An accident on a bridge near Winston-Salem, N. C., left the automobile that skidded through the guard rail kicking up its wheels in this undignified fashion. The driver escaped with nothing worse than a fright and a skinned nose. The car stuck in the mud of the creek bed instead of overturning.

WOMAN WHO SAID GABLE WAS LOVER IS GIVEN 1 YEAR Convicted of Fraud By Mail, May Be Deported

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 11 (P).—Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, who claimed that Clark Gable, film star, was the father of her illegitimate child, was sentenced Monday to serve one year in jail on conviction of mail fraud.

Sentence was levied by Federal Judge George Cosgrave, who directed that federal immigration authorities take charge of Mrs. Norton's case after she is released. She is an English woman. Assistant United States District Attorney Jack Powell said she probably will be deported to Canada when she has served her term.

The government charged that Mrs. Norton wrote letters to Clark Gable, Mae West and other movie colony figures, asserting he was the father of her daughter, Gwendoline, 13.

BIG SANDY BANK ROBBED OF $3,000

Two Brandish Pistols and Take Cash While Aide Waits in Auto

BIG SANDY, May 11. (P).—Three men robbed the Big Sandy bank Monday of an amount estimated at between $2,500 and $3,000.

The robbers fled eastward toward Gladewater, where they were believed sighted in their automobile, a sedan, a short while after they rifled the institution.

J. Roy Knox, vice president, said another employe, E. E. O'Brien, cashier, and two customers were in the bank at 1:40 p. m. when the foray occurred.

"One of the men stayed outside in the car," he said, "and the other two came inside brandishing pistols. They made us (Knox and O'Brien) lie down on the floor while they rifled the drawers behind the cage and then placed us in the vault."

"The vault has a special lock and they couldn't lock us in. We got out a few minutes after they left."

Big Sandy is 10 miles from Gladewater in East Texas.

Dozier and the driver of the taxicab escaped without injuries. Dozier's car had a badly bent fender while the taxi had three mangled fenders and all glasses knocked out on one side.

School For Past
Half Century

AUSTIN, May 11 (P).—Funeral services will be held this afternoon here for Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University of Texas for the last 10 years and actively connected with the school for half a century, who died last night. He was 67 years old.

Dr. Benedict was stricken with a fatal heart attack as he started to enter an automobile near the campus and died within a few minutes at a hospital to which he was rushed.

Mrs. Benedict, summoned from their home, reached the hospital shortly after her husband died. Their only living son is Yandell, Jr., a high school student. Another son, Carl Stone Benedict, was killed in the world war.

Enroute to Capitol
Dr. Benedict had left his office and accompanied by Dr. C. W. Hackett, history professor, and Donald Coney, librarian, was enroute to the capitol for a conference with a legislative committee on appropriations.

Dr. Benedict and Coney waited under the shade of a tree while Dr. Hackett went for his automobile. When the car arrived, Dr. Benedict lifted his foot to step into the automobile and fell to the paving.

An ambulance was summoned and the university president was taken to a hospital where, physicians said, he breathed his last as he was being carried into a room.

With him at the last, in addition to Dr. Hackett and Coney, were W. L. McGill, Block Smith, secretary of the university, Y. M. C. A. and John A. McCarty, secretary of the E-Students' association of the university.

Regents Notified
The administration council of the faculty was quickly summoned and regents of the school, in various Texas cities, notified as news of the death spread through the shocked capital and funeral arrangements were planned.

Informed of Dr. Benedict's death, Governor James V. Allred expressed deep sorrow, while resolutions of tribute were prepared by both houses of the legislature.

"I was shocked to learn of his death," Gov. Allred said. "Dr. Benedict was a truly great educator and a great man. Texas will miss him and the inspiration of his life upon the youth of the state."

The flag on the capitol already at half-mast in memory of J. T. Bowman, former secretary of state, will remain at that position to honor the university president.

Life at University
Practically all of Dr. Benedict's life was spent at the university, first as a student and then through several grades of teaching until he became dean of the college of arts and sciences in 1911, which position he held until appointed president September 1, 1927, in succession to Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, resigned.

C. P. Benedict, Midland ranchman and brother of the deceased college head, could not be reached by telephone today but it was believed that the family members had gone to Austin for the funeral services. Ed Benedict, Midland ranchman and airplane pilot, is a nephew of Dr. Benedict.

WORK UNDER WAY CONNECTING NEW WATER LINES IN

Pressure Reduced In City Few Hours
For Work

Officials of the City Water Department today announced another tie-in with the new reservoir would be made after midnight tomorrow and requested all persons to use as little water as possible after that time until 8 o'clock in the morning.

Work has progressed for two nights, cutting in sections of the main water line from Cloverdale park to the city arteries, preparatory to connecting with the 500,000 gallon reserve reservoir which is being built in southeast Midland.

The work on the mains is being done now rather than to wait until daily consumption is heavier, city officials said. As a result, water pressure was low early today but had regained full strength after pumps at Cloverdale resumed activity.

The improvements now under way will double the pumping and storage capacity of the city's large water system. The new project, costing approximately $20,000, includes the concrete reservoir, one new pump at Cloverdale and two at the high service station in southeast Midland.

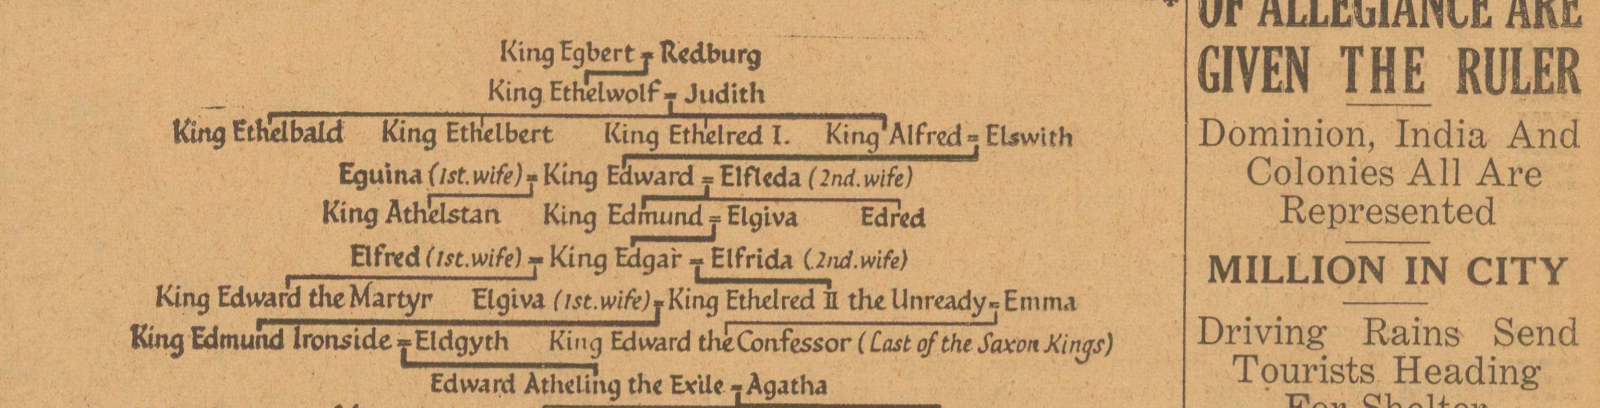

Probably one additional night will be used for cutting in sections of the main line, officials said, although they had not announced what night would be selected for the project.

"Chilly, Overcast Skies" Predicted For Coronation of King Tomorrow

Roots of British History In Family Tree

LONDON, May 11 (P).—"Chilly, overcast skies" was the forecast today for the coronation tomorrow, as King George and Queen Elizabeth received pledges of allegiance from representatives of the Dominions, India and colonies in Buckingham Palace.

Early scramblers for curbstones along the coronation route were driven away by a driving rain this morning.

A million persons swept into the full tide of gay, dazzling pre-coronation celebrations Monday night while King George VI played host at a brilliant state banquet in Buckingham Palace.

Jamming streets and hotels, breaking through police cordons and trudging gaily where they could not ride—London's busmen are still on strike—the coronation visitors swarmed around the palace.

The walkout of 25,500 busmen, tying up 5,000 buses and throwing London's traffic into an almost hopeless jam, gave every indication of continuing through Wednesday, coronation day.

But those who came—and are still coming by the thousands—from all parts of the world showed little concern, even though 12,000 street car employes appeared eager to join the busmen. Some busmen's groups called for strikes of other public service employes.

The carnival spirit held all of London. Throats wearing colored caps and tooting horns swarmed through the gaily decorated streets. Restaurants were jammed with revelers.

Drilling

BY FRANK GARDNER
First gauge taken on the Moore Brothers Corporation No. 1 TXL, new discovery between the Denman and Chalk pools in eastern Howard county, since it entered the main Denman pay horizon at 2,813 showed it flowing a head of 88 barrels of oil in two hours and 15 minutes. It is now drilling at 2,835 feet in line with a hole full of oil. Operators expect to bottom the well at around 2,850 feet and will probably complete it naturally. Upper pay from 2,700-25 had previously been acidized with 2,000 gallons, and the well pumped 50 barrels in 24 hours as a result.

Location of the Moore discovery is in the northeast corner of section 33, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. survey, a mile and a quarter northwest of the old Magnolia pumper in the southeast corner of section 34, which has been producing for the past ten years. Moore Brothers hold leases on 1,000 acres checkered over the area, and Shell, Sun and Magnolia are the other large holders of acreage near the well.

Superior Oil Company No. 1 Massie (Lites (Old Estab)) Ordovician test in Crockett county a mile and a quarter southeast of the old Stanlind No. 1 Todd deep test, is drilling at 4,521 feet in hard shale and lime streaks. Broadway-America
Holiday Declared
By Arkansas Gov.

DALLAS, May 11 (Special).—Governor Carl B. Bailey of Arkansas has proclaimed Monday, May 17, as "Broadway of America Day" in recognition of the motorcade which will cross Arkansas that day en route to the highway association's annual convention in Memphis.

The governor's proclamation was received Monday by Henry W. Stanley, trade extension director of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce who is also president of the highway association.

Members of the Texas state highway patrol will meet the motorcade at La Tuna, Texas on the Texas-New Mexico line and pilot the party to Texarkana on the Arkansas line.

"Arkansas is fortunate in that the Broadway of America passes through this state, resulting in thousands of tourists traveling over our highways, enjoying our scenic beauties, and becoming better acquainted with our resources," Governor Bailey's proclamation stated.

William McComb, manager of the Arkansas Motor Club, today wrote Mr. Stanley that six Little Rock cars would join the motorcade at Texarkana, and others will join the party at Hot Springs.

The tenth annual convention of the Broadway of America at Memphis May 18-19 is in the nature of a Home Coming Convention. Mr. Stanley said, "Ten years ago last month, more than 1,000 business men from San Diego to Nashville gathered in Memphis and perfected the organization of the association."

Mr. Stanley will meet the east bound motorcade in El Paso and return with them to the convention in Memphis.

Wichita Falls And Abilene Seeking '38 Convention

BROWNWOOD, May 11. (P).—Soil conservation took the spotlight at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention here today as Wichita Falls and Abilene started vigorous campaigns to win the next convention.

Louis P. Merrill, Fort Worth, regional director of the soil conservation service, told delegates of the soil conservation conference at the convention that their greatest industry is top soil left in their territories.

Van Zandt Jarvis, organization president, said that the soil and water conservation program championed by the West Texas chamber of commerce was the most important achievement of the year.

D. P. Trent, regional director of the resettlement administration, told the convention Monday that the solution of the problem of farm tenancy would require a long-time credit system at low interest rates.

Speaking at the "farm tenancy and unemployment conference," Trent recommended national legislation with state co-operation as the correct approach to successful solution since families will have to be moved across state lines.

New York seems to be making another of its periodic efforts to clean up the burlesque stage. A number of theaters have been unable to renew their licenses, and the cleanup wave apparently is spreading across the country.

Some of its opponents have raised the cry of "censorship" and are pleading that this cleanup is an unwarrantable interference with the freedom of the theater. This protest has previous little foundation. Burlesque has long been a purveyor of unadulterated smut. It is always possible to rule out smut without depriving anyone of an essential liberty.

At the same time, another thought does occur to us. No one who objects to the sort of performances that are found in burlesque houses is under any obligation to go to them. Whether the cleanup lasts or not, you won't be shocked by burlesque if you refrain from buying a ticket.

AN OFF-COLOR PRANK

One of the hardest things to understand is the kind of mind which is responsible for acts of vandalism like the one recently committed on Plymouth Rock.

This historic memento was daubed with red paint. Under cover of night, someone climbed the five-foot iron grille that surrounds the rock, smeared paint over the carved numerals, "1620," and daubed some more paint on the electric light which illuminates the stone.

No normal mortal can hope to figure out what inspired the deed. The collegiate youth who adorns the campus' bronze statues with nightshirts is at least able to get a chuckle out of his prank; but there isn't a ghost of a laugh in this thing. The only possible explanation is that the job was performed by someone whose mind stopped developing at the age of six.

DIPLOMACY'S PAPER PROFITS

American diplomacy in London seems to have scored a new triumph. It has succeeded in persuading British officialdom to allow 10 American women, instead of the customary eight, to be presented to and make their curtsies before King George and Queen Elizabeth at the spring courts.

Long negotiations, it is said, were necessary before this concession could be won. The question of the number of Americans to be presented at court has been a vexing one for many years—one that has furrowed the brows of American ambassadors for heaven knows how long.

Probably it is a great victory that has been won. We wouldn't know. But it does seem to us that this country could find more important work for its ambassador than this business of looking out for social climbers. Might not the republic get on just as well if—horrid thought!—no American women at all got the inestimable privilege of bowing and scraping to a foreign monarch?

"You come with me and I'll prove there's a pin in that tree." She grabbed him by the hand and they started for the tree. On the way, she stumbled over a cow.

CHAPTER ONE Kenneth thought, looking at Nina: "Charming girl, Nina. And so sane and sensible. Father'll love her. It'll be quite a surprise to the old boy when he sees us at the dock tomorrow."

NO, Father. Goodbye.

And he hung up. At the other end of the wire B. P. Nolan dejectedly set down the phone. What was the use? Kenneth was a stubborn as a mule. Sounds of activity in the outer office aroused him from his reverie.

"Come on, Mr. Nolan. We know you're there!" a threatening voice called through the door. B. J. didn't answer. As long as he was locked in his office, he was safe from those bloodhounds, and they could wait forever, for all he cared. Why, one of them even had the nerve to bring his supper! Noodle soup!

Outside in the corridor, the elevator stopped at the 24th floor and a girl emerged. She was a pretty girl — a very pretty girl indeed. Something about her shining bobbed head, the twinkle in her blue eyes and her slim trim little figure made men look a second time when they saw her. At a door marked "B. J. Nolan, Real Estate," she paused.

Mr. Nolan, I've got something for you." No, she decided, that wasn't breezy enough. She tried again out loud. "Hello, Mr. Nolan! Am I glad to see you!" No, that wouldn't do either. "Here I am, Mr. Nolan!" That was it!

Her rehearsal had a strange effect. The door flew open; four wild-eyed process servers emerged, looked about frantically for some one who evidently wasn't there, and rushed pell mell down the corridor, then down the stairway. The girl looked after them in bewilderment. Head on, she collided with B. J. coming out.

"Here I am, Mr. Nolan!" she said brightly, and handed him an envelope. He took it with a sigh of resignation. But it was not a summons. "Dear Mr. Nolan: (the letter read) This will introduce a graduate of Pitt and Beatrix Arts, a young architect of broad vision and fine artistic background. I heartily recommend her to you for your fine project Nolan Heights."

With kindest personal regards, I am Sincerely, V. Travis." B. J. looked up with a puzzled frown. "Just who is this V. Travis?" he asked.

"That's me," she replied, smiling sweetly. "The V is for 'Virginia.'" "And who is this remarkable architect?" "Oh, that's me, too." B. J.'s mouth opened and closed. "No jobs open!" he snapped. "I know what you are thinking," Virginia said quickly. "That I'm a girl. Yes, Mr. Nolan, but I have a man's courage, a man's vision. Here I am, Mr. Nolan, with the key to Nolan Heights; I've found a way to make us both rich. Nolan Heights needs me. I need Nolan Heights. Why?"

Suddenly, to B. J.'s astonishment, the girl collapsed on the floor. He hastily summoned a doctor. The doctor's diagnosis showed Virginia was suffering from malnutrition. She admitted she hadn't eaten for forty-eight hours. Nor had she a home—a little matter of back rent unpaid. B. J. fed her the noodle soup out of the thermos bottle the process server had left behind. What a terrible plight for the poor little thing to be in! B. J.'s heart softened, then melted.

From the Smithport, Long Island, railroad station they took a taxicab. The house was deserted and a thick coating of dust covered the furniture. And to make matters worse, the gas company had had the insolence to turn off the gas. B. J. made Virginia some tea on the electric iron. When he thought she was sufficiently recovered to stand the shock, he told her the

CONSTIPATION CUTS DOWN YOUR ENERGY, DULLS HAPPINESS

Don't let common constipation take all the fun out of living. This condition drains your vitality and enthusiasm. It may also be the cause of dull headaches, poor appetite, sleeplessness. You feel puny. Why endure half-sick days when you can correct constipation due to a meagre low in "bulk" by eating a delicious cereal?

Millions of people have used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with satisfactory results. Laboratory tests prove it's safe and effective.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, and gently cleanses the intestines. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoons daily. Three times daily, in severe cases. Serve as cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Sculpture

By Charles Fabens Kelly
Assistant Director, The Art Institute of Chicago
Written for The Christian Science Monitor

Sculpture seems to be far less popular than painting. Museums which are famous for their fine paintings often have very weak sculpture collections, and the memorial sculpture and historic personages in bronze which one sees in parks are anything but beautiful and inspiring for the most part. Indeed it has been said that the best we can hope for is that future generations will attribute the sculpture in Washington, D. C., to ignorance rather than malice.

Some of the most beautiful and inspiring art in the world's history has been sculpture, and it is sad to think that the great traditions have not been better carried on but the greater part of the sculpture done in the nineteenth century has been of negligible value.

The same art principles that apply to all other artistic activities apply also to sculpture. The sculptor must have something worthwhile to say and must know how to express it in stone, wood, terra cotta or bronze. If he wishes, he can copy actual forms to a certain extent, provided they are solid, but because of the very solidarity of his materials it is hard to leave things to the imagination of the beholder. The very definite treatment to which a sculptor is limited cannot well be an imaginative treatment. For that reason, perhaps, the sculptors have sought, in recent times, to choose imaginative subject matter of an allegorical nature, the result being generally an incongruous mixture of unrelated figures and enough of that type of thing has been done to fill volumes of humorous magazines.

Once Needed by Architecture

Why has sculpture fallen from its high estate? In the great sculptural epochs it was used for a very definite purpose, frequently in connection with architecture. A great temple or public building was not considered finished without sculptural details any more than it was without mural decorations. Architecture the most useful of the arts, needed the services of both sculpture and painting for its completed work.

We have, perhaps, been amazed to learn that up to comparatively recent times the majority of sculpture has been colored. The old Greek temples which had such marvelous sculptures were not white, even though built of marble. The marble was used because it was fine grained and could be easily worked, and when the building and its sculptural decorations were finished, they were both painted in colors that we should consider quite gaudy because we are not used to them. Therefore we are wrong when we think of Greek sculptures as being white in their original state. It is probable too that the colors applied were not at all naturalistic, but were chosen for their decorative value.

Now most people are much more sensitive to color than to form. To be sure they may fear a shape they do not understand and content themselves with merely hating a crude color, but we seldom hear people comment on the beauty of the shapes they look at while they frequently comment on the beauty of colors.

In other words, we are not particularly interested in problems of form as such. We may admire a pebble picked up on the beach for its color, but we seldom notice its form; that is, unless we are sculptors. It is conceivable that a colorblind person might be a good sculptor, because form interests him more than anything else.

When Color Prevailed

I have no doubt that the color on the sculptures of the great ages of art did much to attract the attention of those who would otherwise not have looked. Their atten-

Specialist Lectures On Child Welfare

Miss Dosca Hale, extension specialist in parent education and child development, lectured yesterday afternoon to a group of women at the county courthouse on the subject "The Family Relationship Program as Planned by Texas." She gave a survey of the work that is designed for the state by the Extension Board at Texas A. & M. College at College Station.

Her talk briefly covered the various phases of the work, which is new in the state: "Pre-natal care," "The First Year," "Child from 1 to 6," "The School Child," "Guiding the Adolescent," "Family Relationships," "Education for Marriage and HomeLife," and "Education for Citizenship."

If a club is interested in the work, they may have their own programs for the discussions outlined by the Extension Board. Programs average four each year.

County Home Demonstration Agents and representatives from Howard, Dawson and Gaines counties attended the lecture, as well as a number of Midland county women.

Miss Dale was the guest of Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth while here.

CARDINALS STRENGTHEN LEAGUE LEAD WITH 10-TO-6 VICTORY

7-RUN RALLY IN SEVENTH DOWNS WINK SPUDDERS

The Midland Cardinals further strengthened their hold on first place in the WTNM League when they won their fifth straight victory by defeating Wink 10-6.

The Red Birds once more had their big inning, coming through in the seventh for seven runs, made on four hits, four walks and one error. They took a two run lead in the second inning and were never headed. The closest Wink ever got was in the third when they pushed one run around. The Spudders got four in the eighth and one in the ninth but they came too late to do any good other than help a few batting averages.

It was "Lefty" Herman Sick, a recent addition to the Card pitching staff, that got credit for the victory. He struck out an even dozen of the oil field town boys while giving up eight hits, three of them in the eighth inning.

Left fielder Jack Nook was the heaviest hitter of the winners, coming through with a single to start the two run rally in the second frame and a long double to lead off the big seventh. He also got a walk in the same inning.

Eleven Midland batters went to the plate in the big inning, a resume of it being something like this: Nook led off with a double, Serafine walked, Frost went out, pitcher to first, Schiffler singled, scoring Nook, Potocar got on when Hood muffed his grounder. Serafine tallying, Sick singled to fill the bases, Stein went out, third to first Schiffler scoring, Orr and Randall walked, forcing Potocar home. Nook walked, sending Sick home. Serafine singled, scoring Orr and Randall. Bryce threw Serafine out trying to stretch his hit to two bases.

The Spudders got four in the eighth when Guynes doubled, Hood singled, sending Guynes home. Brown struck out, and Reeves flew out to center. Bailey walked and Atkinson hit a home run over the Limit sign in left field. He got a $5 meal ticket for the blow. The losers goth their final tally in the ninth on a walk and three errors but Sick halted their rally when he struck out Bailey with the bases loaded to end the game.

Joe Schultz, St. Louis Cardinal scout, was in the stands to watch the young Cardinals play and they were working hard to impress him. They registered five errors, three of them by Orr, but two of them were on balls that didn't behave as they should have on the rough infield.

Mel Serafine, third baseman, suffered a badly bruised leg when sliding home in the seventh and was relieved at his base position for the last two innings by Murphy.

Little "Rabbit" Stein continued to be the "hard-luck" hitter on the club when he failed to get a base hit. He hit two balls that ordinarily would have cleared the center field fence but a strong wind from the south held them inside the park while the Wink center gardner could get under them.

Today's game with Wink will be the last for the Cards until next Tuesday as they leave soon after the game today for six games with Roswell, Hobbs and Wink.

WISCONSIN ACT SETS UP OWN STATE WAGNER BOARD; FIRST IN COUNTRY

MADISON, Wis. May 11. (U.P.)—The first state labor relations board of its kind in the nation is slowly starting operation in Wisconsin under a "little Wagner act" passed by the 1937 legislature.

Gov. Philip F. LaFollette sponsored the act, which is designed to guarantee employees' rights of collective bargaining and to lessen the causes of intrastate labor disputes.

Unfair labor practices are defined by the act. They include industrial spying by employers, blacklisting for labor activity, refusal to bargain collectively with exclusive representatives of employees, and coercion of employees in exercise of collective bargaining rights.

The three men composing the board are Prof. Edwin E. Witte, University of Wisconsin economist; the Rev. Francis J. Haas, president of St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee, and Vayta W. Wabets, chairman of the Wisconsin industrial commission. All are Wisconsin born.

Witte was executive director of President Roosevelt's committee to study social security and draft the Federal Social Security Act. His background since graduation from the university in 1909 includes service as statistician of the state industrial commission, special investigator for the U. S. commission on industrial relations and secretary of the state industrial commission. From 1922 to 1933 he was chief of the legislative reference library which drafts bills for Wisconsin lawmakers. In 1931 he was a member of the group of economists selected by the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace to study European conditions. Witte is author of "The Government in Labor Disputes."

In addition to the power to appoint arbitrators or boards of conciliation to settle labor disputes, the state board is entrusted with creation of two state-wide committees representative of organized labor and of employers to police their respective groups.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adlerika. Adlerika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adlerika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adlerika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adlerika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. City Drug Store. (Adv.)
