

13 LOSE LIVES AS GIANT AIRLINER PLUNGES TO EARTH

10 Passengers, Three Crew Members Killed

CAUSE UNKNOWN Ice Reported to Have Been Discovered On Wings

PITTSBURGH, March 26. (P)—An investigation was underway today as to the cause of the crash of the palatial TWA airliner last night in which 13 passenger and crew members were killed.

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 26 (P)—A giant white Transcontinental Airways skyliner crashed nose first last night about 10 miles south of Pittsburgh, killing its crew of three and ten passengers.

Robert McWilliams, a Washington, Pa., taxicab operator said he saw the liner about 6:45 p. m., cruising slowly, headed toward the Pittsburgh airport, its engines laboring.

"The pilot kept dropping gradually toward the end of a narrow valley. He seemed to try to make a turn."

"Suddenly the front of the ship just dropped straight down 100 yards from me. There was a loud noise, then silence."

"There was no fire. When I got there all the passengers seemed jammed into the front of the ship."

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 26 (P)—Ice formation on the wings caused the crash of the TWA skyliner here last night, company officials announced today.

The back part wasn't damaged. "We began pulling out the bodies. We listened to the hearts but none was beating."

The tragedy occurred in a small valley in upper St. Clair township, on the fringe of Mt. Lebanon and eight miles from downtown Pittsburgh.

Dr. J. J. McLean, manager of the Allegheny county airport said some of the inspectors who viewed the ship advanced a theory that ice forming on the wings had caused the crash.

"They told me they saw ice on parts of the ship and expressed the opinion this had formed on the wings while it was descending from a height of 10,000 feet or more, to within the visibility range of 2,400 feet," said McLean.

Others who viewed the plane said they saw no ice or moisture on the wings.

Less than a year ago eleven persons died in a mountain top crash 40 miles to the southeast and last September 5 ten were killed in a sightseeing plane about ten miles away.

Visibility was good, although a few hours earlier a heavy smog (smoke and fog) had enveloped most of the Pittsburgh area.

URGE CAR OWNERS FILL OUT CARDS

Highway Plans Depend Upon Cooperation Of Motorists

"Car owners who pay their 1937 license fees late in March should take part in the highway planning work now being conducted by filling in an mailing the postage free, self-addressed post cards handed to them at the Tax Collector's Office," according to G. G. Edwards, State Manager of the Highway Planning Survey. "Motorists should guard against any tendency to neglect this valuable work during the rush and confusion of late registration, since the success of this effort to give car owners a direct chance to help plan their own highways depends on their cooperation during the days when the greatest number of cars are registered. Finally, this survey work is of major importance to most counties because of the facts compiled by the several branches of the Highway Planning Survey will be used not only in forming the policies which govern the construction and maintenance of highways but also will be used in allocating future Federal and State funds that will soon be spent in improving secondary roads in many Texas counties," concluded Mr. Edwards.

The Texas Highway Department and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads are jointly sponsoring this work to obtain reliable information for each county. Midland county stands to gain materially by furnishing information to reliably portray local needs. According to a recent report only 143 of the car and truck owners in this county have returned the post cards handed to them at the time of registration in the office of A. C. Francis, Tax Collector. Time yet remains for the county to make a good record of returns for itself, and its citizens should cooperate in the Highway Planning work.

War Rehearsal on English Stage

Not one of England's quaint customs is this scene. Rather, it is a rehearsal for a rendezvous with death, as villagers, young and old, watch a demonstration against a poison gas attack. The trained squad, made up of ambulance and Red Cross workers and firemen of Walton-on-Thames, literally sweep the fumes from the streets with a liquid "antidote."

BRITISH BELIEVE TENSION TO EASE OVER HOLIDAYS

Determine to Avoid Hasty Action On Quarrel

LONDON, March 26. (P)—The British today hoped the Easter holidays would ease the tension with Italy over the Spanish civil war as the government determined to avoid hasty action and prevent heated attacks in parliament against Mussolini from forcing the issue into an official incident.

The tension between the two countries was increased yesterday when David Lloyd George, leading a heated attack in the House of Commons against Mussolini, charged Britain with endangering world peace by failing to resist Italian imperialism in Spain and Ethiopia.

BIG SPRING PO TO BE DEDICATED

Extensive Program Will Be Presented There Tomorrow

Formal dedication of the new Federal postoffice building at Big Spring will be held tomorrow, the official program for the dedicatory functions having been announced Thursday by Nat Shick, Big Spring postmaster, who will be in charge of the festivities. A gala event is being planned by Big Spring citizens, a high banquet at noon and a dedicatory service in the afternoon featuring the ceremony to which all citizens of Midland have been cordially invited.

The principal figure in the dedication ceremony will be Karl Crowley, solicitor general of the post office department, who will be honored at a luncheon Saturday noon at the Seftles Hotel when four Big Spring service clubs and citizens join with visiting postal employees and officials in a brief program. W. T. "Tanla" Strange will preside over the luncheon as toastmaster. Following the singing of "America" Rev. D. F. McConnell will pronounce the invocation. Music by the Jimmy Ross orchestra, a number by the pep squad trio and a vocal selection by Ira Chesley Powell will be heard during the meal. Postmaster Shick will introduce Crowley, and at the conclusion of the address there will be a short period of visiting.

The dedicatory exercises will be held on the rear platform of the new building at 4:30 p. m., with Mayor C. E. Talbot delivering the address of welcome. Crowley will then make his second address of the day, officially dedicating the new postoffice. A final vocal selection, "Till We Meet Again," led by Ira Powell, will bring the service to a close.

Allen Tolbert, Midland postmaster, John Howe, former postmaster, Bill Collins, chamber of commerce manager, and possibly several others from here will attend the luncheon. A fairly large delegation of Midlandites is expected to attend the afternoon program.

RABBITS WIN IN "SIT-DOWN"

FRESNO, Cal Mar. 26. (U.P)—Hundreds of jackrabbits in Fresno and Kings county carried out a successful sit down strike. Kings river having overflowed, it left only a few islands on which the jackrabbits could find refuge. They sat down on them until the river flood subsided.

RAIN, SLEET, HAIL DISPERSE CLOUDS OF DUST IN STATE

Fort Worth Is Hit By Sleet, Drizzle Today

VISIBILITY LOW

Dust Clouds Remain Hanging Over West Texas

By Associated Press

Rain, sleet and hail dispersed remnants of a dust storm over Texas today; in Dallas a light hail followed thunder showers and a drop by the mercury to 34 degrees.

Fort Worth reported sleet, a drizzle and a minimum temperature of 35. San Antonio rain and a minimum of 46, Austin a minimum of 37.

Scattered showers were reported for the East Texas area that had been blanketed by dust clouds.

Freezing showers hit Midland again last night when the mercury tumbled to a low of 28 degrees, the lowest recording taken here this week.

The mercury started an upward climb again early this morning and had reached a maximum of 49 degrees in the city at noon. However, colder weather is promised tonight.

At the airport the minimum recording was 28 degrees, the maximum today was 50.

Dust clouds continued to hover over the city today, visibility being only about five miles. Despite moisture having fallen over most of the state this area remained dry. A strong northeast wind had removed most of the dust storm but had not completely blown it all away.

Graphic Tale of Horrors Surrounding New London Blast Told of By Andrews Man Who Aided in Removing Debris

A graphic tale of the horrors surrounding the recent New London school tragedy was told today by J. H. Phillips, Andrews, who is visiting his brother-in-law, Bill Collins, here.

Phillips reached the scene about one hour after it happened and spent most of the first night after the explosion at the scene. He had three nieces in the school at the time of the accident, one of them being killed and the other two escaping unscathed. Another niece did not attend school that day, having taken the day off to choose with her future husband the furniture for the house. They are to build soon. Every student in the classroom that she occupied at the time of the explosion occurred was killed instantly.

Phillips said it was an experience he hoped never to live through again. To see the broken and mangled bodies of the children as they were removed from the wreckage of the building was more than lots of grown men could stand, he said. Many of the children were brought out in as many as dozen pieces. Heads were found separated entirely from bodies, arms, legs and other parts of the bodies being gathered up by the workers as they came to them.

He told of many children, one of them being his niece that met death,

TWO MEN AND GIRL SHOT BY OFFICER; THEN KILLS SELF

Boston Politician Among Trio Of Victims

BOSTON, Mass. March 26. (P)—Four persons, including Dr. Charles E. Mackey, Boston politician and school committee member, were shot to death Thursday in what police described as a triple slaying and suicide.

Police said Jeremiah Mackey, 43, special policeman for the Metropolitan District Commission and brother of the physician, shot the doctor, his chauffeur, Paul Costa, 21; Alice Costa, 19, of Lexington, maid for Dr. Mackey, and then turned the pistol on himself. Neighbors said the brother, who made his home with Dr. Mackey, had been in ill health for several years.

Investigation showed Jeremiah Mackey entered the cellar of the doctor's home where, apparently without warning, he shot down his brother and the chauffeur.

At the sound of the shots Miss Costa, who was upstairs, fled from the house to a drug store near by. As she told the druggist of hearing shots in the Mackey cellar, a customer entered, closely followed by Jeremiah Mackey.

On seeing Jeremiah Miss Costa ran into a rear room of the store where he followed her, the druggist John S. Austin said. There Jeremiah seized Miss Costa by the hair, firing his pistol point-blank into her chest.

John Hughes, the customer, said he ordered Jeremiah to turn over the weapon, whereupon the assailant turned on Hughes who fled into a fire station.

After following Hughes a short distance, police said Jeremiah turned into an alley, pressed the muzzle of the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Inspections In All Periodically Are Recommended

BLAME PLACED

Say Accumulation Of Gas In Basement Is Cause

AUSTIN, March 26. (P)—The military court which investigated the New London school tragedy today recommended creation of a state agency to supervise the erection of public buildings, installation of heating and lighting in a preliminary report to the governor today. The members recommended the agency make periodic inspections and have power to enforce legislation to be passed requiring malorants.

A detailed court report will be made within two weeks.

Attributing the explosion to an accumulation of gas in the basement, the report said that it was probably fired by knife switch in the manual training room; also, when the school changed to gas from the utility to the residue line the fuel was more dangerous because of its content and higher pressure.

NEW SAND POOL LOOMS FOR LEA COUNTY, N. MEX.

Texas and Ajax Well Preparing To Deepen

By FRANK GARDNER

Lea county, New Mexico, continued to dominate the oil picture today as the Texas Company and Ajax Drilling Company No. 1 J. P. Alexander indicating opening of a new sand pool two miles and a half northeast of the Eunice field and two miles north of the Hardy pool. Earlier in the week, it encountered pay at 3,705, the present total depth, and tools were blown up the hole 40 feet and stuck by strong gas flow. Oil filled up past the tools 1,500 feet in six hours. Tools were fished out, and a production test started yesterday morning. The well flowed 6 1/2 barrels of oil and died, so operators began swabbing through casing. It swabbed 25 barrels the first hour and 23 barrels the next half hour, then shut down pending decision to run tubing.

Later, swabbing was resumed and the well flowed 6 3/4 barrels the first hour when agitated. It was swabbed down to bottom of casing, and oil rose back up at the rate of 6 barrels an hour. At last reports, there was 1,000 feet of oil in the hole, and operators are now preparing to deepen.

Samples from the last 10 feet down to 3,705 had not been recovered, but most observers believed the well to be producing from sand. The fact that it encountered pay at that particular point in the section would seem to substantiate the theory. Only gas is found in a sand at a comparable point by wells in the Hardy pool. Location of the No. 1 J. P. Alexander is in the center of lot 14, section 5-21s-37e.

U. S. WEALTH CONSISTS OF GOODS, NOT FIGURES

After spending six years in a frantic effort to attain recovery this nation now seems to be worrying for fear that it may be recovering too fast.

Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve warns that we shall have trouble if prices and wages go on increasing too fast and too far. Secretary Wallace follows suit with a similar warning, and is followed by Secretary Roper.

Secretary Wallace summarizes the danger very neatly:

"There is danger from business men, in search of profits, cutting down production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"There is danger that labor, in search of higher wages and shorter hours, will restrict production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"There is danger of agriculture, in search of higher prices, cutting production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"If all three worked together, they would get more and more for less and less goods."

It would be perilously easy for the nation to step off into this spiral—if, indeed, it has not already done so. And perhaps as good a way as any to fortify ourselves against it would be to remember just what it is that constitutes wealth, from the national standpoint.

The nation can be just as poor in an era of high prices and high wages as in an era of low ones. For it is not the figures on the ledgers that make national prosperity; it is the bulk of the country's production of goods.

It was recognition of this little fact, probably, that explains the early opposition to the NRA and AAA programs.

Everybody realizes that the farmer had to get higher prices. Everybody realized that the business man had to sell his goods at a profit. Everybody realized that if the working man didn't get decent wages, he could not buy the things business man and farmer were producing.

Yet balanced against those facts was the inescapable fact that the nation's wealth consists of the things it produces, and that the way to increase its wealth is to increase its production, not to decrease it. Offhand, one would certainly say that a nation which turns out necessities and luxuries enough to supply 100,000,000 people is considerably wealthier than one which produces enough for only half that number—regardless of price tags.

Just how to regulate those price tags so that the individual producer can prosper and the country as a whole can increase its wealth is a man-sized problem. We have been pecking away at it since 1930, or thereabout, and haven't solved it yet.

But solve it we must, before long, if we are to avoid disaster.

"Single blessedness" seems to be a laugh in Delaware. No sooner is Leap Year over than a bachelor tax bill comes up for discussion.

The Supreme Court Enjoys A Short Recess

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26. — Professor Leon Green, brilliant dean of the Northwestern University law school and visiting law professor at Yale, this year, didn't get out of town a minute too soon.

Green testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee in favor of the President's Supreme Court plan. Opposition senators did their best to pick his testimony to pieces, but Green acquitted himself ably under cross-examination and no senator was able to shout him down.

The best his questioners could do was to show that previously he had expressed dissimilar views in speeches or writings.

But the very next day came a magazine onto the news stands in which Green had an article defending legality of the sitdown strike. This was all the conservative senators would have needed. They would have had a field day with the professor.

King of Utah, Burke of Nebraska, Connally of Texas, Austin of Vermont, and others would have stamped down his throat so fast, howling at his radicalism, that you'd have been lucky to have heard another word from Green amid all the din.

Hasn't Been Held Illegal

The orthodox point of view is that a sitdown strike is a serious violation of law and order, that it constitutes trespass, and that the foundations of our government are ripped asunder a few more yards for every additional day a striker is allowed to remain in factory, hotel, or five-and-ten-cent store.

Yet, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins cautiously remarked some time ago that the legality of the sitdown strike had yet to be determined.

And you can find many a New Deal lawyer who will privately talk your ear off to demonstrate that the sitdown striker and his strike usually have as much standing in the courts as the employer and his property.

One seasoned lawyer, Henry T. Hunt, former mayor of Cincinnati and counsel for the National Resources Committee, points out that neither the Supreme Court of the United States, nor any state Supreme Court has yet held the sitdown strike illegal.

On Four Propositions

Green says, in his magazine article, that the case for the sitdown strike "rests upon four fundamental propositions:

"1. Employees have an interest in the industrial relation distinct from any property interest or interest of personality. Such interest is a valuable one of the same dignity as that of property and is given the recognition and protection of the courts as property.

"2. Disputes between employers and employees, with respect to industrial relations, involve economic and political questions outside the jurisdictions of the courts; the problems involved are of such great difficulty administratively that the courts will not undertake to adjudicate them but will leave them to other agencies of government, and to the parties themselves, in the absence of such agencies.

"3. Courts will not prejudice the issues between industrial employers and employees by assuming jurisdiction of issues incidental to the main dispute in absence of physical violence or fraud directed against the persons or property of the parties.

"4. Occupation in good faith and peacefully of a plant devoted to industry by employees awaiting the adjustment of differences growing out of the industrial relations is but an incident of the industrial relation and in no sense unlawful."

Courts have shown no tendency to follow the legal philosophy of Professor Green. Crises in sitdown strikes come when a judge formally orders strikers out of a plant. It then becomes the legal duty of law officers to evict the strikers. The only reason strikers haven't been evicted in certain conspicuous cases has been the unwillingness of officials to take a course which would lead to bloodshed.

No state has ever had a woman as lieutenant-governor.

Hands Are Too Smooth, Fingerprinting Impossible

SPRINGFIELD, O. (U.P.)—Should Webster R. Lyons, a barber here, ever need his fingerprints for identification purposes he probably would find them of no value.

It is impossible to obtain an impression of Lyons's fingerprints, which the barber said had been worn smooth by massaging thousands of beards.

Lyons discovered his fingers were unprintable when he asked Detective William Ruef, in charge of the police bureau department to take his prints for civil identification in case of accident.

Ruef was astounded when Lyons's fingerprints showed up only as smudges.

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this needed "bulk."

Within the body, this cereal absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently sponges out the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Kirsten Flagstad to Close Regular Opera Season in Wagner's 'Lohengrin'

By KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD

Again we come to the end of a New York opera season. It makes me sad, for I have been very happy in my work this year at the Metropolitan. I know I shall miss its pleasant surroundings and the congenial company of my fellow workers. Still there is a measure of satisfaction in both opening and closing a successful season with a great Wagnerian masterpiece. Curiously enough, I am returning to my first operatic role, Elsa in "Lohengrin."

Born of a family of professional musicians, I naturally started my musical education early, although my parents had no intention of making me follow the musician's life. First I studied piano and I became aware that there was such a thing as opera. Soon I was raising my thin and childish voice in some of the great arias. It must have sounded rather silly, but I suppose it was only the desire of every child to live in an imaginary world. Then, at the very mature age of ten years, I laid hands on the score of "Lohengrin" and learned my first complete role.

"That was long ago, long before I learned the meaning of Elsa. How could I, a child, understand the fear of this warm, dreamy woman that the happiness she had suddenly received might as suddenly be snatched away? Many of you will be listening to this performance of "Lohengrin" when it is broadcast next Saturday by the National Broadcasting Company and the Radio Corporation of America. Perhaps you will understand it better if I tell the story in briefest outline.

Seated under the great Oak of Justice, King Henry summons the warriors of Brabant, but finds the vassal state in disunion. The young Duke Godfrey has disappeared and Elsa, his sister, is accused of his murder, that she might share his estates with a secret lover, Telramund, her accuser, himself claims the right of succession. He has married Ortrud, last of a princely line which has clung to the ancient gods, who possesses some power as a sorceress.

The King summons Elsa and decrees that ordeal by combat shall decide the justice of the charge. But where is Elsa's champion? She replies that heaven shall send her a champion, "a knight of glorious mien" who spoke to her in a vision.

KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD

"If in his heart he'll keep me," she declares, "I shall give him all that I am." Trumpeters, placed at the four points of the compass, blow a summons to the unknown champion. None appears. Once more the call issues. "The heavens are silent," murmur the men of Brabant, "she is doomed!" Then, standing on the prow of a boat drawn by a swan, comes "a warrior full fair."

Lohengrin approaches Elsa, offers himself as her champion but exacts from her the promise that if they wed she will never ask his name, rank or race. In dreamy ecstasy she promises. Lohengrin steps into the circle paced off by six nobles and with a single blow strikes Telramund to earth, but spares his life. Ortrud stands aghast at the failure of the old gods before this new power as Lohengrin and Elsa are borne away on the shields of king and warriors.

At the opening of the second act, Telramund, abject in defeat and disgrace, berates Ortrud for having led him to accuse Elsa. But Ortrud has divined that if anything compels Lohengrin to reveal his identity then his power is lost, his strength dissolved. Only Elsa, however, may put the question, "Then to ask him Elsa must be tempted," he declares, "she alone can break the spell."

Elsa appears on the balcony and Ortrud begs her compassion. Then she begins hinting darkly about the mysterious appearance of her betrothed. Perhaps—who knows?—he may disappear as quickly. Resist though she may, Elsa cannot still the doubts and fears implanted by Ortrud.

The third act opens. To the strains of the immortal Wedding March, Elsa and Lohengrin enter the bridal chamber. Alone with her husband, Elsa can be still no longer; she must know, "Tell me," she begs, "reveal thy name and race—all that befall thee. My power of silence thou shalt prove." He tries to stop her, but Elsa is driven on by a frenzy of fear. Telramund breaks in to kill Lohengrin, but he is struck dead.

Now that he has slain Telramund, Lohengrin must explain himself. Before all he proclaims himself the son of Parsifal, a defender of the Holy Grail come to right the cause of Elsa. Now he must return whence he came. Ortrud gloats over the victory of her magic and tells that it was she who transformed Godfrey into the very swan that has come to carry Lohengrin away. But she speaks too soon. Lohengrin kneels in silent prayer, then rises and looses the golden chain from the swan's neck. The swan sinks into the river and Godfrey steps upon the bank. Lohengrin embarks in his boat and disappears as Elsa sinks lifeless to the ground.

History of Cow's Cud Traced to Dark Ages

DES MOINES, Iowa. (U.P.)—Another explanation why cows chew cud has been advanced by Dr. George Huff, biology professor at Drake University.

"The cows lived on the great plains which afforded no protection from their enemies, and they often were forced to subsist on plants which were difficult to digest," he said. Thus, they developed the eat-and-run habit.

"After years of experience, the cows found they could retire to a safe place and digest their food at their leisure."

Finish Fight Between Ford, Union Labor Expected as Sitdown Sequel

By WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent DETROIT, Mar. 26.—Some time in the late summer or early fall, the "irresistible force" of John Lewis' unionization drive is going to meet the "immovable body" of Henry Ford's rugged individualism.

Before this happens, a big job of "consolidation" and organization must be done. Getting 100,000 men to sign union cards in the wave of sitdown strikes, and converting those men into a dues-paying, disciplined union are two different things. Before the "Ford Next" slogan becomes a reality, much organization work must be done.

John Lewis, perhaps remembering Ford's one-time proposal to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas," has said that Ford will be on the dotted line by Christmas. Local union leaders on the spot say the active drive to get enough members to approach Ford with authority will begin this summer.

John Brophy, Lewis' right-hand man in Detroit, puts it this way: "Organization at Ford's is inevitable. Now that organization is the spirit of the time, the tempo of today's life, it is idle for Ford to think he can build bulkheads around a single motor company that will keep out the tide."

"That tide is rising so fast and so high that it will either break through or overflow any bulkheads he can build."

"If Ford will only employ the

The "hot corner" of the Ford Motor Company's vast plant at River Rouge, Dearborn, Mich. Here the main roads from Detroit approach the plant, and near here there was bad rioting in 1932. All plant windows facing this road have recently been reinforced by heavy wire screening.

same industrial statesmanship or intuition that led him to discard his model T when it was outmoded, then we can hope that an outmoded labor policy can be discarded just as peacefully and easily. But organization is inevitable."

THE OTHER SIDE Against this stands Ford's long record of open-shop operation, Ford's long record of struggles against outside influence of bankers, or even of government through the NRA.

Against it stands Ford's recent public statement that "laborers should never join unions" because they are selfishly run by leaders influenced by international bankers in the interest of monopoly.

Against it is Ford's present weapon—a policy of watching closely every strike settlement in the Detroit area, and seeing to it that the pay at Ford's in any classification is at least as high, and when possible, higher than men have been able to obtain by strikes anywhere else.

Against it, too, stands Harry Bennett, Ford's erstwhile chief of police and present personnel manager, running leaders say, the most ruthless spy and policing system ever seen in industry.

Union organizers like veteran Bill McKie will tell you that Bennett has devised a vigilante system of 7000 men within the Rouge plant, made up of straw bosses and specially favored workers, and trained to spring instantly to the aid of plant guards at the first sign of a sitdown.

to throw out the sitdowners. Bennett simply laughs at the story and denies it completely. He denies just as completely rumors that the Ford "service men" or plant personnel, police, and watchman employes have been augmented from 400 to more than 1000 and denies that there is any patrolling of the plant beyond the absolute minimum of watchmen required in any plant as protection against fire risk.

That a new screen of heavy wire mesh 10 feet tall has been installed some 18 inches inside windows of the plant along Miller avenue is apparent to any passerby. This is the approach to the plant nearest the main Detroit roads, where the riot of 1932 took place.

"DEARBORN LAW ENFORCED" It must be kept in mind that the Ford plant at River Rouge is not in Detroit. It is Dearborn, a city completely dominated by the vast sprawling plant where 99,000 men keep the cars rolling off the assembly line at a dizzy pace.

When United Auto Workers members, jubilant at the General Motors settlement, tried to distribute to Ford employes handbills describing the settlement, they were stopped by police auto squads at the border between Dearborn and Detroit. They had to distribute them to such employes, as crossed into Detroit on their way from work, they will tell you.

Bennett also laughed at this. "Practically every town has an anti-handbill ordinance," he says. "Only we enforce it here. And you'll find that anyone stopped from passing out literature here has usually been doing more than that; he has been disorderly or something."

That Ford "service men" have had a hand in settling some of the labor disputes in nearby parts plants supplying material to Ford, there seems no doubt. The great Rouge plant, despite its glass factory, steel mills, coke ovens, foundry, paper mill, and cement plant, is not independent.

With 80 plants in the Detroit area making parts or supplies for Ford, union leaders like Walter Reuther, head of the west side local, believe it might be possible to shut Ford down even without penetrating to any great extent into the Rouge plant.

DENIES PREJUDICE Reuther claims the UAW already has a considerable membership at Ford's, but there is no Ford local as such. Members at Ford's are affiliated only with the general west side headquarters, he says. Union buttons are not allowed at Ford's, Reuther says.

Bennett directly contradicts this, claiming employes with rows of union dues buttons may be seen in

The PAYOFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Staff Editor GULFPORT, Miss. Mar. 26.—Outfielders believe in signs. . . Mel Ott says he knows just how to play any ball that hits a safety razor advertisement on the trick right field wall of the Polo Grounds.

If the pellet strikes a certain part of one letter it will ricochet one way, another part of a certain letter determines how it will bounce in another direction, etc. . . The late Ross Young, who preceded Ott in right field for the Giants employed the same system, and was confused for weeks when, upon returning from a road trip, found a new sign painted in the key position at his back.

Ott is still a young fellow, but is almost dean of the Giants. . . Freddie Fitzsimmons reported only two months before him in 1925.

Baseballs manufactured according to specifications recently adopted for 1936 use in the National League are sailing far and wide in exhibition game trials, although with raised stitches and a thicker cover, the pellet is supposed to be less lively than the 1937 standard. . . The raised stitches are supposed to help the pitchers, but they haven't dated in the Grapefruit League. . . Nor does it seem that any jack-rabbit has been taken from the ball.

It might be said that it is too early for the pitchers to really take a firm hold, but there is no getting away from the rifle-like traveling of the ball.

Some Chiozza Data Lou Chiozza looks like the before half of one of those before and after advertisements. . . The Italian is only 26, but appears to be 40, no exaggeration.

Iron-gray hair and a hawk-shaped face make him seem really old. Chiozza hit 338 for Memphis in 1933 and was drafted by the Phillies, a tough break for Tom Watkins, owner of the Southern Association club. . . Watkins figured that the majors would let Chiozza alone for another season, after which Tom could have peddled him for five times the draft price.

The season after Chiozza was drafted, a new draft rule went into effect, according to which an athlete had to play four years in the minors before being drafted. . . When Chiozza was grabbed by the Phils, three years of minor league service made a player eligible for draft.

The correct Italian pronunciation of the name is "Chee-ott-za," but it generally is pronounced either "Chee-o-za" or Ki-o-za. . . Lou says that he doesn't care as long as they don't call him "Chesse-a".

He played everything with the Phillies, infield and outfield. . . The only position oddly enough where he hasn't had much experience is third base, where the Giants need his services badly.

Chiozza is the fastest Giant. . . He lately opened an Italian restaurant in Memphis and is making a go of it. . . He is a good cook himself. . . A 20-year-old brother, Dino, was released by the Giants' Greenwood, Miss. farm after he broke his leg. . . The kid also is an infielder, and now a free agent as well.

Don't Fear Cards Some members of the Giant party believe that the club will find the 1937 National League race a breeze unless the Cardinals and Cubs improve. . . They don't give the Pirates much of chance. . . They question whether the Cubs gained much by the trade that sent Warneke to the Cardinals and brought Jimmy Collins and Tarzan Parmelee to Chicago.

Jimmy Ripple is a real hustler who belongs with the Gas House Gang of St. Louis. . . Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons and his break delivery promise to go on and on as did Burleigh Grimes. . . Hal Schumacher perhaps is the most doubtful of the Giant pitching stars, but has looked all right so far.

One thing that must be taken into consideration in figuring the Giants' chances is that the standouts of the outfit are a year older. . . Casey Stengel, who had first Baseman Johnny McCarthy in Brooklyn, declares that the Chicago Irishman never will be able to hit. . . Bill Terry, who paid 340,000 for McCarthy, won't like that, but Terry and Stengel never did speak guardedly in connection with each other.

Youth of 20 Enjoys First Ride on Train

BLAIR, Neb. (U.P.)—Robert O'Hannon, 20 year old Creighton University law student, had never ridden on a train until the other day.

He was sort of proud of his record, but when he decided to spend a week-end with his parents he found he would have to take a train in order to reach Blair from Omaha. An 11 inch snowstorm made highway traffic impossible.

After three hours on the train, Bob hopped off the coach and said, "Well, it's better than walking."

STORIES IN STAMPS BY I. S. KLEIN RESTORED CATHOLICISM IN HUNGARY THE Catholic church had lost its influence among the Magyars in the 16th century, when it quickly returned to power under the guidance of Cardinal Peter Pazmany in Hungary. Born a Protestant, Pazmany at 13 took up Catholicism, and at 18 became a Jesuit. He immediately began converting the nobles and gentry of Hungary, and soon the peasantry followed. He translated the Bible into Hungarian, and by that act made the Magyar tongue a literary language in 1635, he founded the Hungarian University of Sciences, his crowning achievement. For his efforts in converting the Protestant Magyars to Catholicism, Pazmany was made primate of Hungary in 1616. In 1629, he became cardinal. He died in 1637, at the age of 67. In 1935, Hungary issued a set of stamps commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of Cardinal Pazmany's university. One of the stamps shows his portrait. Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CIGARETTES DISRUPT HOME SALINAS, Cal. (U.P.)—Although married, Filmore Bruce McNear, 20, has asked for divorce on a breach of promise allegation of a different sort than usual. He charged that before marriage his fiancée promised to give up smoking, but after marriage failed to do so. Short-tailed shrews, weighing only 11 grams, can catch and kill mice. the plant at any time, and that they incur no penalty. Bennett also denies any prejudice against union men at Ford's. He says the A. F. of L. and Mechanics Education Society unions, with many members in the power plant, tool and die departments, and maintenance staffs, could, if they wished, come closer to shutting down the Rouge plant than the UAW. Reuther, the organizer charged with penetrating Ford's is a former Ford employe. He has no personal grievance, he says, for he was a foreman drawing $4000 a year. But the policies he had to enforce against men under him, speedups, relentless efficiency standards and the like, led him to take up union organization, Reuther says. He became a Socialist, and was graduated from Brookwood Labor College, the Harvard of the organized labor movement. He hints at some sudden, melodramatic gesture that will win a quick victory over the traditional Ford position, once the union is ready. All union leaders are agreed that an open shop at Ford's would be continual danger to their position in other plants, and that therefore it must be overcome. Like an island in a tumultuous sea that rises daily higher and higher, the great Ford plant crouches defiantly in its haze of smoke and murk on the banks of the River Rouge. It will hold the spotlight as soon as the present wave of sitdowns subsides.

COLLEGES, UNIVERSITIES GRANTING SPECIAL RATES TO CCC ENROLLEES

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Mar. 26.—Four colleges and universities in the Eighth Corps Area are among the 18 in the United States which have granted special rates to Civilian Conservation Corps camps for correspondence instruction.

Mr. Robert Fechner, director of Emergency Conservation Work advised Corps Area Headquarters.

In addition to those having special CCC departments at reduced rates scores of other schools, state departments of education and private institutions are making special concessions to provide college educational advantage to CCC enrollees.

It was reported by the office of education in Washington. Hundreds of other colleges and universities are offering special correspondence courses for those enrollees seeking to complete work for high school diplomas.

Mr. Fechner reported that more than 21,000 CCC enrollees in the U. S. are enrolled in correspondence courses which they study during spare time from work project on which the camp is engaged.

The 18 colleges and universities offering this special CCC college work are: Indiana University, Louisiana State University, Oklahoma A. & M. College, Stillwater, Okla., University of Arkansas, University of Chicago, University of Colorado, University of Georgia, University of Idaho, University of Kansas, University of Missouri, University of Nebraska, University of North Carolina, University of South Dakota, University of Tennessee, Texas University, University of Wisconsin, and University of Wyoming.

Among the courses being taken most extensively by CCC men are: English grammar, typing, bookkeeping, accounting, business English, American history, auto mechanics, diesel engines, radio operation, forestry and the social sciences.

Enrollees are organized into special study groups in each of the camps and are given all possible assistance in the preparation of their extension courses by the camp educational adviser.

Mr. Fechner said of the college correspondence work among CCC enrollees: "The state universities of North Dakota, Nebraska, and Wyoming have done more than any other institutions to make provision for CCC correspondence work. The University of North Dakota has 5,417 CCC men from 327 camps in 42 states enrolled in correspondence instruction. It offers the camps a range of 128 different college courses, 42 high school subjects and six vocational courses. Similar extensive operations are in effect at Wyoming and Nebraska."

QUEEN BEES REGISTERED

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Mar. 26 (U.P.)—Being a queen bee in California is little better than being a crook elsewhere. In California, queen bees have to be registered. Santa Cruz county figures it has about 500 queen bees each with a retinue of 50,000 bees until each will be registered on the dotted line just the same.

Comments On 'Green Light'

"Green Light" is among the best of some half-dozen outstanding pictures which have served humanity as a supreme objective that I have been privileged to see through the years—it has all that throbs within one's heart that produces a great picture—Rev. J. E. Pickering.

"The screen version of "Green Light" is as wonderful as the book—such movies are a real privilege to see"—Miss Mary Miller.

"There was never a better picture depicting civilization, love, science and religion—intensely interesting from beginning to end."—Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Coleman.

A beautiful story appealingly told—I enjoyed every bit of it—Mrs. Susie G. Noble.

The screening of "Green Light" is a most outstanding picture; of paramount importance in our day because of its depth of thought and its moral.—Rev. Edw. P. Harrison, O. M. I.

TOWN MAY RESTRICT DOGS
MARTINEZ, Cal., Mar. 26 (U.P.)—The city fathers are in the midst of the annual yow-wow over dogs. The proposed ordinance is a rather odd one. It would limit a dog's activities to the strength of its master's voice. In other words dogs would not be allowed at large farther than the call of the owner's voice.

Medals will be given for all first-place winners but no other places receive medals or ribbons. To the winning relay teams there will be given a traveling trophy which has a nickel plated baton and a runner on it. These trophies must be won by a relay team three years before they are permanent possessions.

The track is in very good condition and is wide enough to accommodate six thirty-six inch lanes or seven thirty inch lanes.

If more teams are entered in the sprint relays, the events will be run in heats with the best time the winner. All coaches will gather in the Crane High School building Saturday noon to draw for lanes. The girls' lanes will be drawn for at the track.
