Behind the Scenes in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — No single reason suffices to explain why Roosevelt and the State Department have suddenly and completely reversed the previous national policy of isolation and so-called neutrality which Congress in its wisdom was commonly supposed to have enacted into law.

The Roosevelt "Quarantine" speech at Chicago and the subsequent government statement branding Japan as an aggressor nation in China were no part of a plan of positive action aside from the administration's willingness to consult with other signatories of the nine-power treaty which theoretically guaranteed Chinese sovereignty.

Sanctions and provisions for economic boycott or similar action are omitted from both the nine-power and Kellogg treaties. The administration's only recourse is to exhortation of the American public. Unless it applies the neutrality act to both China and Japan, in effect, the neutrality has been completely repudiated.

Positive action, according to the best inside information, is to be confined to an educational campaign designed to educating the country that isolation is an illusory ideal and that concerted action by peace-loving nations is essential; to assuring League of Nations members that this country is willing to co-operate to an undetermined extent; to assuring Japan, German, and Italy that the United States is not going to be as pacifistic as the neutrality act would seem to require. What Congress will have to say about all this remains to be seen.

The violent contrast between the new policy and previous policy is indicated by the fact that an administration-backed embargo on arms to Spain, a duly recognized nation invaded by Italy and Germany, flashed through the House last January by a vote of 406 to 1, and through the Senate by 80 to 0.

Behind these developments are these facts, although not necessarily in the order of their importance: 1—Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are emotionally on the side of the "Democratic," peace-seeking nations sometimes called the "Haves," as distinguished from the dictator-led aggressive and warlike "Have-nots." Their fear of dictatorships and the ultimate menace threatened by fascism if it should sweep the rest of the world is genuine and widely shared.

2—Roosevelt's instincts although peaceful—impel him to step out on the world stage in a star role, although these instincts have been somewhat restrained by healthy regard for the popular desire to avoid steps which might lead toward war.

3—The State Department, which was unalterably opposed to neutrality legislation and successfully labored to prevent it from being made mandatory, clings to the old traditions which have kept it deep in Far Eastern politics for 40 years or more. The "Open Door" policy as to China is no dead letter and there is still a vague but strong belief that America's destiny is more or less wrapped up in Asia.

4—Domestic considerations cannot be ignored. Although this government's leap into the international situation tends to rally support behind Roosevelt and blur memory of the Black-Klan incident, it is more to the point to reveal herewith that Roosevelt has persistently contemplated use of the sour internal state of Fascist nations to point an object lesson to Americans in aid of his legislative proposals. May "Hold Bag" Again.

NORMAN DAVIS, this country's mysterious "ambassador-at-large," was here the day the unsatisfactory Japanese reply to our note protesting bombardment of Chinese cities came in.

He sat in on a huddle at which conferees agreed on the desirability of firmness. Meanwhile the State Department crowd seems divided into three groups: First, Hull and those who approach the international problem on moralistic grounds. Second, those who hold to the traditional of practical international politics and balances of power.

Third, those who view recent moves with concern and seek early mediation and conciliation, fearing that England and France will again leave the United States holding the bag in the Orient.

Meanwhile it is encouraging to remember that in all the history of our friendship for China and implied opposition to Japanese expansion, this country has never at any time been prepared to go to bat to enforce its policies by military action.

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Three days after workmen had completed sealing up the base of the City Hall steps, passersby were attracted by weird cries coming from the steps.

Firemen chiseled through the concrete, found a half-starved cat that had wandered under the steps while they were being repaired. A saucer of milk restored the cat to purring normality.

And, we might add to John's comment that when they live in the Midland country, they usually throw out their chest while making the reply. However, it's got to where some of them throw their chests out a little low. Roy Parks, Eb Dickenson, O. B. Holt and Donald Hutt have a lower chest expansion than George Rathif, Elliott Cowden, Hill, George Bedford and Clarence Scharbauer. Leonard and Foy Proctor, who were near the same size and build when they were boys, now look like an advertisement on "before and after taking."

Eddie Lamar, at the brokerage office, submitted a letter which one business man wrote a friend, comparing, or contrasting today's conditions with those of the 1929-32 era. If you are one of those who are getting pessimistic about present trends, read the letter and see if this "ordinary business man" isn't about right:

Dear Elmer: I have been thinking a lot about that last letter of yours in which you told me your friends on Wall Street are afraid the country is heading for another big depression, judging from the way stocks and bonds are behaving.

You see, I was pretty badly hurt in 1932 and haven't forgotten it yet. That is why I have been doing some mental checking-up since your letter came. The way I reasoned was this: just suppose another big depression were starting right now, how would it affect me and what had I better do about it?

Well, the first thing I thought about was my little business out here, because that is the thing that must take care of me and the family. I nearly lost it in 1932, and I've been pretty careful about it ever since. Back in 1929 I was fooled like every one else and got my business into pretty much of a jam. I was carrying all the inventory I could stand and the banks were helping me carry it—at 6 1/2%. Despite the fact that, that nearly ruined me and I swore I'd never do it again, I am ashamed to confess that I did get a little excited again last spring and bought a little more than I should. But, thank goodness, I soon remembered and since April I've been working that inventory off. I haven't bought any more than absolutely necessary since then, and that only in lines I didn't have. The way business is going now, I won't have any inventory problem in another month or two. I still have a small loan at the bank—at 3%—but it's chicken feed compared with what I owed in 1929.

My rent problem was pretty hard on me in 1932, but when I renewed the lease in 1933 I drove a pretty hard bargain and am paying only 60% of what I did before. That's the rent for the business. Of course, I own the house, but in 1929 I had a first mortgage on it for $8,000 and a second mortgage for $4,000. I blush a little when I think of it, but when times were pretty tough I bought that second mortgage back for $500. And every year I've been cutting down the first mortgage until now I only owe $4,000 on it. An insurance company offered to lend me $6,000 on it the other day at 4%, but I don't really need any more money and besides I'd like to pay off the whole thing so it's clear.

In 1929 I put most of my personal money into stocks and in fact I borrowed about 50% from the broker so I could multiply my profits a little faster. In 1932 they took most of them away from me. My broker tells me I'm too conservative now, that even the Federal Reserve System thinks it reasonable to borrow nearly half of what I pay for stocks, but I can't forget 1932 so easily. Fact of the matter is, I only owe about 10% on the stocks I have with my broker and I've managed to stow away a few shares here and there on which I don't owe a cent.

When I think it all out, Elmer, I don't believe I'm in anything like the shape I was in 1929. I don't think they can hurt me much this time. I may have to tighten up a bit, but they can't scare me because I could just about pay every cent I owe right now. And if there are any more like me in the country, I can't quite see how things could get very bad.

JUST AN ORDINARY BUSINESS MAN.

And now they are telling one about the recent gold prospecting trip made by Dyke Dykema and Powder Rankin out west of here. They came up on some old goat rancher's place and were looking for calcium. The way I heard it, the rancher said there wasn't anything like that around there, but Porter ambled down around the corral and soon returned with quite a rock of white substance which he told Dykema was calcium. They loaded it in the car and brought it home. Dykema started to analyze it, stuck his tongue to it and discovered that the substance was a block of the old rancher's goat salt.

1200 Expected at PTA Convention

AUSTIN, Oct. 13.—Indications are that more than 1200 delegates, the largest registration ever anticipated, are expected to attend the twenty-ninth annual state convention of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers which will be held in Beaumont, with Hotel Beaumont designated official headquarters, Nov. 14-18. "New Frontiers in Parent Education" is the convention theme.

The national congress president, Mrs. J. K. Pottengill, and four national chairmen, Miss Marian Taylor, safety; Miss Evelyn Eastman, mental hygiene; B. H. Darrow, radio, and Dr. Joseph M. Artman, character education, headline the program. Development of the convention theme will center in two main addresses, one by Mrs. Pottengill and one by Dr. Artman, and in two panels, an adult panel led by Mrs. Pottengill on "Social Safeguards of Youth" and a panel in which youth will make its answer, led by Miss Eastman.

Mrs. M. A. Taylor of Bonham, Texas congress president, will preside at the general sessions and at the Hawaiian banquet at Fair Park which will be open to all registered visitors and delegates.

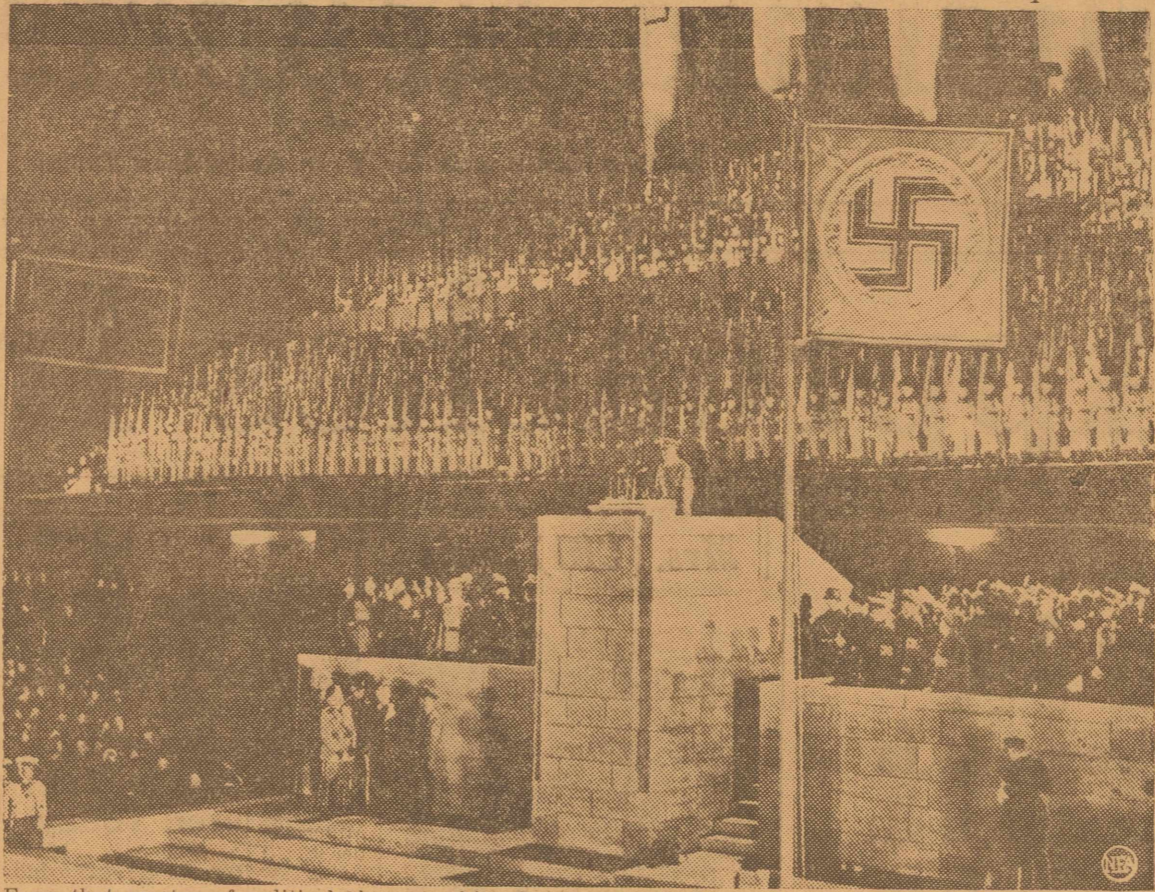

Total Car Sales in September Show Gain

AUSTIN, Oct. 13.—Total sales of new automobiles in Texas during September increased moderately over the like month last year, but declined sharply from the preceding month, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas. Sales in the intermediate price group made the best relative showing.

Reports to the bureau from fifteen representative counties give total sales of 4,698 cars, an increase of 4.5 per cent over September last year, but a decrease of 18.1 per cent from the preceding month.

Aggregate sales during the year to date for the fifteen counties were 51,088, a decline of 2.6 per cent from the corresponding period a year ago.

Mussolini Gets a Lesson in Nazi Showmanship

Even that master of political showmanship, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, is enthralled by the spectacle Nazi geniuses arranged for his greatest public appearance in Berlin. Il Duce, accompanied by General Goering and Joseph Goebbels, stands on the lowest platform to the left of the high rostrum and cranes his neck to watch Chancellor Adolf Hitler address the 1,000,000 Germans assembled on May Field. Standing behind Hitler are tier on tier of soldiers, each guarding a banner in a formal demonstration of loyalty and might. Later Mussolini took the rostrum.

The Town Quack

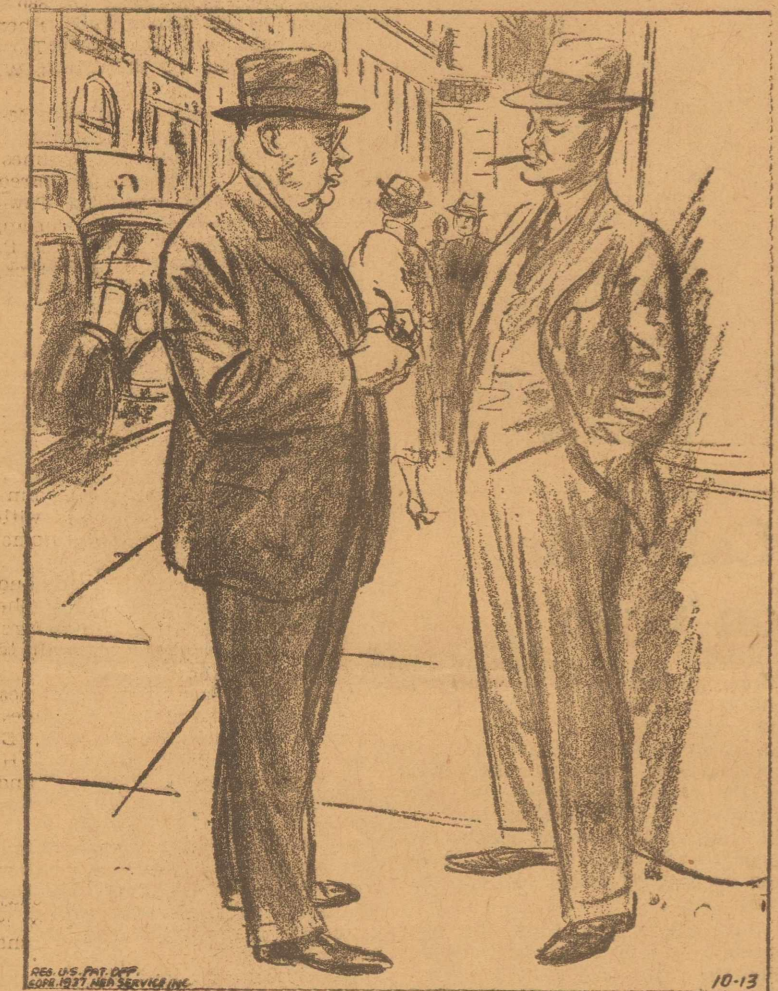

A column in the magazine "West Texas Today" is entitled "Augurin" with John M. Hendrix. John, in the October number says: "West Texas cattle country is divided by its cattlemen for ready reference into a series of subdivisions referred to by them as 'countries.' Inquire of one as to where his ranch is and he will answer: 'In the Midland country,' or whatever section he may hail from."

And, we might add to John's comment that when they live in the Midland country, they usually throw out their chest while making the reply. However, it's got to where some of them throw their chests out a little low. Roy Parks, Eb Dickenson, O. B. Holt and Donald Hutt have a lower chest expansion than George Rathif, Elliott Cowden, Hill, George Bedford and Clarence Scharbauer. Junior Wednesday Club Host for Musical Tea

Crystal Ballroom Is Scene of Affair Complimenting Women's Wednesday Club; Autumn Colors Feature Motif

Opening the list of important social affairs for the week was the musical tea given by the Junior Woman's Wednesday club in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Scharbauer Tuesday afternoon from 4.30 until 5.30 o'clock. The affair honored members of the senior organization, the Women's Wednesday club and the invitation list included members of the Federated clubs and mothers of the Junior Wednesday club members.

Baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and baby's breath decorated the ballroom, setting the motif of fall colors which was followed in appointments for the tea.

In the receiving line were: Miss Lucille Thomas, president and Mrs. All Reese, vice president of the Junior Wednesday club; Mrs. W. T. Walsh, president, and Mrs. Geo. Glass, vice president, of the Senior Wednesday club; and Mrs. J. M. Caldwell, sponsor of the Junior organization. All, as well as those presiding at the tea service, wore corsages of tansman or of red roses.

All members of the host club were included in the house party.

Musical selections were presented

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge or correct social usages by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. What is wrong with the introduction "Mr. James, this is Miss Moore?"
2. Is "I want you to know" a less formal introduction than "May I present?"
3. May a person who has been introduced to another say "I'm happy to make your acquaintance?"
4. If you are introducing a young married woman and a much older unmarried woman whose name should be spoken first?
5. In introducing a woman and a Catholic priest is it correct to present her to him?

What would you do if—Someone wants to introduce you to a person in whom you have no interest—
(a) Say, "I don't have the least desire to meet him?"
(b) Show the stranger by a disinterested acceptance of the introduction that you are not interested in him?
(c) Acknowledge the introduction graciously?

- ANSWERS.
1. It is backwards. The man should be presented to the woman.
 2. Yes.
 3. No. "How do you do" is the correct way to acknowledge an introduction.
 4. The older woman's.
 5. Yes, that may be done. Best "What Would You Do". Solution—"c".

School Orators to Argue Unicameral Legislature in Tex.

AUSTIN, Oct. 13.—Periodically the question arises of making the Texas legislature a unicameral body. This year the topic will be debated by hundreds of schoolboy and schoolgirl orators over the state as it forms the 1937-38 subject for the Texas Interscholastic League debate tournament. A bulletin entitled "Texas Legislature: One House or Two" has been prepared by Dr. Joe M. Ray, former instructor in government at the University of Texas, and has been published by the University Bureau of Public School Interests, which is the state executive office for the league. This bulletin contains both affirmative and negative briefs on the subject, and reading material on both sides, including statements from members of the Texas legislature, articles by authorities on government, and newspaper and magazine editorials.

Attendance of children in the elementary schools of England is expected to decrease by 1,000,000 in the next 15 years, due to the declining birth rate and other factors.

65 PER CENT OF CITIZENS GET BOOKS FROM TEXAS UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

AUSTIN, Oct. 13.—Owing to the fact that Texas has only 60 free public libraries and 15 county libraries, the only library agencies through which 65 per cent of the citizens of the state can obtain free reading material are the Extension Loan Library Bureau of the University of Texas and the state library in the capitol. It is pointed out by Miss LeNora Dimmitt, chief of the university bureau, that a free state-wide package library service is offered by the university bureau and a book service by the state library.

"Of course neither of these services can fill the great need for more libraries in Texas, but the frequent requests received for material show that they serve a very useful purpose and that many people who do not have access to public libraries are eager for an opportunity to read," Miss Dimmitt said.

"Since package libraries are mainly on important current topics on a great variety of subjects the circulation of thousands of them by the Extension Loan Library Bureau each year indicates that a large number of people want to become informed on what is happening in the world today in all fields of activity—politics and government, economic and social conditions, literature, education, art, agriculture, industries, health, music, science, etc. Requests are received from practically every county in Texas. Most of them are from persons in towns and rural communities where there are no libraries, but some are from

The following is a copy of an order passed by the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas, at a regular meeting in August.

It is ordered by the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas, that the following Districts of the County of Midland be designated as Voting Precincts Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, and shall be comprised of the territory within the following boundaries, to-wit:

libraries to supplement the resources of their libraries."

A package library is a collection of material, all on the same subject, she explained. It consists of articles clipped from current periodicals and of pamphlets, bulletins, and reports printed by educational institutions, state and national bureaus and organizations, and commercial houses. For instance, a package library on "Limiting Taxes on Tangible Property in Texas" prepared for debate purposes contains 17 pieces. Seven are articles from magazines; three are reports and recommendations from the Texas state tax commissioner, state auditor, and Texas tax survey committee; two are compilations of debate material containing a brief, a bibliography and a large number of selected articles on both sides of the question, one a bulletin printed by the University of Texas Interscholastic League and the other by the National University Extension Association; three are pamphlets and statistical tables published by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Union National Bank of Houston, and the Texas State Teachers' Association.

There are many ways in which package libraries are used to advantage in school work. The history teacher finds them of value in presenting current events. The English teacher uses them in composition work, as there are many interesting subjects on the lists which when assigned for themes give the student information on the important topics while giving the necessary drill in composition. Teachers of geography, civics, and other subjects borrow material on topics discussed in their classes. Latin teachers find a wealth of material to help in making their subject interesting. Students interested in debating can obtain material on both sides of almost any important debate question. Libraries have been made up on many educational topics which teachers find helpful in keeping in touch with the latest ideas in regard to their profession and in preparing papers for institutes. Material is also furnished to aid in planning school entertainments.

The Extension Loan Library Bureau helps the public and school libraries in the state by supplementing their resources on subjects of current interest. There are also a bureau can supply information on many Texas subjects not always found in small libraries. In order to assist the Texas libraries in their efforts to build up their resources and increase their circulation and to avoid duplication of service, the bureau requires that individuals having access to a library make number of magazines in special fields, such as literature, art, and music, that are not found in the files of all libraries. It is in supplying material from such sources as these that the Extension Loan Library Bureau can render the greatest service to the libraries. In addition to this service the their requests through the local librarian.

Collections of materials are available on many subjects which are studied and discussed in women's clubs. These may be borrowed to help the individual members in preparing papers from time to time during the year. The Extension Loan Library also has a good collection of material about women's club and their problems under such topics as value of federation, parliamentary practice, club houses, and activities of women's clubs. The yearbooks of many Texas clubs and study outlines from such sources as the American Art Bureau and the University of North Carolina Extension Division are kept on file and may be borrowed by yearbook committees. Clubs are urged to send copies of their yearbooks to the Extension Loan Library to add to this collection.

Material is available on many topics suitable for public forum discussion, such as unicameral system of legislation, social security, and supreme court and the constitution. County home demonstration clubs find package libraries on such subjects as farm home improvement, county unit for health, and food preservation of much interest. Parent-Teachers Associations use material on many of the subjects listed in this bulletin under the headings of education, home life and home building, and mental and moral problems. Civic clubs and city officials will find many topics of interest to them under such headings as government and politics.

Aside from organizations, individuals often become interested in some current topic and want to get more information on it than is to be found in the three or four magazines and newspapers to which they are limited if they live in towns without libraries. These people can borrow package libraries containing articles taken from twelve or fifteen magazines presenting different views of the subject. Men and women who are called upon to make addresses are glad to get a package library containing the latest information on their subjects. Housewives, who feel that they can manage their households more efficiently by reading how other women manage theirs, write to the university bureau. Farmers seeking information on farm cost accounting, agricultural pests, and similar subjects borrow literature which has been collected from agricultural colleges, experiment stations and state and federal agricultural bureaus.

Finally, as a cooperative service the Extension Loan Library Bureau and the Bureau of Public Extracurricular Activities have collected several thousand plays which are lent for one week to schools, clubs, and community theatres for examination to assist in choosing plays for production.

WINTER OIL-PLATING

You know that your engine must be oiled instantly throughout, or be tortured at every cold start.

You can imagine trying to rush cold oil everywhere at once, through scores of tiny oil-holes and passages.

How long before lubricant gets to where it is badly needed?

Less than no time at all!... with Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented.

This is the Winter oil that gives you far greater surety than mere fast flow. It OIL-PLATES your engine.

Before any other oils can even start to go where needed, exclusive OIL-PLATING has already arrived! In fact, it's been there all the time, because Germ Process action on all moving parts leaves them lastingly OIL-PLATED.

OIL-PLATING cannot drain down. It smooths and speeds the first turn of your ice-cold engine. Saves battery juice. And you save quarts of oil this Winter, by changing now to Germ Processed at your Conoco Mileage Merchant's.

Write for "The Story of Oil-Plating", Dept. 1, Conoco, Ponca City, Okla.
