FIVE DEAD AFTER SUNDAY FIGHTING IN STEEL PLANTS

Scores Are Injured As Police Clash With Pickets

FIRE ON PLANES

Food-Carrying Ships Are Targets for Strikers

By Associated Press
Five were dead today after Sunday fighting between police and strike sympathizers at the Republic steel plant in Chicago and scores were injured.
At Youngstown, Ohio, strikers piled cross ties on rails to block possible food train movements into the mills.
At Warren, Penn., the Republic company claimed that strikers, firing at food planes carrying supplies to loyal workers, had wounded a worker in the leg.
Police and strike sympathizers came to grips late yesterday at the Republic plant in South Chicago, and after a short, intensive fight, authorities counted three sympathizers fatally injured, 66 strikers and 23 policemen hurt. Several were reported in critical condition.
Police said they had arrested between 25 and 40 strikers whom they held without charge.
As observers described it, about 1,500 strike sympathizers engaged 200 policemen in a field near the factory, which has continued operations notwithstanding a strike call of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee. Against the strikers' clubs and stones the police used their night sticks, tear gas and pistol fire. Supervising Captain James L. Mooney said some of the sympathizers fired guns.

GERMAN REPRISAL AFTER THEIR SHIP ATTACKED BY REDS

Italy Joins Nazis in Withdrawing From Non-Intervention Committee; Eden Urges No Further Action

LONDON, May 31 (AP)—Grave international tension developed rapidly after retaliation bombing by German warships of the Spanish government port of Almeria today.
The Spanish government said that 19 had been killed and 55 wounded, and numerous houses destroyed while a Nazi announcement said that the bombing was confined to the port proper, and done to avenge Spanish bombing yesterday of the pocket battleship Deutschland in which 24 German sailors had been killed and 82 wounded.
French and British naval authorities conferred immediately at the news. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden appealed to Germany to take no action to "render the present grave situation worse."
In Berlin, the German government officially announced its warships had destroyed the port of Almeria in retaliation for bombing of their cruiser Deutschland Saturday.
The government also announced it would not participate further in sessions in London of the non-intervention committee.
First Germany, then Italy withdrawing from the non-intervention committee; Germany then ordering its fleet into Spanish waters instructed to shoot at all Spanish government warships or airplanes on sight; Italy asking satisfaction for the recent bombing of an Italian warship.
More than 200 shells hurtled into Almeria in a half-hour in the early morning attack, and shore batteries fired about 70 shots in return, and Spanish government sources said they believed one destroyer was hit. Five vessels participated in the attack.
Italy, through a spokesman, said she would align firmly with Germany.
At Barcelona, Catalan government officials announced they had confirmed that an Italian submarine launched the torpedo that sank a Spanish passenger liner, drowning 50 and injuring others yesterday in the Mediterranean.
The German ambassador Hans Dieckhoff in Washington said that his government had informed him it contemplated no further reprisals against Spanish Loyalists.
Senator Borah of Idaho called for application of the American neutrality law to all participants in the Almeria bombing.
All shore leaves in the German navy were cancelled, it was learned early today, following a cabinet decision "to take measures" because of

DIFFERENCES ON RELIEF BILL ARE PRACTICALLY OVER

All Composed Except Earmarking Cash For Roads

PARLEY TUESDAY

Leaders Optimistic Over Settlement Of Quarrel

WASHINGTON, May 31 (P)—Administration leaders expressed belief today all differences over the $1,500,000,000 relief bill had been composed except the proposal earmarking $150,000,000 for highway construction. They said they were optimistic an agreement would be reached speedily.
A third group, those wanting to tag relief money for highway construction, is expected to decide at a Tuesday meeting whether administration offers are acceptable.
Chairman Cartwright (D-Okla.), of the House Roads Committee told Majority Leader Rayburn he would have to meet with his committee on Tuesday before announcing the attitude of that group.
Rayburn conferred with the President before meeting the House members.
A majority of the roads committee was described as demanding that highway construction be under direction of state commission on a contract basis and that $150,000,000 be earmarked for that purpose. President Roosevelt was represented as opposing contracts and believing that county highway boards should select projects, then apply to WPA to supply 100 per cent of the unskilled labor.

UPTON DISCOVERY PUMPS AND FLOWS 526 BARRELS OIL

Henderson 1 Opens New Producing Area

BY FRANK GARDNER
R. H. Henderson (Basin Oil Properties, Inc.) No. 1 Harrington, opener of a new producing area two miles north and east of the McCamey field in southwest Upton county, pumped and flowed 526 barrels of oil on the 24-hour Railroad Commission gauge. Oil tested 24.4 gravity. The discovery is bottomed at 2,825 feet in the line pay, and is acidized with 4,000 gallons. It is located 1.515 feet from the south and 1,850 feet from the east line of section 4, block 3 1/2, G. C. & S. F. survey.
West of the old producers in McCamey, Henderson No. 2-D Baker, section 7, block R, M. S. Denton survey, is now on pumping test and is estimated by operators good for 700 barrels a day. It topped the main pay at 2,395, drilled to a total depth of 2,404, and was treated with 2,000 gallons.
High Anhydrite
Reportedly high anhydrite top in Conoco No. 1 Dr. E. H. Jones continued to focus interest upon northwestern Gaines county. Driller called the anhydrite at 2,059, while sample analysis showed it to be between 2,060 and 2,070. The well is now running 9 5/8-inch casing, bottomed at 2,120 feet. It is located 1,980 feet from the north and 660 feet from the east line of section 22, block A-7, public school land, nine miles west and three miles south of the Carter-Conoco No. 1 A. L. Wasson, most closely watched test in West Texas.
No. 1 Wasson, in section 48, block AX, public school land, 16 miles west of Seagraves in northern Gaines, was scheduled to start up at noon today after being shut down since Saturday for engine repairs, bottomed at 4,659 feet in lime. Three miles to the northeast, Carter-Conoco No. 1 Moore-Langdon, shut-cat in section 44, block AX, is still down for repairs at 1,837 feet in red rock. Depth of 1,837 was corrected to 1,884.
On the Seminole structure in Gaines, Shell No. 1 Mann, east offset to the discovery, flowed 64 barrels of fluid, five percent basic sediment and no water, on 24-hour test through 2 1/2-inch tubing. Gas tested 6,259.645 cubic feet in 24 hours. Operators killed the well with water and have pulled tubing, which they will re-run with packer to shut off gas. Total depth of the No. 1 Mann is 5,090 feet in lime. It is 660 feet out of the northwest corner of section 220, block G, W. T. R. R. survey.

WEALTHY BANKER SUCCUMBS ABOARD HIS YACHT SUNDAY

Peritonitis Is Fatal To George Baker, Millionaire

HONOLULU, May 31 (P)—George F. Baker, 59, reputed one of the nation's wealthiest men, died Sunday aboard his big yacht Viking in Honolulu Harbor, a peritonitis victim despite far-flung efforts by air and sea to save his life.
Baker, chairman of the First National Bank of New York, succumbed at 6:15 a.m. (10:45 a.m. CST) after physicians and nurses had worked fruitlessly throughout the night, watching his condition become progressively worse.
Death won the battle despite the combined efforts of three government agencies, an ocean liner, a 300-mile race into port with the stricken financier and a 5,500-mile air dash by Mrs. Baker from New York to Honolulu.
Baker's death was the second in recent years to affect the family and bank. His father, George F. Baker, Sr., died in May, 1931, at the age of 91.
The elder Baker was regarded as a colossus of the financial world and was noted for his dislike of the spotlight.
The junior banker, in taking up the position and responsibilities left by his father, likewise acquired a reputation for reticence and a dislike of publicity.
Baker became ill last Tuesday as the yacht, with a party of friends, was heading toward Honolulu from the Fiji Islands.
Seeking medical assistance, the yachting party halted the Canadian Pacific liner Niagara as it passed. Dr. John A. Newell, 70-year-old Australian specialist, a Niagara passenger, volunteered to assist and with an English nurse boarded the Viking in mid-ocean.

SENATE COMM. NOW STUDYING REPEAL OF RACE WAGERING

House Intimates It Will Repeat Acts Of Last Session

AUSTIN, May 31 (P)—The senate jurisprudence committee set a meeting this afternoon to consider procedure on the bill repealing pari-mutuel wagering.
After a motion to refer the bill to a committee as a whole again failed the senate adjourned. The house showed inclination for action to that of the regular session, suspending the rules requiring bills lay on table 24 hours after being received from the printer.
Amid a blistering debate the house then began consideration of a measure outlawing race betting.

Woman Hurt as Gun Accidentally Fired

Ida Hayles, proprietress of "Ida's Place" on highway 80 in the east part of Midland, was recovering in a local hospital today from a pistol wound in the abdomen, accidentally self-inflicted, she told attending physicians. Two fingers were also injured by the shot.
It was reported that the woman was cleaning the gun at about 6 o'clock this morning when it was accidentally discharged, the bullet ranging downward and back without penetrating the intestines. Her condition was pronounced satisfactory this afternoon.

COURT CHANGE NO LONGER NEEDED. SUPPORTER SAYS

Change in Attitude of Members Given As Reason

WASHINGTON, May 31 (P)—Senator Pope, Idaho, a supporter of the Roosevelt court bill, expressed belief today the recent supreme court decisions had removed the "impelling necessity" for a change in the number of justices.
He said that the main reason for the bill was to have a court that would not obstruct a constructive program dealing with the nation's problems, and that he felt since the court had adopted a sensible, liberal view that the President's proposal was unnecessary.

Bomb Falls on Ohioan

CANTON, O. (U.P.)—Earl Minger was poking around in the basement of a vacant building recently, when six sticks of dynamite, with a fuse attached, bounced off his head. He walked to police headquarters, surprised and frightened, and reported the incident. Patrolmen obtained the home-made bomb.

FLOOD WATERS RECEDE AT ROSWELL; DAMAGE IN HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS

ROSWELL, N. M., May 31 (P)—Muddy waters receded from Roswell today and residents turned to the work of rehabilitation as clearing skies heralded the end of damaging floods in New Mexico.

A brilliant sun shone over this Pecos Valley city of 13,000 after three days of almost continuous torrential rains. The Hondo and Pecos Rivers fell rapidly and water which had covered Roswell streets in depths up to five feet drained swiftly away.

Elsewhere in New Mexico the three-day rainfall was reported at an end, with major streams under control and no threat of new inundations. The United States Weather Bureau at Albuquerque forecast partly cloudy weather for the state today.

Flood conditions, however, continued acute in the Panhandle regions of Oklahoma, where heavy rains last night added to the damage caused by streams swollen with runoff waters from Eastern New Mexico.

In the same dust bowl region, where "black blizzards" swept off dry creek beds a week ago, raging waters now ripped great gullies through the sandy soil, warping out a railroad bridge near Woodward, Okla., and rendering many highways impassable.

Roswell residents abandoned hip boots and boats and walked normally through lower sections of the city where flood waters raced only last night. Water still ran through several streets, but it was receding rapidly.

C. E. Mason, publisher of the Roswell Record, estimated the damage here would run into "several hundreds of thousands of dollars." There were no official estimates of the loss.

Approximately fifty master's degrees were awarded by A. & M. this year, the number divided almost evenly between master of science and master of arts.

"Tell It to Judge" Violators Are Told

After two weeks during which traffic patrolman Coons placed only notices upon cars of traffic violations by the drivers, he started today serving tickets that will have to be explained before city judge Knowles.

Coons said today that there had been fewer violations than had been anticipated, most of them noted having been made by out of town residents. Tourists and visitors from other towns were not being given the tickets today, being let off after explanations by Coons of the new ordinances in force, along with warnings against repeating the violations.

Oaks have to be sturdy in order to survive; more than 300 insect pests prey on them.

LOVE FROM A STRANGER

"No," he answered.
"Did Kate say something to hurt you? It is about the house? Can't we get it?" she continued.
His answer was low. "We can get it all right, but..."
"But what?"
"The bank in South America has failed to honor my credit for five thousand pounds and now they won't accept my draft."
"Oh, my darling," she said with a sudden sigh of relief, and throwing her arms about him drew him close. "Is that all it is, a little money. Why didn't you tell me so? You know I could spare the money without difficulty. You weren't afraid to ask me to lend it to you, were you?"
"No, but—you know how a man feels..."
"Nonsense, dear, I'll not hear another word about it! Give me that silly old paper—I'll sign it right now!"
"But remember, my love," he reminded her, sliding the paper in front of her, "it's only a loan. Sign it there... and now on the other side..."
"There you are; now that's done," said Carol. "So much fuss over a little money. Now give me a kiss, and let's go in to tea."
As she turned back toward the drawing room a strange smile spread over Lovell's face while he stuffed the paper into his pocket.

stuffed the paper into his pocket.

Chapter Four

The country house was all that Carol had anticipated, and more. She fell in love with it at once—with the cool, spreading elms on the broad lawn, the beautifully trimmed shrubs that lined the house; and with the high-ceilinged spacious rooms within.

Gerald introduced Hobson, the elderly, white-haired gardener and caretaker who had been on the place for many years; and Emmy, his niece who did the housework, and who, Hobson explained, was "a good girl, Ma'am, but not so very bright." While Hobson was bringing their luggage in from the car Gerald showed Carol about the place.

"Do you like it, darling?"
"Oh, Gerald, it's lovely! I ought to have such fun fixing it up!" She nestled in his arms, warm with affection and gratitude.

While they were having tea Hobson informed Lovell that a package had arrived, which he had put in the cellar. Lovell was furious.

"I told you to keep out of there! No one is to go into the cellar but me... No one!"
"But why, Gerald?" Carol interrupted.

"Oh, er—I was just explaining to Hobson that the cellar is my dark room for photographs and experiments. I shall have chemicals and things there that are dangerous."

"Oh, please, Gerald," she laughed, "don't go blowing up with a lot of chemicals. I'm much too happy to want to die just yet!"

A little later Carol sat down at the piano to play a little waltz she knew. Gerald liked the music. He asked her to play it over again, faster. "Faster, faster, faster," he urged her, listening to the galloping rhythm with a kind of ecstasy.

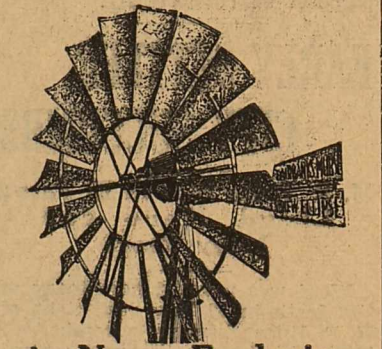

"I have a sort of gramophone in my cellar," he remarked. "I play it a great deal—very fast—when I am working. It excites my mind—quicken my thought—makes my head spin, reminding me of the war. Of trenches—a barrage creeping up—shells sweeping, exploding in staccato rhythm coming closer, closer..."

That evening they learned from Hobson that the countryside was filling up with gypsies, who came down every year for the fair. This year it was to begin in September 5th—the day before they intended leaving on their journey. It was only a fortnight or so away.

"I shall take you there," Gerald exclaimed to Carol. "September the fifth at 9 p. m. That is the hour!" He noted it down in his little book.
"Oh, Gerald," remarked Carol, "you paid five thousand pounds for the house, didn't you? Hobson was telling me the man who owned it was asking only half that much." Lovell flared up. "Which would you rather believe—that old fool, or me?"

"It wasn't a question of believing you," she protested. "I just thought you might have been cheated."

He changed his tone abruptly, became conciliatory. "I love my wife—and I've a present for her. It has a sentimental value." He produced a beautiful white scarf and draped it around her shoulders, his hands lingering lovingly—almost a bit too tightly—about her throat. But it was lovely, and she adored her

Wallis Warfield's Wedding Ensemble

The wedding ensemble which Mrs. Wallis Warfield will wear when she stands in the library of the Chateau de Cande and becomes the bride and duchess of the Duke of Windsor is sketched here. Designed by Mainbocher, the ensemble is of heavy silk crepe in the new "Wallis blue." The long afternoon dress with slim skirt, bias-cut bodice and heart-shaped neckline, is worn with a matching jacket, graceful of line and also cut on the bias. The dress sleeves are long and tight, while those of the jacket are seven-eighths length and flare at the wrist. The jacket has a high, rounded throat line and a plastron of vertical shirring, stopping just above the waistline yoke, which is snugly fitted and finished with encrustations.

The days passed tranquilly, if at times a little dully. There were no passing cars, no telephone, no visitors; "nothing," as Gerald put it, "to disrupt our happiness." Lovell spent much time in his cellar dark room; Carol occupied herself with her books, her music, her garden.
On an afternoon—two days before the day set for their departure—Carol was roaming through the house, looking for Gerald to tell him some bit of household news. She wandered through the rooms, but found him nowhere. A bit puzzled, and feeling lonely, she decided to seek him in his cellar. Going down the dim flight of stairs, she opened the door softly and stood gazing in wonder at the sight she beheld.
There was Lovell, standing at a table in the murky half-darkness, his back toward her. He was clutching to his breast what looked like a large photograph; embracing it, stroking it, and emitting low chuckles that seemed more like expressions of triumph than of mirth. And all the while a nearby gramophone gounded out music—music swirling, leaping and blaring, growing ever louder and louder, faster and faster, while Lovell's strange movements grew more and more spasmodic, convulsive.
Suddenly he stiffened, turned slowly around, and saw her. The expression on his face gave her a shock. His eyelids drooping, his mouth twisted into a sort of grimace, a strange, weird expression in his eyes.
"Get out!" he shrieked hoarsely, pointing a shaking finger at her. "Get out! Get out! GET OUT!"
Carol fell back in horror, stood staring at him with her mouth half open, unable to speak. He took a few steps toward her, repeating in a voice that seemed not his own: "Get out! Get out!"

Then, regaining her senses, she gave one shriek, turned, and fled up the stairs and into the living room, while he stalked after her, still with that hand outstretched before him.

how to run it; where neighbors gossip over the back yard fence; where the people go to bed at 9 p. m. with a clear conscience and arise at 9 a. m. with the same conscience. Why, we wouldn't mind to see the old hitching rack back in town again and the old town well in the middle of Main Street; the resurrection of the old benches in front of the stores providing seats for the boys while they spin their yarns and engage in soft-pine whit-till' bees. There was good ol' days. Boys walked up to the bar, drank their whiskey straight without batting an eye, came out of the saloon, mounted their broncs, probably leaving behind a few bullet holes in store fronts, but at least they got back to camp alive. Now a guy walks up to a bar drinks a concoction of concentrated lye and prussic acid, comes out loop-legged, scrambles in his car, pulls down the throttle to the last notch and speeds down the highway in serpentine fashion, later to be picked up in pieces as well as victims of the crash in another car killed through no fault of their own.

Well, we've had two days and a half in which to dodge the banks with our checks, but we had better get them covered by Tuesday morning. This noon closing hour Saturday and the Monday holiday certainly gave the bank employes some extra time to get their work done behind the cages.

Ford Announces Summer Program

The final program in the current 39-week Ford Sunday Evening Hour series will be broadcast June 13, when, in accordance with its usual custom, the series will go off the air for the summer months. During the summer, "Universal Rhythm," the half-hour Ford program now heard Saturday nights, will be transferred to Sunday nights and will be extended to a one-hour show. This program will be broadcast at 9 p. m. EDT over CBS and will continue until the Sunday Evening Hour series is resumed September 12.

The same light music and unusual arrangements of popular numbers will be presented on the one-hour "Universal Rhythm" program. It will follow a pattern similar to that used during the last six months with Richard Bonelli, Metropolitan opera baritone; Alec Templeton, brilliant English pianist; Carolyn Urbane, soprano; and Rex Chandler's orchestra. It is planned, however, to add a chorus and to feature guest stars.

CARDS REGAIN LEAGUE LEADERSHIP; BEAT MONAHANS PAIR

SMITH AND DAISS HURL RED BIRDS TO DOUBLE VICTORY

The Midland Cardinals took undisputed possession of first place in the league standings when they swept a double-header with the Monahans Trojans here while Odessa was splitting two games with Roswell Sunday.

Scores on the two games here were 13-6 and 7-4 with Daiss and Smith being the winning Cardinal hurlers. Daiss hurled the 9-inning opener and won his fifth victory as he gave up only nine hits, all well spaced with the exception of the seventh when the Trojans got four of them for as many runs. His control was much better than usual, only four passes being issued by him. He set 8 Monahans hitters down on strikes.

The Cardinals rapped Leonard Rose, a former Midland Colt, for 16 hits during the nine innings, and it was a good thing for Daiss that his mates were in a hitting mood because they probably set a league record when they made nine errors. Daiss made a couple of them.

Most of the action provided in the first game came when Rose went into the stands after a spectator who had been riding him. The quarrel was settled after he took one poke at the customer. Nook was the heaviest hitter in the game, coming through with a double and triple but Stein, Frost and Schiffner each managed to get three safe blows.

The Cardinals got off to a four run lead in the first inning of the second game while making only one hit. Stein, first up, grounded out to pitcher, Orr walked and stole second, Randall struck out, Nook doubled to score Orr, Serafine walked, Frost walked to lead the bases and Nook went home when Rockman balked on the first pitch to Schiffner. On the first pitch to Schiffner the ball got away from Landthrip. Serafine coming in from third and Frost rounded third and out-raced the catcher to the plate for the fourth run. Rockman, who should have been covering the plate, was caught sound asleep by Frost's unexpected dash home.

The Trojans picked up one run in the fifth on an error and a couple of hits and their last three in the seventh on a walk and a hit batsman and three hits. The Cards made their fifth run in the fifth on two hits, a walk and hit batsman and two in the sixth on two hits and two walks and a fielder's choice.

The Cardinals left this morning for Hobbs for the first two games of a nine-day road trip. They will not be at home again until June 9, when Wink comes here for three games.
