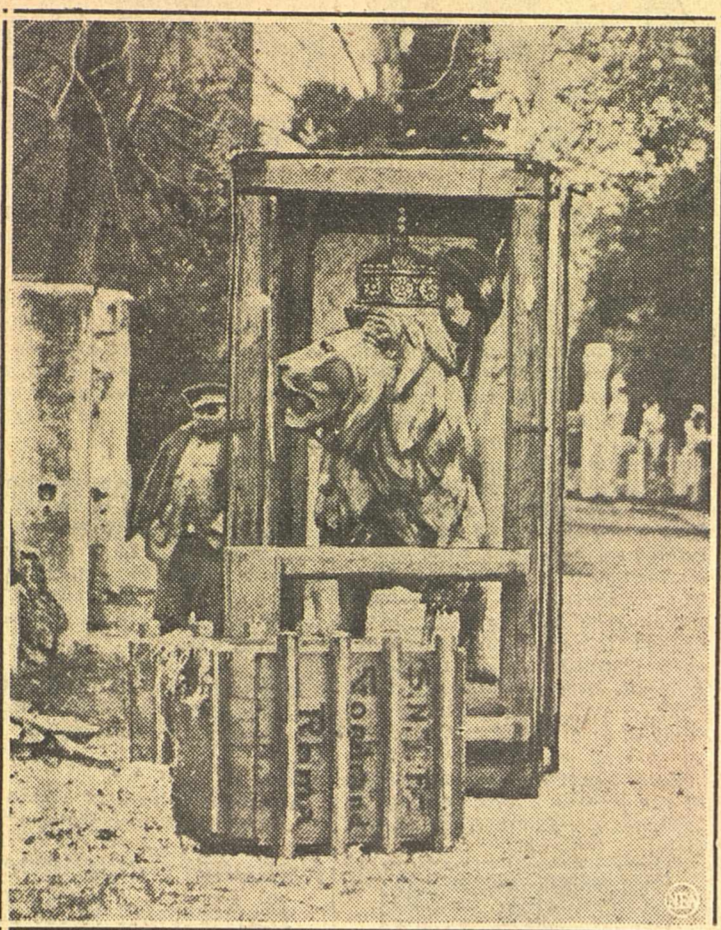

Commerce Department officials said they do not know how soon a successor to Vidal will be appointed. For the time being J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce, probably will take charge of the bureau. Johnson acts as an aide to Roper in charge of the commerce department's transportation activities.

Vidal's last official act was organization of a safety research and development section in the bureau, which co-ordinate long range plans to improve and expand existing safety facilities in the division, a committee will be set up representing federal aviation activities and commercial aviation.

Vidal, who had fifteen years experience as an army and civilian pilot, was a former airline organizer and executive. He came to the Air Commerce Bureau as assistant director in June, 1933, and four months later was made director.

Recently, Vidal headed an air safety conference called in the wake of a half-dozen major accidents which took more than thirty lives. Vidal said his plans for re-entering the aviation industry can not be made public until April. He plans a brief vacation on leaving the bureau.

B. W. FLOYD, VETERAN RANCHMAN IN MIDLAND COUNTY, SUCCUMBS TO DEATH

B. W. Floyd, 63, veteran ranchman of Midland and a resident of this section for almost forty years, died at a Dallas hospital Sunday at 3:30 p. m. after a lingering illness. He had suffered for several months from a weak heart, the last attack being coupled with pneumonia. At his bedside when the end came were Mrs. Floyd, also his three sons, Leslie, Jay H. and Clay Floyd, W. E. Wallace and wife of Midland, and two of Mrs. Floyd's brothers, Joe and Bud Hill of Lometa. All came here last night and this morning, the body of Mr. Floyd arriving on the morning train.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the residence, 1007 West Michigan. The Rev. W. J. Coleman, Presbyterian pastor, will officiate. Pall bearers will include K. S. Boone, Bob Preston, A. C. Francis, Arthur Jenkins, Foy Crocker, Roy Parks, W. A. Hutchison, Ben Driver, and Fount Armstrong.

Burros Wren Floyd was born at Lometa, Texas, February 24, 1874. He came to Midland in his early manhood, working on ranches of this section, including the Jule Driver, C. A. Goldsmith, Long S. Five Wells and LEP ranches. Later he established a livery stable business here, operating it for some time before filing on land and establishing the ranch 25 miles southeast of Midland which he operated up to the time of his death.

He married Miss Mable Mary Hill of Lometa in 1900. She and the three sons survive. Another son, W. H. Floyd, died in infancy. Two grandchildren, D'Aun and Jay Eugene, the children of Clay Floyd and wife, also survive. Besides the immediate family here, survivors include a brother, L. B. Floyd of Douglas, Ariz., and two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Franklin of Douglas and Mrs. Pat McCleskey of St. Louis.

Mr. Floyd, while operating his ranch in Midland and Glasscock counties, pioneered two distinct types of livestock, the polled Hereford cattle and the thoroughbred horse. With his sons, he has built up a distinctive and successful breeding business in each branch. He was active in inaugurating and keeping alive the horse racing industry here and with Spencer Jewell owned the old fair grounds used until the building in 1935 of the present large plant. He and his son, Jay H. Floyd, have carried on an active polo pony business and were among the first to begin the use of government thoroughbred stallions to breed up the horses.

BASEBALL MEETINGS ARE LOTS OF FUN --- THEY ALSO CAN BE TROUBLESOME

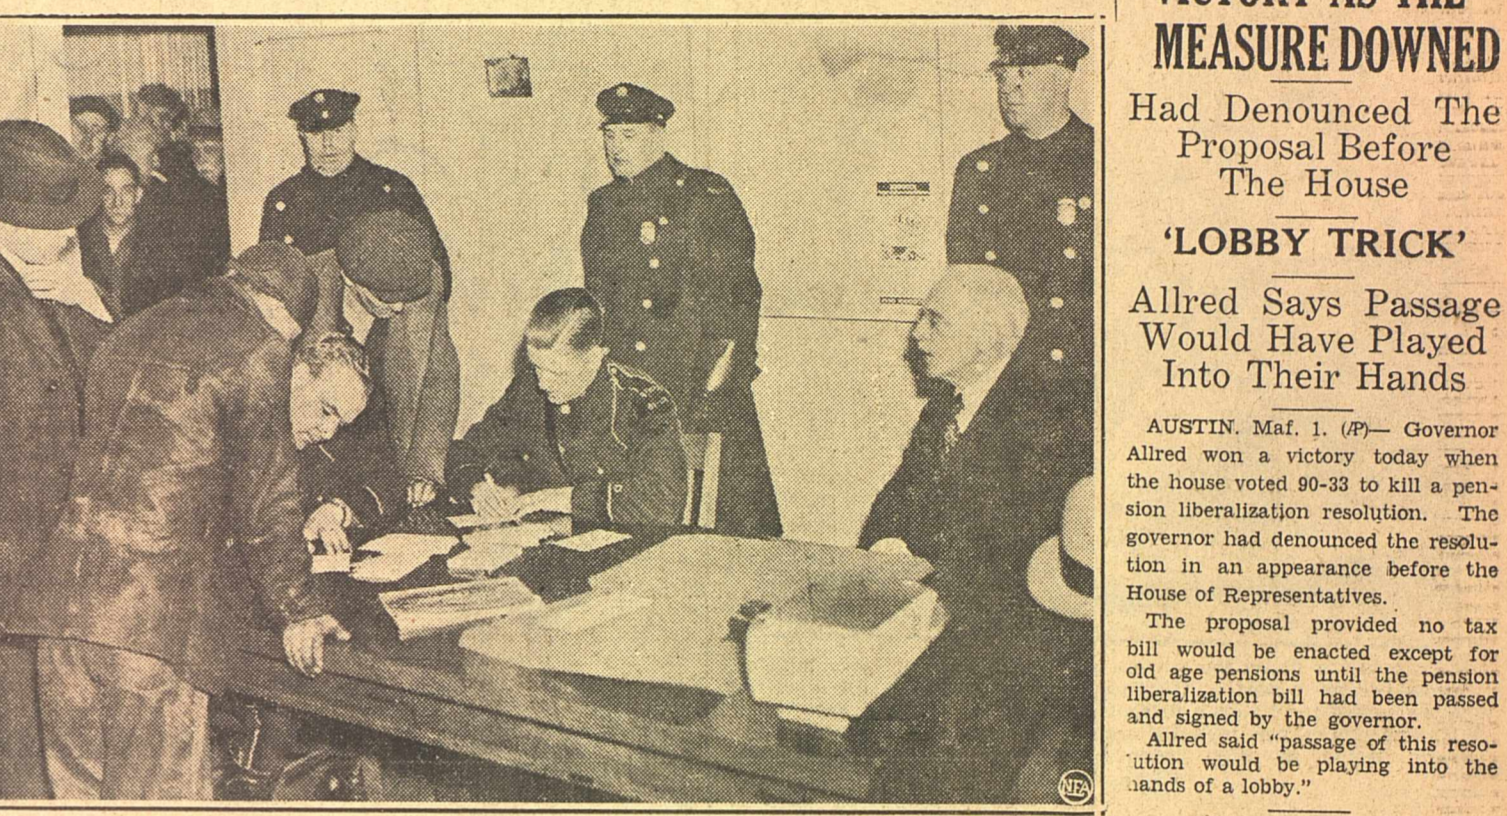

By BILL COLLYNS

Holding a baseball league organization meeting 750 feet below the surface of the ground in Carlsbad Cavern is something new and unique in baseball circles and such a stunt is well worth the effort put forth from a publicity standpoint as is a trek through the massive cavern always enjoyable to all concerned, but certain things can and often do arise on such a jaunt to make one wonder if it is all worth the effort, and brings home a realization that perhaps people who offer various excuses when you ask them to accompany you on such a jaunt are perhaps pretty smart after all.

Certain difficulties which arose on the cavern trip made it necessary for the Midland representatives to the baseball conference, sports editor Jess Rodgers and the writer, to travel by automobile, bus and taxi to attend the meeting in the Carlsbad Cavern yesterday afternoon and then get back home.

THREE-CAR WRECK SENDS 5 PERSONS TO 2 HOSPITALS

Odessa Man, Woman Get Concussions; To Recover

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dunlap and Joe Cockran, all of Odessa and G. P. Robertson of Midland were treated at a Midland hospital last night and Sam Houston of Stanton was taken to a Big Spring hospital after an accident involving three cars occurred near Germania at about 7 last night.

Dunlap and Robertson were both dismissed from the hospital after treatment, the former this morning and the latter last night after their injuries were discovered not to be serious. Mrs. Dunlap and Cockran both sustained brain concussions but an attending physician reported today both would recover. Houston was discovered to have a broken leg.

Robertson reported he was driving toward Stanton about 50 yards behind a car bearing a couple of Big Spring men when it and the Odessa car sideswiped each other. According to Robertson, the Dunlap car swerved across the road to the right, then to the left, plowing directly into his car. Both were almost demolished by the impact.

The identity of the Big Spring men was not learned but neither was reported to be seriously hurt.

Rooms Wanted For Church Delegates

Citizens of Midland are called on to come to the rescue and to provide rooms for delegates to the Christian Church convention the first week of May, or else the 1,000 persons expected must be asked to convene elsewhere, it was announced by chamber of commerce officers today.

When local Christian church officials secured the gigantic state convention, Midland had ample hotel and room accommodations. However, since that time the town has been filled to the extent that it would not be practical to depend on available hotel or tourist park rooms, and it is necessary to "sign up" approximately 500 rooms in private homes to be sure of accommodations.

Those willing to cooperate in taking care of this strong group of church people over a four day period, are asked to telephone the chamber of commerce at once. Delegates will expect to pay for their rooms.

The Arrival Of March, 1937

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1—Side issues in the supreme court fight have tended to bury the fact that the struggle is based on a difference in judicial philosophies among the nine justices.

Roosevelt seeks fewer justices who construe the constitution as Justices Sutherland, Butler, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Roberts, and sometimes Hughes construe it, and more justices who interpret it as Brandies, Stone, Cardozo—and, again, sometimes Hughes—interpret it.

Conservatives, and many in the legal profession, insist the court has merely carried out the mandate of the constitution in its opinions. Roosevelt contends that personal convictions, theories or prejudices have guided the majority.

"Only One Duty" The conservative position was taken by Justice Roberts when he read the 6 to 3 adverse opinion in the AAA case, as follows:

"When an act of Congress is appropriately challenged in the courts as not conforming to the constitutional mandate, the judicial branch of the government has only one duty: to lay the article of the Constitution which is invoked beside the statute which is challenged and to decide whether the latter squares with the former."

Roosevelt, as if an answer to this, said in his message to Congress, Jan. 6, that means must be found to adapt "judicial interpretation to the actual present needs of the largest progressive democracy in the modern world."

"We do not ask the courts call non-existent powers into being," he said, "but we have a right to expect that conceded power of those legitimately implied shall be made effective instruments for the common good. The processes of our democracy must not be imperiled by the denial of essential power of free government."

Roosevelt takes the position that the Constitution needs no amending, provided justices will interpret it liberally.

AAA Key Case
The key case in this argument, if one may be singled out, was the AAA decision. This involved the federal program to control agricultural production, in which compliance was obtained by offering benefit payments, the proceeds of which were derived from processing taxes.

The majority held that production was a local matter, that the law invaded state rights. It held the regulation was not voluntary, but compulsory. It held that such legislation was unconstitutional, because the Constitution did not expressly grant Congress the power to regulate agricultural production.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

MONK WHO DEFIED A POPE.

REFORM was in the air, early in the 17th century, but when Paul V assumed the papacy in 1605, he adopted strict measures to affirm the power of Rome. In Venice, Fra Paolo Sarpi, patriot, scholar, and theologian, upheld the state's supremacy over the church, in daring defiance of the edict from Rome. Sarpi even went so far as to demand toleration of worship for Protestants in Venice, and for this Venice made him state councillor in jurisprudence.

The recognition exasperated Sarpi's enemies. One dark night he was attacked by a band of assassins and left for dead. But his wounds healed, and he continued to advance his reforms. Plots against him continued, and he even planned to seek refuge in England. But he remained in his cloister in Venice, intent in the study of science and theology, until he died in 1623, aged 71.

Sarpi's portrait appears on one of the stamps issued by Italy in 1932, for the Dante Alighieri Society.

National Newspaper Exhibition Will Be Held By Ayer-Son Co.

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 1—A national exhibition of newspaper typography open to all daily English language newspapers in the United States was announced today by H. A. Batten, president of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., under whose auspices the exhibition will be held here.

More than 1,900 daily newspapers will be invited to enter their issues of Thursday, March 4, to be judged on the basis of typographical excellence, make-up and press work.

The Francis Wayland Ayer cup will be awarded the paper which, in the opinion of a committee of judges, ranks first and the cup will become the permanent possession of the paper winning it three times. Certificates of merit will be awarded in each of three circulation divisions—under 10,000 from 10,000 to 50,000 and over 50,000.

The first cup was awarded permanently last year to the New York Herald Tribune after that paper had won it three times in six annual exhibitions. It also had been received twice by the New York Times and the Hartford Courant.

In announcing the seventh exhibition, which will be open to the public after the judging of awards late in April, Mr. Batten said he believed the exhibition has much to promote greater interest in newspaper typography.

Farm Foreclosures Still Running High

Local offices of the Resettlement Administration have received figures which show that foreclosure of farms in Texas and Oklahoma is continuing at a very high rate. Surveys in eight counties of Oklahoma showed that during the past two years there have been 395 foreclosures and sheriff's sales, or almost 50 per county. It was also estimated that 7,700 farm homes in these counties are now threatened with foreclosure, which would be an average of almost 1,000 per county. Estimates indicated that more than 75 per cent of these farms could be saved by payments of from $100 to $1,000 on their mortgage installments, interest or taxes.

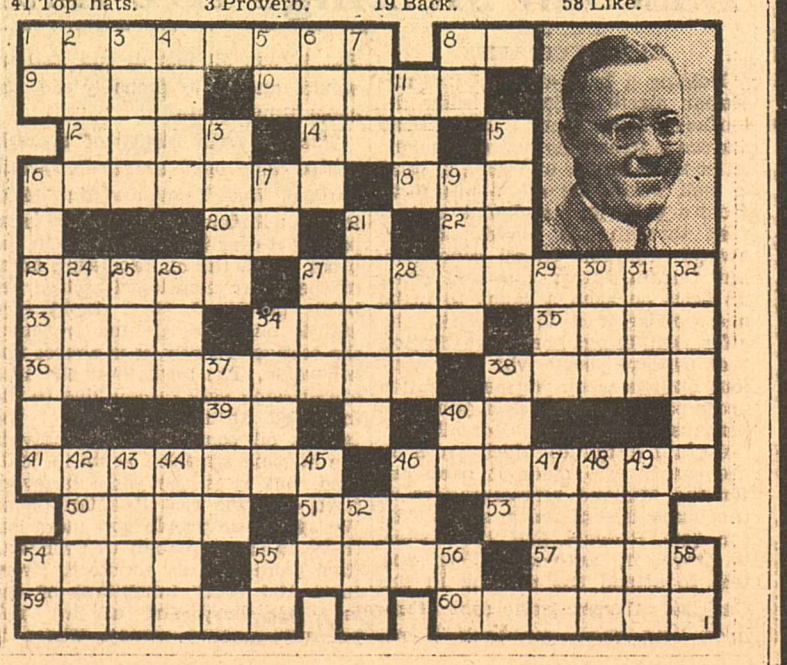

In Texas the situation is equally serious. The Federal Land Bank at Houston has been forced to foreclose on 3,286 farms in Texas alone since 1930. The high point was reached, not during the years when the depression was generally considered most severe, but after recovery had started, in 1935. Farms foreclosed in Texas by the Federal Land Bank in 1935 totaled 1,009, practically ten times as many as in 1930. Even last year, the number of foreclosures was 665.

Farmers in this county threatened with foreclosure are invited to call upon the county supervisor of the Resettlement Administration. He will put them in touch with the county Debt Adjustment committee, which is composed of volunteer, non-paid workers. This committee has no funds, but acts as mediator between the debtor and creditor, and frequently brings about a settlement that is to the benefit of the creditor, as well as the debtor.

Wheeler Serious About Marriage

Contradicting himself with the warning that marriage, a "serious business," can not be mixed with his stage roles, Comedian Bert Wheeler climaxed his long courtship of Sally Haines by filing intention to wed the actress. Wheeler has been divorced twice. Miss Haines, shown with him at the Santa Anita, Calif., race track recently, was once viewed, once divorced.

Ice Memorial to Will Rogers

Dedicated to the memory of the late Will Rogers, this gigantic bust of solid ice was unveiled at the Hibbing, Minn., annual winter carnival. Twenty-two feet high and sculptured out of 100 tons of ivory ice, the statue at night, under floodlights, appears as if made of marble. Its size forms a contrast for the two figures at the left. Built to scale with an ordinary ice pick, trowel and hatchet for tools, the statue was completed in two weeks.

More Than 1,000 View Auction Lots

More than 1,000 persons Sunday visited the area in which building sites will be sold at auction Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, according to a check of cars made by an attendant at the grounds. An actual count showed 932 cars, with over 100 at a given time.

The lots, located in West End, College Heights and Garrett Place additions, will be sold to the highest bidders by C. H. McCall of the Imperial Auction Co. A tent, located on the property, will be the scene of the sale, with two conducted each of the three days, at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Regardless of price, each lot must and will be sold, McCall said, the buyers having the full say as to price.

Movies Win Support Of Lord Chief Justice

LONDON. (U.P.) — "Criminals are not, and never will be, made by the cinema," the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Hewart, declared in an address at the annual dinner of the British Kinematograph Society.

He criticized the suggestion that the portrayal of crime on the screen leads young people astray. It was ridiculous, he said, to think that stories which were harmless in books were harmful on the screen.

"Generations of men in their youth have read stories of adventure without becoming murderers and blackmailers," he declared.

"The bedroom demonstration will be conducted as a demonstration and not on the contest basis in which only a few women can participate, but all the club members will be allowed to take part by making a candlewick bedspread. The county entering the greatest number of bedspreads at this show will receive distinction," concluded Mrs. Hollingsworth.

Those present were Mmes. Henry Locklar, B. L. Mason, S. L. Alexander, C. C. Carden, S. D. Wimberly, J. D. Bartlett, W. A. Aycock, Lura Hollingsworth, and Miss Clara Campbell. Visitors were Mmes. S.

Streamline Beauties Lose Out In Artist's "Texanita" Choice Group

DALLAS, Texas, Mar. 1.—The five Texas beauties who will set the national standard in feminine figures for this year at least, are not "streamlined" but are robust and rounded, if the selection the winners in the "Texanita" contest sponsored by the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition opening in Dallas June 12th, has anything to do with it.

Out of a total of fifty girls entering the contest, McClelland Barclay, famed New York artist, selected five to head the corps of hostesses for the 1937 World's Fair. Surprised to choose only three, Barclay fell victim to what he termed "the charms of Texas at its best" and sent down five winners out of a total of five hundred girls.

The artist's decision shot Hollywood requirements full of holes. Average measurements of the girls indicated that Texas beauties are five feet two and half inches tall, weigh 112 pounds, with waists measuring 24 inches and hips 36 inches. Legs are definitely substantial with 13-inch calves and 8-inch ankle. Bust is 34 inches. The average dress size is a generous 14 and shoes average 5-B. All the girls are brunettes.

Many towns in Texas are represented among the winners. Dary-eyed Delma Stephenson, winner of top honors, was born in Clinton, Texas. Eleanor Akers, second, comes from El Paso. Monetta Darnell, 14-year old singer and dancer of Dallas was tied for third place with Helen Sexton of Lott, Texas, and fourth place went to Janet Adams, born in the state of Vermont but now a full-fledged Texan. In the picture, reading down from the top, are Janet Adams, Eleanor Akers, Helen Sexton, Delma Stephenson and Monetta Darnell.

Texas Beauties

In the "Texanita" contest to select Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition official hostesses, McClelland Barclay judged these five girls most beautiful among 500 entrants.

When King George V Threatened To "Pack" the House of Lords

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Mar. 1.—In England, there is no court which can hold an act of Parliament illegal or in violation of the constitution. There is, therefore, no exact parallel, in English history, to President Roosevelt's plan to add justices to the U. S. supreme court.

But England has had its tense moments over a "packing" incident involving its highest legislative system.

It was the celebrated fight in which the house of lords had its wings clipped, the late King George V met a serious crisis in the early days of his reign, and English history was provided with one of its most interesting chapters of the twentieth century.

The House of Lords is composed of over 600 dukes, marquesses, earls, viscounts and barons who inherit their titles and their privileges as lawmakers. It includes also the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York and 24 bishops of the Church of England.

The overwhelming majority of the members are Tories. It had for long been complained that the House of Lords was a Tory club, which regularly killed or emasculated any progressive measures adopted by the House of Commons when it had a Liberal party majority.

Lloyd George Denounced

Things came to a head in 1909 when the Liberals, having a majority in the Commons, formed a government under Premier H. A. Asquith. Later Lord Oxford and Asquith. The famous Lloyd George was then chancellor of the exchequer. He introduced a budget which embodied some new taxes which hit at the rich and the landed proprietors. He was denounced as if he were a Bolshevik, and in his famous Limehouse speech retorted savagely.

In November, 1909, the Lords by 350 to 75 rejected the budget. The government replied by passing through the Commons, a resolution that this action was a breach of the constitution and a usurpation of the rights of the Commons. Parliament was dissolved and an election held in January, 1910, the issue being the House of Lords' rejection of the budget. The government got a very large majority in the new House of Commons.

The Lords now passed the budget, but the blood of the Commons was up and the government passed a resolution foreshadowing the kind of parliament reform it proposed to enact into law. Its aim was to end the House of Lords as a Tory club which could always kill liberal laws.

The resolution adopted provided that a bill could become law without the consent of the House of Lords if passed in three successive sessions of the Commons, spread over a minimum period of two years.

It also provided that the House of Lords should have no power to reject or amend a bill certified by the speaker of the House of Commons as a "money bill." But it was a long distance from passing such a resolution to enacting its objects into law.

The become law it would have to receive assent from the very House of Lords it was designed to tame.

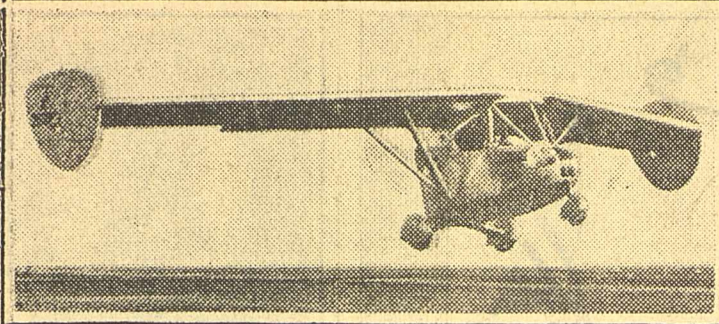

George V Won Over

There now followed a series of conferences between Tories and Liberals, aimed at ascertaining whether some agreed compromise bill for reform of the House of Lords could be reached. It failed. Asquith prepared to dissolve Parliament again and hold a new election, the main platform of his party being reform of the House of Lords.

But he was not willing to do this unless the king would take his advice and promise to do certain things which, at the time, were kept a deep secret. The late King George V had but recently come to the throne and this was a constitutional crisis of the greatest magnitude. He agreed to accept Asquith's advice.

The House of Commons was then dissolved, a new election held in December, 1910. The Liberal government again winning a big majority. The government bill for reform of the House of Lords now passed through it various stages in the House of Commons. Thinking they were secure in a majority against

Growth of Wearing Apparel Industry In Texas Shows Development of The Southwestern Market for Texas Goods

AUSTIN, Texas, Mar. 1.—Growth of the wearing apparel industry in Texas furnishes an interesting illustration of the development of the southwestern market for Texas made goods, it is pointed out by Clara H. Lewis, editorial assistant in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, in a survey of the manufacture of millinery, men's furnishings, and leather goods. "Not only have manufacturers of clothing and millinery products created a demand for articles carrying Texas labels, but they have also won the approval of the trade for distinctive designs which originate in Texas clothing and millinery establishments," Mrs. Lewis said. "In many instances, the designs created are adapted especially to the life and climate of the Southwest. Certain types and brands of garments from Texas factories have a national as well as state and Southwestern distribution which indicates the potentialities for greater development of markets for Texas goods."

"The millinery industry of the United States is centered in New York and Chicago, but during the last ten years, an increasing number of factories have been built in the South and Southwest and their products marketed in local areas. In view of the New York and Chicago tradition of millinery superiority, it is especially interesting and encouraging to note that women's hats displaying Texas labels have attained a distinct prestige and have been able to compete successfully with eastern products. "Millinery may be considered a permanent or basic industry, varying in processes of manufacture, as well as types of materials used. Although it has changed somewhat during the last twenty years from a highly seasonal and specialized industry, depending almost entirely on hand labor, to an industry employing a large variety of machines and processes, it still has two busy and two distinctly dull seasons. This circumstance, however, continues to lessen as the trade in mid-season millinery styles increases.

"While a great many more women than men are employed in the millinery industry, simplicity in modern fashions has contributed to a decrease in the amount of handwork used, including a decrease in the number of trimmers employed. The increase in the manufacture of felt hats for women has been largely responsible for an increase in the number of men workers in the industry, as men are employed to a great extent in blocking and other machine work. "The tailored or factory-made hat is usually distributed through small shops, requiring few employees and displacing a large percentage of millinery establishments formerly producing hand-made hats and a Threat Worked Even then the Diehards refused to believe that extreme measures would be resorted to. Lord Morley, a Liberal peer and member of the cabinet, had to put it into plain words for them: "If the bill should be defeated tonight, His Majesty will assent to the creation of peers sufficient in number to guard against any possible combination of the different parties in opposition by which the Parliament Bill might be exposed a second time to defeat. Every vote given against my motion tonight will be a vote for a large and prompt creation of peers." The Diehard peers still remained unconvinced. The next day the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is a member of the House of Lords, said he was going to vote for the government's bill, having been moved "by the callousness—I had almost said levity—with which some noble lords seem to contemplate the creation of some 500 new peers—a course of action which would make this House and, indeed our country, the laughing stock of the British Dominions and of those foreign countries whose constitutional life and progress have been largely modeled by our own." The threat to pack the House of Lords with a vast list of new peers had its effect. The government's bill to limit the powers of the House of Lords was passed by the Lords by a vote of 131 to 114. Hundreds of angry peers remained away. They would not vote for the bill, but they feared to vote against it.

Storm Lashed Freighter Meets Davy Jones Halfway

Her decks awash, the Italian motor ship Feltré lay on the bottom of the Columbia river, helplessly awaiting aid after a collision with the S. S. Edward Luckenbach during a gale near Rainier, Ore. Partly loaded with lumber and general cargo, the Feltré was en route from Seattle to Trieste, Italy. Her crew was rescued.

corresponding number of workers employed in altering and trimming hats in retail shops. Factory-made hats usually are produced at less cost than those made entirely by hand, and the fact that, generally speaking, women now buy more hats and pay less apiece for them than formerly has made it necessary to increase production and lower costs.

"The Biennial Census of Manufacturers of 1933 lists only 468 wage earners employed in the thirteen millinery establishments in Texas with products valued at $1,146,000. Because of numerous industrial changes in progress, the Bureau of the Census states that the 1933 coverage on millinery establishments is incomplete. Nine millinery plants operating in Texas in December, 1936, reported a total of 939 employees. The total number employed in the industry in Texas is approximately twice this figure. It is significant to note that all of the millinery factories which have reported to the Bureau of Business Research show that their home offices are located in Texas.

"For the country as a whole, the downward trend of the millinery industry in value of products, wages, and number employed continued until about two years ago. Since 1935, however, the number of millinery establishments has increased. We do not have complete data pertaining to the value of products manufactured in Texas, or the number of wage earners employed. There were thirteen millinery establishments in the state in 1933, and according to reports recently received by the bureau, there are now 21 plants.

A decrease of more than 68 per cent has occurred in the number of millinery establishments from 1927 to 1933 for the United States and a 32 per cent decrease in number of wage earners. Preliminary reports, however, show a steady upward trend for the period of 1935-36. "The average pay for a milliner in 1927 in New York was $10.77 per week, but since that date milliners' unions and trade organizations have accomplished a number of changes in the regulation of hours and wages, and the same type of worker now averages an income of from $22 to $25 weekly. According to a report compiled by the United States Department of Labor during 1936, the median earnings of factory workers in Texas millinery establishments are approximately $13 per week.

"In 1930 there were 421,708 women gainfully employed in Texas, of which 29,189 were employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries. Data regarding the number of women employed in the state during 1936 are not available, but because of the increase in number of canning plants, clothing and millinery factories, and similar industries, indications are that the number of women employed in Texas greatly exceeds the number reported for 1930. The increased manufacture of women's wearing apparel in Texas, including millinery and hosiery, is an important factor in the solution of the problem of unemployment of women in the state. The manufacture of such products requires large numbers of skilled workers, and the further development of these factories promises to utilize a large part of the supply of women wage-earners in Texas.

"The present prospects for increase in demand for Texas-made goods offer encouragement for the further development of industries manufacturing various types of men's and women's furnishings. Price resistance on the part of the public is less evident than in several years, as is shown, for example, by a greater sales volume of the more expensive types of both hosiery and other clothing. It is predicted that millinery production for the first three months of 1937 will show more than the usual seasonal increase, and indications are that the southwestern market will be supplied with a greater percentage of Texas-made goods than ever before. The continued upward trend in retail sales of both men's and women's clothing during the last two years is reflected in the larger stock assortments being carried by the retail merchants and the relatively larger orders for manufactured goods.

"Since 1930 Census figures do not include reports from firms having an annual production of less than $5,000 in value. This accounts partly for the drop in number of establishments listed. For this reason, about 1,500 more plants are listed in the Directory of Texas Manufacturers than are shown in the Federal Census. "Partly because many of the factories manufacturing fur-felt hats are not of sufficient size to be included in the Census reports, the number of plants has decreased from 176 in 1919 to 117 in 1933. The same is true of factories manufacturing men's straw hats, which reported only fifty plants in 1929 with an annual output of $5,000 or more, and 46 plants in 1933. Only three plants were listed as operating in Texas during 1929, and one in 1933.

"Since the beginning of the manufacture of women's silk hosiery in the United States, the industry has been centered in and around Philadelphia and Reading, Penn. The latter place, long important in the production of machinery used in the manufacture of hosiery, claims also the world's largest full-fashioned hosiery mill. Although the industry was greatly overbuilt prior to the 1929 market crash, the first complete full-fashioned hosiery factory built in Texas began operation during that year, and has steadily increased its production and expanded its trade territory.

"The warm, dry climate of the Southwest once believed unfavorable to the manufacture of silk hosiery is now considered an asset to the industry. The supply of labor found within the state has proved adequate for all manufacturing purposes, including processes requiring highly skilled labor. So far, Texas has but one complete hosiery factory, although three other plants report dyeing and finishing of men's and women's hose. It is reported that at least one of the plants which finish 'grey goods' is installing machinery and training employees for the manufacture of full-fashioned hosiery, and expects to begin production in the near future. At present about 450 employees are used in Texas hosiery factories and produce approximately 2,250,000 pairs of full-fashioned hosiery annually. "The manufacture of hand-made handkerchiefs furnishes employment for many of the expert needlecraft workers in the southwestern section of the state. From 150 to 200 workers find steady employment in four handkerchief plants, and their products are distributed nationally, as well as through the Southwest.

"A total of 24 producers of leather goods of various types were listed in the Directory of Texas Manufacturers for 1936. Of this number ten plants reported tanning of leather. The Census of Manufacturers of 1929 included nine plants in Texas manufacturing boots and shoe. A total of 151 wage earners were employed, and the value of products amounted to $667,000. At present the fourteen firms which have reported as manufacturers of boots and shoes are engaged in the production of custom-made articles, which, in most instances, are distributed locally. Our information pertaining to the number employed in the industry and value of products manufactured is incomplete; but reports already received indicate that the number employed is approximately 250.

"As a factor in solving the problems of distribution, as well as production, for many industries located in the North and East, branch plants of many large industries are being established in the Southwest. These branch factories are located at points where transportation facilities make them convenient to their marketing territories, where proximity to sources of the raw materials lowers production costs, or where other favorable conditions exist. Abundant water supply, economical power rates, suitable climatic conditions, and the availability of labor supply are all determining factors in choosing factory sites. The establishment of branch plants in the state not only lowers the cost of the products manufactured and distributed, but also increases employment and adds to the income of the state. The increase in the number of manufacturing plants of a like type has resulted in a greater abundance of skilled labor, and conse-

Five-Year Study Urged For Students Who Work
FARGO, N. D. (U.P.)—Students planning to work their way through college should arrange to attend school five years instead of four, according to Peal Dinan, dean of women at the North Dakota agricultural college. "It often happens that students who work stay in school for more than four years, anyway," she said. "If these students would plan their courses at the beginning of their freshman year with a five-year course in mind, the could balance the entire five-year period more successfully." Even when planning to work, Miss Dinan said, a student should have at least $150 saved to meet the expenses of enrolling and of board and room until established.

Harlow at Her Best In 'Suzy' at Ritz

War time, intrigue is the background, but the sacrificing love and courage of "Suzy" with Jean Harlow in the title role, which is showing today at the Ritz Theatre.

The picture was directed by George Fitzmaurice from the novel by Herbert Gorman. Franchot Tone and Cary Grant appear in support of Miss Harlow, who scores the triumph of her glamorous career as an American chorus girl who is stranded in London just as the war begins.

The story reveals the European war-time spy system. The girl marries a young inventor who is shot under circumstances that point to her guilt. Believing him dead, she runs away to Paris, heart broken and alone. There, as time passes, she meets an aviator and they are married.

The bridegroom becomes involved with spies and the first husband appears on the scene. He and the American girl realize the depth of their love and at the same time their helplessness, but destiny takes a hand to help them. There is stark drama in the climax, which restores these married lovers to one another in a scene of spectacular heroism. The audience last night was enthusiastic in its praise of the picture and Miss Harlow undeniably scored a personal triumph.

'The Plainsman' Is Showing at Yucca

The genius of Cecil B. DeMille is turned to his native America in "The Plainsman," a tensely dramatic and inspiring epic of America in the making, which arrived at the Yucca Sunday and showing today and through Tuesday.

Heretofore concerned mainly with periods in world history which marked the beginnings of tremendous changes through the rise of Christianity, the influences of ancient Rome, the pivotal meetings of the East and Western Europe engendered by the Crusades, and other forces of equal import in world history, DeMille now turns his unique talents to the ten important years between the end of the Civil War and Custer's dramatic stand at Little Big Horn, the decade that marked the beginning of Western expansion. "The Plainsman" is a masterful tribute to the men who made this possible.

Famed Characters Recreated. All the colorful characters known and loved by America for the past two generations come to life again in this pageant of empire-building. "Wild Bill" Hickok, masterfully portrayed by Gary Cooper; "Calamity Jane," played by lovely Jean Arthur; "Buffalo Bill," enacted by James Ellison; General George A. Custer, played by John Miljan, the famous Indian Chiefs, "Sitting Bull," "Yellow Hand" and "Painted Horse," President Lincoln and his wartime cabinet, are all included in the film.

There are also hundreds of Cheyenne Indians, borrowed from the Tongue River Reservation, several troops of cavalry, provided by the U. S. Government and the State of Wyoming; gamblers, frontier characters and settlers, all assembled and masterfully merged into a film which is as big as the mighty background it portrays.

Others in the elaborate cast are Helen Burgess, a newcomer to film, who plays the role of Mrs. William A. Cody, Paul Harvey, Victor Varconi, Fuzzy Knight, George Hays and a score of other well-known performers.

ous paved streets and beautiful trees and lawns all go to make up one of the most beautiful towns in New Mexico, we were informed.

And then we streaked back south toward Carlsbad through a very fertile irrigated section which produces an abundance of cotton and other farm products. Through the health resort cities of Dexter and Hagerman we continued, reaching Artesia which has grown by leaps and bounds during the past few years. Artesia is also close to an oil field and a large oil refinery with a huge payroll is located in the city. Several other small towns in which the inhabitants had already retired, were passed through before we reached Carlsbad which was still very busy despite the late hour. The sports editor of the Carlsbad Current-Argus informed us that the population of Carlsbad is 9,000 and that the town is still growing, due largely to the large amount of tourist traffic. Carlsbad is a beautiful little city which is also modern in every respect. Two beautiful and well equipped hotels are situated there and to one of these we made our

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

GIANT PANDA CUB, RECENTLY CAPTURED IN CHINA, AND BROUGHT TO THE UNITED STATES, IS THE ONLY MEMBER OF ITS RACE EVER TAKEN ALIVE.

FOR many years it was impossible to detect the moon's heat, even when measured by delicate instruments. Today, however, with modern apparatus, it is easy to perceive the heat of lunar radiation, although measuring it is difficult. It appears to be about one one-hundred and seventy thousandths of that sent by the sun.

Col. Boles, superintendent of the Cavern is also vice-president of the Carlsbad chamber of commerce, we were told. The Carlsbad chamber is a very active organization and Saturday received an order from Canada for 5,000 cavern folders. Carlsbad is a busy place and we were fortunate to get a room in one of the two large hotels.

We were out at the cavern by 10 o'clock the next morning. Rodgers making us very nervous by taking the hairpin curves at a fairly fast clip. After pictures of the baseball group had been taken, down we went into the bowels of the earth, and it is impossible to describe all that we saw. You must see it yourself, if you haven't already done so. After seeing the cavern, the baseball meeting was held in the large dining room, and as I sat there I was very glad that I had my overcoat along. Col. Boles cooperated in every way possible in taking care of the baseball gathering, kind hospitality being shown us in various ways. 400 people went through the cavern yesterday, approximately 25 baseball men being in our group. Following the meeting we were brought to the surface in 65 seconds in the elevator, every member of the party being very thankful that an elevator was at hand.

Then we started homeward, accompanied by J. Walter Morris, president of three baseball leagues, and our trouble began. First we ran out of water in an area where water is more precious than oil. Finally, after driving along very slowly for several miles, we encountered a filling station, and our troubles were temporarily over. Through Loving, N. M., which has a large cotton oil mill, and on through the cattle producing section toward Pecos we went, the cattle along the way appearing to be in fine shape. The road from Carlsbad to Pecos is paved all the way and we finally reached Pecos after sighting the town for us at our respective residences.

A bit of trouble and lots of expense, but we will be ready to attend the reorganization meeting of the Permian Basin League in Crane this week end. One never learns, does one?

By JESS RODGERS
They told us that the West Texas-New Mexico League (game may be changed later) was organized Sunday afternoon while baseball delegates from several towns of this area were assembled in Carlsbad Caverns, but we won't insist that it has been.

In the first place, Odessa, one of the towns included in the league, did not have representation and last reports from that town were decidedly pessimistic over entering a team from there.

The meeting was a rather haphazard affair with most of the delegates sitting around shaking like a bucket full of dice. What most of them wanted was OUT. Take our advice and keep moving when you are in the cavern or you may not be able to when you get ready.

With J. Walter Morris and Judge Bramham, supreme judge of all minor leagues, directing the meeting, the organization process went something like this:
Walter Morris introduced the judge and then reported four towns as ready to go. The four so design-nated were Monahans, Wink, Hobbs, and Odessa. Judge Bramham then suggested they declare a 4-club league organized and attempt to get other members into the league at a meeting scheduled to be held in Midland next Sunday afternoon. This was agreeable to those poor devils that were sitting around with coat collars turned up in futile efforts to keep from becoming talking icebergs. When this department suggested it might be slightly out of line to include Odessa as they were not represented he was assured by Morris that the Ector group would be ready when the "go" signal was flashed.

Blackburn, Carlsbad sports editor, caused a short flurry of excitement when he asked that Carlsbad be considered as a possible member of the league. Plans were completed then for Joe Pate and Judge Bramham to talk to Carlsbad sports men this morning.

As noses were counted it was discovered that Hobbs was not represented at the meeting but they were voted into the league regardless. (Johnny Neal—Hobbs delegate—was late in arriving and met the group as they emerged from the cave.) He agreed that Hobbs was ready to go.

Morris stressed the importance of having Midland in the league and declared $2500 was awaiting anybody who would take charge of a club here. Far be it from us to dispute his word but if he thinks anyone can come in here and stick out his hand, later to pull it back with that amount of money in it he has another thought coming. The money might be raised here but it would take some fast talking and faster grabbing to get it.

Lubbock, originally considered as a member of the league, was summarily dropped when Collier Parris informed Morris that being as how he had promoted a ball park at Lubbock he loved as how he would expect a little rent out of the club using it all the time. That made "Collier" spell "leprosy" as far as the league was concerned.

Big Spring, another prospective league member, failed to have anyone there to represent their city but sent a wire inferring they would probably get in the league unless something turns up.

There was a right fair sized crowd at the meeting and never a crowd any happier to see sunlight again. Particularly ready to see old sol was this department and the Lubbock scribe. We ducked the last half of the trip and had about two hours more of immobile freezing than did the others.

Among those at the meeting was Judge Bramham, Walter Morris, Joe Pate, Blackburn of Carlsbad, Messrs. Urso and Trammell of Monahans, Collier Parris, Sled and young Sled Allen of Lubbock, Messrs. Perry and Summers of Wink, Bill Collyns and este hombre of Midland, Cecil Coombs, business manager of the Fort Worth Cats, Joe Bratcher, Lake Charles, La., club owner of few others. One of them was "Bear Tracks" Green, Fort Worth pitcher.

After the meeting Col. Boles, Cavern superintendent, had us all to line up and "mugged" us. And what a swell photo that would make in any rogues gallery.

is cleaning out at 4,702, 100 feet off bottom. Fluid was swabbed down to 4,650, and the well allowed to stand an hour, with a fluid rise of 100 feet recorded during that time. Fluid is 40 percent oil and the rest water. The No. 1 Moxley, located in section 15, block A-45, public school land, has been both acidized and shot.

Getty No. 1 Lindley is testing for water, bottomed at 4,642 feet in lime. A five hour bailing test lowered fluid from 350 to 250 feet. The first seven runs, bailed off bottom, yielded sulphur water, but the rest of the test showed all oil with only a trace of water. The No. 1 Lindley is a mile and a half northwest of production in the Deeprock pool. It pumped 157 barrels a day early last week, but production later slumped to a fraction of that figure.

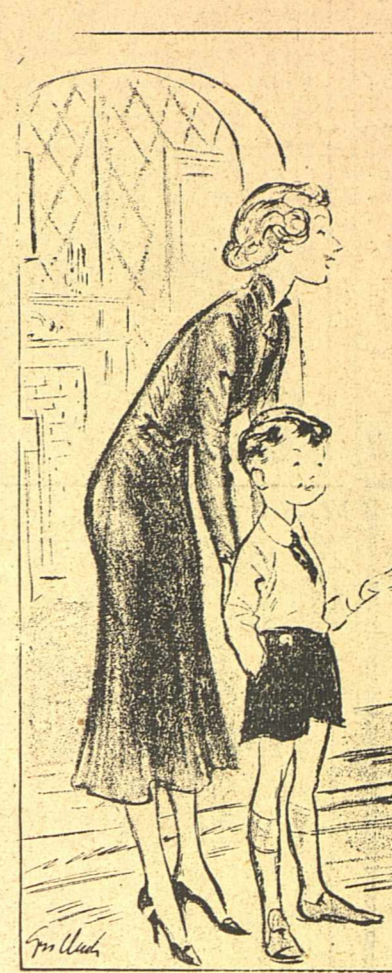

Humble No. 16 J. S. Means, newest Means pool completion, was treated with 1,500 gallons of acid, bottomed at 4,530, and, on a 30-minute test, flowed at the rate of 40 barrels an hour on gas lift. It was treated with 3,500 gallons and was tested at the rate of 60 barrels an hour for 45 minutes on gas lift. Humble No. 15 J. S. Means flowed 522 barrels on the 24-hour gauge, completed yesterday.

Terry Wildcat
A green shale break was logged from 4,708-14 by W. L. Pickens et al No. 1 Lewright, southeast Terry county wildcat. At last reports, the test had reached 4,721 feet in lime. In Yoakum county, T. P. No. 1 Bennett is testing, bottomed at 5,305. Production has averaged about 30 barrels an hour, little, if any, increase over that before deepening from 5,238.

West Texas, deepest active wildcat, Ohio No. 1 Goode in Terrell county, is drilling below 8,960 feet in black sandy shale.

Humble No. 1 Gray, Delaware test in western Pecos county, plugged back with rock from 1,226 to 1,218 to straighten crooked hole and is now drilling out rock. In the Toborg pool of Pecos, Childress No. 15 Smith pumped 54 barrels a day, natural, from pay between 342 and 370, the bottom.
